ANSWER: About all the astronomy that a boy ever wants to discuss with a girl is her starry eyes. So if you are taking up scientific subjects simply to make a hit with the opposite sex, I should advise you to lay off and devote your mind to dress.

Fall Fashions Will Walk Straight and Narrow

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK (NEA). — The fashion spotlight for fall is focussed sharply on the slim and narrow line of the sheath dress. It's seen in daytime and in evening. It may be straight and unadorned or it may have panels which float from the waist, giving it freedom and motion. But no matter how it's done, it's seen everywhere.

A budget-priced basic sheath dress which can voncert to wear for many occasions is the brain child of designer Greta Plattry. She uses menswear flannel in the new charcoal grey for her sheath. There are shoulder bands which button on and off with shiny pearl buttons and thus help effect the conversion trick. There are trouser pleats over the hips and there is a narrow natural calf belt.

For country wear, this sheath can take a lantern-sleeved cotton blouse or a sulphur yellow and grey rib knit worsted jersey blouse. Then, as the shadows lengthen, the straps can come off and with a velvet belt, a colorful chiffon square and pearls, it's a baretopped dress for dinner.

But this dress can go formal, too, and take its place among handsome evening gowns. To become a short evening dress, it needs only the addition of a full-gathered overskirt in ruby red rayon ottoman, floating free from the waist. Given rhinestones or pearls, it's a dress for a big evening.

Scottish Girl Has Pioneer Spirit In Work

REGINA, — (CP) — Margaret Millar, Scottish physiotherapist, likes to start from scratch.

That's why she came from the Shetland Islands to develop in Regina a rehabilitation clinic for people suffering from arthritis and rheumatism.

Glasgow-trained, Miss Millar went to the Shetlands shortly after the Second World War to set up a clinic. When she left, it was running smoothly with three physiotherapists, a radiologist, a receptionist and an orthopaedic splint-maker.

After "starting from scratch—and building up the clinic, Miss Millar said, an ordinary routine job did not appeal to her.

"So I decided to try a new country."

A few weeks ago she arrived in Regina to work with the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Likes Extra Freedom

"One thing I like about Canada," she said with a chuckle behind her soft Scottish burr, "is that you can marry and keep right on with your job. They don't do much of that in the old country."

Miss Millar said one reason why she likes her job is that she works with people of all ages from tiny babies to the really old

Infants injured at birth, so that they are partly paralyzed respond well to exercise and gentle massage, she said, providing treatment is begun soon enough

Two babies to whom she had given treatment at her clinic in the Shetlands were developing normally when she left, she reported.

Miss Millar is impatient to get the Regina clinic fully organized As soon as possible she hopes to be off to another part of the province to "start from scratch."

Delay Elopement Till House Built

GRAAF - REINETT, South Africa — (CP) — Elopement by instalments was practised by a young couple here after the girl's father opposed the marriage.

The couple first secretly built a house to occupy after they were wed. When it was ready, the girl, a school - teacher, gradually transferred her clothes there

When school closed she bought a return ticket to Johnannesburg, telling her father she was going to visit friends there. She got off the train at nearby Middleburg where her fiance was waiting with a special licence, and they were married.

From Middleburg they went to Port Elizabeth for a honeymoon and then returned to tell the bride's father: "we're married."

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK

Sprucing Up Party Menus Easy With French Pastry

The Examiner's Cookbook series third offering—250 Classic Cake Recipes — has any number of tempting pictures and recipes for party cakes but perhaps the fanciest of all to serve—and one that is surprisingly easy to make—is French Pastry.

Here is the basic cake recipe suggested, although you can use any rich cake you might prefer:

French Pastry

4 cups sifted cake flour
4 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup shortening
2½ cups sugar
1 cup milk
10 egg whites
1 teaspoon almond extract
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening with sugar until fluffy. Add sifted dry ingredients and milk alternately in small amounts, beating well after each addition. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in egg whites and flavorings, pour into greased large shallow pan and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool.

And now for the trimmings:

Cut cake into oblongs, squares, circles, diamonds, crescents or any desired shape. Spread top and sides with Butter Frosting. Color some of the frosting and decorate cakes using different tips of the pastry tube. Fill hollows with jam. Press chopped nuts, grated or shaved chocolate or toasted cocoanut into sides of frosted cakes. Often rounds are cut with centres cut from half rounds so that a hollowed round may be placed on top of a whole round and the hole filled. The entire pastry is about 50.

then frosted and decorated. Makes

This is just one of many delightful suggestions found in this exciting addition to your cookbook library. To obtain your copy clip a coupon from page 2 of any issue of this newspaper and present it with 25c at The Examiner Office, from your Examiner carrier, or at Braund's Home Food Markets.

WEEDS

NOTICE is hereby given to all occupants and owners of property within the City of Peterborough that the provisions of the Weed Control Act will be rigidly enforced.

Section 4 of the Weed Control Act states: "Every occupant of land or if the land is unoccupied the owners shall destroy all weeds designated noxious by the Regulations as often in every year as is sufficient to prevent the ripening of their seed."

Occupants and owners of land are advised to exercise great care in destroying all noxious weeds before they mature seed. If these precautions are not taken, the Weed Inspector may exercise his authority and may enter on property for the purpose of destroying noxious weeds.

The co-operation of everyone is solicited in a general cleanup of noxious weeds.

Tito Break With Reds Giving Yugoslavia New Art Freedom

By RONALD PRESTON

BELGRADE — (Reuters) — A more liberal attitude towards art and art criticism is emerging in Communist Yugoslavia as a result of Marshal Tito's break with Russia and the Comiform.

Soviet models of regimented art and strait-jacketed art criticism are, according to informed Yugoslav circles, now being abandoned in favor of greater freedom in artistic creation.

One high Yugoslav government official commenting on the break with the Cominform said: "It has done us good, it has been like a breath of fresh air. We have begun to think for ourselves."

But Yugoslav partymen would hotly deny any suggestion that their new self-chosen path to greater freedom in the arts approaches western ideas on the subject or means abandoning Communist principles.

They continue to insist on the tenets of Marxist art criticism condemning "Bourgeois Decadence" and "Formalism" (lack of social content) in pictures films, drama and books, and judging them by the degree to which they express "socialist realism" and reflect "our new socialist reality."

Need "Freedom"

But they claim to differ from the Russians and their satellites in that they believe in good art, socialist or otherwise, cannot be produced by government directives but needs a degree of freedom.

A number of articles, believed to be officially inspired, have been appearing in "Knijevne Novine," organ of the Union of Yugoslav Writers, recently on this subject.

One, written by Vjeksolav Africh, a Yugoslav film producer and head of the state film school, openly demands "an end to the blind copying of the art of the Soviet Union."

"Soviet art and its treatment cannot be an xample for us in everything and we must purify its influences," the writer stated bluntly. "Our duty is to increase and deepen Marxist aesthetics and just because of this we must analyze the experience and set-up of Soviet art and not accept it as ready money."

Africh said art in Russia, like Soviet science, has tended towards a "narrow dogmatism."

Compensation Claims Still Coming For Damage In UK During War

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON (CP). — The British Treasury has already paid out more than $2,800,000,000 as compensation for damages caused by enemy action in the Second World War. And claims are still pouring in more than five years after the last German raider was driven off. This year alone, payments are expected to exceed $230,000,000.

But members on both sides of the House of Commons are far from satisfied that full justice has been done for thousands who were tardy in registering their claims.

Introducing the subject in the House, Sir Herbert Williams, Conservative member for Croydon East, said injustice was being suffered by a great many people who had lost everything they possessed. Their claims had been rejected by the War Claims Commission because they were not presented on time.

No one, he said, wanted to impose new burdens on the state, but justice ought to be done. Among those who stood to lose by inflexible adherence to the letter of the law were many former servicemen who had assumed their wives had made a claim.

R. Morley, Labor member for Itchen, said that in Southampton more than 5,000 homes had been destroyed by enemy action. He had submitted 300 claims to the commission but only 10 had been accepted.

Both Sides Agree

"There is agreement on both sides of the House in this matter," he said, "the only people from whom we do not seem to get agreement are the Treasury representatives on the front benches."

R. Assheton, Conservative member of Blackburn West, believed it was the duty of the House and the Chancellor to hold the scales evenly between claimants who had not been satisfied and the taxpayer.

Replying, Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that with 1950 settlements, total claims payments will amount to more than $3,000,000,000. That meant approximately £90 ($279) was being paid by every family in the country to people whose houses or property had been damaged.

When it came to collect that money, he said, the atmosphere of the House was quite different.

"We are all satisfied," he went on, "that the commission should continue for the present at any rate to admit late claims on the basis they are admitting them now. But some day we must come to an end of this process. We shall have to give proper notice."

Calgary Rainmaker's Tools Just Moon And Magnets

CALGARY, July—(CP)—Dismissed lightly by meteorologists and scientists but sought after by many prairie farmers, Donald S. Johnston, of Regina, and his "universcope" are operating in the west again this crop season.

Johnston is a professional moisture manufacturer and his work has won him scores of followers in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The experts say the weather is dependent upon the sun. But the Reginan claims that his universcope, a contraption 16 inches high and roughly the size of a large electric fan, can draw—and has drawn—rain.

The machine consists of two magnets, pivoted one upon the other, which sway back and forth like a metronome.

"The magnets produce electromagnetic forces which draw electrical powers from the moon, causing the moisture in the air to condense and fall as rain," he explains.

Diverts Clouds

With his machine, Johnston says, he can also coax moisture-bearing clouds from the Pacific Ocean or the Gulf of Mexico, depending on the position of the moon, to refresh and nourish parched prairie fields.

The rainmaker has received some strange assignments in his time. Residents of a summer resort where the lake level was decreasing rapidly once asked him to accept the job of refilling the lake on a per-foot rise basis.

On another occasion, officials of a western rodeo hired him for the duration of the show. Then they impounded his machine to help ensure clear weather.

Johnston operated his machine in Calgary the week preceding the annual stampede. Everyone breathed a sigh of relief when he left before the start of the show.

But it rained anyway during stampede week—after the Stoney Indians, in a fit of pique, held a rain-dance.

Obituary

MRS. MARY HEFFERNAN.

Mrs. Mary Heffernan, 220 Munroe Ave., died today in hospital after a short illness.

Born in Douro, she married William Heffernan, who died more than 25 years ago. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Doherty and was a member of Immaculate Conception Church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. E. T. Newsom (Christina), Mrs. R. Stenner (Mary), one son Joseph, one grandson, Robert Stenner, all of Peterborough, and one sister, Mrs. Michael Heffernan, of Otonabee.

Funeral will be Saturday from the Duffus Funeral Home to Immaculate Conception Church for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Immigrant Likes The Soft Life

BRANTFORD, Aug 3 (CP).—Albert Balassy, 20, a Hungarian with a confusing immigration record and a penchant for the "soft" life of a sanatorium patient, was sentenced Wednesday to three months on an industrial farm for refusing to work.

Balassy first entered Canada about three years ago when he jumped a French ship at Quebec. After a short-lived freedom, he was caught and deported to France.

Two years ago he stowed away on another French ship, swam ashore when it docked at Quebec. After a week on a farm he hitchhiked to Hamilton.

There he wangled his way into a sanatorium for treatment of tuberculosis. Doctors found he had had the disease but was cured. They asked him to leave but he refused. Sanatorium officials called police and Balassy served three months at hard labor after conviction of a vagrancy charge.

Soon after his discharge he came to Brantford, entered the Brant sanatorium. There too, he was found free of tuberculosis and was asked to leave He refused. Wednesday, Magistrate R J. Gillen sent him to the Burtch Industrial Farm because he was "able to work or otherwise support himself but did refuse to do so."

Story Of Russ Subs Lie–Moscow Paper

MOSCOW, Aug. 3 (CP).—The New Times today ridicules Canadian authorities for spreading rumors on what it calls alleged Russian submarines off the Canadian coast.

The weekly newspaper said "submarines should be sought not in the ocean but in the inkwells of Canadian newspaper liars."

The New Times says Canadian authorities needed "Soviet submarines in order to distract the attention of the Canadian public from the "disastrous" armaments race into which the government was forcing the country.

Commoner Top Man On Princess Date List

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP). — A handsome young commener moved to the fore today in Britain's favorite guessing game: who will marry Princess Margaret?

He is 26-year-old William Wallace, son of the late Capt. Euan Wallace, a one-time Minister of Transport.

Wallace made his latest public appearance with the Princess as a member of a party of four last night at the Palladium Theatre.

Tea-table gossip noted that Wallace has been seen with the Princess more often lately than the Earl of Dalkeith. Until a fortnight or so ago the Earl of Dalkeith had been generally regarded as Princess Margaret's No. 1 escort. The Princess will be 20 on Aug. 21.

Check Holiday Traffic

TORONTO, Aug. 3 — (CP) — Travel Minister Cecile of Ontario announced today that two checks on the volume of motor traffic entering and leaving Ontario will be made during August.

Checkers stationed at provincial and international boundary crossings will record the number of automobiles and passengers moving into and out of the province.

"The survey will be made without inconvenience to the travelling public," Mr. Cecile said.

Remove Highway Signs

TORONTO, Aug. 3 — (CP) — The Ontario Highways Department is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the conviction of persons responsible for removing department signs on the Queen Elizabeth Highway.

Removal of the signs, which warn against the operation of fruit stands on the highway, is thought to have some connection with the prosecution of stand operators in the district.

The Highways Department banned the stands from the highway on the ground that they created a traffic hazard.

Indian Tribute

NEW DELHI — (CP) — Paying tribute to the late W L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister Nehru said: "I came to look on him . . not merely as a great statesman of Canada who had played a notable part in building up that country, but also as a friend for whom I had respect and affection."

"The Luckiest Man"

KITCHENER, Aug. 3 — (CP)—James Scherrer, 18, who calls himself "the luckiest man alive," told today how he fell asleep at the wheel of his car, plunged into a guard rail and poised on the brink of a 40-foot plunge into the Winterburne Dam. Scherrer said the car's front wheels were suspended over the swirling water. He climbed out uninjured.

PARTLY OBSCURED BY TELEPHONE WIRES the Post Office is shown as it appeared before 1911, when the addition on the Water St. side was made. When they dug the foundation, a skeleton was discovered. Old-timers remembered a hotel that once stood on the present site of the post office, and the disappearance of a man who was a frequenter of the hotel. The skeleton was finally proved to be that of a white man, and several trinkets discovered with it increased the popular belief that the frequenter had been murdered and buried in the cellar of the hotel.

Hints On Horticulture

TOWN HOME BEAUTY:

Under the restricted conditions which pertain in nearly all towns the would-be planter cannot plan upon such a large scale as his country friend. He can, however, do much to beautify his home surroundings, for it is questionable if there ever was an exterior of any home that could not be improved by planting of some kind. If you have any lawn at all, keep it open, plant your shrubs or perennials separately at the extremities, also rose beds or borders in such positions, not in the centre of the lawn. Utilize a border of shrubs or one of perennials to function as a boundary to your property or to beautify or hide any structure such as a fence or wall or any outbuildings which may exist. What would be nicer than to screen off a chicken pen, whether it belongs to yourself or your neighbor, with a properly chosen planted border of shrubs? What would look better than a border of perennials in full bloom in front of a trellis or board fence, or a cedar hedge? That is, on the side facing your home or in a position where it is visible from your windows. These things will do well if they are not planted on the north side of a structure which will shade them too heavily. A southerly or south-westerly exposure will in all cases be best.

Base or Foundation Planting:

Plant the shrubs in groups as advised previously. Such planting will be permanent. In addition to grouping shrubs at the extremities of the lawn, also plant them as a base planting at the front of your house and sides if the position is satisfactory. Such a plantation is the best possible and should be employed exclusively where permanent effects are desired. Planting of herbaceous perennial subjects as base plantations is not proper nor effective, for where such are used the winter effects which are desirable are not possible, since the stems, not being woody, die each autumn. Base plantations of shrubs are equally valuable whether employed for country or town homes.

PERENNIAL HERBS:

Herbaceous perennials may be put to splendid use in augmenting te planting of shrubs around the lawn in either country or town. The border will aways appear to the best advantage when so placed that it has a background. For this reason it should be so planted that it serves as a boundary to the property or to a driveway If as a boundary, it may serve the purpose of hiding something of an unsightly nature. A southerly or south-westerly aspect is best for the border and the position should be fully drained.

The tallest subjects should be planted along the rear of the border and those of lesser height toward the front. There should be a general grading in size downwards from the rear. It is difficult to make a very pleasing border if such is less than six feet in width, one eight feet in width would be better. Unfortunately, in towns lack of space may prohibit this.

When about to beautify your home surroundings pin your faith largely to shrubs and perennials They are permanent and thus an asset of value. If the area is large enough to allow the use of trees, use them by all means. On small lots, however, the use of trees will large preclude the use of other subjects, as they will cast dense shade and will sparingly absorb the moisture from the area where the shrubs or perennials, as the case may be, are planted.

Sometimes perennials are planted in long beds which are often termed borders but to which there is access on both sides, as, for instance, between a driveway and lawn. Such borders merit a different treatment than the 'boundary border." The tall perennials should be planted in the mid-ground and the shorter ones be graded to the edges.

Whether in town or country the width of your borders should be governed by the width of the lawn. Lawns twenty-five feet wide should have a border about six feet wide; lawns fifty feet wide, borders eight feet wide; lawns 100 feet wide, borders 10 feet to 12 feet wide. Annual flowering plants may be used to advantage in narrow borders and areas, as perennials and shrubs cannot be grouped effectively in borders less than six feet wide. So annuals have their place. Annuals may also be used in properly placed beds.

Specimen shrubs when planted in the lawn should be so placed as to accent the groupings at the sides of the lawn or base of the residence, not planted anywhere throughout the lawn. The aim in all planting schemes should be to afford a frame to the lawn.

Even though you cannot achieve your desires in beautifying your home surroundings in one year, do it piecemeal. Perhaps you can only have a little border or bed of flowers this year. This will help, for the poet says:

"Little beds of flowers, little drops of paint.
Make a pleasant cottage out of one that ain't."

PLANTING SHRUBS:

Ornamental shrubs are either deciduous or evergreens, but by far the greater number belong to the first-mentioned class. Deciduous shrubs are the kinds which lose their leaves during late autumn. They are usually planted a little earlier than evergreens in Eastern Canada and the Northeastern States. Mid-April is the usual planting period for deciduous shrubs, May the best for evergreens. October is the best autumn month for deciduous shrubs, August for evergreens. In all cold winter localities, however, it is best to plant evergreens during May.

The method of planting is as important as the time. The soil should be deeply dug, for successful culture depends upon the formation of a healthy fibrous root system. If the soil is a heavy clay loam it is well to incorporate such materials as stable manure or humus in the form of decaying leaves, as these tend to mechanically open it, render it porous, and upon decomposition to supply the necessary plant food.

Holes large and deep enough for the reception of the entire root system should be dug, and when placing each shrub in position its roots should be spread out so that they radiate toward the circumference of the hole, in the bottom of which the soil should be forked finely; fine soil should be worked between and around the root fibres and at the same time the shrub should be gently moved to ensure even distribution of soil and proper separation of the rootlets, and after the root system is entirely covered the soil should be trampled carefully to firm it.

Water should be afforded if at time of planting the weather is dry or warm and the operation be finished by filling the hole to the ground level and raking the surface finely. When it is desired to plant shrubs in lawns it is good practice to excavate much larger holes than the diameter of their root systems, and if the soil is not of an apparently fertile nature it is well to mix it with leaf mould, semi-decomposed manure, or if possible good loam. When planting do not err by placing the roots on a hard, impervious surface, but fork deeply to afford drainage, place a layer of fine soil over the entire bottom, upon which spread the roots carefully in the manner previously advised.

Newly-planted shrubs may be mulched with straw in a half decomposed state, or with decaying leaves to conserve the moisture in the soil if planted in spring, or to prevent injury by frost if fall or winter planted. Rich, well-rotted manure should not be used as mulch until the shrubs have made new fibrous roots whose root hairs are capable of absorbing the food materials in solution which are rapidly formed in all fertile soils.

The proper spacing for tall shrubs is five feet, and for dwarf ones three and one-half feet in groups or masses. Practically all shrubs except evergreens should be pruned at planting. This is to counterbalance the loss of roots caused by lifting.

Judge Cote Dies Of Heart Ailment

QUEBEC, Aug. 3—(CP)—Mr. Justice Pierre-Emile Cote, who had sat on Quebec Superior Court bench since 1942 after a long career in provincial and federal politics, died in hospital here today of a heart ailment. He was 63.

Mr. Justice Cote was admitted to hospital last weekend after suffering a heart attack.

He entered politics in 1919 and was Quebec province's Roads Minister and Minister of Lands eries before his appointment to and Forests and Game and Fish-Superior Court.

Rebel Leader Gains Freedom

SINGAPORE, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that Capt. R. P. P. (Turk) Westerling, Java rebel leader, cannot be extradited to Indonesia.

Indonesia had charged Westerling with murder, robbery and arson and had asked Singapore to send him back for trial in connection with an abortive revolt he led against the Indonesian government last January.

For two days the former Dutch army officer, who received commando-type training near Stratford, Ont., in 1940, had listened with a bored expression to the legal arguments. He smiled broadly when the court announced the decision.

Asked where he intended to go when freed, Westerling said "I really don't know—probably to Holland."

Westerling was arrested here in February when he fled Indonesia after a revolt by his "Army of the Heavenly Host" collapsed. He was convicted of illegal entry and later of assault on his Indonesian room-mate in the cell where he was first confined.

When asked why he continues in his hazardous trade, Mattox replies: "I have a wife and two kids."

Soviet Trade Delegation Sent To Korea June 22

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS—(NEA)—The story I am about to relate may prove nothing more than the power of coincidence. On the other hand, it may give a clue to how the Russians reinforced their advisory command with the North Korean army on the eve of the invasion of South Korea on June 25.

You may judge for yourself. I shall merely tell of a name that was spoken in a cafe and of the train of memory and back-checking and surprsing discovery which followed.

Following the publication of my dispatch saying that Maj. Gen. F. A. Nessin, of the Russian army, was in command in North Korea, I began looking for evidence of other Russian agents who might have been transferred from Europe to Asia.

I was seated in a cafe one afternoon with an acquaintance closely associated with the Communist World Federation of Trade Unions. I told him what I was seeking. He sipped his mineral water for a moment and then said: "What have you heard about Efanov?"

The name rang a faint bell. I had once heard of a P. D. Efanov who was in charge of sabotage for the Cominform and WFTU. The report at that time was that he was working under the selfsame Nessin, then a civilian politician in France.

No one knew whether Efanov was a Red Army officer or a civilian agent of the Cominform. in Russia a man can be a civilian agent one day and a "political colonel" the next. Only the military technicians remain fixed. But even they are sometimes loaned to the Cominform in civilian capacities.

Two days later I mentioned Efanov's name to a French friend of mine. He is one of the rare Frenchmen who can speak and read Russian and follow the Russian press carefully.

My friend and I got out his files of Pravda and Izvestia and began pouring through the long, dull columns of official news.

Suddenly we pounced upon an item in the Izvestia of June 22, 1950—three days, mind you, before the North Korean invasion began. It reads, translated from the Russian, as follows:

DEPARTURE OR SOVIET TRADE DELEGATION TO NORTHERN KOREA

From Moscow to Pyongyang, at the invitation of the Central Committee of the United Trade Unions of North Korea, departed a Soviet trade union delegation consisting of comrades P. D. Efanov (leader of the delegation), P. M. Kireev and V. A. Sitnikov. (Tass)

I am unable to identify either of the two other members of the "trade union delegation." It is possible that they were merely small fry army officers.

As I said, the whole thing may merely be coincidence if the North Koreans were inviting visiting firemen from Moscow to talk over trade union problems on the eve of their invasion of South Korea.

Heads Summer School

KINGSTON, Aug. 3—(CP)—Queen's University Summer School Association, representing 700 teachers from all parts of Canada, last night elected Olive Delaney of Belleville, president. She succeeds Leonard Silverwood of Montreal.

Other officers: Honorary president, Pauline Biller, Niagara Falls, Ont.; vice presidents, William Lemmon, Kingston, and Anne Biller, Niagara Falls, Ont.; secretary, Earl St. Jean, Ottawa; associate Iris Sims, Kirkland Lake; permanent secretary, Ray Healey, Kingston.

Four Teams Remain In Eastern Tournament

KINGSTON, Aug. 3 — (CP) — Four teams remain to battle it out in the Eastern Ontario baseball tournament here. They are the Smiths Falls Royals, Brockville Memos, Picton Athletics and Kingston Leafs.

In tonight's semi-final and final, Picton will oppose Brockville and the winner will immediately play against Kingston. The surviving team will meet Smiths Falls, only unbeaten team in the tourney.

Yesterday's results: Smiths Falls 8, Picton 3; Kingston Leafs 6, Batawa 2; Smiths Falls 6, Brockville 4; Kingston Monarchs 3, Gananoque 1; Brockville 1, Napanee 0; Kingston Leafs 5, Napanee 2; Picton 5, Kingston Monarchs 2.

Face Prospect Of Isolation

NORTH BAY, Aug. 3 (CP) — Two large sectors of Northern Ontario face the prospect of complete isolation if the threatened railway strike becomes a reality Aug. 22.

An area nearly 200 miles long between Cochrane and Moosonee and a stretch of about 660 miles between North Bay and Timagami would be almost shut off from outside reach if employees of the Ontario Northland Railway strike.

These sections, containing about 30 sparsely populated centres, have no road connections. Rail is their only outlet except for a few which have nearby lakes suitable for small aircraft landings.

A strike would also paralyze long distance telephone and telegraph communications. The O.N.R. operates both services. Some arrangements would probably be made to supply emergency service only.

TV HELPS MAKE THE "H" BOMB — Scientists at the Atomic Energy Commission's Argonne National Laboratories near Chicago make use of three-dimensional television in handling, by remote control, dangerous radio-active materials. Here an AEC employee watches, via the TV screen, as an object almost a fifth of a mile away is handled by electronically operated arms. The Commission's 8th semi-annual report just received in Congress states that the US is "now under way" in the production of a hydrogen bomb and that progress has been made toward the development of atomic engines for use in both planes and submarines.

Judge Annuls Marriage, Charges Fraud

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 3—(AP)—A judge annulled a 10-year-old marriage Wednesday after the wife testified her six children were begotten by her husband's father.

Justice Raymond Knowles, of the State Supreme Court, granted an annulment for the marriage of Willert Herkey, now 28, and his wife, Agnes, 29, performed 10 years ago in Williamsville.

Mrs. Herkey testified she formerly was a domestic in the Herkey home.

"The general idea was for me to marry her so as to give the unborn child a name," the husband testified. "I was only 18 at the time . . . I always obeyed my father. I thought I was doing him a favor."

His 17-year-old sister testified that the family status of Mrs. Herkey was "no secret," and that the father was in love with her.

It was testified the the elder Mrs. Herkey was in hospital after the wedding and that she died four years later. Her husband, Ellsworth Herkey, was killed last summer in an automobile accident. He was 55.

Mrs. Herkey testified that her husband was "never anything to me. I just couldn't care for him I loved his father."

Judge Knowles said, "On the strength of the testimony given here, you have indicated that a colossal fraud has been perpetrated upon the public generally." He noted the extreme youth of the husband and his subserviance to his father in grantin the anulment.

Must Improve Conditions For Workers Says Watson

GRAVENHURST, Aug 3 (CP)—The head of Ontario's largest union local said Wednesday the free enterprise system is the most beneficial to the individual. But to survive it had to continue to improve conditions for the working man.

Earl Watson of Windsor, president of the 11,000-member Local 195 of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) said a middle ground must be found between "unrestricted capitalist exploitation" and state control.

He spoke at a summer convention of the Ontario Young Progressive Conservative Association.

"Just as the unity of human society can not be built upon class warfare, neither can the proper ordering of economic affairs be left to free competition alone," he said.

Would Curb Profits

He said governments should consider a curb on profits to guarantee a fairer share of profits to labor and "the inducement to make higher profits should be taken away through excess-profits taxes or other means." But he was opposed to uncurbed extension of government controls.

Wage increases alone would not solve the economic problems of labor because higher wages often gave "unscrupulous managements the excuse to raise prices." Stability of employment, protection of the dignity of the individual were just as important.

Trade unions "have no more right to suggest political philosophies to their membership than they have to suggest what religion to follow," he said.

Glad To Get Relief From Years Of Stomach Distress

Suffered With Gas and Pain in Stomach, Got Headaches, Dizzy Spells. Very Nervous. Couldn't Sleep—Tells How Syntona Helped Him.

Mr. William R. Cushing

To everyone suffering from stomach disorders, constipation, nervous irritability, fatigued run-down feeling, backache or rheumatic aches and pains this message will be of special interest. It is typical of the many men and women who have suffered the same way and who have found relief by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. Mr. William R. Cushing, Broughdale, Ontario, said in a recent report:

"For years I have been troubled with indigestion and constipation. No matter how careful I was in eating I would get pains and gas in the pit of my stomach. This would give me an awful distressed, full, heavy feeling in my chest and I would belch up hot, sour liquids. I became very rundown, nervous and couldn't get sound sleep at night. I was subject to frequent headaches and dizzy spells.

"After reading in the paper about other people getting such good results by taking Syntona I decided to try some and now I am only sorry I did not get it before. In a few short weeks this medicine has done more for me than anything I ever took before. It has rid me of the headaches and dizzy spells, my nerves are quieted down so I sleep well and I am certainly glad to be relieved of the gas, pain and distress in my stomach which troubled me for years."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Find out how it can help you, too.—(Advt.)

CANADA TO SEND TROOPS FOR KOREA

Won't Limit Army Size Claxton Says

Keep Track of Men Who Want To Fight In Korea

OTTAWA, Aug. 4—(CP)—The government, because of the world crisis is placing no limitation on the number of men enlisted in the regular ad reserve forces, Defence Minister Claxton said today.

He said they will take "all the qualified men" they can get.

In a statement on recruiting, he said speculation placing manpower targets at various figures in the new recruiting drive "are not justified."

"The simple fact is that ceilings have been removed and we are taking on all the qualified men we can get for active and reserve forces."

He also said:

1. The army, as one of a number of "important" recruiting steps, is eliminating the grade eight educational standard for recruits but they will still have to pass the so-called "M" test of general knowledge.

2. Staffs have been boosted to handle the biggest recruiting influx since the war. Training establishments are being built up to accommodate the flow.

3. The first report on the progress of the recruiting drive started July 20 will be issued next week. The applicants since that date have been "many times" more than in any corresponding peacetime period.

Keep Track of Names

The army said today it is keeping track of the men who enter recruiting offices and say they want to go to Korea. More than 700 have done so. Their names are being noted.

The army said applicants for enlistment are being asked if they will agree to serve anywhere. If they say they want to go to Korea, their names are taken and filed.

Likely 4,000 Men Sent In UN Force

Order Cabinet Men To Monday Session, May Recall House

OTTAWA, Aug. 4—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent is expected to announce Monday that a special Canadian force of ground troops will be raised for service in Korea and that parliament is being recalled to ratify the move, it was learned reliably today. Further steps to buttress the home defences are also anticipated.

Cabinet ministers have been considering the dispatch to Korea of anything up to a brigade group of 5,000 men but the force that is authorized will likely not be that large. But it will be in the thousands, possibly 3,000 to 4,000 strong.

It is considered likely that the government will not mention any specific figure, simply saying that volunteers will be sought for a special force. It would probably emerge as a mixture of veterans, regulars allowed to volunteer and of youngsters who missed the last war.

It is possible that the force will eventually become a permanent factor, kept in being to fight for the United Nations wherever new Koreas break out. Monday's announcement—after the third of a series of cabinet sessions on Korea—may not specify that the force is specifically for Korea but simply for the United Nations.

Whether the force continues, however, is something that depends on such factors as how long Korea lasts and the general international situation.

Expeditionary Force

Informed quarters said that unless the world situation darkens even further parliament is likely to be asked only to approve an expeditionary force and to take some further measures for home defence.

Pending Monday's meeting, cabinet has made no definite decision about the date parliament should be recalled nor how many troops should go to Korea. All ministers have been asked to be present then.

It was learned that External Affairs Minister Pearson made a secret trip to Washington this week to get background information to place before the series of cabinet sessions.

Mr. Pearson, it is understood, was accompanied on his plane flight by Norman Robertson, sec-

Egg Prices Keep High

OTTAWA, Aug. 4—(CP)—Canadian egg prices likely will remain high until next November, the Agriculture Department said today. At that time there likely will be a seasonal decline "when egg production of the 1950 pullets is sufficient to reduce prices to a lower level," the department said in its current review of Canadian agricultural trends.

Say St. Laurent May Reshuffle Cabinet Soon

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP).—Death of Labor Minister Mitchell and the tense international situation may lead Prime Minister St. Laurent to reshuffle his cabinet soon.

It is known that until a month ago Mr. St. Laurent had no plans for changes in his cabinet. But the situation has changed since then.

Canadian participation in the Korean conflict has increased the duties of Defence Minister Claxton, now in charge of all three branches of the defence services. There has been some speculation that an additional minister might be appointed to share the burden if the international situation becomes more acute.

In the Second World War, there was a separate minister for each of the three defence forces.

Fall Session

There have been some indications that a fall session of parliament will be called, possibly in September or October, to authorize the sending of ground forces to Korea. Any cabinet changes likely would be made before such a session.

The session might also be asked to authorize revival of the munitions and supply department which operated during the Second World War and handled the production, supply and purchasing of material needed by the armed forces.

The government has ready a blueprint of plans for re-establishment of the department.

The old love is 19-year-old Romanian princess Irinia Ghica, whom Flynn planned to marry in Paris next month. The Princess is in Paris, but Flynn has been doing the town with red-haired Patrice Wymore, 21, tall, pretty and personable whom he plans to marry some time in December.

In court last Tuesday as a witness in his suit to cut the $18,000-a-year alimony Flynn pays his first wife, Lili Damita, he told reporters he had no plans to marry again. "I couldn't afford it," he said.

14 Killed in Earthquakes

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 4 (AP).—Earthquakes that hit western Venezuela last night killed 16 persons and injured at least 70 others in Tocyuo, near Baquismeto, capital of Lara state.

The figure was given by the National Telecommunications office, which revised an earlier estimate of 100 deaths in Tocuyo, a coffee exporting centre with a population of 7,000.

Counter-Attack Turns Battle In Korea U.S. Troops Halt Reds

G.I.'s Wipe Out Entire Red Regiment In Bitter Hill Battle; North Koreans Pouring In Reinforcements

TOKYO, Aug. 4 — (Saturday) — (AP) — American forces battling to hold southeart Korea stopped strong Communist units in the North Korean all-out push today to cover the few remaining miles to Pusan. A United States counter-attack turned the battle. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, in a summary at 12.10 a.m. (10.10 a.m. EDT Friday), said 600 enemy dead had been counted on one front alone through Thursday.

The summary, some 24 hours behind front line reports, said 45 enemy tanks reported advancing to the battlefront turned out to be the hulks of burned-out machines abandoned along the road from Taejon to Chinju.

The original report of these tanks as a threat to the south came from briefing officers at MacArthur's headquarters late Friday.

The heavy fighting for the western approaches to Pusan, U.S. base on the southeastern tip of the peninsula 40 miles from the battle-front, was near the village of Wonbung, 10 miles east of Chinju.

Bears Brunt

The U.S. 25th Division bore the brunt of attack with the probability of United States Marine and other support in the battle or about to enter it.

A small reconnaissance of Marines saw 11 armed Koreans on a hill overlooking the Marine position. No shots were exchanged in this, the first front-line contact the Marines have had during the six-week war.

Sixteen Americans were killed and 40 wounded in a fight near the Marines' position.

(The Communists were believed to be massing up to three divisions for the south coast struggle, rushing infantry reinforcements along the west-coast corridor by night and deploying them southward from Kochang, which lies about 40 miles south-west of Taegu, Reuters said.)

To the north, Communist artillery shells arched into U.S. 1st Cavalry Division positions near Taegu, 55 miles northwest of Pusan along the new Allied Naktong River barrier line on the central front. A new clash was shaping up there.

Hundreds File Past Bier Of Mr. Mitchell

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP)—Hundreds of persons — government colleagues, trade union heads, diplomats, civil servants and personal admirers — today filed past the bier of Humphrey Mitchell.

The body of the British immigrant who rose from trade union ranks to hold Canada's labor portfolio for nearly a decade of its most difficult years lay in the Hall of Fame awaiting the capital's second state funeral in little more than a week.

While the carillon in the Peace Tower, high overhead, chimed "Rock of ages" and other hymns at intervals, the mourners passed down the long aisles of flowers to pause briefly before the mahogany casket, nod, and pass on.

First Visitor

One of the first was Mrs. Mitchell. She arrived before the general public was admitted at 10:30 a.m.

Hundreds of persons, who had waited in front of the centre block of the parliament buildings for more than an hour, filed past in single file.

Throughout the day, while the body lay in state from 10:30 to 3 p.m., a silent guard of sailors, heads bowed and arms reversed, kept vigil at the four corners of the casket.

The all-navy guard was in respect to Mr. Mitchell's pride in having served in the royal navy during the First World War.

Plane Engineer Convicted In Bomb Case

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Aug. 4—(AP)—For placing a home-made gasoline bomb aboard an air transport on which his wife and two children were among the 13 passengers, 32-year-old aircraft engineer John Henry Grant has been convicted of six counts of attempted murder.

A jury Thursday convicted him of trying to kill three crew members of a United Air Lines plane, his 29-year-old wife, Betty, and their two children, Marie, 6, and Bobby, 5. Sept. 5 has been set for sentencing. Maximum penalty is 20 years on each of the six counts.

The machine, placed in Mrs. Grant's luggage, went off prematurely before the transport left for San Diego April 17. No one was injured.

Mrs. Grant purchased $25,000 in air flight insurance, making her husband as beneficiary.

Heavily In Debt

He testified he was heavily in debt and that he and his wife had argued for months over finances and home management. He denied that love for Miss Betty Suomela, 31, former chief stewardess for American Airlines here, had anything to do with his action. He said he and Miss Suomela were merely friends.

The suitcase containing the bomb was dropped as it was being loaded on the plane. Flames flared up but were quickly extinguished. Grant grabbed the smoking suitcase and ran to his car in a nearby parking lot, where he was arrested.

He based his defence on the contention that at the last moment he had a change of heart and tried to retrieve the suitcase.

Britain Pledged To Boost Defence By 10 Billion

LONDON, Aug. 4—(AP)—Britain announced Thursday night she is ready to boost her defence spending to £3,400,000,000 ($10,540,000,000 Canadian) over the next three years if the United States will help her economy absorb the shock. If agreement with the U.S. can be worked out—and U.S. State Department officials indicated it could be—Britain will be adding about £220,000,000 a year to her current defence expenditure.

The proposed outlay would be 43 per cent greater than military spending announced before the Korean war started and would increase from eight to 10 per cent the portion of the national income spent on military preparations against Communism. It almost equals the entire budget outlay for the current fiscal year.

The announcement indicated that most of the increase would go for production of new arms and equipment for Atlantic Pact forces.

Britain's offer to enlarge her contributions to Western defence came in the form of a memorandum to the U.S. replying to an American request for such information.

Pleased With Offer

President Truman told a press conference in Washington Thursday night he was pleased with Britain's offer.

The statement said the total cost of the project "would be so heavy that it would be impossible to carry out the full program without substantial United States assistance in addition to completion of the European Recovery Program."

In return Britain offered to help meet the "deficiences in equipment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces of other nations."

In her memorandum, Britain pointed out she has large trained manpower reserves. She declared the "most urgent need is to increase production of defence equipment."

Resigned To Cost

The memorandum indicated the British government is resigned to a slowing down of efforts at economic recovery but "they are anxious to make this effort as their contribution to the defence of a free world in the present threatening situation."

The statement indicated the program would be carried out without the full controls used during the second world war. It said:

"It is the largest program practicable within the period envisaged and without restoring the direction of labor, the requisitioning of factories, or embarking on the slow progress of building and

Resort Owner Shot At Lodge

LITTLE CURRENT, Aug. 4 — (CP).—William McKay, 56, was shot to death with a deer rifle Thursday in a bedroom of his tourist lodge at nearby Bass Creek.

His 51-year-old wife, Ellen, reported suffering from a nervous condition, was charged with murder.

Police allege she shot McKay as he slept at the resort he operated five miles south of this Manitoulin Island town. He died in hospital here about two hours after a bullet was fired into his head.

The shot was fired police said, shortly after Mrs. McKay went upstairs; she had been talking with the cook in the kitchen of the lodge and said she was going to get her glasses.

Some 30 guests were at the lodge. A large calibre deer rifle was found near McKay's bed. A visiting United States doctor gave the wounded man first aid and brought him to hospital here.

Give Contract In H-Bomb Work

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—Senator Brien McMahon (Dem.-Conn.) confirmed today that a contract is being negotiated with the Dupont Company of Wilmington, Del., for work on the hydrogen bomb.

In a guarded statement earlier this week the atomic energy commission hinted as much but did not specifically say negotiations were under way.

McMahon, chairman of the Senate-House of Representatives atomic energy committee, made his statement to reporters.

McMahon said the committee approved of the contract which is being negotiated by the commission with Dupont. He said its purpose is "to further progress of the hydrogen bomb project."

Have World Series This Fall—Chandler

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4)AP)—Major league baseball is ready to do its part in the Korean war, but expects to have a world series this fall as usual.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler made this statement after calling on President Truman today.

Asked if the world series would be held—as they were throughout the second world war—he replied:

"As far as I know there is going to be a world series."

Miss Canada Betters 140 Miles-An-Hour

GRAVENHURST, Aug 4 (CP)—The speedboat Miss Canada IV roared over Lake Muskoka today "a few miles an hour" faster than the 140-mile-an-hour clip reached yesterday.

Charlie Volker, chief mechanic for the speedboat, declined to say the exact speed reached in today's test. However, he said a further speed trial is planned for later today, weather permitting, and the result of that run may decide whether the craft is ready for a crack at the world record at Picton, Ont., next Monday.

"We hope to make a run this afternoon before the rain starts," Volker said.

The world record, 160 miles an hour, was set a few weeks ago by Stanley Sayres in his boat Slo-Mo-Shun.

Early Arrests Hinted In Theft

TIMMINS, Aug. 4 (CP). — A senior police officer said today investigations have a "good angle" on the $100,000 Coniaurum Mines gold robbery and that there may be early arrests.

The statement came from Chief Charles McInnis of Tisdale township who, with inspector W. J. Franks of the Ontario Provincial Police, heads the hunt for the men who staged the biggest gold snatch in Canadian history.

Chief McInnis declined to elaborate on his "good angle" reference. Meanwhile, squads of police continued to comb the Barber's Bay district, 25 miles east of here, where the gold was abandoned. Roadblocks were maintained throughout northern Ontario.

Rear Admiral Says Strange Subs Russian

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 —(CP)—Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy said today that because information received from reliable fishermen about submarine activities off Canada's east coast there is little doubt that the undersea craft were Russian.

Rear Admiral Mainguy, flag officer, Atlantic coast, of the Royal Canadian Navy, was a passenger aboard the liner Empress of Canada sailing for Liverpool.

"The fishermen were most reliable and would have no reason to give out false stories," he said.

He added that had the submarines been those of other nations their captains would have reported their positions. No such reports were received at the time and date the fishermen sighted the subs.

Fugitive 25 Years Pardon Man 59

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug 4 (AP).—A gaunt, white-haired grandfather, sought for 25 years as a prison fugitive, surrendered on Thursday at North Carolina Central Prison, but left again less than three hours later with a pardon.

For 25 years, Charlie Johnson carried his secret. He settled in Essex, Ont., became a prosperous land-owner and the father of 14 children.

About a month ago, he sent word to Governor Scott he wanted to square his account. The governor turned the case over to paroles commissioner T. C. Johnson. The surrender, the token term and the pardon resulted.

Johnson, 59, escaped from Caledonia prison camp May 15, 1925. He was sentenced in March, 1924, in Wilkes County to five to eight years for accessory after the fact in murder.

The murder victim was Columbus Longbuttom. The defendants were Johnson's relatives — Doc Andrews, Hum Shew, Percy Johnson, Reece Johnson, Tom Johnson and Newt Nicholas.

The surviving co-defendants have signed affidavitt declaring their kinsman had no part in the crime and no knowledge beforehand that it was to be committed.

Queen Elizabeth Has 50th Birthday

SANDRINGHAM, Norfolk, England, Aug. 4 (AP).—Salvoes of artillery fired around the world saluted Queen Elizabeth on her 50th birthday today.

Royal Navy ships and military garrisons in Britain and throughout the Empire took part in the cannonading.

But the queen herself heard little of it. For her, the birthday was a walk in the garden and a family party at the Sandringham Royal Estate. Happy-birthday messages poured into the post-office here.

137 Two-Ton Tillies Declare War On Hips Form Fatties Anonymous To Bolster Diets

LONG BEACH, Calif., Aug. 4—(AP)—A bunch of two-ton tillies—137 of them—have formed Fatties Anonymous to fight that war on the hips.

The group operates on the same theory as Alcoholics Anonymous—helping each other. President and founder, a night club entertainer who weighs 281 pounds, announced the plan Thursday.

"I used to have a ship-shape figure," admits Miss 281, "but I developed an enlarged keel."

F. A. meets weekly in the V.F.W. hall (V.F.W. used to stand for Veterans of Foreign Wars but it is now dubbed Very Fat Women.)

Members take an oath to abhor fats, sugars, starches and carbohydrates.

The President says some of the members have dropped as much as eight pounds in two weeks. The average shedding is a pound a week.

If members feel like a chocolate eclair binge during the week, they call us another member—just like the A.A.'s do—and get a convincing sales talk against temptation.

5 Boats In Trouble Off Western Coast

VANCOUVER, Aug. 4 (CP).—A rash of fishing boat mishaps on the west coast today left five dead, missing or injured and two boats at the bottom.

Altogether, five fishing vessels were involved. One exploded and sank at Prince Rupert, 400 miles north of here, and another capsized off Vancouver Island and disappeared. Two were washed ashore half-submerged and another was taken in tow off the Washington State coast.

The body of Frederick E. Radler, 43, floated up on a Vancouver beach. His boat, The Garbo, was picked up two hours later near the mouth of the Fraser River.

Angry Trucker Stops To Bawl Out Driver 4 Cars, Trucks Crash In Rush Hour

TORONTO, Aug. 4—(CP)—Police said it all started when the driver of a light delivery truck jammed on his brakes at rush hour today and prepared to bawl out T. J. Esau, a motorist from St. Catharines.

Edgar Hughson, 21, of Toronto, driving a loaded tractor-trailer directly behind the delivery truck on the highway near the west-end exhibition grounds, tried to stop. His vehicle jack-knifed into the centre of the road and struck an oncoming car driven by Magistrate F. C. Gullen, 67, of Toronto, who suffered head injuries.

Magistrate Gullen's car sideswiped a car driven by A. E. Burr of Toronto. Cathleen Arabaski, one of three passengers in the Burr car, was injured.

Another tractor-trailer, driven by Harry Haun of Brantford, crashed into the first transport.

Now police are looking for the delivery-truck driver.

Report Russia Wants Korea In UN Debate

Council Beats Down Red Proposal On Communist China

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug 4—(AP)—Russia was reported ready today to demand that Communist North Korea be invited to take part in the United Nations debate on the Korean conflict.

This report came from usually well-informed quarters as the Security Council prepared to come to grips with the Korean question after beating down a three-day Russian attempt to sidetrack the issue.

Western diplomats are expected to offer vigorous opposition to any move to bring the North Koreans to the council table.

But with Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, presiding there could be a prolonged parliamentary wrangle. No representative of North Korea is in the U.S. now.

The council voted 8 to 1 Thursday to take up as the first order of business today, a United States resolution condemning North Korean defiance of the United Nations and asking all countries to help localize the conflict.

Amid bitter verbal exchanges the council twice again rejected Soviet attempts to put the question of seating Communist China in the U.N. first on the agenda.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik, who ended his seven-month boycott of the U.N. to take over presidency of the council Aug. 1, preceded the vote with a vitriolic attack charging the U.S. with provoking the war in Korea.

New Threat

U.S. delegate Warren R. Austin denounced Malik's charges as a new slander, a new threat, a new provocation. It was one of the most heated exchanges heard in the council chamber.

Austin said he doubted the Soviet Union wanted the council to go into "the question of whose design and whose command brought about the unleashing of this new wave of tragedy and bloodshed which has overtaken the international community."

"Inadvertently, he might expose the villain," he said.

Malik retorted that Austin was "hysterical and his hand wavings and shouting don't make any impression on me as a Soviet delegate. If he is trying to blackmail me he has directed his remarks to the wrong address."

Don't Want Truth

British delegate Sir Gladwyn Jebb commented Malik's "offensive and indeed irregular speech makes it completely clear that his government is determined to maintain what is the reverse of the truth."

Jean Chauvel of France branded Malik's charge of U.S. aggression in Korea "false" and added: "I repeat, it is false."

Malik also said the United Nations must choose between two paths "the path of war or peace." He asserted the Soviet Union and Generalissimo Stalin are the true leaders of peace.

Follow Russ Policy Of Huge Stockpiles

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—A air-tested Russian policy—accumulation of a huge stockpile of arms before embarking on a campaign—seems to be paying off for the North Koreans.

Since Russia generally is supposed to have mapped the plans for the attack on the Republic of South Korea and to be directing it now by remote control, it is assumed that all the vital planning of supplies was dictated by Russian army experts.

During the Second World War, Russia sometimes exasperated her western allies by delaying a needed offensive against the Germans for weeks and months. Not until she had built up vast supply dumps, far beyond any foreseeable requirements, would she launch the offensive.

This practice was applied to Russia's satellite army of North Koreans.

Harriman's Tokyo Flight Hints Big Political Talks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—A flying trip to Tokyo by W. Averill Harriman, President Truman's special assistant on foreign affairs, indicated today major far eastern political decisions may be in the making. He is scheduled to leave by air at once to confer with Gen. MacArthur.

Truman announced the trip at his press conference yesterday. He said Harriman would be accompanied by Gen. Lauris Norstad, Assistant Chief of Staff of the United States Air Force, and Maj.-Gen. Frank B. Lowe.

Purpose of the trip, Truman said, is for Harriman to discuss far eastern political questions with MacArthur.

Diplomatic authorities said issues which appear certain to be discussed and which are moving toward the point of American policy decisions include:

1. The 38th parallel—from the beginning of the Korean fighting there has been a question as to whether the United Nations forces under MacArthur's command should stop at the 38th parallel once they have generated a successful drive against the North Korean Communists. The line divides Northern and Southern Korea.

Others Should Decide

American officials are reported to feel the final decision should be worked out with other United Nations members opposing aggression in Korea.

2. A final Korean settlement — one of the big problems in the Korean crisis is what kind of final settlement the U.S. and associated members of the U.N should seek once they have achieved victory over the Communist invaders.

3. The future status of Formosa —American moves to protect the Chinese Nationalist island from Communist invasion have left this question wide open except that there is no longer any disposition here to write off Formosa to the Chinese Red regime. The island may continue under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek indefinitely but many Washington authorities believe its legal status must be clarified either in a Japanese peace treaty or through United Nations action.

4. A Japanese peace treaty—the dominant view in Washington now is that the U.S. should take the lead in getting ahead with a Japanese peace settlement as soon as possible.

Prices Slightly Up On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (CP) — Prices pushed slightly higher in dull trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Mild selling appeared in golds following yesterday's strong late advance but the list held steadq Moderate demand boosted selected issues upwards in the remainder of the market.

Industrials continued upwards for a fifth successive session.

Papers, utilities, steels, agriculturtes and refining oils attracted most of the buying. Liquors weakened.

Golds started strong in continuation of yesterday's gains but selling appeared in mid-session, reducing gains. Senior producers were ahead fractions and a handful of juniors added pennies.

Base metals brighteend slowly. Key stocks like Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Hudson Bay and Noranda rose fractionally, Waite Amulet, a heavy loser yesterday continued declining.

Railway Union Takes Exception To Criticism

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (CP). — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and the Brotherhood of Express Employees in a statement Thursday took exception to criticism by the railway companies of the unions' action in setting an Aug. 22 strike date.

The statement, signed by the brotherhood president, A. R. Mosher, said the companies and the public were "aware for many weeks that a strike vote was being taken in accordance with the requirements of Canadian labor laws."

It took "particular exception to expressions of 'surprise' and 'disappointment' emanating from the companies" and said the companies' reaction "shows again how admittedly responsible labor leaders and their unions are being misrepresented in the eyes of the public whenever it will suit the strategy of the companies."

The statement expressed regret that the unions' announcement should be used "to undermine our final efforts to find a peaceful solution to this complex problem."

Protest Violations

KINGSTON, Aug. 4 (CP). — A resolution protesting violations of the rights of religious minorities was passed Thursday at the 55th annual Eastern Ontario conference of the Free Methodist Church in Canada. The resolution, citing cases where crowds had broken up religious meetings, will be sent to Prime Minister St. Laurent and Justice Minister Gerson.

Erases Threat

Both sides probed and punched with men and tanks in the confusing engagement in the southern area. The North Koreans slipped to within 37 miles of Pusan at the village of Pongam, 18 miles east of Chinju. But an American regimental combat team erased that threat.

The fight Thursday morning forced the North Koreans to withdraw and delayed their build-up for the important push toward Masan, on the highway to the main American port of Pusan.

In a bitter four-hour battle, the 27th regimental combat team, led by Lt.-Col. John (Mike) Michaelis of Lancaster, Pa., virtually wiped out an entire enemy regiment.

The engagement raged through the hills and rice paddies eight miles west of Masan, about 35 miles from Pusan.

Reds Get Fooled

About 250 Communists slipped down a valley and bumped into the entire American battalion which had fought its way from behind enemy lines only a few hours before.

That was about 7 a.m. The Communists brought up another 600 troops at 9 a.m.

The artillery battery near the command post turned point-blank fire on the Communists from its big 155s. The American, hastily formed a defence line from which they could pour carbine and mortar fire into the attacking Reds.

Many of the attackers dashed into a little mud hut village. The artillery blasted it to bits. Bodies of the Reds were found today strewn among the ruins.

The U.S. 25th division was shifted swiftly southward to brace the line that had been held by the battle-worn 24th division. The 24th division was sent to another unidentified point.

American and South Korean lines north of Chinju now are east of the winding Naktong. But the extreme southern forces are south of the big stream and west of its delta, which is just outside of Pusan.

Pouring In Reinforcements

A Tokyo headquarters spokesman reported the North Koreans were pouring tank and infantry reinforcements to the southern battle sector.

He said Communist soldiers were coming into battle as recruits from Korean settlements in Soviet - dominated Manchuria. Many are Japanese-trained and veterans of the Chinese Communist wars.

Allied planes kept a sharp watch for troop trains bearing down from the north. Some railborne reinforcements snaked out of Chongjin, in North Korea, under a smoke-screen covering the marshalling yard.

The Communist Pyongyang radio meanwhile broadcast North Korean army communique saying Red forces, "with close cooperation of air units, destroyed American tank and artillery units and captured Kumchon" Wednesday.

No Air Support

American units, abandoned Kumchon in mid-week but there were no indications that the Communists had effective air support, if any.

Front line dispatches earlier said Kumchon, on the western sector, was abandoned in an orderly retreat when American forces withdrew to the Naktong river line.

The broadcast claimed the North Koreans got a large batch of war material when they occupied Hyopchon, another town on the western sector

Some North Korean elements were at the Naktong river line west of Taegu, arching artillery attacks across it at U.S. 1st cavalry division troops. These American forces are grouped around Taegu, 55 miles northwest of Pusan on the main allied road-rail supply line for the central fighting sector.

Allied planes watched for troop trains that may be trying to fill depleted enemy ranks. The Reds tried to get some trains out of Chongjin, in North Korea, by covering the rail yards with a smoke-screen.

The fresh troops, if not halted by planes, could reach the front in three days or less.

The Wongbun battle started Friday morning.

The U.S. Eighth Army reported 1st Cavalry Division patrols drew enemy fire in the Taegu sector. Taegu is seven miles east of the Naktong River. South Korean troops also were in contact with the Reds in the north.

Bridges Blown

1st Cavalry commanders said all bridges on the Naktong in the Taegu area had been blown after the Allied troops made their last defensive river crossing.

The first reported combat efforts of the newly-arrived U.S. Marines in Korea were staging strikes by carrier-borne marine planes in support of Allied Southern forces.

1st Marine and 2nd Infantry Division troops, fresh from the U.S. were at the front. The Marines have 47½-ton Pershing tanks, the largest the Americans have thrown into the Korean fighting.

The 25th Division, shortly after reaching the southern sector, hurled back a Red counter-attack, killing an estimated 600 Communists.

The North Koreans have four divisions on or possibly going to the southern front. Against them are the American 25th and possibly elements of the marines, 2nd infantry and the 5th regimental combat team from Hawaii. The 24th has been withdrawn to an unannounced position.

Contact Maintained

Contact was maintained on all sectors of the 125-mile front.

U.S. naval warcraft shelled Red troops 10 miles north of Yongdok on the east coast, 80 miles north of Pusan. Towns hit by naval shells there were Chucksandong, 10 miles north of Yongdok, Yangyang and Chummunijin, which is near the 38th parallel.

On the Korean west coast, an Allied war vessel knocked out a gun emplacement on the Onjin Peninsula, northwest of Seoul, the long-lost South Korean capital. The warship was not identified.

Air sweeps knocked out 12 enemy locomotives and damaged seven.

Fighters and bombers hit the southwestern naval base of Mokpo with small vessels as the targets.

Dock and rail yards at Yosu and Sunchon, in the deep south, were bombed and strafed.

Air reconnaissance said the Reds were building up strength in the Taejon area, 90 miles northeast of Chinju. These reserve troops could be rushed to the Wongbun sector or shifted to the Taegu front.

Shift To Offensive

In the early stages of the southern battle, the Americans jabbed sharply into the Communists, disorganizing efforts to mount a full-scale offensive.

Blows were traded on other sectors of the front. An American regimental combat team beat back a small Red attack at Pongam, 18 miles east of Chinju and eight south of Wongbun. This was their nearest approach Friday to Pusan.

A spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the situation was now "shifting from the defensive to the offensive" for United Nations forces.

Army To Call 62,000 Men

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—The Army announced today it will call out 62,000 individual reservists during September and October, "with or without their consent," for 21 months of duty.

They will come from a pool of about 185,000 male reservists who are not members or the organized reserve corps units. They will be used primarily to bring the National Guard and organized reserve units to full strength.

The first 32,000 will be in camp by Sept. 15, the remainder by the middle of October, the Army's announcement said.

Those called first will be between 19 and 25 years old.

Priority will be determined by the number of dependents. Those with no dependents are to be called first, those with one dependent, second, and those with more than one dependent later.

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion Public Weather Office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m. EDT:

Synopsis:

The greater part of the province will continue to have cloudy cool weather today. In Southern Ontario a few light showers are expected this afternoon while in Kirkland Lake, Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions the intermittent light rain and drizzle will continue.

It looks as though this prolonged spell of dull weather is finally coming to an end. Improvement will be slow particularly in the northeastern regions. Temperatures will be a little higher Saturday and with continued improvement, the weekend promises to be very pleasant.

Forecasts:

Eastern Lake Erie, Lake Huron, Niagara, Lake Ontario and Southern Georgian Bay regions. London, Toronto and Hamilton: Cloudy. Widely scattered showers this afternoon. Clearing tonight. Sunny with a few cloudy intervals Saturday. A little warmer. Winds west 15 today and Saturday, light both nights. Low tonight and high Saturday at St. Thomas, Trenton, Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines 55 and 75, London and Wingham 50 and 75.

Summary for Saturday: Some afternoon cloudiness.

Northern Georgian Bay Haliburton Western Kirkland Lake, Eastern White River regions and Sudbury: Cloudy with occasional light rain or drizzle ending tonight. Cloudy with a few sunny intervals Saturday, clearing Saturday evening. A little warmer Winds northwest 15. Low tonight and high Saturday at Muskoka, Killaloe, Earlton and Sudbury 50 and 70.

Tommy Farr Granted His Boxing Licence

LONDON, Aug. 4 (Reuters)—Tommy Farr, 36-year-old former British and British Empire Heavyweight boxing champion, who hasn't fought for 12 years, today had his application for a boxing licence granted by the British Boxing Board of Control.

Farr went 15 rounds against Joe Louis in 1937 in a world-title contest which the Bomber won on points.

Rumors have been circulating that he plans a ring comeback.

Bombing Raids Halt Production

TOKYO, Aug. 4 (AP)—American B-29 bombing raids on Hungnam have "definitely halted" production of ammunition and other war material in that North Korean industrial centre, the United States Far East air forces said today.

In three big strikes the B-29s dropped 1,300 tons of bombs on Hungnam war plants.

Lt.-Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, FEAF commander, said in an official release they damaged 85 per cent of the buildings, laboratories, power plants and warehouses in the target area.

Hungnam is the heart of the North Korean chemical and munitions industry, on the east coast 118 miles north of the 38th parallel.

B-29s hit the Chosen (Korean) nitrogen explosives plant Sunday, the Chosen nitrogen fertilizer factory Tuesday, and the Bogun chemical plant Thursday. All targets were described as "highly sensitive."

The plants were interrelated and dependent on each other, FEAF said.

The combine was the largest of its type in the Orient.

FormerQueenAsksAid As Displaced Person

GENEVA, Aug. 4 Reuters) — Former Queen Joanna of Bulgaria has asked the International Refugee Organizations whether she is eligible for aid as a displaced person, it was learned today.

At present living in Egypt, she is the widow of King Boris of Bulgaria, murdered during the Second World War. Now 43, she has two children. One is the exiled boy-king of Bulgaria, Simeon II.

It was not considered that Queen Joanna's request was for financial help as she is a wealthy woman. It would be for legal and political protection and perhaps for help in resettlement in another country.

Want Reaction

The purpose of their mission, made prior to the Wednesday session of the cabinet, was believed to be to get American reaction to a Canadian proposal to send ground troops and to get authoritative American opinion on the international crisis.

There are a number of questions that would have to be clarified, such as how a Canadian force—it's bound to be comparatively small in the sense that it will be fighting among divisions—would be integrated with higher formations.

The cabinet won't take any final action on calling parliament until after Monday's meeting when all ministers have been warned to be present. If they aren't, the step is expected to be taken by those who do show up. Five or six missed Thursday's meeting.

There already is majority agreement, it was learned, that Canada should provide a ground force and that parliament will be called to approve the step.

The broad outline of a plan of Canadian preparedness at home and aid to Korea is believed to have been shaped at cabinet meetings during the last two days.

The first was held Wednesday and lasted four hours. The second, which lasted three hours, ended Thursday night with the official announcement by Prime Minister St. Laurent that "earnest and detailed consideration" had been given the international situation and Canada's accelerated defence program.

He went no farther than that, except to say a third Cabinet session would be held Monday.

Reach Agreement

These developments lent weight to indications that there already is broad ministerial agreement on the principle of sending a ground force to Korea. It is believed parliament will meet probably late September or early October to ratify the move.

A volunteer force of 1,000 men specially designed to fight the North Korean Reds has been mentioned as a likely outcome of the Cabinet sessions.

The Prime Minister's statement, while making no direct reference to Korea, said the Cabinet studies had been carried out in accordance with the government policy announced last July 19.

This referred to the prime minister's statement on that date that no ground troops would be sent to Korea "at this stage" but that "immediate consideration" would be given to Canadian participation in any international force recruited by the United Nations for Korea.

Believe 3rd Man Helped Bandits In Mine Robbery

TIMMINS, Ont., Aug. 4—(CP)—Police today are investigating the possibility that a third man with a car assisted the two bandits who attempted to steal $100,000 in gold from Coniaurum Mines Ltd., Wednesday.

A police authority said Thursday night the third bandit is believed to have been waiting in a getaway car while his confederates blew a safe and removed 216 pounds of gold bars, but that he fled when he heard the explosion that cracked the safe.

The gold was later recovered in the charred automobile which the other two bandits stole from the mine watchman to make their getaway and which later caught fire and was abandoned.

Meanwhile, police revised their theory of faulty brakedrum had set the stolen car ablaze. They now believe acetylene, leaking from a tank used in blowing the same, exploded and caused the fire.

Search for the men has been widened and every available Ontario Provincial Policeman is taking part. One official said he is inclined to believe it was "a local job" and that the bandits are still hiding out somewhere in northern Ontario.

Before the Korean war Britain's defence budget amounted to £780,000,000 a year. The addition of £100,000,000 was announced after the fighting started.

The memorandum envisaged a new average cost of more than £1,100,000,000 over each of the next three years.

The announcement was hailed by the London press, although some papers thought it did not go far enough.

Parents Still Believe Little Girl Abducted

QUEBEC, Aug. 4 (CP)—Parents of three-year-old Nicole Renaud, whose disappearance two months ago remains a mystery, today issued a plea for renewed police investigation.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Renaud believe their child was abducted and told a newspaper interviewer they simply want the return of the little girl and will not demand punishment of anyone who may have been responsible for her disappearance.

Nicole Renaud vanished Saturday, June 3, while she was visiting a summer camp at Chateau Bigot, 10 miles from Quebec.

Police and 80 volunteers combed wooded areas near the vacation settlement without result.

Provincial police offered the theory that she had been killed by bears but officials of Quebec zoo did not agree.

Rather Face A War

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP). — Lord Mackintosh of Halifax said today war between Russia and the democratic countries of the world is "bound to come in one way or another." The president of the World Council of Christian Education told reporters he "would rather face a war than come under the yoke of Soviet Russia."

Man and Wife Murdered

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (AP). — The beaten and bullet-pierced bodies of a man and wife were found in their northwest side home today.

The body of Andrew Kondos, 55, a railroad freight handler, was found in a bathroom and his wife, Caroline, 51, in the basement. Each had been shot several times.

Protests Law Red Arrested

McKEESPORT, Pa., Aug. 4—(AP).—One man was arrested and another escorted from this western Pennsylvania community Thursday after they protested passage of an ordinance requiring Communists to register with police.

The man arrested was listed by police as Steve Nelson of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Communist party in western Pennsylvania. He was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest, spent several hours in jail and was released in $35 bail for a hearing today.

Dave Grant, also of Pittsburgh, was escorted by police to the city limits. He was not arrested.

Both answered "Yes, I am" when asked if they were Communists.

They protested passing of the bill at a council meeting.

Memorial Service For Mrs. V. Massey

LONDON, Aug. 3 (CP) — A simple memorial service was held in Mayfair's Grosvenor Chapel today for Mrs. Vincent Massey, well-known here for her wartime work on behalf of Canadian servicemen.

Mrs. Massey, wife of the wartime Canadian high commissioner in London, died last weekend in Ontario. During the war she founded the Beaver Club and the Canadian Officers' Club at Trafalgar Square.

Prominent Canadians in London mingled with distinguished Britons at the service. Three members of the Royal Family, Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary and the Duchess of Kent, were represented.

Winston Churchill also attended.

Labor Member Resigns Party

BIRMINGHAM, England, Aug. 4 —(Reuters)—Raymond Blackburn, Labor member of parliament, resigned today from the party, reducing the government's majority in the House of Commons to four.

Giving reasons he said: "In my view Winston Churchill should become prime minister of a coalition government."

Blackburn, a 35-year-old lawyer, has been a prominent Labor back-bencher with special interest in atomic energy. He has consistently advocated three-power talks on atomic energy control.

In his statement he said:

"It is with very much regret I have today resigned from the Labor party. In my view there is an overwhelming danger of all civilization being destroyed.

"We are fortunate that in Winston Churchill we have one of the great men of genius of all times and whose advice we have often ignored at our cost.

"In my view he should become prime minister of a coalition government."

Production Of Cars Still At Peak Level

WINDSOR, Aug. 4 (CP) —Production of cars and trucks at the Windsor plant of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, continued at peak levels during July, exceeding the total for July last year by more than one third, the company announced Thursday.

July's output totalled 13,015 vehicles, compared to 9,728 the same month last year.

For the first seven months this year, 54,513 cars and 20,725 trucks were turned out for the Canadian market, together with a total of 10,330 cars and trucks for export.

Can't Use 'Labor'

BOSTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—Governor Paul A. Dever signed a bill Thursday intended to prevent Communists and Red Front groups from using in the state of Massachusetts the word "labor" in names of their organizations. The American Federation of Labor's Teamsters Union sponsored the legislation, charging that some Communist groups were masquerading as trade unions. Violations carry a fine up to $1,000 and imprisonment up to five years.

BASE CAMP for the Labrador iron ore fields in this lonely spot at Burnt Creek, Que., on the edge of the new range. This is the land the new railroad will have to cross.

Korean War Speeds Building Railroad To Iron In Labrador

By JAMES MONTAGNES

TORONTO, Aug. 4—(NEA)—A war in far-off Korea has hastened construction of a railroad into the Labrador wilderness. That's because the new rail line will lead into rich new iron ore country, badly needed for the production of war material.

Plans had called for starting construction on the railway next spring. But now it will be begun this year. Supplies for the big project are being rushed to Seven Islands, southern terminus of the line. Seven Islands is on the St. Lawrence river, frozen over during the winter. So the supplies are going by ship now, while they can. Later, equipment will be flown to Seven Islands.

Despite the speed-up of construction, the vital railway won't be finished until about mid-1952. When completed, it will extend for 360 miles northward from Seven Islands into the heart of the new iron range.

Financed From U.S.

Six U.S. steel companies are helping to finance the development of the iron ore deposits. A tote road has already been built 60 miles northt of Seven Islands. Another 40 miles of railway will cross difficult bush country. The remaining 260 miles will be easier, over the flat, rocky terrain to Knob Lake, site of the main ore deposits.

Plans call for 10 contractors to build the railway in sections and to complete the job in two years. Then it is expected that at least 10,000,000 tons of ore will be mined during the six-month season.

Ore will be shipped by rail to Seven Islands, and from there by lake steamer to Cleveland or by Boston area steel mills.

70,000 Tons Daily

Five big shovels are planned to take 70,000 tons of ore out of the ground a day, enough to load seven trains a day for Seven Islands. There docking facilities are being built to handle up to 20,000,000 tons of ore a year.

* * *

The Labrador iron ore deposits have come to light only in recent years, but transportation has been the big stumbling block to their development. With the Minnesota fields running out of rich ore, the Labrador area has become important to American steel companies.

Showings so far lead to the belief that the Labrador field is much bigger than the Mesabi range in Minnesota. The new fields cover an area of at least 225 miles by 60 miles, as shown by the drilling operations of one company. Other Canadian-American syndicates are prospecting and drilling in the area as far north as Ungava Bay.

Seven Islands, which will be the new shipping centre of the iron ore trade, is now a booming little trading settlement, which has so far existed from the lumbering and fur trades. Large Canadian banks have in recent months established branches there as forerunners of the new Labrador boom.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 4,1950

The Communist Peace Front In Peterborough

We have received a letter and a statement from the president of U.E. Local 527, protesting against a news story which The Examiner printed on July 22, giving information that a petition had been circulated among the workers at the Peterborough Lock Company; the petition took issue with the public stand of the president of U.E., Mr. C. S. Jackson, regarding the Korean war; the signers of the petition declared themselves in favour of the action taken by United Nations. The Executive Board of the union says that the story was not based on fact, and that the source of information was not named. The Executive Board also says that the object of the story was to mislead the public and condemns it as dishonest journalism.

* * *

We are not surprised. The officials of U.E. have a poor opinion of The Examiner. The last time that we referred to them in these columns was in reply to a statement which they made in a pamphlet distributed to local workers that The Examiner's editorial policy was dictated by the management of the C.G.E. As the executives of U.E. think so little of us we are surprised that they trouble to contradict one of our published statements.

* * *

For those who do not share the low opinion which the U.E. executive has of The Examiner, however, we state that the source of the information which we published was an excellent one, which we have no reason to doubt. The U.E. would no doubt like to know the source but we are under no obligation to reveal it, and we shall not do so.

* * *

What the U.E. does not appear to understand about its membership in Peterborough is that their loyalty to the union, though strong, is limited. The local members of U.E. recognize that the union has done a good job for them in getting favourable contracts from employers; they are appreciative of that service. But the local members of U.E., with a few exceptions, refuse to be pawns in the Communist political program of U.E. The local workers are not Communists. Many of them are veterans of one war against tyranny, and they have no wish to further the ends of tyranny here or anywhere else. They will follow Mr. Jackson as union men and women. They will not follow him as Communist stooges.

* * *

In Canada at present there is some agitation against the Korean war and the commitments of U.N., including Canada. This agitation masquerades as a "peace front". It has had some success in Quebec, where isolationism makes many workers short-sighted in matters affecting world politics. But it will not be successful in Ontario and certainly not in Peterborough. The action of the workers at Peterborough Lock who opposed Mr. Jackson's action in dragging their union into the Communist peace front proves that. The quickest method of splitting the U.E. from top to bottom, and destroying it as a labour union, is to make it necessary for every U.E. member to be a silent supporter of the Communist program of the U.E. leader. We think that every U.E. worker in Peterborough knows that, and wants no part of any Communist peace front.

Mr. Menzies Speaks To Congress

On Tuesday last the Prime Minister of Australia, Robert Gordon Menzies, visited Washington and spoke to both Houses of Congress. His address was chiefly concerned with the situation in Korea; he promised the assistance of seasoned Australian troops within a month, he recommended the new Australian plan of compulsory military training for all to the attention of the American legislators, and he declared that his country was "proud to be a junior partner in this great and continuing adventure toward human liberty" Mr. Menzies' success with Congress was unmistakeable.

It is one of the strengths of modern democracy that our statesmen are able to travel widely and to make themselves known to great numbers of influential people in other sympathetic lands. This takes some of the stiffness out of diplomacy, and although it is not always so, it often decreases the likelihood of mistakes and misunderstandings. The members of the U.S. Congress, having seen Mr. Menzies, and heard him, can never again think of Australia as an abstraction, so long as Mr. Menzies rules over it. And Mr. Menzies, having had some first-hand experience of the American Congress, will be by that much better able to estimate its temper and probable response to important problems. This ease of travel is one of the great positive advantages of our time.

Mr. Menzies is one of the most remarkable statesmen of our time. He is known in his own country as a man of formidable determination and intellect, and also as a man as ruthless and cutting in his speech to both allies and opponents as any who has figured largely in modern politics. As the London Sunday Times said of him recently: "Both within Australia and on the world stage, he expresses with unrivalled force and skill the Australian's confidence in himself and his land, his love of freedom and a fair chance for all, his hard-headed yet warm-hearted devotion to the Empire. In these grim days it is good for Australia that her Prime Minister comes to England to do her business and to speak her mind; But it is good for England too that we can hear from him the robust accents of democratic leadership that our own people crave."

The Canal Story Is Not Yet Told

In Thursday's issue of The Examiner we carried the first article in a series by Richard F. Choate which will deal with the Trent Valley Canal. The article yesterday describes the Geta Canal in Sweden, which strongly resembles the Trent Valley in many respects, and which is one of the most popular waterways in that country.

It is wrong to think that the story of the Trent Valley Canal has all been told, and that the usefulness of the canal is limited to its present purposes. Every year the canal is known to new yachtsmen, who explore it in their pleasure craft and who carry pleasant memories of it home with them. The time may come, sooner than we now imagine, when the popularity of the canal will make it worth while to complete it and to establish it as one of Ontario's important attractions. The story of the canal has been long, and it is far from finished.

The Retirement Of Walter Thompson

Since 1922 Mr. Walter Thompson has been director of publicity for the Canadian National Railway. From 1914 he had been head of the press department for the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways, so he did not come to that task unprepared. And before 1914 he had had a career in journalism which took him from Fleet Street to Australia, from there to South Africa, and from South Africa to Montreal. Indeed, he was born to journalism, for his father was an editor in Scotland. Mr. Thompson took in the craft of journalism at the pores, so to speak, and in the years that he has handled the news and publicity for the C.N.R. he has had the respect and indeed the affection of newspaper men.

The time has now come for Mr. Thompson to retire. The retirement age in the C.N.R. service is an arbitrary one, and we have long protested against such arbitrary retirement ages; the imposition of retirement upon Mr. Thompson merely deepens our conviction that a man's time of retirement should be a matter of arrangement between himself and his employers, and not a matter of rule. But Mr. Thompson is to retire, and that is all there is to it.

The good wishes of his many friends will follow him to whatever haven of rest he has chosen. In his C.N.R. work he has been most successful; in his work as director of the Department of Public Information during the war he was equally successful and did a first-rate job for Canada in that post. He is a man who has always appeared to enjoy life and his work, and we are sure that he will quickly learn to enjoy retirement.

Britain, Civil Defence And The Bomb

(From U.K. Information)

ONE atomic bomb costs as much to make as a battleship. This information is contained in an official publication issued last week by the United Kingdom Government dealing with civil defence against atomic warfare.

Experts consider its great cost makes it unlikely the atom bomb would be used at random or in quantities. Nor is it regarded as suitable for warheads for rockets or other guided projectiles, since these are regarded as too inaccurate.

INFORMATION given in the U.K. pamphlet on the effects of atomic warfare and protection against it is based on five years' study of Hiroshima and Nagasaki made by a special scientific mission sent to Japan by the U.K. Government. The report tries to put the whole matter into proper perspective and to show that there are many practical steps that will greatly reduce the casualty-producing power of the atomic bomb.

IN a foreword, the Prime Minister stresses Britain's many attempts to secure some form of international agreement to ensure the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes only. He says:—

"The tremendous force of atomic power should be used for industrial and humanitarian purposes and not for mass-destruction. Ever since 1945, Britain has pressed for an international agreement. But any such agreement would be illusory without the most rigorous system of international control.

"Nearly two years ago, nine out of 11 members of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission agreed on a really effective plan for the control of atomic energy. Although this was approved by an overwhelming majority of the U.N. General Assembly, the Soviet Union has so far refused to accept it.

"We shall not, however, abandon our hope that an effective system of international control may ultimately be adopted. We, for our part, will certainly do all in our power to make such an agreement possible. In the meantime we must proceed with civil defence preparations with the object of minimizing the casualties which must inevitably accompany an attack".

THE manual indicates that protection against a blast from an atomic bomb would not present an insoluble problem and that safeguards against lethal results from radioactivity are a practical proposition. Screening, says the report, would reduce the intensity of the gamma rays, while really thick masony would cut them out altogether. Even a moderate thickness of earth affords excellent protection.

SPECIAL shelters designed to give almost complete protection against atom attacks are being designed by British experts. It was found that Japanese shelters, even of poor construction, stood up remarkably to the blast from the atomic bomb and that their underground shelters were a complete safeguard. The manual states that the direct effects from this blast are less than might be expected—the bulk of the casualties would be due to injuries from falling masonry and flying debris.

But there is no attempt to minimise the horrors of atomic warfare. On the contrary, the manual states that casualties would be formidable if people in British cities were caught without warning and with no suitable shelters.

"Much can be done, however, to mitigate the effects of the bomb and save life. It is certain that with adequate advance preparations and with good civil defence services, the lives lost could be reduced to a fraction of the number estimated".

◇ ◇ ◇

MR Geoffrey de Freitas, Home Office Under-Secretary, speaking of the manual, stated recently that members of Britain's Civil Defence Corps get training in two stages People over 40 can join unless they have other definite commitments in war. Nearly all men and women between 30 and 40 can join but men under 30 are debarred unless declared unfit for the Forces. 6,000,000 people in Britain are eligible to join.

MEMBERSHIP of the Civil Defence Corps in England and Wales at 30th June, 1950, totalled 31,809 (22,188 men and 9,621 women). Recruiting is running at the rate of 2,300 a month as compared with 1,500 in February and March.

The highest number of recruits is from the Isles of Scilly, off the South West tip of England,—3.8 per 1,000 population. Best cities are Exeter, in Devonshire, and Salford, in Lancashire, with 2.4.

IN World War II Britain's Air Raid Wardens played a key part in organizing the people under heavy air attack and in maintaining morale. They patrolled the streets and shepherded the public into shelters.

In a poll to establish preferences for each of the six sections of the Corps, "Wardens" led where the men were concerned "Headquarters staff' was a poor second. Women, however, showed a marked preference for "Welfare" and "Ambulance" work, in that order. Nearly 3,000 men volunteered for the difficult and heavy task of "Rescue" and "Pioneer" work.

NOT directly under the Civil Defence service, but a vital arm of defence against air attack is the Auxiliary Fire Service.

At 30th June, total enrolments in the A.F.S in England and Wales were 3,915 — 2,839 and 1,076 women In the three months since March, recruiting progressed at the rate of 212 a month.

TO assist the regular police in maintaining order, a fine force of special constables was recruited in World War II. Recruiting is again in full swing.

Since the end of March 1,835 men and 40 women, a total of 1,875, were attested as special constables in England and Wales. At June 30th, total attestations since the current recruitment drive started on 15th November 1949 amounted to 8,748 (8,540 men and 208 women).

Unlike the other Civil Defence services, the Special Constabulary has been a continuing service and has accordingly been subject to wastage due to retirements from age and sickness. Wastage during the quarter amounted to 1,230.

Letters To The Editor

RIGHT ON THE TARGET

Sir: I think that was an excellent cartoon by your artist (Jack Boothe) showing a steer soaring over the 'cost of living' hurdle —which has been 'upped' from the 1946 index of 123.6 to 155 in 1948, and thence to 165.4 last month.

However, the outstanding feature in the above picture-story, with its headline query — "Training For A Higher Jump?" — was the heavily-spurred rider, designated "Labor's Wage Demands". As I see this rural-urban scene, with one-third of the average Canadian's earnings being dedicated to the food-needs of the family, the tendency has been to direct the bulk of the criticism at the farmer. It doesn't seem to occur to these final consumers that there is a very direct relationship between "Labor's Wage Demands" and the number of dollars needed to fill the market-basket?

"Eighteen months ago" writes one of the farm editors of the U. S. food scene "the farmer got 55 cents out of each food dollar spent by the consumer. Then prices paid to farmers plunged until now they get only 48 cents Now, you'd think that the prices should have gone down all along the line. But they didn't. The consumer at the grocery store kept on paying about the same old price. The seven-cent saving (between 55 cents and 48 cents) was quickly snatched up by eager hands between the farmer and the consumer."

Obviously, Mr. Editor, your cartoonist's thought is right on the target

"FRESH FURROWS"

ACTION NEEDED ON THE NEW APSLEY ROAD

Sir: Since the printing in last Friday's Examiner of the article and map proposing a new road west of Apsley I have received many favourable comments and further information has been brought to light.

The Peterborough Lumber Company are quite familiar with this area and Mr. Munro, vice president of the company, informs me that a road slightly further to the north opening up Copper, Serpentine, Rathburn and Anstruther lakes is more practical from an engineering standpoint to develop and has already been appraised by the Department of Highways. He also stated that his company would be willing to deed back to the Crown certain patented lands at head of Anstruther Lake for recreational purposes.

By using this suggested route a portion of approximately three miles would be already passable. Any such road constructed would also materially assist forest fire control.

It seems to me that we in Peterborough County are particularly blessed with natural attractions and I heartily commend the Examiner on its program of conservation. I feel that the area discussed is one of the gems of our county and should be developed carefully and along controlled lines so that it will ever be available for the enjoyment of resident and non-resident alike. This development can be a profitable venture, enriching not only the township and county coffers but also the merchants of Apsley and Peterborough.

Whether we like it or not, sooner or later, this potential playground will be and is being invaded by the ever searching cottager, hunter and fisherman. Lumbering of the past has left its mark. We have recently set aside a huge area for a County Forest of the future and have numerous reforestation projects underway. Such programs are an attempt to right the mistakes of the past. Look at the nearby Ganaraska area to see what can happen. Why not examine this area carefully while its beauty and assets are still fairly intact and develop its wealth profitably, economically and sensibly so that we will always have enjoyment and a real attraction within an hour's run of the heart of the county.

To put the record straight, the Department of Lands and Forests are no longer allowing lakes to be "sold out" as has happened to Stony and Chemong, nor are they allowing lumbering operations within 300 feet of the shore of certain of the larger lakes. Protection and access to the water are thereby assured in some measure. I am quite sure they will welcome and aid any sound plan proposed by our local councils and designed for the betterment of our county. I sincerely hope this matter will receive some consideration before it is too late.

Thanking you,

Yours very truly,
JOHN G. PIERCE,
Ontario Land Surveyor.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them. And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracle which he did. For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed. And there was great joy in that city.

But there was a certain man, called Simon, which before time in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one: to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God. And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries.

But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done. (Acts 8: 5-13.)

Murder

(Jose Schorr in The Chicago Daily News)

George shot Joe but before he had a chance to die, another man came along and killed Joe with a knife. Could George properly be tried for murder? No, said the Supreme Court of North Carolina, because after all, a man can't be killed twice.

Daisy was so insulted she said, "If I had a gun I'd shoot the whole bunch of you." Ken joshingly drew a revolver and said, "Here's a gun." Daisy grabbed it and shot a member of the party dead where he stood. Was the killing Ken's fault? Certainly, said the court; he set a deadly agency in motion.

Willie was arrested in the middle of robbing a bank and whisked away to a police station. Meanwhile his confederates back at the bank killed a couple of cops. Was Willie guilty of those murders? Definitely, said the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, because "he joined a partnership of crime and is responsible for the acts of each partner naturally expected to occur."

Gene wound up in the hospital after a fight with Louis over a mutual girl friend. Against the doctor's orders, Gene left the hospital and died before reaching home. Does that get Louis out of hot water? No, because Gene would not have had to follow doctor's orders to live, if Louis hadn't socked him in the first place, ruled the Supreme Court of Arizona.

Bank Accepts Egg As Cheque

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 4—(CP)—Alderman Margaret Christie drew a surprised glance from bank teller Lorraine Welsh when she presented a hard-boiled egg at a downtown Canadian Bank of Commerce bank and demanded $15 for it.

When Miss Welsh examined the egg, she found it had all the writing of a regular certified cheque and it bore the required three-cent stamp.

Straight-faced, Mrs. Christie told the puzzled teller: "There's nothing the matter with that cheque. It's perfectly good and I want $15 for it."

Miss Welsh consulted an accountant, then cashed the cheque.

The episode culminated a joke between Ald. Christie and City Comptroller Henry Watson. As chairman of the Juvenile Detention Home, Mrs. Christie recently asked Mr. Watson for a donation.

Mr. Watson said OK, but didn't have his cheque book with him.

He made a bargain:

"I'll give you a donation if you accept whatever cheque I give you."

Mrs. Christie accepted and Mr. Watson came up with the hard-boiled egg.

50 British Boys Undertake Tour

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP)—Fifty British boys who left Liverpool Wednesday for an exchange tour in Canada will visit Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Chalk River, Toronto, and Niagara Falls during their three-week stay in this country.

The lads are scheduled to arrive at Quebec Aug. 7, taking a train to Montreal the following day. They visit Ottawa Aug. 10 for further sight-seeing, and then go to Canada's atomic energy plant at Chalk River

Aug. 13 the boys, chosen from youth clubs and public schools, will leave for Toronto, heading Aug. 17 for Camp Pinecrest, in the Muskoka district near Torrance, Ont., for a week at camp. They return to Toronto Aug. 24 and visit Niagara Falls the following day.

Coming with the group is Field Marshal Sir Claude Auchinleck, wartime commander-in-chief of the Middle East, president of the National Association of Boys' Clubs. While the boys are in camp, Sir Claude will visit the Royal Military College at Kingston as guest of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simmonds, commandant of the college.

The British boys sailed aboard the Empress of Scotland. A similar group of Canadians arrived in the United Kingdom in mid-July. Financial arrangements are being handled by Garfield Weston, Canadian-born biscuit manufacturer.

C. W. GILCHRIST, OBE who has been appointed managing director of the Canadian Good Roads Association

OLDER NAME

The Republic of Korea was formerly called Chosen.

Plan Expansion Of Good Roads

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 — Plans for the expansion of the Canadian Good Roads Association, representing a 300-million dollar yearly industry, were outlined today by the president, Hon. Errick F Willis of Winnipeg, who announced the appointment of C. W. Gilchrist, O.B.E., as managing director of the national organization.

Mr. Gilchrist, a former chief of army public relations in various war theatres, has been for the last four years director of information services for the federal department of National Health and Welfare. He succeeds George A. McNamee, who founded the Canadian Good Roads Association in 1914 and has been the secretary-treasurer and a director since that time. In appreciation of his years of service, Mr McNamee has been awarded the association's first honorary life membership. The parchment will be presented to him at the association's annual convention, to be held this year in Winnipeg September 19th to 21st.

"With the aim of further stimulating and encouraging the improvement, construction and maintenance of roads the Association was incorporated under Dominion charter in 1917" Mr. Willis said. "Since that time, largely sparked by action of the provinces themselves, the association has accomplished a great deal in the way of public education.

Chamber Of Commerce Considers Korean Problem

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The first big gathering of Canadian business men since the Korean fighting started, will be held at Banff, Alta., Sept. 11-14.

It will be the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, with delegates present from all 10 provinces.

The gathering naturally will consider business problems against the background of the heated international situation, and of worsened conditions should they arise.

In the words of D. L. Morrell, the Chambers' general manager:

"This is a testing period for business, when political and economic thinking, both here and abroad, is subject to constant change. It is important that business men should study and discuss the issues of the day so that they may be prepared to play their part in the great political and economic debates now being waged in the national and international forums of the world." Also:

Appropriate Setting

"Recent discoveries of natural resources in Alberta and the co-operative spirit with which government and business are developing these resources make this province an appropriate setting in which to discuss the great problem of how public and private initiative can best work to develop Canada's national wealth."

National defence will be considered from both a community and national point of view, and other discussions will include foreign trade and pensions.

Maritime, Quebec and Ontario delegates will leave Montreal and Toronto, Sept. 5, with their cars joining into a special train at Sudbury, and there will be visits at Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and Calgary, including a tour of the St. Mary's dam, irrigation project near Lethbridge.

Seeing Country

Following the Banff meeting delegates will spend three days in Vancouver and Victoria and on the way back will visit Edmonton.

The Canadian chamber makes a good case for claiming to be a real grass-roots organization, with membership spread into the smallest places. Some 682 Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce belong to it, from villages to cities, so that virtually every aspect of Canadian life is heard from.

This year's meeting will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the chamber's founding; although, because there were no gatherings in some war years, it will be only the 21st annual meeting.

Robert A. Bryce, of Toronto, elected at last year's meeting in Montreal, is president. Francis G. Winspear, of Edmonton, is national vice-president, and, in ordinary course, will be incoming president. J. H. Brace, of Montreal, is chairman of the executive.

Save Boy In Sand

TORONTO, Aug 4 (CP) — A woman and her two dogs Thursday dug nine-year-old Jim Hutcheson from a sandbank in which he almost suffocated. A pile of sand caved in, burying him so that only his hand was visible. A Mrs. Tupper, passing in a car with two large dogs, noticed the boy's predicament and the three of them—woman and dogs—dug him out.

Discussions Continue

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (CP) — Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee representing 15 international brotherhoods which have set an Aug. 22 railway strike deadline said Thursday a meeting had been held with representatives of the railways. "Discussions are being continued," said Mr. Hall. He would add no comment as to the nature of the discussions."

Robbed of Candy

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (CP) — A 10-year-old boy was held up Thursday at the point of a jackknife and robbed of a bag of candy—by two other 10-year-olds. Police arrested the knife-toting pair and lodge them in the children's shelter, charged with theft.

Dies Instantly

ARNPRIOR, Aug. 4 (CP). — Leo J. Buchoski, 34, died instantly Thursday when he touched a 2,200-volt line while installing a new electric switch panel outside the Kenwood Mills, Limited, plant here. Artificial respiration was applied without success. An inquest will be held later.

Frontiersmen Corps Speeds Up Training

VANCOUVER — (CP) — The corps of imperial frontiersmen watching war clouds gather over Korea, is stepping up activity.

The organization, made up of about 5,300 men in Canada, has made its aim "to stand by the commonwealth in time of emergency."

Col. Frederick Blackwell, senior commandant in Canada of the empire-wide corps, announced the corps' plans while here on an inspection tour of C.I.F. units in western Canada.

"In these troubled days," he said, "with the international situation what it is, there must be as many trained emergency workers as possible in western Canada.

"The corps will again do its part in providing those trained personnel, as it did during the Second World War."

MORE CAUTIOUS

The number of bankruptcies in the United Kingdom decreased from 3,249 in 1936 to 323 in 1946.

SCHOOL FOR TEACHER — Sister Emma St. Gabriel, of the Sisters of the Cross, a teacher in the school at Willow Bunch, Sask., is shown fashioning the leg for a coffee table. Sister St. Gabriel teaches woodworking at the junior high school. This is her first year at summer school.

Petes Hold Down Third Place With Brampton

A victory tonight in Miller Bowl for Red Creighton's senior boxla group would enable them to tie with St. Catharines Athletics for second place, to hold third place two points behind St. Catharines, or to be in second place alone.

Everything depends upon the local game and the game in St. Catharines between the Hamilton Tigers and the Athletics. Should the Tigers manage to upset the Athletics in the Niagara District city and Peterborough win here, the locals will be tied for second place with 26 points with the Athletics. The win for Hamilton would place the Tigers in a tie for third with the idle Brampton Excelsiors who are tied with Peterborough for third with 24 points.

Should the Athletics and the Petes both win their games, the Athletics would be in sole posession of second place with 28 points and Peterborough in third alone with 26 points. Brampton would be in fourth place with 24 points and Hamilton fourth with 22 points.

The third game in the night's play between Riverdales of Toronto and Owen Sound Crescents would throw the league standing into an entirely different form if the Riverdales pulled the upset of the year by winning their first game, that against the league-leading Crescents.

If the Crescents win, they will be in first place with 30 points. If they lose, besides Riverdale's picking up their first two points, Owen Sound could be forced into a first place tie with the Athletics if they win. If Peterborough won in that case they would be in second place alone, Brampton in third and Hamilton in fourth.

With six points separating the first and fourth teams in the standing, the league has nearly three weeks to go before playoffs.

Tonight's game at Miller Bowl means a great deal to the seniors. The Weston Lions, although out of a playoff position, have no love for the senior crew resulting from the close race last year when Peterborough edged the Lions out of the playoffs by one point.

PENNANT IN WHIRLPOOL?—Slugger Ted Williams watches as Vince Orlando supervises Pitcher Joe Dobson's whirlpool bath treatment in the Red Sox dressing room at Boston's Fenway Park. Williams is recovering from an operation that corrected a fractured left elbow. Dobson was bruised when struck on the side by Larry Doby's line drive in Cleveland. Meanwhile, Pitcher Ellis Kinder was taking baths to ease the pain of a rib injury.

Petes Win Six Straight Defeat Staffords 7-6

Viaduct Stadium, Toronto, was the scene of a three-hour baseball struggle last night as Ed Murphy's Peterborough Marines defeated Toronto Staffords 7-6 in 10 innings to extend their current winning streak to six games. Three double plays featured the game.

The weather was cool.

Victory gave Peterborough undisputed possession of second place, one full game ahead of Toronto Aces whom they meet Saturday in Bowmanville (no field available here till Aug. 12) and again in Toronto, Sunday.

Six Run Lead

Doug Plunkett started on the mound for Marines and twirled shutout ball for six innings, fanning seven while his mates rolled up a six-run lead by virtue of timely stickwork by Menzies, Estlick, Garvey, Brown, Dadson, Stewart and Wilson.

Staffords suddenly blossomed out in their half however, and two walks with four hits, climaxed by Hayes' long double off the centre-field rail, netted five runs and put the Hosking crew back in the game. Plunkett was forced to retire in the eighth after twisting his ankle badly while at bat and the veteran Gunner Whitehill took over on the mound. Eddie performed another very fine relief chore, though Staffords tied the game in the eighth as Anderson's single scored Shapero who had walked and advanced on Husar's pass. Gunner came through nicely in the last two, aided by fine support while Marines put over the pay off tally in the 10th as Garvey doubled with two gone and scored when Barringham bobbled Menzies' hot grounder at third.

Poor Support

Pete Wright twirled well for Staffords and poor support hurt his cause no little, to force his downfall, though Johnson was ultimately charged with the loss. Peterborough played errorless ball afield while the homesters committed six miscues, the last of which cost the ball game.

Fielding features were supplied by Paul Estlick whose running catch in left off Barringham in the ninth was a gem of purist ray; also Danny Brown and Fred Garvey who fielded superbly around the keystone. Joe Lowrey, brilliant star of the centre garden, nipped Alquist at the plate in the sixth after a fine catch, with a perfect throw in. Hitting honors went to Brown with three for six, Dadson two for four, Garvey and Menzies each with two bingles while Estlick and Stewart also hit .333 with one for three. Shapero led Staffords with two for three while Weir fielded well. It was the longest game of the season, to date.

Tax Regulations Said Blow To Hockey Group

TORONTO, Aug. 4 — (CP)— New tax regulations governing amateur sport in Ontario will likely deal a serious blow to the Ontario Amateur Hockey Association, President Harold Ballard of the Senior A Marlboros said Thursday night.

The regulations, announced Thursday night by Premier Frost, exempt teams on which 75 per cent of the players receive less than an average of $20 a game. Otherwise, they have to pay the Ontario hospital tax.

If one team in a league is ineligible for exemption, all teams are. And if teams from an exempt league meet teams from a non-exempt one, both teams are taxable for playoffs.

Ballard said the regulations will have an adverse effect on negotiations for a Niagara Falls, Ont. team in the Senior A. Two other clubs have signified their intention to withdraw if the Niagara Falls team does not enter.

Definite Answer

A definite answer regarding the new entry is expected next Tuesday.

The government also rejected a proposal by the Junior A Association that they pay the tax this year and apply for a rebate if eligible. Tax Administrator J. J. O'Neill said eligibility for exemption this year would depend on whether clubs were eligible last year.

Ballard said he couldn't understand where the 75 per cent clause came from.

"Why didn't they have it $25 across the board? A team could pay some of its players $1,000 a game and still be eligible," he said.

St. Peter's Yanks Beat Cubs Team

St. Peter's Yanks yanked a 10-7 win Wednesday night at the orphanage diamond from the Immaculate Conception Cubs. This closely-fought game was the first of a best in three semi-final series in the Catholic Softball League.

For the winners, the Rev. Ray Garvey pitched steady ball allowing 10 hits. McGrath started for the losers, going well until the fifth, when he was relieved by Heffernan who finished strong.

Ferren led the Yanks with three for five, a homer and two triples. Spencer and Byrne led the Cubs with three for five, Byrne's including a homer.

Houtteman Sparks Tigers Crushing Yankees 5-2

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Give Detroit a few more invalids like Art Houtteman and you can buy your world series tickets for Briggs Stadium.

Houtteman, forced to pass up his regular turn because of a strained side muscle, did a six-hit job on the challenging Yankees Thursday, 5-2. When Art got through for his 13th victory, New York was challenging for second place, not first. And Detroit's league lead measured 2½ games.

Earlier this week, they said Tiger pitchers were weary and overworked. The well-rested Yankee staff, never used on relief, was ready to take over. Detroit led by one-half game, going into a three game series

When Tommy Byrne, usually a Tiger killer, was beaten by Dizzy Trout Tuesday night, the Yankee drive was delayed. When Hal White shut out New York with two hits Thursday, it was delayed some more. Now, after Houtteman's comeback, the Yankee boom is all but dead. Cleveland, moving into second place while idle, is the new threat.

With New York running smack into onrushing Cleveland in a three-game wrestle for second place starting tonight, Detroit has a chance to pull away against Washington.

In Fine Shape

Detroit is in fine shape after its series sweep from the Yankees.

Four runs in the first inning tucked the game away for the Tigers. Ed Lopat, shooting for his 14th victory, got only one man out. He gave up four runs on three hits, a walk and his own error. Fine relief work by Ed Sanford and a passing-fair job by Joe Page were too late.

The only other action in the American League had little to do with the pennant race as sixth-place Chicago shut out seventh-place Philadelphia 1-0. Randy Gumpert blanked the A's with only four singles.

The four other clubs in the American League were not scheduled.

Rain slashed the National League schedule, washing out a Pittsburgh-at-Brooklyn day game and a Cincinnati-at-Philadelphia night game. As Chicago and New York were not scheduled, that left only St. Louis and Boston.

Second Victory.

Vern Bickford, the Braves' brilliant righthander, came up with his second straight four-hitter and 13th victory with a 5-1 triumph over the Cardinals. The triumph boosted the Braves into second place in front of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers and three games back of the leading Phillies.

Bickford retired 10 men in a row until Red Schoendienst hit a homer in the fourth. Bob Elliott evened the score with his 17th homer in the home half of the inning. Boston went out front in the fifth, and added two more on Sam Jethroe's 11th homer with a man in the sixth. Walker Cooper ended the day's scoring with his 11th homer in the seventh. All the homers came off Al Brazle, suffering his fifth loss.

PVT. PITCHER — Curt Simmons, Philadelphia Phillies' southpaw star, hangs up his uniform after being knocked from the mound by the Cincinnati Reds at Shibe Park, Philadelphia. Simmons, a private in the 28th Division of the National Guard, got a pass to leave manoeuvres and pitch. His unit has been called to active duty, dealing the Phils' pennant hopes a hard blow.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario government took a stab Thursday at answering the thorny question. "What's an amateur?"

Premier Frost said in a Toronto announcement that, for purposes of taxation under the Hospitals Tax Act an "amateur" athlete will be one whose services are worth $20 a game or less. Any team which pays its players more than that will be taxable.

Last session, the Legislature broadened the Hospitals Tax Act to take in the activities of various athletic clubs—hockey, baseball and football, among others — whose gates and salaries had reached the proportion of big business.

"It has been found difficult to know just where to draw the line for taxation purposes," the Premier said. "We now have set up the arbitrary figure of $20 a game."

Premier Frost felt that this figure would not have an injurious effect on the actions of teams in smaller towns.

"We are after the big fellows who pay their players as much as $300 a game," he said

Under provincial regulations all athletic clubs will have to file a statement showing salaries paid players.

Morris Mite and Adeline Hanover divided the $5,000 purse in the first running of the Maple Leaf Cup for trotters at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway Thursday.

O. E. Corbeil of Montreal, owner of Morris Mite, won the handsome gold trophy on the toss of the coin.

The trophy was presented to Mr Corbeil by James Dempsey, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Renfrew South.

The secondary feature of the day, a $2,000 pacing stake for three-year-olds, was won by Castle Brook, owned by Mrs. Louis Mack, Hamilton, expertly handled by Bill Harvey. Castle Brook won both divisions of the race.

Miss Anne Sharpe, three-handicap shotsmith from the Look Out Point Golf Club, Welland carried off top honors Thursday at the "field day" golf tourney of women players from Ottawa and district clubs.

She toured the Ottawa Rivermeade course in 88 and was followed by Mrs. G. H. McGee of the Chaudière Club, Hull, Que., Mrs. R E. Watson, Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club and Mrs. Ken Shakespeare of Toronto's Scarboro Club who finished tied for second with 89's.

John Stuart, Toronto racehorse owner, was temporarily suspended by the stewards at Fort Erie race track Thursday and his case referred to the Ontario Racing Commission.

Horses in his stable—leading Ontario money-winner in 1949—were barred from racing until his case is disposed of by the commission.

Reason for the suspension was "alleged misuse of an owner's badge issued to the stable by the Ascot Turf Club and derogatory remarks. . . prejudicial to the best interests of racing."

The date of the Willie Pep-Sandy Saddler featherweight title fight was shifted Thursday to Sept. 8 by the International Boxing Club. Previously the date had been Sept. 6 in Yankee Stadium. The site remains the same.

Scottish Pence, from the Castleton Farm, Lexington, Ky., stood off a challenge by the favored Jerry the First to win the $50,000 Nassau two-mile race Thursday night at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, N. Y.

Graham Of Lindsay Wins Tournament

LINDSAL, Aug. 4. — Shooting his usual steady game, Chal Graham of Lindsay, won the Midland League tournament here competing with the best golfers from Oshawa, Peterborough and Lindsay.

With a low gross of 71 Chal led B. Watt of Oshawa by six strokes. Oshawa led Lindsay by only one point for the team play prize, the foursome of B. James, 75; B. Watt, 77; P. McKarchuck, 78, and E. Masters, 82, winning over the Lindsay team of Pete Atman, Chal Graham, Dr. C. Laidley and Bill Hopkins.

Rochester Trips Syracuse In 7-2 Triumph

By The Associated Press.

Larry Ciaffone, Rochester Red Wings' catcher-outfielder, is making life miserable for International League pitchers and should earn a shot for a berth on the parent St. Louis Cardinals next spring.

Ciaffone helped the pace-setting Red Wings down Syracuse Chiefs Thursday night 7-2. He banged out three hits including his ninth homer and drove in three runs.

Righthander Eddie Yuhas went all the way for the Wings to post his 12th victory against five losses.

Montreal's third-place Royals dropped five games off the pace by losing 5-4 to the fourth-place Jersey City Giants.

Red Hardy posted his 10th victory for the Giants. He scattered nine hits including a homer by Toby Atwell.

Down Bisons

Springfield Cubs downed Buffalo Bisons 5-2 scoring all of their runs in the seventh inning.

Baltimore's second place Orioles remained 3½ games back of the Wings by edging Toronto Maple Leafs 8-7 in the first game of a doubleheader. The teams battled to a 6-6 13-inning tie in the finale which was called to allow Baltimore to make train connections

The Orioles overcame a 7-1 deficit to win the opener. Al Cihocki then blasted his 13th homer to win the game in the seventh and final inning.

Baltimore scored twice in the ninth inning of the nightcap to take a 6-5 lead but Johnny Mayo homered in the Toronto half to send the game into overtime.

To Protest Game

Leafs said they would protest the second game.

Manager Jack Sanford notified the umpires the game was being played under protest when plate umpire Bob Austin ruled that a ball hit over the fence by Toronto second baseman Bobby Rhawn in the eighth inning was in foul territory.

Rhawn was eventually declared a strikeout victim when he failed to return to the batter's box when play resumed.

Juniors Downed By St. Catharines

St. Catharines juniors jumped into first place in the Ontario junior lacrosse standing Thursday night by trimming Peterborough 22-4. The Petes edged the St. Kitts squad here last Saturday 10-8.

Nicholls, despite the 22 goals racked up against him, shone in the Peterborough net, repeating his Saturday night performance. He outguessed the Niagara district juniors on what seemed to be sure goals to keep the score at the high 22.

The long trip combined with the fast-breaking plays of the St. Kitts team tired the Peterborough boys early. Peterborough did not check as hard as they did in the Saturday game here.

Two juveniles, Ab Carravaggie and Bob Fontaine, were used to fill the vacancies of regular juniors who couldn't make the trip. Carravaggie whipped home two goals and Fontaine one. Heffernan counted the other Peterborough tally.

IRFU Orders 2 Players Go To Tigers

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (CP). — Jackie Stewart and Earl Valiquette will probably think twice before they sign their names to anything from here in.

Ever since they signed documents binding them to two football clubs simultaneously, a steadily increasing army of officials have been telling them what to do about it, and what will happen to them if they don't.

What must make it confusing for Stewart and Valiquette is that approximately equal numbers of committee-room experts have ordered them to Hamilton and to Edmonton—the two cities with claims to their services—on pain of suspension, legal action and official displeasure.

Latest group to put in their two cents' worth are the governors of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, who met in closed session Thursday and decided to back Hamilton Tiger-Cats. The Cats claim they have backfielder Stewart and lineman Valiquette under contract.

The IRFU decision appears to leave it in direct conflict with the Canadian Rugby Union, football's governing body, which ruled 24 hours earlier that Stewart and Valiquette must play their football for Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada League, for whom they signed CRU playing certificates.

Both players hold jobs in Hamilton and would like to stay there.

CARL ERSKINE, winner of six straight for the Montreal Royals. He's ticketed to return to the Dodgers. Carl has given up only two runs in 41 innings, and is booked to go after his seventh win in a line on Saturday night against the Orioles at the Royal Stadium in Montreal. He has a nine-six record.

Commission Rejects Racing Under Lights

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4—(AP)—The State Racing Commission Thursday night gave a firm "no" to the half-mile Marlboro track's request to hold its 10-day meeting next month under the lights.

The commission did not elaborate on the bare announcement.

The attendance generally has been on the decline at the five Maryland half-mile circuits, and Marlboro officials wanted to see if night flat racing would draw the big crowds the state's four harness tracks are packing in.

HANGS UP SKATES—After coach of Toledo's amateur three highly successful years as hockey team Andy Mulligan has been named general manager of Toledo Sports arena. The former Winnipegger, now 44, will handle all arena activities. His Toledo squad won the United States amateur title in 1948, won the International League title in 1949 and this year went to the U.S. semi-finals. Mulligan was a defence star with University of Manitoba and turned pro with Regina Capitals. He played later with St. Louis, Chicago, Providence, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Boston.

Babe Zaharias, Jim Clark Share Spotlight At Tam O'Shanter

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (AP). — Babe Didrikson Zaharias and Jimmy Clark, a comparative unknown, shared the spotlight today in the opening rounds of the Tam O'Shanter golf carnival.

The Babe, voted outstanding woman athlete of the half century in The Associated Press poll, broke the tam course record with a six under par 70 Thursday in the first round of the All American Women's Open.

It made many a masculine pro attempting to qualify in the other section of the $75,000 golf circus look up with awe.

Babe's 36-34 tally was six strokes better than her nearest rival in the women's scramble.

The unheralded Clark, of Huntington Beach, Calif., led some 250 pros through qualifying trials with a six under par 66.

While the women enter their second round of 72-hole medal play today, 50 men pros complete qualifying starting at daybreak, and 150 amateur men start their first round in the three-play traffic jam.

Stroke Ahead

Clark was a stroke ahead of Pete Cooper, Ponte Vedra, Fla., among the pro qualifiers.

The men pros open in their $20,000 all-American tourney first round Saturday. Sixty-six are to qualify for it, plus 20 exempted players.

To keep the records straight, Mrs. Zaharias' best round of golf in her career was a 64 posted in exhibition play at Santa Monica, Calif., with pro Stan Kertes in 1938.

Her best tournament mark was a 67 in the 1943 Phoenix, Ariz., meet which topped the entire first round field, including Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and all other hotshots.

Omemee Beats Selwyn Ball Team

OMEMEE, Aug. 4 — (ENS) — The Selwyn softball team suffered a 13-1 defeat at the hands of the Omemee team in a game played here Wednesday evening.

To the end of the fourth innings, it was a smart game with the score 1-1. But in the fifth and sixth, Omemee had it mostly their own way, bagging five hits and five runs in the fifth innings and six hits and seven runs in the sixth, while their opponents made only three.

Altogether Omemee were handed 10 walks but gave none.

The game was called for dark at the end of the sixth innings.

The line ups were: Selwyn—A Fitzgerald, Jim McConkey, Don McConkey, Al McConkey, A. Preston, Bob Davis, H. Preston, I. Tully and E. Sweeting; Omemee — E. Johnson, David Eggleton, J. Evans, Don Crawford, O. Hickson, H. Crawford, Hubert Fox, W. D. Weir and T. J. Pogue.

Selwyn's regular pitcher was not playing.

Malik In Crash

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug. 4 (AP)—Russia's deputy foreign minister Jakob A. Malik, president of the United Nations Security Council this month, was shaken up Thursday night in an automobile accident on the Grand Central Parkway. A Soviet spokesman said Malik was not hurt and "everything is all right."

Will Meet Costs

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP)—The agriculture department announced Thursday that although freight costs on livestock shipped to exhibitions have increased the government will continue to meet 75 per cent of the cost when provinces match it with payment of the other 25.

3 Title Bouts Scheduled For September

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 — (AP) — Looks like a busy fall season in the boxing business with three title bouts scheduled for September.

Sandwiched between the Willie Pep-Sandy Saddler scrap Sept. 8 for the featherweight crown, and Joe Louis' Sept. 27 comeback against Ezzard Charles, we'll probably have a middleweight championship fight.

Detroit and Montreal are interested in a Jake La Motta-Laurent Dauthuille bout for the 160-pound crown now that chances of matching La Motta with Ray Robinson this fall are dim.

Robinson has a date Wednesday in Jersey City to risk his welter crown against Charlie Fusari. Then he has a once-postponed scrap with Jose Basora at Scranton, Pa., probably Aug. 23. That doesn't leave him much time for La Motta.

Eddie Quinn, Montreal promoter, said Thursday night he was ready to guarantee La Motta $75,000 to defend his championship against Dauthille in Montreal, Sept. 11. Dauthuille holds a decision over Jake, scored before he won the title from the late Marcel Cerdan.

Nick Londes, the International Boxing Club's Detroit matchmaker, also wants the match. La Motta is a prime favorite in Detroit. That's where he beat Cerdan. Detroit fans never have seen Jake in a bad fight.

La Motta has an exclusive contract with the IBC for title defences. As the IBC has a branch office in Detroit, that probably is the most likely site of a Dauthuille match.

Miss Canada Hits 140 mph On Trial Run

GRAVENHURST, Aug. 4 (CP). —Charlie Volker, chief mechanic for Harold Wilson's speedboat Miss Canada IV took his sleek charge over Muskoka Lake at about 140 miles on hour Thursday and said her performance was "much improved."

Volker, who has been having propellor trouble had said earlier that if the boat did not make a good showing Thursday the attempt to break the 160 miles an hour record would be called off. He said Thursday night that owner Harold Wilson would take the boat over the course again today and then they would decide whether the craft is fit for an official crack at the world record at Picton on Monday. The record was set a few weeks ago by Stanley Sayres of Seattle in his boat Slo-Mo-Shun.

9 Million Increase In Office Building

TORONTO, Aug. 4 CP)—An increase of almost $9,000,000 over the corresponding three months of last year is shown in factory and office building construction under way in Ontario, the labor department reported to the cabinet Thursday.

For the April-May-June period this year, construction expenditure totalled $20,503,200 as against $11,539,600 for the same period of 1949. Projects for the same period totalled 370 as against 298 in last year's similar period.

Projects over $100 000 included four buildings in Toronto; three in Etobicoke and one each in Barrie, Kingston, Leaside, London, Scarboro, New Toronto, Simcoe, North York, Windsor, Sarnia, and Hawkesbury

Truman Opposes Any Loan For Spain

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP).—President Truman Thursday declared flat opposition to a Senate-approved amendment calling for a $1)0,000,000 loan to Franco Spain.

The President said the amendment was entirely out of place in the foreign aid bill. He hoped the Senate will take it out.

He told reporters at a press conference that Spain can apply to the Export-Import Bank for such a loan and if they have the collateral they can get it from that source.

Fined $1,000

FORT ERIE, Aug. 4 (CP)—A fine of $1,000 was imposed Thursday on Albert Ferber, 43, of Brooklyn, N.Y.. for possession of $3,200 in smuggled jewelry. Ferber, who pleaded innocent, said he came to Canada to fish and had forgotten about the jewelry. He was arrested by RCMP at a nearby tourist cabin.

Turn Down Request

TORONTO, Aug. 4 — (CP) — The Ontario Labor Relations Board Thursday turned down a request by the Toronto Globe and Mail for a review of the board's decision certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CIO) as bargaining agent for employees in the newspaper's circulation department. The board announced certification of the union July 20.

Building Costs Up

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP) — Building costs continued to increase in June. the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday. The wholesale price index for general building materials rose 8.8 points from May to June, advancing from 209.6 to 218.4. Since September, 1949, when it stood at 197.6, this index has shown an uninterrupted monthly increase.

Princess, Busy Choosing Name For Expected Baby

By E. S. JOHNSON

LONDON, Aug. 4 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, are busy these days searching available lists for appropriate names. The reason: They are expecting an addition to their family.

In fact, the all-important event is expected within a few days.

Sir William Gilliatt, who attended the princess at the birth of her first child, Prince Charles, in November, 1948, has fixed the date between Aug. 10 and 14. This forecast was given by the noted gynaecologist after the 24-year-old princess was X-rayed in her residence, Clarence House, which overlooks the historic Mall.

Since then, Sir William and the King's physician, Sir John Weir, have stayed within easy reach. However, they are not expected to take up quarters in the house until shortly before the expected birth.

And while no suggestion has been conveyed that the attending doctors have the remotest idea whether the newcomer will be a girl or boy, the princess and her tall, handsome sailor husband are said to be hoping for a daughter.

Girls Get Preference

At least the lists they have been scrutinizing have given preference to girls' names, say those close to the Royal household.

Should these hopes be realized, it is regarded as a certainty that the new princess will be given her mother's name. It would honor also the reigning Queen, and the Duke of Edinburgh's mother, who share the name.

But their favorite names of the Royal line, such as Mary, Anne, Margaret and Victoria, may also be included.

However, the parents are armed with a formidable list of male names as well, just in case Prince Charles is given a brother for a playmate.

At Clarence House, everything is in readiness for the new arrival who will rank third in line of succession to the throne, behind Princess Elizabeth and Prince Charles.

For this, the first Royal birth in Clarence House, built a century ago for William IV, the princess has selected her own Queen Anne style bedroom overlooking the pleasant gardens of St. James' Palace.

Very Modern

Every modern convenience was installed in the modestly furnished quarters before the young couple moved in nearly three years ago. Such facilities were lacking at Buckingham Palace where Prince Charles was born.

But while the setting is new, the princess will be surrounded by many personalities that became familiar to her when her first child was born.

The King and Queen, overdue for their summer sojourn at Balmoral, are hopeful that official plans may be revised to permit them to remain over for the birth of their second grandchild.

If that is not possible the Queen probably will accompany the King to Scotland and return later by plane to London to be near her daughter.

The Queen, who will observe her 50th birthday tomorrow, has been a regular visitor to Clarence House within recent days, bringing articles of clothing she made herself for the new baby. Queen Mary, Princess Margaret and other close friends of the Royal couple, have also brought dainty things for an all-white layette to suit either a boy or girl.

Two Youths Jailed 5 Yrs. For Burglaries

ALMONTE, Aug. 4 (CP)—Raymond Ruddy, 19, of Pembroke, and Orville Dubroy, 19, of North Sydney, N.S., today pleaded guilty to nine charges of burglary and were sentenced to five years in penitentiary by Magistrate D. C. Smith.

The pair broke into nine separate places at Almonte, Carp and Pembroke, and attempted to loot the vault of the Carp branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, between July 24 and July 31. Police traced them by fingerprints left at the scene of the crimes.

Board Dismisses Company Objection

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (CP). — The Ontario Labor Relations Board Thursday dismissed a company objection to certification of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union of America (AFL) as bargaining agents for employees of M. Sullivan and Sons Ltd., Kingston contractors.

The company charged that union representatives had conducted an electioneering campaign withing the 72-hour restricted period preceding the vote. The charge was accompaned by affidavits from employees.

The board said it is its policy to reject affidavit evidence where it is possible to make the objection in testimony before tne board.

Thousands of Fans Love To Eat Wilf Carter's Corn

By JACK SCOTT

WINNIPEG, Man.—One of the most indestructible phenomenona in Canada is a 45-year-old, toupee-wearing ex-cowboy named Wolfred Carter, known to a large and intensely loyal set as "The Yodellin' Cowboy from Calgary."

Anywhere in Canada—and particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan—it is almost impossible to go through a day without hearing the plaintive and slightly nasal transcribed baritone of Mr. C. in musical tribute to his Little Grey-Haired Mother in the West or his pop "Daddy, dear old Daddy, you've been a real pal to me" or any one of the 300-odd sentimental ditties he's written and recorded.

Wilf is not merely hard to avoid but a great many thousands of his followers go to great pains to seek him out in person.

In Amherst, Nova Scotia, where Carter recently began a coast-to-coast tour, more than 4,000 of the yodeller's fans stood in line for two hours, several of them paying their idol the extreme compliment of fainting dead away.

In Ottawa—of all places!—he was mobbed and souvenir-hunters tore off sections of his fancy shirt, revealing their hero's hairy chest (the real thing).

Here in Winnipeg, where another 4,000 paid $1.75 a head to pay their respects, the audience broke into a spontaneous cheer when Mr. C. sang his "Swiss Moonlight Lullaby," written before most of them were born.

This affection is by no means on a merely national or even continental basis. In Tasmania, for example, Mr. Carter headed a recent radio listeners' poll as Tasmania's favorite male singer, scoring a clean victory over another baritone named Bing Crosby.

With Heart

Crossing the plains, we got such a dosage of daily Wilf Carter administered by car radio that I was beginning to build up a tolerance for his style. My daughter, Judy, on the other hand, has a definite case of cowboyphile. So we went to see Carter's show here and, afterwards, we had a little talk with Will in person.

He is a tall, fleshy man with a small, girlish mouth tucked up under a long nose and a manner of supreme self-confidence and affamility (the autograph on the picture he gave me was "to a grand old pal").

Carter on Carter: "This tour has been terrific. I dunno. People seem to have stopped thinkin' of me as a cowboy singer. Now they think of me as a kind o' legend. 'Course I started back in 1924. You might say I was the first of my kind of singer. They tell me I got the biggest distribution of records in the world."

Carter on the reasons for his continued success: "A lot of people think a cowboy singer is anybody who puts on a big hat and a pair of high boots. But it's sincerity that counts in the long run.

"I was a cowboy myself. Still own a ranch near Carstairs. And I tell you, it's the hardest, meanest, cruellest life there is. When I write my songs and when I sing 'em I'm tellin' about real experiences I know. Heart. That's what does it."

Whatever it is, Wilf has come a long way from the days when he was a wild-cow milker in the Calgary Stampede.

He travels about in an aquamarine Cadillac (described as "my little old jalopy' 'when Wilf favors his fans with a monologue), lives in a beautiful 10-room fieldstone country home ("my little old log shack") in Clinton, New Jersey, just 50 miles from New York and the chartered accountant who master-minds the Carters' considerable income.

The two Carter girls, four-year-old Carol and seven-year-old Sheila, remain behind in New Jersey, but "Daddy" has pictures of them which sell briskly at 25 cents the copy.

The Big Hit

The Carter fans, as observed in Winnipeg, are a curious clan, most of them 'teen-agers who deride anything "corny," but sigh at the broadest sentimentality of their idol, who delivers each song in a straightforward matter-of-fact manner.

Carter, himself, is unable to explain the success of one of his biggest hits, "The Ice Worm Song." This is a delightfully humorous tune. The lyrics of one verse go:

There's a husky, dusky maiden
in the Arctic,
In her igloo she's waiting there in vain,
So I guess I'll put my mucklucks
on and ask her
If she'll wed me when the ice worm nests again.

And the winal verse:

When all the blinking icebergs pound around us
She'll present me with a bouncing baby boy,
And the polar bears they'll do a
rhumba round us
And the walruses will click their teeth with joy.

When the yodellin' cowboy steps up square to the mike and sings these words in his direct, plaintive, unblinking way, he gets the highest tribute from his followers. The humor in the lyrics changes not a flicker the rapt and slightly mournful expression of those faces.

Senate Group Approves Niagara Treaty

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended Thursday ratification of a treaty between the United States and Canada concerning use of more Niagara River water to generate power.

The recommendation was contained in a report filed with the Senate.

The proposed increased diversion of the river's water would enable the United States through rebuilding of existing power plants at Niagara Falls, to about triple its present hydro-electric capacity there. Canadian production would also be increased.

Steps also would be taken to preserve the scenic beauty of the falls.

Reaches Conclusion

The committee conducted a hearing June 27 on the treaty. It reached this conclusion:

"The committee . . . is convinced that it's (the treaty's) prompt ratification will constitute a gesture of good will toward our friendly neighbor, Canada.

"The United States will also profit from the equalization and the stabilization of water-diversion arrangements with Canada and from the increased power to be developed on the United States side of the falls."

A treaty reservation recommended by the committee would stipulate that the United States' redevelopment of Niagara power plants be subject to authorization by Congress.

Scores of searchers scoured the Lake of Two Mountains district, 45 miles from Montreal, before they discovered him in the woods less than a mile from home.

Find Meteor Smoke Puffs Help Measure Wind Speed

PALO ALTO, Calif., Aug. 4—(AP)—Smoke puffs made by meteors have given scientists a way of measuring continuously the speed of winds 55 to 80 miles above the earth.

Electrical instruments in a laboratory do the work. With knobs, dials and electronic tubes an export now for the first time can pick any altitude between 55 and 80 miles up and determine which way and how fast the wind is blowing there.

This is of prime importance to weather men, because things happening at those levels may influence the weather layers far below. It is also important to aeronautics. Rockets and planes of the future may have to pass through or travel along these as yet uncharted air strata.

The new instrument is known as tan electronic anenometer. It was developed by L. A. Manning, O.G. Villard Jr., and A. M. Peterson of the Stanford University electronics laboratory. They reported in the proceedings of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Basis of the technique is the fact that meteors too small to be seen are always whizzing through the air in the belt 55 to 80 miles up. Coming in from far outside the earth they hit the thin air of this belt and get so hot they go up in smoke. The heat they produce causes particles in the surrounding air to become electronically active and thus able to reflect radar waves.

Get Labor Vote Kennedy Tells Conservatives

GRAVENHURST, Aug. 4. (CP) — Agriculture Minister Kennedy Thursday urged the Ontario Young Progressive Conservative Association to get out after the Labor vote.

If in some ridings the party suffers from lack of Labor support, "it's your fault and my fault," he said. "We lose Labor support because we have too many fools running in urban places."

The older party members should listen to the younger members, he said.

Stating "the old days of merely voting Liberal or Conservative have gone," Mr. Kennedy said people in large measure vote for individuals, not parties. Young people should anticipate public sentiment, for "the time is here for young people to run for public office."

Earlier, Welfare Minister Goodfellow told the Association's summer school he is considering a reduction of the probation period in adoption cases from two years to one year.

"One year certainly should be sufficient time in which to determine if a couple is going to give the adopted child food and proper care," said Mr. Goodfellow.

He said it is "annoying" to the adopting parent to have department officials checking and making reports on them for two years.

James F. Weston 83 Dies On Vacation

FREDERICTON, Aug. 4 (CP) James Francis Weston, 83, of Toronto, chairman of the Imperial Life Assurance Company, died here Thursday. He had been visiting his summer home at nearby Upper Gagetown when he became ill Friday.

Born at Gagetown, N.B., he joined the company as a salesman 50 years ago and worked up to president and later chairman of the company's board.

Mr. Weston was frequently referred to as the father of life insurance institutional advertising in Canada.

16 School Students Visit Northern Ontario

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (CP)—Sixteen Toronto high school students leave tonight on 'travelling scholarships through Northern Ontario and Quebec.

The scholarships provided jointly by the board of education and the T. Eaton Company for the fourth straight year, were awarded to one student from each Toronto high school

The party's tour will include a visit to the Wright Hargreaves and Lake Shore mines at Kirkland Lake, a tour of the Laurentians, visits to Montreal, Ottawa, and Quebec, and trip to the atomic energy plant at Chalk River, Ont.

Plan New Plant

CHATHAM, Aug. 4 (CP)—Construction of a $500,000 fertilizer plant here was announced Thursday by Canada Packers, T. J. Payne, manager of the fertilizer division at Toronto, said the new plant will be located on Richmond street in the new industrial area.

Controller Lamport Seeks "Square Deal"

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (CP)—Despite opposition from several quarters Controller Allan Lamport stuck to his guns Thursday, insisting that speeding motorists be given a "fair deal."

From various quarters—other city councillors, police officials and an Ontario Safety League official—came demands that the city back up a current campaign against speeders.

Controller Lamport urged Wednesday that board of control ask the police commission not to use "plainclothes" cars, as the provincial police are doing in a new drive against speeders The board took no action.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously Wednesday that the board relayed Controller Lamport's request to the commission.

NEW! 20-minute way to wax your car!

Amazing chemical discovery by makers of JOHNSON'S WAX ... written up in Reader's Digest for June!

CAR-PLATE

Gives a "diamond shine" . . . guaranteed brighter, tougher, longer-wearing than any other auto wax!

Even after hours of hard rubbing, no other wax can match the finish that Car-Plate gives so quickly and easily. Johnson's Car-Plate needs no rubbing to make it shine. Just spread on the cleaned surface . . . let it dry . . . then wipe lightly. That's all there is to putting on a Car-Plate shine!

Only $1.00 will wax any car two times

IMPORTANT! Car-Plate is a wax—not a cleaner! Before you apply Johnson's Car-Plate, your car must be spotlessly clean and free of traffic film and oxidized paint. For quick, thorough cleaning of your car, used Johnson's Carnu . . . sold wherever Car-Plate is sold.

"Johnson's", "Carnu" and "Car-Plate" are trademarks of S. C. Johnson & Son, Ltd., Brantford, Ontario.

Even when dried indoors... EVEN WITHOUT RINSING

SURF gives you SWEETER WASHES

... snowy white, rainbow bright!

"ORDINARY" CLEAN — Though you may think your wash is perfectly clean, a faint "musty" odor often betrays the fact that some remnants of dirt, grease or scum are still clinging to the fibres. Rinsing won't get rid of this . . . but Surf does!

SURF CLEAN — Even without rinsing, Surf removes every last trace of dirt, grease (and scum) . . . every trace of odor, too! That's why it gets your clothes so white, so bright . . . so soft . . . so wonderfully sweet to smell!

Surf contains an amazing detergent which removes not only every trace of dirt and grease... but all "dirty clothes" odor, too. Gets clothes sweeter smelling ... cleaner than you've ever known them.

SURF-CLEAN CLOTHES are so deep-down clean that they not only look snowy white! Rainbow bright! They smell pure and wholesome . . . sunshiny-fresh . . . blown-in-the-sun sweet! SWEET . . . with the sweetness that proves how clean they are!

And that's not all!

They smell that way even if dried indoors! And they stay that way longer . . . retain that "new-washed" sweetness even after weeks in the linen closet or bureau drawer!

And that's not all!

You don't even need to rinse your Surf-clean wash! It will still be the cleanest, sweetest smelling wash you ever had.

First, because Surf has the magic power of grabbing and holding the dirt in the washwater, so when you wring out the water you actually wring the dirt out with it. Out goes every vestige of soil and grease!... to leave your wash really clean. At the same time, Surf's special purifying ingredient takes out every last trace of "dirty clothes" odor too!

When you don't rinse your Surf-clean wash, this purifying ingredient goes on working in your clothes—to keep them sweeter longer! (If you do want to rinse, add a little Surf to the rinse-water.)

Surf suds are rich and long-lasting. In hardest water, they do 3 times the work of ordinary soaps. They're safe, too . . . Surf is all you need for everything from the grimiest overalls to your sheerest lingerie.

All the Surf your grocer now has in his store is the new "no-rinse" Surf . . . especially developed for "no-rinse" washing. Get some today . . . and smell how sweet and fresh it will get your wash . . . even without rinsing!

If it's Surf-clean, it's really clean . . . EVEN WITHOUT RINSING

Wet Weather Spoils Quality Of Ontario's Best Wheat Hits Peterborough Farmers

The weather which produced a grand crop of soft wheat in Ontario this year, with consequent problems of price and storage, appears to be applying a drastic problem of declining quality in the damp,dull harvest days. Alex McKinney of Brampton, one of the most widely known farmers in the province, said here Thursday night that 20 acres of his wheat is sprouting in the stook. And that lowers its rating from prospective pastry flour to feed for live stock. Local trade reports indicate that Peterborough wheat is showing a moisture content of 17%.

Only ten days ago farmers were anticipating favorable harvest weather, and a yield that was roughly estimated at 30,000,000 bushels as against 22,000,000 bus. in a good year.

The drop of 50c a bushel from the price of the old crop had stirred up suggestions of storage at home, or in the millers' bins, or by the government as a means of control the flow to market from the combines working in the fields.

Serious Change

Unseasonable rains, first in western counties and during the last week in the eastern section of the province, have seriously changed the ultimate outlook.

Farmers were beginning to reckon with storage costs, assuming favorable circumstances of sunshine, and were doubting financial advantage in that direction. In the meantime the weather has laid a wet hand on the grain in stooks and also as it was standing.

Half Inch Sprouts

E. A. Summers, agricultural representative in Durham, reported Tuesday evening that half inch sprouts were noticed on wheat in stooks on farms along the southern strip of the county. And, there have been heavy rains since then.

Sunshine and a drying wind can still save the winter wheat crop in the Peterborough district, so it is said, but the Ontario grain has already suffered considerable depreciation in quality and value.

Late Model Cars Hard To Get, Prices Increase

Prices for late model used cars have gone up from $75 to $200 on some city car lots, it was learned today.

Dealers say cars made from 1947 to 1950 are becoming difficult to buy, and that the resultant short supply has pushed the prices up.

However, two dealers in the city report that they have not increased their prices. Others say their increases are about on a line with those in Toronto—about $75 on the average.

Jim Philcox, manager of Irwin-Godson's used car lot on Water St., said prices for late model cars on their lot have not been boosted.

Hard To Get

Fred Revoy, Water St., said he had increased prices on late model used cars from five to ten per cent.

"Used cars in late models are hard to get," he said. "A 1949 car we sold two months ago would bring us about $200 more today."

Mr. Revoy said his prices had gone up from $100 to $200 on late model General Motors cars.

Part of the increase, he said, was due to the fact that General Motors and Chrysler workers are on holidays at present.

Another dealer reported people "holding out on selling the cars they bought in the last year or two. I think we've noticed that more than any increase there may have been. Our prices have gone up about the same as those in Toronto."

Car Flattens Flowers After Mounting Curb

Several shrubs and a section of the flower bed on Water St. along the Goose Pond were flattened Thursday evening when a car went out of control and climbed the curb into the bed.

Miss R. Reid, 18, 226 Edinburgh St., told police she drove east on Edinburgh St. to Water St., and stopped. The car stalled and when she started, it seemed to go out of control.

She took the turn too wide and the car jumped the curb and landed facing north in the flower bed. Miss Reid was driving on a temporary permit.

G.I. JOE HIMSELF—Hard-bitten . . . battle-tested . . . combat-wise . . . those are the adjectives that come to mind when you look at this picture of one of the US Army's old pros. The adjectives probably apply, too, because he's been around a long time. He's Sergeant first class Hun Toon, 52 years old, originally hailing from Vermont. He enlisted in the Army in 1918, served in World Wars I and II — and now is showing the youngsters a thing or two in Korea, where this Army Signal Corps picture was snapped.

HONEY CROP HALF NORMAL

Without flowers the bees can't make honey. With adverse weather this season and lack of suitable clovers, the honey crop is only half the normal flow, according to the estimates of Prof. G. F. Townsend of the apiculture department of O.A.C. Second growth alfalfa may be a late help, but generally the honey crop is off in volume.

FLAGS COME DOWN

Flags and pennants strung across the streets to give centennial-celebrating Peterborough a festive appearance, have been ordered brought down by the Centennial Committee. Members of the committee felt they have become too dirty to be an attractive decoration to the city streets.

CIVIC STREET DANCE

The Peterborough Centennial Committee Thursday asked Bruce Sargent to investigate the possibility of holding a giant civic dance sometime in September either in one of the main streets or the main Exhibition Park building at which both modern and old time dancing would be featured. It was also suggested that a step dancing contest and a fiddlers contest would be held at the dance.

Peterborough Residents Don't Go In For Shoplifting

Shoplifters are in short supply in Peterborough, and there is no demand at all for them. According to managers of department stores and five-and-ten stores, Peterborough people don't go in for that sort of thing. And when the odd one does appear, said one manager, the best thing to do is prosecute. The publicity will stop them from doing it again and will make others think twice before they try it.

Worst time of the year is Christmas. When the stores are jammed with people and the clerks are so busy they can't watch out for all the people, the shoplifters have their little heyday here.

But even at Christmas there isn't much of it done. One store manager attributed this to the fact that most of the people in Peterborough work steadily and don't have to steal articles.

Busy Saturdays present another problem for the stores. Again, clerks are busy and again, a few shoplifters appear to do a bit of free shopping.

Jewelry stores are the toughest for shoplifters to crack. One favorite dodge was to have the clerk set out a variety of wrist watches, or some similar article, and while the clerk looked for more of the same, to sneak a watch into a pocket or purse.

Storeowners quickly caught on and clerks are warned not to keep too many articles on the counter at once.

Police Chief John Thompson said there have been less than half-a-dozen cases this year.

As one store owner said—ain't nobody here but us good citizens.

Empress Employees Reject Joining Union

The attempt to unionize beverage room employees in local hotels has suffered a setback.

Employees at the Empress Hotel voted five-to-one against accepting the Wholesale, Retail and Department Store Workers (CIO-CCL) as their bargaining agent.

Both the Queens and the Grand hotels are certified and eligible employees from the Windsor and McGillis have applied to the Ontaro Labor Relations Board for certification.

Waiters and tapmen would be included in the bargaining unit. At present the unionized employees are part of Local 505, a composite local of about 150 consisting mainly of chain store workers.

OBITUARIES

MISS ISABELL MILLIKEN

After a long illness, Miss Isabell Milliken of 40 Robinson St., died early today at her residence. Miss Milliken had no living relatives.

She was born in Asphodel township, daughter of the late Robert Milliken and Jean Ingram. Later she moved to Peterborough.

Miss Milliken was a member of two churches—St. Andrew's United and Mark Street United.

The funeral will be at the Comstock Funeral Home, Rubidge St., Saturday at 1:30 p.m., the Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. ERNEST ELLIS

Mother of Mrs. Frank Burkett of Peterborough, Mrs. Ernest Ellis, 147 Janette Ave., Windsor, died Thursday at Grace Hospital, Windsor, at the age of 64. She was born Elizabeth Nicholson of Belleville, and had lived at Trenton until four years ago when the family moved to Windsor. The funeral there on Saturday will be at 3.30 p.m. from the Anderson funeral home to Grove Cemetery.

Records And Movies At The Oval Sunday

Music by records and movies will substitute the weekly band concert Sunday night at Nicholls Oval, recreation director Alex Sinclair announced today. The program will be jointly sponsored by the public library and the recreation commission.

The record concert will include selections from Eric Coates, music from "A Midsummer Night's Dream", the Apassionate by Beethoven and selections from "Annie Get Your Gun".

Sponsored by the Peterborough Film Council, five color films will be shown: The Navy Flies; The Loon's Necklace; Great Northern Tacklebusters; Winter Carnival; Vacation in Quebec.

169 JULY BIRTHS

Deaths in Peterborough last month were nine fewer than in July last year. City hall figures were: July, 1950, 169 births and 39 deaths; and July last year, 135 births and 48 deaths.

Summer Theatre Will Produce Centennial Play

The Peterborough Centennial Play, At My Heart's Core, written especially in honor of Peterborough's Centennial by Robertson Davies, will open August 28 with the official blessing of the Centennial Committee.

The committee decided at a meeting Thursday to sponsor the Peterborough Summer Theatre's production of the play.

Opening night is being planned as a civic night when members of the city council, the Board of Education, the Centennial Committee and mayors of neighboring cities and towns as well as municipal officials of surrounding districts will be asked to attend as guests of the city and the Summer Theatre.

Drama critics from Toronto, Ottawa and other cities as well as men and women interested in drama in Canada, are expected to be at the first performance.

Anticipating a large demand for tickets, the Centennial Committee has decided to ask the Board of Education for permission to run the play an extra week in the Queen Mary school auditorium if it becomes obvious that all those who want to see the play cannot obtain seats the first week.

1837 Setting

Set in 1837 in the Peterborough district during the turbulent days when citizens of Upper Canada were rebelling against the dictatorial regime of the infamous Family Compact, the play will feature prominent characters, such as Susanna Moodie and Mrs. Traill, who made a mark in Canada's history that is still evident today.

The city council will also be asked to hold a civic reception following the play's opening Aug. 28.

Members of the Centennial Committee suggested that local service clubs might want to organize special nights for their clubs when they might wish to invite members of branch clubs throughout the district to come to Peterborough to see the play.

Traffic Lights Timing Is Bad

A change in traffic lights to ease the traffic problem on George St. may be in the offing. Police Chief John Thompson said today that it may be necessary to allow more time for north-south traffic.

As it is, the chief said, it is barely possible for a motorist to go on George St. from Charlotte past the Hunter St. light without being stopped by one of the two traffic lights on George St. north of Charlotte.

Citizens have complained that traffic lights on the main street have caused excessive traffic lines. At time, lines of southbound vehicles halted by the Charlotte St. light have stretched north into the intersection of George and Simcoe Sts.

Daniel Arthur Leonard

Funeral for Daniel Arthur Leonard who died Wednesday was held today from his residence, 111 Sophia St., to Immaculate Conception Church where requiem mass was celebrated by Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan. Interment wes at St. Peter's cemetery, the graveside prayers recited by the Rev. J. Greenan.

Pallbearers were brothers, George, Robert, Arthur, Emile, Maurice and Ernest Leonard. Honorary pallbearers were: George Wallis, John Whalen, Percy Hughes, George Gordon, Cecil Block, and Thomas Ross.

Woman Swims To Rescue Four Near Drowning Point After Capsize In Otonabee

A quick rescue early Thursday night saved four persons from the Otonabee river after their boat sprang a leak, filled with water, and finally overturned. Recovering from the effects of their ducking in the river, opposite Elcome crescent, are: Norman Moore, 54, 680 Water St.; Mr. and Mrs. James Rigby, both 45, 661 McKellar St., and William Hall, 56, Toronto. The three men were just chilled and soaking, but Mrs Rigby, while not unconscious, required the use of a respirator for 10 minutes. She was then taken to St. Joseph's hospital where she spent a restful night Only Mr. Moore could swim.

Mrs. Dorothy Wilson 34, of 697 Elcome crescent, performed the most spectacular feat of the night. When she heard that some people were in the water, she raced across the street, whipped off her dress and swam out to the boat. The four were clinging to the overturned boat about a 100 feet off shore and Mrs. Wilson reached them shortly after Harry Schwartz, 700 Elcome crescent, arrived in his boat.

Helps Man To Safety

She assisted Mr. Hall to a position of safety on the bottom of the overturned craft and then turned her attention to helping Mrs. Rigby who was fighting for breath.

"I didn't know who was out there," she told the Examiner. "I just dived in and swam out to them."

An expert swimmer who won some awards when she was younger, Mrs. Wilson waved aside the suggestion she had done anything unusual.

"I was brought up by the banks of the Trent river," she said, referring to her former home in Hastings. "You learn swimming there as a matter of self preservation.

Mr. Schwartz was the first one to reach the sinking boat.

Rows From Shore

"I had just turned off the motor on my boat and was coming into shore when I heard a shout for help," he said. As soon as I saw them I started to row out—didn't want to waste valuable time tinkering with the motor."

He pointed to an oarlock torn loose by his exertions and then said, "I guess I made it in record time."

"Three of them seemed safe enough but I couldn't see Mr. Hall at first. I told them to try and get him. Then Mrs. Wilson gave him a hand. The others hung onto the side of my boat—I told them not to try and climb in—and we went ashore."

Another boat also helped in the rescue. Harry Primeau of Elcome crescent, Al Revoy of Auburn St., and Cyril Cockerill, Chemong Rd. assisted Mr. Hall off the bottom of the punt.

Anchored By Plug

"We were trolling in the river and when we saw the overturned boat we reeled in our lines and went over to investigate," said Mr. Primeau. "When we got there Mrs. Wilson was helping keep Mrs. Rigby up. We had trouble getting Mr. Hall off the boat because a fishing plug had anchored him to it. At first we thought he didn't want to come."

The Schwartz' provided accommodation, including warm blankets, at their own home until the four soaking people were ready to leave. Mrs. Rigby was taken by ambulance to St. Joseph's after firemen used an inhalator on her for 10 minutes.

In the respirator squad were Joe Astles, Joe Nolan and Henry Nokes.

Outboard Motor Sinks

The flat-bottomed punt had been borrowed by Mr. Moore from a friend so that he, Mr. Hall and the Rigbys could go fishing. He used his own outboard motor which went to the bottom when the craft upset.

All but Mr. Hall are heavily built and it was too great a load for the punt. Somehow it sprang a leak near the bow and it rapidly began to fill with water and sink.

"If we'd been far from shore and nobody around, well, it would have just been good-bye," commented Mr. Rigby.

Diesel Engine Makes Test Run With 68 Cars

The first Diesel train engine to come through Peterborough on the CPR line roared through on Thursday hauling 68 freight cars on a test run.

It went through the city twice, the first time on its way west from Smiths Falls just before three o'clock in the afternoon and back east again at 1:30 a.m. today.

Both times it did not stop and very few Peterborough residents had a look at it. But before it arrived at Peterborough, it stopped about three hours in Havelock where many of the townsfolk had a chance to see it at close range.

It was a two unit type in which two Diesel motors supplied the power. Pulling into Havelock it was hauling 65 freight cars, a load of 3,300 tons.

After waiting for the noon passenger train to pass through the town, it picked up three more cars and pulled out of the town.

Engineer, Harry Simpson, Smiths Falls, operated the train to Havelock. His conductor was Stewart Gendron, also of Smiths Falls. A Toronto crew, engineer Robert Bannon, formerly of Havelock and conductor Leo Young took over for the next lap of the run.

On board to study the Diesel's operation were E. B. Wheeler, district master mechanic; E. V. Everitt, assistant superintendent and D. Kinnaird, chairman of the safety first committee.

Dr. J. R. Weir of OAC Says Grass Silage Reduces Risk of Adverse Weather in Harvesting Hay and Preserving Its Nutrients . . . Cavan Potato Specialists On Trip to New York State . . . Prof. R. G. Knox Recommends Some Acreage of Hybrid Corn—Wheat Club's Samples Sent to OAC.

"With grass silage we don't have to depend so much on sun-cured hay," said Dr. J. R. Weir, pasture specialist of the husbandry department of OAC, at the crop improvement meeting Tuesday evening at the farm of Robert Armstrong of Cavan.

Farmers of the United States and Canada were fixing a broader interest on the winter storing of forage crops, essentially for economy in feed and also for an increase in their nutrient values. In their changing practice they were gradually moving away from the risks of weather at harvest time. At least that is the objective of new methods of putting hay away for winter feed of stock.

Risks beset farmers from season to season and further on from harvest to market, and their hopes and planning are directed with more thought and purpose to control and security.

Dr. Weir said he did not have time to enter into discussion of the details of new ways of reducing dependence on the sun in the curing of hay and handling of fodder crops. The meeting in the gathering dark of Mr. Armstrong's spacious yard could be reported only from memory. The yard light was ample for the general purpose of the meeting, and even it was turned off when Dr. Weir was showing slides which he took last year of agricultural scenes in Holland, Denmark and Britain.

Most of his audience of nearly 200 men from Peterborough and Durham sat on bales of hay which Mr. Armstrong had thoughtfully placed for the comfort of the gathering. Some of the farm women of the neighborhood were present.

Mow curing by draft and ventilation is one of the new practices, and grass silage is a further development aimed at "making hay while you can and ensiling almost any time." Some district farmers have been keeping pace with these artificial methods, but acceptance of their worth appears to have been already more widely adopted in the western part of the province.

Save Protein

Retention of high protein content was emphasized as a chief objective, Dr. Weir said. He mentioned as a fact that, in ten days the protein content of timothy can shrink from 10 per cent to 3 per cent, depending on the time of cutting. Earlier cut legumes and grasses have higher values of protein than when they are taken later from the field.

Dr. Weir advised his rural audience to investigate the improved varieties of grasses and legumes that were being developed, just as they had already put into use new varieties of grain. He also said that the grasses and legumes now widely found in Ontario pastures were not natural to the land of this province.

The natural growth here was the trees which once covered the land, and if it was left to nature again it would return to trees, and to the common grass and clover that originally grew under the trees or in their vicinity. The present species comprising pasture mixtures had been introduced from Europe, some from Russia.

Cornell Resists Smut

Dr. G. P. McCrostie, director of the field husbandry department of OAC, who discussed the test plots of oats and barley, said: "We have not found any smut in our elite Cornell wheat. As far as we know it is highly resistant to loose smut."

He also said, incidentally to his reference to the import of Cornell winter wheat, "It takes us three years to purify any crop from the United States before it passes our requirements for registration."

He also recommended a planting of hybrid corn for an additional feed supply.

"Nine years of experiments showed that we got twice as much feed from corn as from barley in the Guelph area. I think a few acres of corn are a good source of extra feed. One advantage is that it can be left until after the other crops are off. A good way of drying grain corn is on the stalk. Keep to the earlier maturing varieties. Dry it in the field until the moisture is down to about 20 per cent, and you should not have much trouble if you store it in well ventilated cribs, and don't get too much of it together in bulk."

Farmers know that temporary cribs can be readily made from snow fence and rails that will keep the corn off the ground, and provide "lots of air circulation." They are commonly about five feet across at the top and three to four feet at the bottom.

WHEAT CLUB SAMPLES

Samples of the Peterborough 50-bushel wheat club entries are on the way to O.A.C. for yield scores. Inadvertently, Harry Jackson's field near Omemee was cut before a sample could be taken.

The varieties were all Cornell 595 except the Dawson's Golden Chaff grown by Russell Boner of Cavan. The other members were: Robert Armstrong and Robert Tate of Cavan; W. W. Dawson, Alan Eason, Fred Fife, Alex Huston, Jack Matchett, Stewart Nelson, Roy Swan, Stewart Whittington and John Webster of Otonabee; Graham Eastwood, Ross Harrison, Ferd Rowland of Smith; Lyle R. McMillan, Asphodel; Charles Whittington, North Monaghan.

Frank Marritt of Keswick was field judge. The samples were collected and bagged by R. E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative.

"There was considerably less smut than last year," Mr. Bell said. "Mr. Marritt remarked that the club entries would compare very favorably with the other fields he had judged this season."

Points were awarded in field judging on such factors as freedom from weeds, smut, grasses and other grains; uniformity of maturity and height; straightness of rows, condition of the soil, and other refinements of good management.

PROF. KNOX ON HYBRID CORN

Prof R. G. Knox of the Department of Animal Husbandry at O.A.C. discussed grain corn as one of his topics in a talk on the feed situation in Ontario.

"During the last 25 years our plant breeders have most fortunately succeeded in providing our agricultural community at large with a series of hybrid corn varieties that suit the seasonal climatic conditions as may prevail in the respective communities.

In the areas where hybrid corn is being grown for picking purposes, 50 bushels of shelled corn per acre are common. Last year, 100 bus., corn crops in western Ontario were not unusual. What is the significance of this fact? May I point out to you that on the basis of total digestible nutrients, a 50-bus. corn crop is equivalent to 92.8 bus. of oats and 62 bus. of barley.

This crop can be harvested during a season when there is less rush than in the case when either oats or barley are harvested. It can be stored in relatively speaking inexpensive storage space.

I am not suggesting that corn in itself is the answer to the problem, and that we can do without our coarse grains in some quantity, but I am suggesting that we can become in Ontario more self-supporting than we are at present without becoming too provincially minded.

I am suggesting that, with the increased carrying capacity per acre of our grasslands, with the feeding of a decidedly better quality of hay and succulent roughage as we may grow on our farms, both corn silage and grass silage — the latter can be used as an insurance policy during the dry month of August — combined with an increased volume of total digestible nutrients in our grains, it is possible to produce more meat and milk per acre. . ."

Should Cull Herds

At that point Prof. Knox, introduced a heavily accented "IF" and proceeded. . ." if our herds of beef and dairy cattle and swine are culled on the basis of efficient production.

The premise which I have presumed to make is not made on the basis of 3,000, 4 000 or 5,000 lbs. cows, nor on the basis of a steer that weighs 1,200 lbs. at three years old, nor on the basis of a hog that requires 500 lbs. of meal to make 100 lbs. of gain.

There is less justification for becoming alarmed at feed costs if one thinks in terms of inefficient live stock. There is less justification for becoming enthused over conservation in the broad sense of the word if we persist in listening to the wails of the owners of scrub live stock.

"Many of our live stock men, dairy men in particular, have prepared themselves for these less favorable times. They have remodelled their barns to save labor and reduce mastitis troubles, adopted more efficient milking methods and improved meadows and pastures by shifting to new legumes and grasses, and using more fertilizer. Farm wage rates continue to be influenced by urban rates which are not likely to soften much. No further comment is necessary with respect to grain prices, but it is suggested that when our farmers are determining their profitableness of enterprise they should bear in mind the prices at which they are marketing the feeds which they can grow on their own farms through efficient live stock."

SUMMARY OF TEST PLOTS

Tallest of the oat varieties in the test plots at Robt. Armstrong's farm this week was Roxton, a Macdonald College product. Dr. G. P. McCrostie said it was in the Banner and Victoria class, showed some resistance to rust, and did well in a cool year "like this". It yields well, but heads out in hot weather.

"Roxton is a good oat for hay. It grows tall and leafy, and will give you quite a lot of feed."

Clinton, from Iowa, is a yellow oat, "and none of our Canadian plant growers are breeding yellow oats". It is grown extensively in the U.S.A., "because they need an earlier variety than we do to escape the dry weather. It stands up well, comes off early and doesn't shade the ground as some of the taller varieties do".

People have come back to Beaver, Dr. McCrostie said. There is as much of this variety grown in Ontario as any other.

"I think you will hear more of the unnamed C-16 or some of its brothers. Tests at Ottawa and plant breeders are indicating both high yield and resistance to disease."

"Ajax is a good early oat, not highly resistant to disease; Erban, a standby, produces a good crop in midseason, and yields well."

Characteristics of the different varieties of both oats and barley were clearly evident in the test rows. There were some others oats in addition to those mentioned.

O.A.C.-21 barley, long prominent for its malting qualities heads drop off badly if it gets overripe. . .Vantage-stands up well; good feed variety; something like Barboff. .Galore-bred for rich land; shorter than some of the other varieties.

An unnamed variety No. 1: promising for feed; may be named next year. . .Montcalm—smooth awned; probably best for commercial malting purposes. . .No GB-11—a very promising variety

AFFECT SEED SUPPLY

Peterborough grain growers may be interested in a report from Brant that deterioration of the wheat crop from heavy rains in the last ten days is likely to affect the supply of seed wheat.

R. J. McCormick farmer near Paris, is quoted as having said "there will be little wheat sold for seed from Brant this year". Some of the grain is reported sprouting as it still stands in the field. "If the krenels have started to bulge at all, they are no good for seed," Mr. McCormick said.

Douglas Perry, another Paris farmer, has both Cornell and Dawbul varieties uncut. He reports Cornell is showing sprouts of about half an inch. Sprouts on the Dawbul wheat were just breaking out.

In the Norwich area a lot of hay is badly damaged. Cutting and baling on sunny days were followed by rains, and it is said that many tons have already been lost.

TO N. Y. POTATO DAY

Durham potato growers motored in three buses to the Empire State potato day at Chaffee, N.Y. Thursday. Most of them were from Cavan, Millbrook, Bethany and Pontypool.

E. A. Summers, Bowmanville agricultural representative, said the first plan was for one bus but so many of the Durham wished to make the trip, accompanied by their wives, that the three buses had to be ordered, and Mr. Summers went in his own car which was also filled. Ernest Cavano was head of the committee which had charge of the arrangements.

NO CORN IN BRITAIN

Not one field of corn was seen "in the whole British Isles" by the four junior farmers of Ontario who have returned from their tour and judging engagements in the Old Country.

A. M. Barr, associate director of extension with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, says the boys were impressed with the calibre of the agriculture they saw.

"Crops looked very well, and promised high yields of winter wheat, oats, barley, sugar beets and small fruits. One is impressed also by the high yields of cereal grains, with oats running 100 bus. an acre; wheat 65 to 80 bus. and barley 60 to 75 bus.

"Farmers employ considerably more than do the farmers with corresponding acreages in Ontario. One grain-growing farm of about 600 acres employed 14 to 17 men regularly, despite the fact that the farm was highly mechanized. It was noticed that the pastures were highly productive, the ground being entirely covered with a mat of an excellent growth of clovers and grasses.

"The team placed third in beef judging and fifth in dairy cattle judging competitions. A Scottish team won in beef, and the dairy prize went to England. Bruce Kirk of Renfrew was runner-up to the high individual for the trophy in judging Guernsey cattle at the Royal Show at Oxford. . .The Young Farmers movement in the British Isles a very important part in the rural life of the young farm people."

PRIZES FOR JUNIORS

Dr. Hamilton and Dr. Ford are renewing their seven prizes of $5 each for the special junior class at Lakefield Fair August 19.

It is reserved for the boys and girls of the 1949 calf clubs who competed in the achievement day finals, and is open to the several breeds. This should be of interest to the youngsters of last year's clubs.

Sportsmen Seek $15,000 For Conservation

(Special To The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug 4 — Vivian Sutton, Ridgeway, president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters announced today the Federation will seek to raise $15,000 to carry on the educational and organization work in its campaign to arouse Ontario people to the imperative need for conservation of natural resources.

He also announced Fred Richardson, Toronto, had been appointed general manager of the Federation, replacing Austin Peters of Kingston. Mr. Richardson will contact industries to obtain financial support.

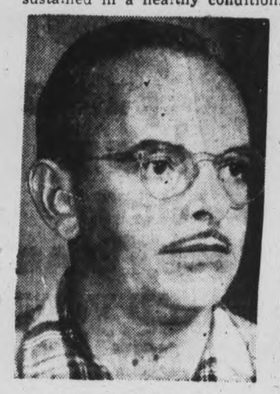
Representing 55,000 organized hunters and anglers, the Federation inspires and aids in financing fish and game club programs. This includes reforestation, stream improvement, control of predatory fish and animals, pheasant raising, youth education, watershed cover protection, anti-pollution of waters, assisting game overseers to curb illegal fishing and hunting, forest fire protection, and scholarships for university and primary school students.

Assist Game Warden

Mr. Sutton said that the Federation is the only organization equipped to carry on this work in close cooperation with the Dept. of Lands and Forests. He voiced regret that up to now few industrial leaders appeared to realize how important adequate forest cover and water supply were to their success in business

"The task of the Federation goes far beyond providing and maintaining fishing and hunting for the people of Ontario" he said.

At the next quarterly meeting in September, directors of the Federation will plan an appeal to resort operators to contribute aid in financing a campaign that assures the resort industry being sustained in a healthy condition.



FRED RICHARDSON, Toronto, has been appointed general manager of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. Mr. Richardson is seeking help from industries in the Federation's program of conservation of natural resources, including wildlife and forests.

Hamilton Man Hurt In Korean Fighting

HAMILTON, Aug. 4 (CP) — Cpl. Joseph G. Kenney, 21, of Hamilton, a member of the United States army, has been wounded in Korea, according to information received Thursday by his wife.

Cpl. Kenney is the second Ontario casualty in the Korean war and the third Canadian to appear in the casualty lists.

A United States Army dispatch today listed Hayden Henry Davenport, Kilburn, N.B., as missing Edward A. Aronson form Toronto athlete, was reported wounded in action Tuesday.

Make Adept Loafers If Course Unpopular

GUELPH, Aug. 4 — (CP) — Keeping schoolchildren at courses in which they are not interested can make them "adept loafers," Dr. J. G. Althouse, Ontario Director of Education, said Wednesday night.

Dr. Althouse told students attending the Ontario Agricultural College summer course that the rate at which students leave school before completing courses is alarming. About half the reasons given by students for leaving school were within the power of school officials to correct.

Kelley Will Remain In Ontario Cabinet

TORONTO, Aug. 4. (CP)—Russell T. Kelley, former minister of health for Ontario, whose resignation was announced Thursday, will continue in the cabinet as a minister without portfolio.

Premier Frost said that "despite the ill health which forced Mr. Kelley's retirement as health minister, he will continue to hold his seat as a member from Hamilton-Wentworth and remain in cabinet as a minister without portfolio."

Appointment of Dr. MacKinnon Phillips to replace Mr. Kelley was announced earlier.

France Debating About Token Force

PARIS, Aug 4 (AP)— French government leaders are debating sending a "token battalion" of troops to fight under the United Nations flag in Korea, a spokesman said Thursday.

French sources said the main obstacle to dispatching Frenchmen to Korea is France's "own dire need of military strength in Asia."

France has been fighting a guerrilla war for five years against Communist-led troops in Indo-China, and has some 140,000 troops stationed there.

Judge Denies Union Motion

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 4 (AP)— Judge William J. Archer in district court Thursday denied a union motion to dismiss a temporary injunction against picketing of the Canadian freighter Howard L. Shaw.

The freighter has been made idle at a Norris Grain Company dock here since Tuesday, awaiting the loading of a cargo of corn. The vessel is owned by the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company of Toronto.

Pickets were placed after the union charged the vessel carried crew members "who are Communists and thus bad security risks for the United States."

Judge Archer held that his court had jurisdiction "over any and all unlawful acts which result in harm."

"At this time," said the judge, "we must conclude that the charge this ship's owners have employed Communists in its crew are false, and that advertising the same as a fact (by picketing) is unlawful and can be restrained regardless of any labor relations act, state or federal."

Judge Archer set a hearing for Monday on an action to make the injunction permanent.

Chooses Poor Spot To Have Accident

HALIFAX, Aug. 4. (CP) — When motorist John Anthony of Oshawa, hit a car here Thursday night he made several mistakes.

1. He hit a police car;
2. He didn't stop immediately;
3. When he did stop, it was in front of the police station.

Detective Michael Murphy, pilot of the police cruiser, escorted Mr. Anthony inside, where he was charged with failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

Girl 16 Gets Big Kick In Hollywood

By HERBERT D. WILHOIT

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4 (AP)— Sixteen-year-old Suzanne Tracy of Milwaukee, Wis., visiting California for the first time, sums up her impressions of Hollywood in a word—"jeepers!"

If she said it once, she said it 20 times, either in ecstacy or disappointment.

When first she saw Hollywood and Vine, that street intersection over-glamorized as the heart, soul and centre of Hollywood, she said:

"Jeepers! This looks just like downtown Milwaukee. Where are all the movie stars?"

Told that one might walk the streets for days without seeing a star, she was incredulous.

Eyes Pop

When finally she visited a studio, her blue eyes popped and she fairly shivered with excitement.

"Jeepers!" She squealed, walking toward the 20th Century Fox commissary. "There's Richard Widmark! I know it! I recognize him!"

Widmark turned and waved to someone. As far as Suzanne was concerned, it was a wave to her, personally. She walked along

"Oh! Oh! jeepers!" she shrieked "That's Jimmy Stewart, isn't it?"

Indeed it was. She passed close enough to hear Stewart talking to friends.

"Isn't his drawl dreamy?" she cooed.

When the day was over Suzanne sighed:

"Well! I saw some movie stars all right. It was all just dreamy

"But you know what? If I ever got into the movies I'd want to be a stand-in Imagine, they just wait around most of the day and get paid for it—$16.50 a day. Jeepers!"

Built in 1924 as a luxury yacht, the Lady Anderson was purchased in 1935 for hospital ship duties. Ninety-two feet long and 19 feet wide, the ship has a gross weight of 90 tons, powered by diesel engines and capable of 10 knots. Under the command of Capt. Sam Fiander with a crew of eight, the trim vessel provides a communication link for the doctors and nurses in the isolated coastal settlements.

Anti-Semitism Flourishes In Germany After War

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

BERLIN, Aug. 4 — (CP) — Anti-semitism is flourishing in Germany today, five years after Hitler. It is expressed primarily in night-time desecration of Jewish cemeteries.

Who is responsible?

The Jews say it is chiefly the youngest generation — one which can't blame Hitler and Nazism for injecting anti-semitism.

And that for Germany's surviving Jews is an evil omen.

During recent months attacks upon Jewish cemeteries in west Germany have been deplored by Chancellor Konard Adenauer as "shameful."

In Russian-occupied East Germany and the Soviet sector of Berlin they have been hushed up. The Communist governments claim to be the friend of the Jews and enjoy pointing the finger of anti-semitism against allied west Germany.

May Change System

In some areas of west Germany, notably the State of Hesse, the desecrations have become so frequent that the Jews are seriously considering moving their famous dead abroad or asking for inter-nationalization of Jewish cemeteries in Germany as a protective measure.

One Jewish authority said he knew of about 200 cases of cemetery desecrations in West Germany since the end of the war in 1945. There are about 500 Jewish cemeteries in all Germany.

But what is most disheartening to the Jews is the youthful age of the offenders who are apprehended. Sometimes they are dismissed by the police without punishment because "this was just child foolishness and they did not even know they were playing in a cemetery."

Higher Car Prices

WINDSOR, Aug 4 (CP) — Higher prices for late-model cars have begun to hit the Windsor used car market, a survey showed Thursday. Dealers reported that prices on 1947-50 model cars have been increased $75 to $100 in the last few weeks

Judge Reverses Suit Decision

WINNIPEG, Aug. 4—(CP)— Mr. Justice P. J. Montague Thursday gave judgment in favor of Donald F. Tedlie in a defamation suit against the Southam Company Ltd. and Dr. Wesley McCurdy, former publisher of the Winnipeg Tribune.

Damages of $2,000 and costs were awarded Mr. Tedlie, Canadian National Railways telegraph operator at Dugald, Man., where a head-on collision between two trains took the lives of 31 persons Sept. 1, 1947.

The defamation suit arose from a Tribune headline Sept. 24, 1947, on a report of the inquiry into the wreck by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Mr. Justice Montague's decision reversed two previous trials in court of King's Bench when judgment and costs were awarded in favor of the Southam Company.

'Fashion Pioneer' Title Won By Canadian Girl in London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP) — Fashion bouquets at this year's Buckingham Palace garden party went to overseas guests.

Newspaper picked Dominion visitors as wearing the most eye-catching styles. Freda Nortrop of Canada, in a yellow dress edged with white pique, introduced cotton to garden party styles.

Singled Out

She was singled out by the Daily Graphic as a "fashion pioneer."

Pat Perkins of Sydney, Australia, wore a lack black picture hat, black gloves, and a yellow taffeta dress edged with lace on the large hip pockets, the tiny puff sleeves and the low round neck.

Another Australian, Margaret Croker, wore what was described as the cheapest hat ever worn at a garden party, and one of the prettiest. It was a small, pale blue grosgrain cloche which cost £1 ($3.10).

French Guest.

A French guest chose an elegant silver grey lace dress with fantail of pleated lace cascading down one side, worn with a huge picture hat.

The longest dresses were ankle length, in lace, georgette and organdie, worn mostly by older women. The younger set favoured long calf-lengths, in everything from froths of candy-striped muslin to severely-tailored dove-grey grosgrain.

Queen's Costume.

The Queen wore rose pink printed chiffon with cross-over neckline and straight skirt A long panelled cape flowed from the shoulders, almost to the ankles, and a stiffened pink tulle hat swept sideways in gigantic "mothwings."

Parasols are again becoming garden-party style. In place of big picture hats they give glamor without trouble in a high wind and are as frothy and fluffy as they were in grandmother's day.

WI Holds Picnic At Rice Lake

ROSENEATH, Aug. 4 (ENS) — The August meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute took the form of a picnic at Sandercock's Point, Rice Lake.

Eighty-four-year-old Mrs. E. J. Milne won the prize for the oldest person present. Mrs. Milne is a life member and a charter member of Roseneath Women's Institute.

Brenda Robins, eight months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cephis Robins, was the youngest child present.

Other prize winners were: ladies' nail driving contest, Mrs. Sydney Barrabell, Orono; junior girls' boot and shoe race Shirley Brown; senior girls' boot and shoe race, Nelda Brown Book-walking contest, Mrs. Ernest Burrison; shoe kicking contest, Mrs. Charles Sandercock; children's race, over six years, Nancy Carew.

Children's race, under six years, Sheila Barrabell; boys' sack race, Billy Murphy; tug of war senior girls, Baroara Adams' team, consisting of Nora Duff, Marjorie Sandercock and Mrs. Cephis Robins.

Married ladies' tug of war, Mrs. Charles Sandercock's team, Mrs. C. Grigg, Mrs Frank Adams, Mrs. J. W. Pacey.

A candy scramble for the children concluded the sports program in charge of Mrs Frank Brown and Mrs. Edgar Carew.

Three large cartons of used clothing were reported packed and shipped to the United Emergency Fund for Britain

It was decided to send a donation of $5 to the Women's Auxiliary of Cobourg General Hospital.

Included in the correspondence was a letter from W. I. Department in Toronto stating that Miss Helen Gardiner would instruct a short course, "Home Care of the Sick," in Roseneath in November.

Plans were made for the September meeting to be held in the township hall and four visiting societies will be invited to attend. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Hilton Eagleson, president of West Northumberland District Women's Institutes. The committee in charge of lunch will be Mrs. Frank Adams, Mrs. J. W. Pacey and Mrs. Alfred Pringle.

Table covers were spread on the picnic tables and the contents of large picnic baskets were placed on the tables. Grace was sung and more than fifty sat down to supper.

This was the first picnic on the new picnic grounds at Sandercock's Point, Rice Lake, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Sandercock.

Brother, Sister Meet After 45 Years

MARMORA, Aug. 4—(ENS)—Herbert Thomas of Boksburg Foundry, 20 miles east of Johannesburg, South Africa, is visiting his sister, Mrs. William Fox of Toronto, at her summer home at Crowe Lake after a separation of 45 years.

With Mr. Thomas is his wife and daughter Joyce.

Born in Cornwall, England, Mr. Thomas and his sister moved to S. Africa with their parents when young children. Since Mrs. Fox' departure for Canada, Mr. Thomas has opened an iron works and a foundry, with his brother James.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, who travelled from Johannesburg on a Norwegian ship, docking at Montreal after three weeks at sea, will return on Sept. 1, the sailing date for the ship.

"It is a great country," says Mr. Thomas, when speaking about his impression of Canada. He thought more money was being spent on highways in Canada than in South Africa, although he speaks proudly of a fine macadamised highway between Johannesburg and Capetown, a distance of 1,000 miles.

Mr. Thomas recently visited the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company's plant.

Waistline Drops In London Styles

LONDON, Eng.—Digby Morton ignores the normal waistline on his suits, drops it by inches to rest on the hips; his jackets start buttoning from the hips downwards for a "slim, youthful line". This means that revers are long and important. Skirts are shorter, none longer than 15½ inches from the ground, and tight. Most London designers agree that skirts this autumn should hobble the wearer, if possible. Their ideas on length vary from 14½ to 17 inches. But they all agree on revers, which are wide and long and sometimes, as in the Amies collection, have pockets from which dangle outsize chiffon handkerchiefs.

Coat pockets are kept as low as possible, almost out of reach, in fact. A shock was provided by Mattli who introduced, without warning, an evening dress with a Turkish trouser effect. This was achieved by draping chiffon over a narrow skirt of grey chenille and silver lace and may be the clue to a new evening line.

Extravagant evening fabrics at Worths' included tulles, chiffons, lace and superb brocades and this house has developed the handkerchief-point dress in chiffon by subtle drapings and exquisite colour mixtures.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Women Owe Husbands Affection and Consideration

DEAR MISS DIX: Not long ago you wrote ten commandments about what a woman has a right to expect from her husband. If a man has to work and provide a home and then be an angel on top of it, will you please state what a husband has a right to expect from his wife?

Dorothy Dix

C. P. D.

ANSWER: A husband has a right to expect love and tenderness and appreciation from his wife. He has a right to expect her to give daily and hourly indication that he is something more than a meal ticket to her. Husbands want to be petted and fussed over and made much of just as much as wives do.

He has a right to expect his wife not to throw away the bait with which she caught him. After marriage he has a right to expect her still to keep herself looking neat and pretty and to treat him with the same consideration that she did before marriage. If she goes slovenly and doesn't think it worth while to dress up for husband and if she becomes peevish and fretful and fault-finding, she is nothing but a cheat who has got goods under false pretences.

Her Part Of Bargai:

A husband has a right to expect his wife to be a good housekeeper and make him a comfortable home. That is her part of the bargain just as much as supporting the home is his.

When a man marries he puts his happiness, his prosperity and his health in his wife's hands. No man can be happy unless he goes home at night to a clean and orderly home that is filled with the spirit of peace and cheerfulness. No man can prosper unless he has a wife who is thrifty and economical and a good manager.

And no man can be healthy unless he is properly fed. Whether a man is able to stand up under the strain of modern business competition and win out or wether he is a physical wreck at 40 depends mainly upon the way his wife keeps house and kind of meals she sets him down to.

A husband has a right to expect his wife to accept marriage with common sense. After all, every girl knowns when she gets married that it is the end of her playtime and it is settling down to the real business of life.

A husband has a rgiht to expect his wife not to offer him up as a sacrifice on the altar of his children. He has a right to expect her to give him as much time and attention and affection as she does to the baby and not to regard him after the first child is born as nothing but a slave to the children.

A man has a right to expect his wife to read and keep abreast of the times, so that she may be a companion to him. He has a right to expect her to be as amiable and pleasant to him as she is to strangers, and to do her best to keep him glad he married her instead of making him wonder why he did it.

DEAR MISS DIX My daughter, a girl of 18, says to me: "Mother, I don't intend to be a coed. I want to go into society, and marry." This from a girl who has just graduated from high school. She has no experience in life, no idea of what she will expect out of it. Should she continue her education she would not loss out socially. In fact, it is her father's plan to have her spend her solid.y time with well-to-do relatives. What can a parent do with such a girl?

A WORRIED MOTHER

ANSWER: Not much, I fear, because she is convinced that she knows all there is to know.

Of course, you might tell her, though she probably wouldn't listen to you, that education does not necessarily unfit a girl for society. In fact, there are those not necessarily that it adds to a girl's charm and attractiveness. There are even those who consider it a necessity and that no matter how pretty a girls is she cannot interest intelligent men unless she can converse fluenty and entertainingly upon cultural subjects.

You might also tell her that on this search for a husband that she is so eager to start upon a good education will be a lamp to guide her feet. For now she is so ignorant that she has no standards by which to judge men, but an education will give her a yardstick by which to measure them.

But, as the old proverb says: "You can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make it drink." You can send a girl to college, but you cannot make her study. And if your daughter does not want to study, it is a waste of time and money to try to force an education upon her.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What does the woman do when she finds she still loves the man she divorced a few years back? If she knows he doesn't exactly dislike her, is there any way in which she can let him know she would like to get him back?

R. D.

ANSWER: This is a case for direct action. Write him and tell him how you feel about it. As he has not remarried, the chances are he still loves you and will be glad to make up.

JUDGE'S EYE-VIEW of a bathing beauty contest. First you pick eight, and then you pick four.

Eyes That Bat .300 Judge Bathing Beauties

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

PALISADES PARK, N.J., — (NEA)—Have you ever wondered how judges at bathing beauty contests pick a winner? I have, so I volunteered my services as a judge to find out.

Before you start drooling all over the newspaper, you must realize that judging bathing beauties is tough work. It's not simply a question of picking the best-looking tomato in the basket. You have to study such commodities as legs, hips, waist, bust, and general conformation. As I said before, it's tough work.

We—two other judges and myself— were appearing at one of the preliminary eliminations in the Mrs. America contest. There were 14 girls—three blondes, two red-heads, seven brunettes and some in between.

We had to pick four who would compete in another elimination to compete for the Mrs. New York City title to compete for the Mrs. America title. It was sort of a quarter-quarter-quarter finals.

The other judges were old hands at this sort of thing. They could look at 14 gals in skimpy bathing suits without batting an eye. My eye batted well over .300 during the evening.

The 14 started parading around the stage. At first, I was so overwhelmed by the enormity of my task that all I could see was a blurry flash of bathing suits and legs. The other judges whispered that we should choose eight before we finally picked the four winners.

"Which eight have you picked?" they asked me

"I haven't even started looking yet," I said.

So they had the girls walk around the stage again, for my benefit. The sense of power was gratifying.

A platinum blonde in a blue velvet bathing suit caught my fancy. Also, a redhead with long hair streaming down her back. And a cute brunette in a two-piece suit. But, outside of those three, I had no favorites.

After all, they all came equipped with the same accessories.

So I decided to compare legs. Which is a nice hobby on a warm summer evening. A platinum blonde in a blue velvet bathing suit caught my fancy. This time, she held it.

The other two judges picked the eight, and then they began parading. It was the same thing all over again. Very boring.

I made a conscious effort to look at their faces, figuring that possibly I could make a selection on that basis. A platinum blonde in a blue velvet bathing suit caught my fancy. Looking at her face I had discovered that her bathing suit was cut lower than the others.

"Which four do you like?" the judges asked.

I waved my hand nonchalantly. 'Let 'em go around again," I commanded. They did

The blonde was number four. The redhead with the queen-sized hair was number six. The brunette in the two-piece job was number 10. I decided those three were in, solid. To pick the one remaining winner out of the other five was difficult. I concentrated on legs again.

As each pair tripped by, I made a mental note. Then, when I decided which pair was the best planned, I looked up, they belonged to a platinum blonde in a blue velvet bathing suit.

"I pick numbers four, six, 10 and—four," I said.

The other judges picked the fourth winner. Fortunately, we all agreed on the first three. Proving that the other judges were human, too.

So you see, judging bathing beauties is a tedious task, one that demands long years of experience. And plenty of red-blooded male intuition.

Latest French Fashions Show Tweed, Slim Silhouette

PARIS — (CP) — Latest Paris collections are featured by the use of rough wool coats, often replacing fur, and the use of jersey in informal frocks.

Bright-colored tweeds are used for classic suits. Skirt and frock outlines are slim, often with side drapery.

Jean Desses uses teddy-bear cloth and long-haired types for cloth overcoats. Small-checked worsted and broadcloth are used for morning and formal suits; these have a variety of cut, but all are tight - waisted with straight skirts.

Principal colors used by Desses are black, anthracite grey, dark olive, brown and duck-head blue.

Marcel Rochas picks the teddy-bear cloth for double-breasted ulsters, coarse two-tone canvas types for heavy coats and exaggerated furry weaves for long, loose jackets. Jersey is used almost exclusively for formals, often in dead-leaf yellow.

Pierre Balmein show tight-waisted tweed suits and jumper suits, cut high to the throat and covered with a fur-banded casual jacket. He also stresses jersey for frocks with fitted bodices and sideway skirt movement. Some are lifted over one hip in a flared line, often revealing a few inches of matching pants

Fath Likes Pleats

Jacques Fath is using wools in place of fur in simple designs. Seven-eights length coats are featured, some swing, others belted. Pleating is general; accordion-pleated overcoats with a pleated contrasting lining are newest for afternoon wear.

Fath's frocks are extra-slim in silhouette, shaded jersey leading for informal numbers, black broadcloth with pleats from the knee for afternoon

Bright tweeds, usually purple, are chosen by Alwynn for well-cut suits with uneven peplum. Sheath broadcloth afternoon frocks have a hip s athe finishing in fan-shaped side drapery, also found in strapless woollen evening gowns.

Bat-Sleeved Jackets

Tweed is also the Jacques Griffe story with bat-sleeved jackets on informal suits drawn into a tight waist over a slender skirt. Bright colors are stressed, mostly raspberry and lime. Evening ensembles are fur-trimmed or bordered with steel embroidery.

Lanvin has fine wool cocktail dresses entirely patterned with cobweb embroidery. Paquin is showing high - waisted slim tailor-made in the popular tweed

Leading colors in all houses are black, steel grey, tobacco shades, bronze green, violet and rich beds. Popular fabrics are specked tweeds, furry woollens, velour cloths, fine broadcloths and plain jerseys.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP)—Well-made, quivering moulds of jelly are the pride and joy of any conscientious housewife.

What's more, if she uses the various fruits as they come at the end of the season she will find herself with plenty of jellies on hand for the winter months.

Home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have drawn on their experience for a few tips on jelly-making which should guarantee any housewife first-rate results.

Jelly should be made on clear days. When made on days when the humidity is high it is not as likely to set.

Another point to remember is that all jelly doesn't set immediately. It may be two or three days before it has set completely.

Selection of Fruit: Use a mixture of slightly under-ripe and ripe fruit. Under-ripe fruit gives pectin and ripe fruit gives good flavor and color.

Rich In Pectin

Late Summer or Fall fruits, rich in pectin: Sour plums, apples, crabapples, grapes and quinces.

Water Required: In pre-cooking fruits to extract their juice for jelly, some water is required. But too much water should not be added since most of this must be boiled off again. This lengthens cooking time, which destroys some of the pectin, darkens the jelly and impairs the flavor.

For fruits such as apples, crabapples, grapes, plums and quinces, add enough water so that it can just be seen through the top layer of fruit. But do not allow the fruit to float.

Use Bag

The Extract Juice: After the fruit and water have been simmered in a covered kettle until fruit is soft and mushy, pour the hot cooked fruit into a moistened jelly bag made of flannel or several thicknesses of cheesecloth. Hang up over a bowl and allow to drip. If desired, the bag may be squeezed; this increases the quantity of juice but the jelly will not be so clear.

Measure the extracted juice accurately in order to determine how much sugar is required. Work with small amounts of extracted juice at one time — not more than eight cups.

Sugar Required: The quantity of sugar required in making jelly is determined by the amount of pectin contained in the fruit. The more pectin present, the more sugar required.

Sugar Content

Unless the juice is exceptionally high in pectin, three-quarters of a cup of sugar to one cup of extracted juice is sufficient. However, for juice extremely high in pectin one cup of sugar to one cup of extracted juice should be used.

To determine the amount of pectin in the juice, first boil the juice, uncovered, in a broad saucepan for three minutes. Remove saucepan from the heat and then test for pectin.

Pectin Test: Measure one teaspoon fruit juice and one teaspoon alcohol (rubbing alcohol may be used) into a cup or small dish. Blend quickly together and let stand 30 seconds. If a jelly-like mass or clot is formed the juice contains sufficient pectin and the sugar may be added. If a clot does not form, boil juice a few minutes longer until pectin test is satisfactory. Then add the sugar.

Teachers' Holiday Spent Studying

GALASHIELS, Selkirkshire, Scotland — (CP) — British teachers can choose among 150 vacation courses during the summer recess, and this year's most popular choice is "wool."

From Aug. 7-11, the Scottish Woollen Technical College at Galashiels will hold the first such course.

Students will attend lectures illustrated by filmstrips, giving pastoral, historical, geograpical, economic and technical aspects of wool from the raw product to the finished textile. A special feature will include lectures on "wool projects in the schools."

The course includes a tour showing the varied weaving processes from the gossamer wool crepes used for evening wear to heavy worsteds and Harris tweeds.

What's Right?

Your next door neighbors occasionally make enough noise to disturb you.

WRONG: Complain to them about it.

RIGHT: Unless it is really unbearable, realize that your family probably disturbs them occasionally, too. Anyway, realize that you can't expect perfect quiet all the time if you have neighbors close by.

Ukraine Culture Said Benefit To Canadians

SASKATOON — (CP) — Canadian artists and composers can learn a lot from Ukrainian design and Ukrainian melodies, says Madame Tetiana Koshetz.

She is touring western Canada to tell local women's groups about Ukrainian culture, continuing a work begun by her husband, the late composer and choir leader, Dr. Alexander Koshetz.

The composer collected more than 2,000 Ukrainian folks songs, some dating back to pagan times. His widow is continuing the search and is discovering that many may be found among folk who came to Canada from the Ukraine many years ago.

Valuable Material

These songs are valuable as material for Canadian composers, she told local women's groups. In the same way, Ukrainian ornamental art—needlework designs and unique patterns on Ukrainian easter eggs—can act as inspirational motifs for Canadian artists.

To record and safekeep these designs and melodies, a Ukrainian cultural educational centre has been established in Winnipeg, with Madame Koshetz in charge of the library. She also conducts summer courses at the Ukrainian youth club in Winnipeg and on occasions conducts massed choirs.

Windsor Girl Chosen Finalist

WINDSOR, Aug. 4 — (CP) — Blonde, 19-year-old Margaret Bradford, of Windsor, has been chosen as a finalist in this year's mail-order Miss Canada beauty contest.

Miss Bradford, who has made a career singing and acting in Southern Ontario, learned Thursday that she had been chosen as a finalist after mailing her picture, vital statistics and qualifications to a judge of the contest in Hamilton.

The Miss Canada contest is sponsored by S. R. Weaver, of Hamilton, who this year decided on a contest by mail after a beauty parade last year that drew small crowds.

Miss Bradford's statistics: Blonde hair, blue eyes, five feet four inches tall, and 111 pounds in weight.

Her waist measures 23 inches, bust 31 inches and hips 34 inches.

She has performed as a singer and actress in London, Ont., Windsor, Stratford, Toronto, Cobourg and Detroit.

6—In Memoriams

PRICE—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. G. Price, who passed away August 3, 1945.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved,
From memory pass away.
—Ever remembered by husband and family.

PRICE—In loving memory of Mrs. George Price, who passed away August 3, 1945.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by her Husband and Family.

YORK—In proud and loving memory of my dear son, Pte. Wilfred York, killed in France, Aug. 1, 1944.
He has gone across the river
To the shores of ever green.
And I long to see his dear face,
But the river flows between.
Some day, some time, my eyes shall see
The face I loved so well,
Some day I will clasp his hand
And never say farewell.
—Sadly missed by his mother.

7—Cards of Thanks

Mrs. A. Price wishes to sincerely thank attending doctors, sisters and staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, the pallbearers, Cleaning Dept., CGE, and the many friends and neighbors who sent flowers, fruit and messages of condolence during her husband's illness and on her bereavement.

3 Swimmers Better Record In Tokyo

TOKYO, Aug. 4 (AP)—Three world swimming records were bettered tonight as a United States team took the edge over Japan in the first day of a dual meet.

The marks were beaten in the 200-metre freestyle by Japan's Hironoshin Furuhashi; in the 1,500-metre freestyle by Ford Konno, Hawaii's Japanese-American ace, and the 300-metre medley relay by the U.S. team.

Konno, a 17-year-old U.S. citizen of Japanese ancestry, won the featured metric mile event by soundly beating two of the biggest names in the business—Yale University's John Marshall, of Australia, and Shiro Hashizume, of Japan.

Konno's unexpected triumph helped the Americans establish their 13 to 8 point lead.

Konno's time was 18 minutes, 47.2 seconds, but two better times are up for consideration. One of the pending marks is held by Furuhashi, the sensational Japanese ace who was scratched from the race. Furuhashi's best mark was 18.19.

In the 200-metre event, Furuhashi's time of 2 minutes 8.2 seconds, better his own long course (50-metre pool) record by two tenths of a second.

The American 300-metre medley trio covered the distance in 3:14.4. That beat the world record of 3:16.9. The new medley mark was set by James Thomas, backstroke; Robert Browner, breaststroke, and Richard Cleveland, freestyle.

US House Scraps Price Curb Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—The House of Representatives today junked its mandatory Wage and Price Curb Bill and started over on the job of writing an economic control measure.

The Mandatory Wake Price Bill—providing for ceilings to go on automatically if living costs rise 5 per cent above the level of June 15—was denounced Thursday by President Truman. He called it an invitation for a five-per-cent rise.

The House threw it out on a standing vote of 172 to 161. The idea had been tentatively approved Thursday 159 to 128.

The action left before the House a controls bill providing only stand-by allocation and priorities powers for the president, authority to requisition war-needed materials, to grant production loans and to curb credits.

This bill, however, was subject to amendment to add wage-price controls.

Bishop's Condition Reported Critical

CHATHAM, Aug. 4—(CP)—The condition of Bishop V. O. Weidler of Kansas City, Mo., ill in hospital here, today was described by doctors as "still critical".

Bishop Weidler suffered a stroke Wednesday while on his way to a conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church at Kitchener, Ont.

OML Head Believes Summons Futile

TORONTO, Aug. 4 — (CP) — W. G. Robertson, general manager of the Ontario Motor League, said today his organization wants to improve safety but does not think it can be done "merely by sending speeders or reckless drivers a summons."

Police recently began patrolling major Ontario highways in "plain-clothes" automobiles which have no police markings. Drivers exceeding the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit are not stopped, but licence numbers are taken and summonses issued.

Mr. Robertson said he believes speeders should be caught and told of the offense at the time and, if the offence is serious, should not be allowed to continue their "merry way."

Suspend Rail Talks Officers At Funeral

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (CP). — Talks aimed at averting a threatened railway strike were suspended today until Monday, to enable the principle negotiators to attend the funeral of Labor Minister Mitchell in Ottawa this afternoon.

Representatives of the International Brotherhoods, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL) and the Brotherhood of Express Employees (CCL) went to Ottawa today.

The two union groups, embracing 125,000 men, Wednesday set Aug. 22 as the strike date if they were unable to reach satisfactory agreement with the railways on their wage-hour demands.

Discussions between the unions and the carriers, however, were carried on Thursday and are scheduled to continue next week.

DUSTY RETREAT — An armored column of US troops, retreating from Chochiwan, kicks up a cloud of dust as it heads along a Korean dirt road. The orderly retreat was made in the face of heavy Red attacks. US Sherman tanks were making a counter-attack east of Chinju.

Plane Has Arrived To Bring Out Victims

HALIFAX, Aug. 4 —(CP)—A Canso from Greenwood, N.S., arrived at Alert Weather Station, 600 miles from the North Pole, late Thursday to fly out the bodies of nine men who lost their lives when a Lancaster crashed there Monday, the RCAF announced today.

The bodies will be flown to Greenwood, where the Lancaster was based, and a mass funeral service will be held there. Later the bodies will be sent to the men's home towns for burial.

2,000 Homes Lost Fire Hits Turkish City

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 4 — (AP)—The entire market district and more than 2,000 homes were reported razed today in a fire which swept through Balikesri, a major military centre in western Turkey.

The Anatolia news agency said the blaze in the city of 40,000 was one of the worst in Turkish history. It started in a fireworks shop and was spread by a high wind.

Two Trucks Collide One Man Is Killed

LISTOWEL, Aug. 4 (CP)—Injured when two trucks collided near Molesworth Thomas McDonald, 50, of Bluevale died last night in hospital.

Bert Young, 41, of Mount Forest, injured in the same crash is in hospital suffering severe scalp lacerations, concussion, chest and knee injuries. His condition is not regarded as serious.

Steeplejack Dies Fell Seventy Feet

KINGSTON, Aug. 4 (CP). — Injured July 27 when he fell 70 feet from the steeple of St Anthony's Roman Catholic Church at Centreville, Robert Ingram of St. Catharines, died today in hospital.

Victor Vacharesse of St. Catharines, who well from the steeple at the same time died last Saturday.

Farm Barn Burned Loss Set At $15,000

WELLAND, Aug. 4 (CP)—Loss was estimated at $15,000 when a barn at the farm of Charles Bissell, Pelham township, was burned Thursday night. Destroyed was new hay valued at $180, 200 bushels of wheat, a registered calf, and an adjoining milk house with cooling equipment.

Lenient To Visitors

CHATHAM, Aug. 4 (CP). — Chatham police have decided to be lenient in treatment with visitors from beyond the boundaries of Kept county who violate traffic regulations. Instead of a ticket, violators will receive a letter notifying them of the offence and suggesting that if they return they be wary.

Named Librarian

GUELPH, Aug. 4 (CP).—John D. Snell of Welland has been appointed Guelph's chief librarian, effective Oct. 1. Now on the staff of the Welland county library, he formerly worked for the public library in London, Ont.

Request For Arms

BERLIN, Aug. 4—(Reuters)—German political leaders and journalists in West Berlin are asking that they be armed to defend themselves against kidnapping attempts by Russian secret police. Possessing firearms is prohibited in Western Germany.

Arabian Oil Line Will Begin Operating By First Of Year

By FRED J. ZUSY.

SIDON, Lebanon — (AP). — Giant steel storage tanks are mushrooming up just south of this ancient Phoenician town to mark the delivery end of a giant strategic oil pipeline.

The American-owned pipeline is 1,067 miles long and 30 to 31 inches in diameter. It cost more than $200,000,000. Oil will start moving through the line the first of next year. The initial rate is planned at 300,000 barrels a day and the flow later may be increased to 500,000 barrels.

The famous "Big Inch" in the United States when completed in 1943 was 1,254 miles long and delivered 300,000 barrels daily through its 24-inch diameter. It now carries natural gas.

The new pipeline will carry the crude oil from the fabulously rich Saudi-Arabian fields in the Persian Gulf area to tankers anchored a half-mile off the Lebanese coast.

Save Long Trip

The line will save ships a 7,000-mile sea volage around the vast Arabian peninsula and through the Suez Canal. It will also save the present 18 cents per barrel canal tone. That is $54,000 a day.

The shortcut by-passing thez Suez Canal was talked about during the Second World War when the US Government granted export permits for the 323,000 tons of steel required at a time when steel was very much in demand at home.

Military strategy and advice played a big part in this decision, debated before Congressional committees.

Some strategists, however, would have vetoed the project, arguing it would be a ripe plum for Soviet picking in event of war. The line, they said, would bei mpossible to defend.

Held Up By War

Construction on the eastern part of the line started in late 1947. The western end was held up by the Palestine War in 1948 and the battle to get steel export permits in Washington.

The tank farm here will have 16 tanks with a capacity of 180,000 barrels each. Five already are completed, with three others more than 50 per cent finished. Work has begun on four others.

Four submarine lines have been laid to anchorages a half-mile off shore in 50 feet of water.

The line is of 30 and 31 inches diameter, the largest ever used for oil movement.

New Communities

New desert communities will be set up at the six pumping stations, 180 miles apart, each with about 20 American families and several hundred Arabs.

The line is so long and so big that the 36,000 horse-power pumping capacity on the eastern end will have to run for two weeks to fill it up for the first time. The line will hold 5,000,000 barrels.

Economists predict total Middle East crude production will exceed 2,000,000 barrels daily by 1953. Total Middle East crude production is already five times what it was in 1945.

Middle East oil is expected to gradually displace the Western Hemisphere oil in European markets.

Six U.S. Jets Based On Island Of Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa, Aug. 4 (AP) —Six United States jets landed on Formosa today. They are the first American air units assigned to the invasion-threatened Chinese Nationalist island.

With them came a group of experts from General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters to survey Formosa's defences and military needs.

Brig.-Gen. Alonson P. Fox, deputy chief of staff of the Far East command, headed the survey party. Gen. MacArthur has promised United States forces will act to prevent a Communist invasion of Formosa.

Almost simultaneously the U.S. Far East air force announced in Tokyo that B-29s bombing North Korea now are based on Okinawa. American air bases on Okinawa are about 700 miles from Korea and the same distance from the Amoy in Red China, logical staging area for a Communist attempt to invade Formosa.

1,000 Workers Given A $15,500 Party

BLACKPOOL, England, Aug. 4 CP)—One thousand Yorkshire mill workers arrived at this coast resort today for a £5,000 ($15,500) party arranged by the man who employs them.

The festivities are a birthday celebration for Theodore Taylor, 100 years old yesterday and still active head of a group of Yorkshire mills.

In an interview, Taylor said he believes the world has come full circle from the day he was 16.

"Then people were talking about the Crimean war and worrying about Russian Imperialism," he said. "He said. "Now they are back worrying about Russia."

Six Weeks Of Dogged Toil Bring Morris To Normal

MORRIS, Man., Aug. 4 (CP).—Six weeks of dogged, heartbreaking toil have brought this southern Manitoba centre, 40 miles south of Winnipeg, from the brink of ruin to the threshold of normality.

The Red River, on its history-making rampage submerged 600 square miles of rich farmland for several weeks in April and May.

All but a handful of the 1,000-odd residents fled. Water was eight to 10 feet deep in the streets.

Everything stopped for Morris. Telephone, railway, telegraph, hospital, food and other services were washed out.

Six weeks ago the routed citizens were coming back. There was little food, only one grocery store in operation, no telephone service, no jobs or wages.

But work, make-do, and the co-operation of volunteer services kept the rehabilitation going forward and almost all of the families are back.

Repairs Rapid

Unsightly piles of interior fixtures have been removed from the streets, where they were thrown to allow structural repairs on business and residential property. Many leaning, crumpled structures have been torn down or moved away. Some have been repaired.

New basements are being poured under homes floated off by the river's force. Potato patches and gardens are beginning to show.

All grocery stores are open. The hotel's safe, once almost floorless, is open. Banking and postal services have been moved into a schoolhouse. The barber has opened shop in his own house.

Damage in the country, as in the town, is still impossible to estimate. Late-maturing crops will be good, given favorable weather.

Debris and dead animals still dot the countryside. Families are living in granaries and tents until homes can be replaced.

The flood is still the main topic of conversation.

"The people are jittery," municipal secretary J. L. Pottinger said. "They can't help it. After a flood in 1948 and again this year they wonder what on earth can be done to prevent a recurrence."

UK Universities Praised For Courses

LONDON, Aug. 4 —(CP)—A party of Canadian professors generally agreed today that British universities and colleges offer outstanding facilities for post-graduate engineering training.

Opportunities for budding engineers in research organizations and industry also were stressed.

"I think we are pretty well agreed," said Professor J. O. Dineen of the University of New Brunswick, "that facilities over here are the kind we would like our Canadian boys to take advantage of."

Dineen is a member of a Canadian delegation now winding up a six-week visit here on the invitation of the British government. The party, which represents the engineering faculties of 11 Canadian universities, visited colleges and industrial institutions in London, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Oxford, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Manchester, Birmingham, Bristol, Rugby, Stratford and Coventry.

Besides Dineen, delegates were L. P. Bonneau of Laval University, Quebec; G. A. Wallace, McGill University, Montreal; H. G. Conn, Queen's University, Kingston; A. E. Cameron, Nova Scotia Technical College; H. Gaudefroy, Ecole Polytechnique, Montreal; Dean A. E. MacDonald, University of Manitoba; C. F. Morrison, University of Toronto; J. W. Porteous, University of Alberta; W. O. Richmond, University of British Columbia; and J. A. Wedgwood, University of Saskatchewan.

PANAMA CANAL

For canal rights in perpetuity, the United States paid Panama $10,000,000, and agreed to pay $250,000 (later $430,000) each year.

BATTLE LULL — First Cavalry Division's Sgt. James Grant of Des Moines, Ia., rolls a cigarette as his buddies get a few hours needed rest in pup tents set up in Kumchon schoolyard. GI's have withdrawn from Kumchon in face of major North Korean thrust.

2 Pupils Get Scholarships

SUDBURY, Aug. 4 — (CP) — The W. E. Mason Foundation today announced the award of $400 scholarships to two pupils in Sudbury district elementary schools.

They are Georgina Crawford, 15, of Skead, 12 miles northeast of here, and Jeannine St. German 12, of St. Charles, 38 miles southeast.

The scholarships are the first of nine offered this year for the first time by directors of the foundation set up by the late W. E. Mason, publisher of the Sudbury Daily Star. Mr. Mason died in 1948.

The Foundation has made grants for construction of an addition to Knox Presbyterian Church here, a $31,000 wading pool in a Sudbury Park and part of a section of the new eight-storey Sudbury General Hospital

Burgoyne Funeral To Be Held Saturday

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 4 — (CP)—The funeral of Maj. Henry Bartlett Burgokyne will be held at 2.30 Saturday from his home at 25 Bellevue Terrace. Services at St. Thomas' Anglican Church will be at 3 p.m.

Maj. Burgoyne, president and managing director of the St. Catharines Standard and managing director of radio station CKTB, died Thursday at his summer home near Bobcaygeon. He was 65.

Injuries Prove Fatal Woman Hurt In Crash

CHATHAM, Aug. 4 (CP)—Mrs. Emma Dubs, 69, of Essex, died in hospital Thursday night of injuries suffered when a car in which she was a passenger was struck by a loaded auto transport 10 miles east of here.

Mrs. Mary Skinner, 65, driver of the car, and Mrs. Perry Ellis, both of Dresden, escaped injury. Gerald Farslow, driver of the transport, and his wife escaped injury.

Finds Prejudice Handicap Of Deaf People

WINDSOR, Aug. 4 (CP). —The greatest handicap of deaf persons is not deafness itself, but prejudice and misunderstandings R. E. McBrien, secretary of the Ontario Association of the Deaf said Thursday night.

He told the opening meeting of the association's biennial convention that Ontario's deaf citizens, organized under the Ontario association of the deaf since 1866, find it necessary to band together to attain their objectives.

Using finger spelling and hand signs to address the delegates, from across Ontario and from nearby Michigan districts, Mr. McBrien said that present friendly relations between deaf organizations in Canada and the United States may some day draw them together into one unit.

He said the OAD is continuing its efforts to obtain reforms at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville to have finger spelling and signs used by teachers in addition to the present system of speech and lip reading.

A review of education methods for the deaf was given by Edmund B. Boatner, superintendent of the American School for the Deaf at West Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Boatner opposed a present tendency to appoint persons as heads of schools who have no training in teaching the deaf.

Language is more important than speech, he said. Knowledge of languages enables a child to read and write and opens the door to all the world's knowledge.

U.S. Leaders Urge Arming Japs Again

Congress Anxious To Have Reserve If Communists Strike

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 — (AP) — Bipartisan demands were being voiced in Congress today for arming Germans and Japanese to defend themselves against possible Communist attack.

Senator Warren Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) proposed voluntary enlistment of Japanese in the United States armed forces.

Senator Richard Russel (Dem Gam.) and Henry Cabot Lodge (Rep. Mass.) suggested, instead, that the U.S. ask the United Nations to start formation of an international police force with German and Japanese units.

Magnuson asked Gen. Douglas MacArthur by cable to say whether the proposal for voluntary enlistment of Japanese in the U.S. armed forces would be practical.

Magnuson told a reporter he thinks such a course would circumvent the provision of the Japanese constitution which bars that country from forming an army.

With the withdrawal of American occupation forces from Japan for the Korea fighting, Magnuson said steps should be taken at once to put in uniform as many Japanese as want to serve in defence of their homeland.

Need Pool

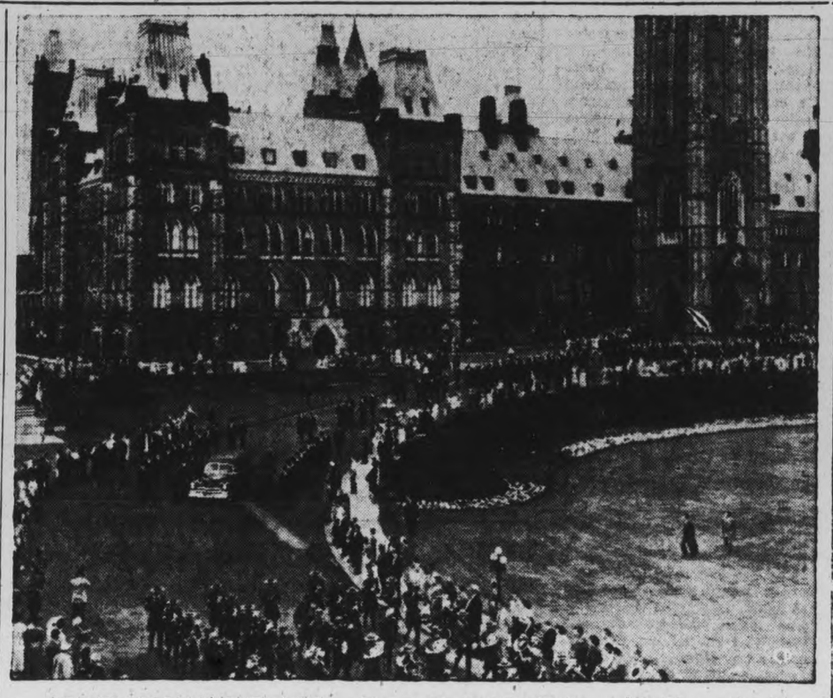
"We would have a pool of at least a half-million trained men to draw from," he observed.

Under the Magnuson proposal, Japanese who enlisted would be paid up to half the rate of American troops. They would not be made eligible either for American citizenship or for veterans' benefits.

The Washington Senator said chairman Millard Tydings (Dem. Md.) had promised an early hearing by the Senate armed services committee on the proposal.

Senator Lodge, a foreign relations committee menibe., told a reporter he doesn't like the idea of creating a foreign legion within the American armed forces.

"The Communists would say we were hiring mercenaries to fight our battles," he said. "It would be much better if some way could be found to form an international police force into which German and Japanese units could be integrated."



LEAVES PARLIAMENT HILL — The second state funeral in less than two weeks was held Friday in Ottawa when Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell was buried. Here the funeral procession, led by the RCMP band, moves off from the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings. Members of the cabinet were honorary pallbearers. A state funeral, at which the labor minister was an honorary pallbearer, was held last week for former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Try To Murder Tito Diplomat

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 5 (AP) —Five armed men attempted Friday night to murder a Yugoslav diplomat on the Vienna-Belgrade express, the Austrian interior ministry announced today.

The men—identified as anti-Tito refugees from Yugoslavia — broke into the compartment of Vlara Mocnik, a commercial attache of the Yugoslav foreign ministry en route from Vienna to Belgrade.

As they attacked Mocnik with knives near Werndoffin, Southern Austria, the Yugoslav pulled the emergency cord of the train. An Austrian customs official and two conductors forced the attackers into a compartment. They were arrested by police at the next station.

Texan Pulled Out Channel Swim Short

DOVER, England, Aug. 5 — (AP) — Roy Sutter, 31, first swimmer to attempt the English Channel this summer, gave up early today after 90 minutes in the water.

Sutter, a Texan, developed a cramp in his leg, was picked up by his escorting boat and brought into Dover.

Sutter started out from Cap Gris Nez, France, at 12:57 a.m (7:57 p.m., EDT, Friday). The professional swimming instructor had expected to make the corssing in 18 hours.

Conditions for the swim were favorable with almost no wind.

Lack Of Dollars Puts Kink In Wheat Pact

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP)—Meagre wheat buying by dollar-shy countries has put a kink in the workings of the multi-nation wheat pact, Canada's pet international project.

The 42-nation agreement was to have sold 525,000,000 bushels during the first year of its operations ended Aug. 1, but preliminary figures indicate total sales may fall far short of that target.

Figures released by the Bureau of Statistics covering the period up to July 14 show sales total 420,000,000 bushels—a sharp drop from what was expected. A final estimate is expected in the next few weeks.

Meanwhile, preliminary figures show that Canada, which was expected to sell 205,000,000 bushels, actually disposed of 180,000,000 bushels.

U.S. Hit Too

The United States, the biggest supplier which was to have had guaranteed markets for 235,800,000 bushels, actually sold only 156,000,000.

The other main suppliers, Australia and France, fared better Australia had a quota of 3,344,000 and sold 3,307,000.

A big difficulty in the agreement was that sterling-area countries which agreed to take a guaranteed quantity were unable to take full delivery because of lack of dollars.

West Germany, which was to have taken delivery of 66,000,000 bushels purchased only 31,600,000 up to July 14. Italy, another Sterling-area country, which was to have purchased 40,400,000 bushels actually took only 10,600,000.

The biggest drop was shown by Brazil. It purchased only 78,000 bushels of its 13,200,000 quota.

US Marine Plane Crashes With Secret Explosives

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 5—(AP)— United States Marine transport plane, bound for the west coast with a load of secret explosives, crashed in heavy fog here Friday night and virtually disintegrated after all six crew members sprinted to safety. The plane, a twin-engine C-46, was coming in for an instrument landing when power failure killed one engine. The craft plummeted earthward and crashed on its belly in a muddy field just east of Tinker Air Force base.

The dead engine burst into flames as the crew scampered for cover. Within seconds the flames touched off an explosion that shook the countryside for miles around.

The craft was coming in for a fuel stop en route from Cherry Point, N.C., to Moffett Field, Calif.

The explosions and fire flashes attracted thousands of Oklahoma City residents from their beds to the scene before road blocks could be set up.

Explosions Colorful

With explosions continuing for three hours, fire fighters did not attempt to come near. Reporters, photographers and spectators were held behind ropes. No pictures—not even by the air force—were allowed.

Crew members, who escaped with only a severe jolting, were not allowed to talk with reporters.

Within 30 minutes after the crash about 25 explosions had shattered the crippled transport.

Police estimated upwards of 5,000 automobiles jammed the area, despite continued explosions and warnings of danger.

The night shift at the giant Tinker maintenance base was jolted from itss work and plant operations halted temporarily.

Four Injured In Plant Blast

COOKSVILLLE, Aug. 5— An explosion rocked the T. W. Hand Fireworks Co. here Friday and sent four persons to hospital.

All four were manufacturing 'bangos"—small balls which explode when thrown to the ground —when the explosion ripped through the torepdo cap section of the factory.

The injured were: Ann Maritain, 18, and her sister, Emma, 17, both of Cooksville; Mrs. Arthur Spencer, 27, of Dixie, and Alex McNeil, 26, of Brampton, foreman of torpedo cap room.

The blast blew out windows, but no fire followed the explosion. Damage was estimated at less than $300.

Most seriously injured was Mrs. Spencer. Both her legs were broken and she received multiple burns on the face and body. The other three were burned about the face and body. They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto.

Cause of the explosion is unknown. "'We were working in the cap room when some one spilled a load of pellets," said Emma Maritain. "We started to pick them up and that's all I remember."

Prayers, Rifle Practice Urged For Population

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 5. (AP) — It's "better to be a live sinner than a dead saint", says Dr. E. C. Vance, president of the University of Tampa. He suggests churchgoers supplement their prayers with a little rifle practice.

World conditions are pretty bad and every man, woman and child in the United Nations should be taught the use of firearms and how to engage in civil defence and guerrilla warfare, he says.

He expressed his views in a letter asking that his name be withdrawn from supporters of the United World Federalists, a group which seeks to set up a world government through the United Nations.

"I believe we should have total preparedness based on the laws of the jungle — that we should learn every art and science of killing," states the letter and made public Friday.

Elizabeth's Second Child Likely Born In Week's Time

LONDON, Aug. 5—(Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth's second child, third in succession to the British throne, may be born in a week's time, Buckingham Palace sources said today.

Nurse Helen Rowe, the slim midwife, who is nearly 60, is expected at Clarence House Monday. She attended the November 1948 birth of Prince Charles, first-born of the Duke of Edinburgh and the Princess. At that time her arrival anticipated the birth by one week.

Princess Elizabeth waits for the birth in a simply furnished room with high windows on the second floor. She takes exercise in the quiet gardens, where she is visited by Queen Elizabeth and her sister, Princess Margaret.

The Duke has leave from the Navy for the event.

Medical equipment for use in any emergency will be taken to Clarence House when the birth is imminent. With Gynaecologist Sir William Gilliatt will be the Royal Family's doctor, Sir John Weir.

Prince Charles has been prepared for the arrival of a brother or sister by his nurse, Helen Lightbody. His baby carriage has been put aside for the new baby and Charles transferred to a go-cart for his outings.

The Duke of Edinburgh has told friends he hopes for a daughter. Anne is said to be a favorite name should the wish come true.

The new baby will rank in succession to the throne after Princess Elizabeth and Prince Charles, but before Princess Margaret.

Much of the layette will be that prepared for the birth of Prince Charles. But the new baby also will have new clothes knitted by Queen Mary and other members of the Royal Family.

New Threat Posed For UN Force

Big Communist Drive Ready To Start, Use Crack Divisions

TOKYO, Aug. 5—(AP)—North Korean forces punched Saturday across the Naktong river, new United States defence "line of no retreat."

The Eighth Army said in a communique the crossing was made "east and southeast of Sangju." Sangju is near the northwest corner of the American defence box.

There was no word on the size of the force.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson reported from the front that the Communist crossing of the Naktong was made without opposition. He said the Red troops apparently began moving across the river after enemy patrols had probed the area.

Planned Retreat

The crossings were made in the area manned by South Koreans, they had withdrawn by plan, Erickson said to a ridge and mountain pass line.

Farther to the east, the South Koreans withdrew on orders of Lt.-Gen. Walton H. Walker to Odam and Simhung, about five miles south of the Naktong river.

The crossing posed a third major threat to Allied defence forces. The Korean Reds were reported to have three divisions massed for a strike across the Naktong near Waegwan, south of Sangju and only 15 miles from the U.S. central communications centre of Taegu.

Far to the south, the Reds were massing four crack divisions east of Chinju for the drive on Pusan, U.S. supply port only 35 miles away.

In the central sector American planes blasted a large enemy armored force one-half mile west of the Naktong. AP correspondent Leif Erickson said the U.S. planes knocked out four of five tanks moving northeast toward Waegan and pounded Red artillery, trucks and troops.

American artillery also hurled shells into the convoy.

Attack At Hand

The big Communist offensive, likely to hit at two or more points simultaneously, appeared at hand.

A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters said that when the Reds began moving their forces in daylight on exposed roads it would signal the nearness of their offensive.

For the last few days they had concealed their movements. Now they were coming into the open.

MacArthur's headquarters reported the sinking Friday of a 10,000-ton North Korean transport at Inchon, the port of Seoul.

Cashier Prefers Death To Pen

MORRIS, Ill., Aug. 5. (AP) —A small town bank cashier who killed himself 10 days ago and whose accounts later were discovered to be short $186,000 preferred death to a prison sentence.

The choice by the bank cashier, Wendell Dirst, 57, and the disclosure that he "lost most of the money at the tracks," were revealed in a note read at an inquest into his death Friday.

Dirst, cashier of the Farmers First National Bank of nearby Minooka, killed himself with a shotgun July 27 while alone in the bank.

The note left by Dirst to his wife, Jane, said he believed his family "would just as soon see me in the cemetery as the prison. It must be one or the other."

Dirst was one of the leading citizens of Minooka, a community of about 500 in northeastern Illinois.

No Paper Monday

The Examiner will not publish on Monday, Civic Holiday. Readers will find a double portion of comics in today's issue.

Snowballs In August

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Aug. 5—(AP)—The neighbors examined their thermometers (which registered about 90) and looked again at the scene. Yes, they were right: the Mahajfey kids were having a snowball fight. Bruce, 10, and Bill, 12, made the snowballs last winter and preserved them in their mother's deep freeze.

Steel Workers In Windsor Accept Offer

WINDSOR, Aug. 5—(CP)—A union spokesman for Local 2471 United Steelworkers of America, C.I.O. today announced that settlement of the differences between the local and Canadian Steel Corporation Limited has been reached with a reduction in the work week and an 11 cent wage increase retroactive to May 1.

The union local staged an unauthorized walkout two weeks ago to add force to its demands for a 12-cent increase and a 40-hour week as well as several other concessions.

Plant chairman Arthur Gladstone claimed the issues were settled on the basis of an 11-cent an hour increase "across the board," retroactive to May 1 and a 42½ hour week.

One extra paid holiday was granted the union to bring the total to seven per year and three weeks vacation with pay for 25 year men or over was agreed to by the company.

Bees Bungle A Second Time

GUELPH, Aug. 5 (CP)—The bees have bumbled again.

Last week it was found that through their failure to spread pollen, yields of apples, pears, plums and peaches in Ontario will be down as much as one-third in comparison with last year.

Today, the Ontario Agricultural College announced a survey of the province shows average production of honey will be less than half of normal.

The reason: bad weather kept the bees from working, caused a lack of suitable clovers.

Wilgress Returning For Talks In Canada

LONDON, Aug. 5 —(CP)—L. Dana Wilgress will leave by air Sunday night for a two-week visit in Canada.

Though the trip has been planned for some time, it will be given official urgency by the decision of the North Atlantic Treaty powers to accelerate their build-up of military forces against aggression.

Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner in London, is a member of the Atlantic Pact's Council of Deputies.

In a communique issued Friday night the deputies said they were adjourning their meeting, which began here July 25, to speed home and impress upon their governments the need of new instructions. They will be gone 18 days.

Russia Threatening Veto If Decision Taken Without Red China, Korea

Malik Digging Out All His Old Stalls To Tie Up U.N. Council; Members Determined To Block His Efforts

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug. 5—(AP)—Russia climaxed manoeuvres designed to keep the United Nations Security Council from condemning North Korean aggression by threatening Friday to veto any decision taken without Communist China and North Korea present. Soviet delegate Jakob A. Malik, who ended a seven-month boycott of the United Nations to take over the council presidency Aug. 1, introduced a resolution calling for a cease-fire, the withdrawal of "foreign" troops, and the presence of two Asiatic Communist states.

U.S. delegate Warren R. Austin assailed Malik's move as "irregular conduct."

Malik fought a delaying, procedural action since he returned to the Council Tuesday to prevent a debate and vote on a U.S. resolution condemning North Korean aggression and asking members to help localize the conflict.

Austin was joined by Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb in maintaining that only the U.N.-recognized Republic of Korea (South Korea) belong to the Council table.

To Reject Proposals

They made it clear the Russian proposals would be rejected by a majority when the Council resumes its sessions next Tuesday afternoon after a week-end recess.

The American representative told reporters after the meeting the Council "has a way to put a stop to these cunning devices of obstruction—the kind of under-this-shell now, under-that-shell then, game that is being played.

He did not say what it was.

Russia's Malik has made no overt move so far, however, to set aside the Council's decision of June and July calling for a cease fire, labelling Communist North Korea the aggressor and setting up a U.N. fighting force, flying the international body's flag, under command of Gen. MacArthur.

Malik has said only the actions were illegal, a term he also applied to the defeats the council has given him since he was president.

Japanese Swimmer Sets World Record

TOKYO, Aug. 5 (AP)—Hironoshin Furuhashi, the Japanese paddle wheel, humbled Australia's John Marshall and the United States Jimmy McLane in setting a world's swimming record tonight in the 400 metre freestyle.

But the United States team clinched its international meet with Japan, with one day yet to go. The Americans swept two races and won a relay to pile up a 31-11 lead—only a half point away from clear victory.

Furuhashi won the featured race 10 yards ahead of McLane. The Japanese ace churned the distance in four minutes 33.2 seconds clipping 1.4 seconds from his own accepted world mark.

Marshall finished fourth. Ford Konno, 17-year-old Japanese-American from Hawaii was third.

Asked To Leave Cohen Hurt By Police Order

CHICAGO, Aug. 5—(AP) — Gambler Mickey Cohen, 36, presumably was on his way back to Los Angeles today, his homecoming visit to Chicago cut short by police.

Cohen was in Chicago only five days but he would be glad to leave his home town. He expressed dissatisfaction at the brusque welcome by police who called him an "undesirable," and said "we don't want any gang murders here that we have no business with. We have enough trouble with our own murders. Take your business back to Los Angeles."

Cohen, target of gang guns and bombs in Los Angeles, was held by police for more than 12 hours. With him in custody was John Stompanato, 34, his travelling companion. Both were released Friday after police were unable to find any charge to place against them.

Chiang Plans Fight For Quemoy

TAPEI, Formosa, Aug. 5—(AP) —Chinese Nationalists said today they would fight for Quemoy if the Chinese Reds try to invade the 50-square-mile island across the strait from Formosa.

Shen Chang-huan, government spokesman, denied reports that Gen. MacArthur had recommended the Nationalists abandon the island.

The strait is patrolled by the U.S. Seventh Fleet to prevent an invasion of Formosa. But Quemoy, in Chinese Red territorial waters, is outside the U.S. Navy patrol zone.

Raving Maniac Flees Recaptured In House

QUEBEC, Aug. 5 (CP)—Provincial police Friday night confirmed a report that a "raving maniac" escaped briefly from an ambulance taking him from Montreal to Quebec's St. Michel Archange Hospital and was then recaptured.

Provincial police said they could not divulge the patient's name but an unofficial report here said that the man, about 22 and heavy-set, was originally held for a crime.

According to a report the mental patient entered a house occupied by the families of Antonio Legare and Claude Paquet at Ste Foy, on the outskirts of the city, before finally being brought under control by provincial police and placed in the ambulance.

UK Rearmament Believed Most Costly Ever Tried

By ROBERT D. BROWN

LONDON, Aug. 5 (Reuters)—Defense production will be doubled under Britain's new rearmament program.

Authoritative quarters say it is the most expensive rearmament plan, proportionate to national resources, ever attempted by any country.

It will call for big reorganization in industry, particularly in the engineering trades.

Engineering has been a leading dollar-earner and has also been producing equipment vitally needed for expansion of British industry. Diversion of its resources to defense will reduce its dollar-earning capacity and interfere with the planned expansion of other production.

The capital investment program will be cut and there will be an immediate effect on consumption.

The man in the street will find some articles becoming scarce again. Some luxuries may disappear because their production is stopped; other goods may be diverted to help keep export earnings up.

Experts are working out the plan's implications, but developments will depend largely on the scale of U.S. help.

The fundamental basis is that it is for peacetime defence, not for prosecution of a war. This ruled out the use of drastic powers for requisitioning plants or directing labor. For that reason the £3,400,000,000 is believed to be Britain's highest possible contribution without affecting morale at home or reputation abroad.

Canadian Destroyers Escorting Troopships

TOKYO, Aug. 5—(AP)—Three Canadian destroyers operating in Korean waters have been assigned to duty escorting American troopships to a South Korean port.

The Canadian destroyers have not struck yet against the North Korean Communists.

The Canadian contribution to United Nations sea forces are the destroyers Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan.

Three Men Held After Man Badly Beaten Up

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 5 — (ENS)—Three men are in custody in Cobourg following a fracas about half way between Hoard's Station and Campbellford on the Stirling Highway on Thursday night, when Nicholas Syopatal, an employee of a shoe repair shop in Belleville, was beaten and robbed of about $160 by three men.

The three being held are Ronald Elliott, of Belleville, Garth Badgley, of Canifton, and Howard Sandford, of Belleville. The three are charged with robbery with violence.

Auctioneer Ray Williams was driving to Campbellford to meet the 10 p.m. train when three men stepped out in front of his car and wanted him to drive them to Belleville. A little further down the road, Mr. Williams, who had refused to stop, noticed another man staggering and apparently in a dazed condition. Mr. Williams did not stop for the three men, but hurried to Campbellford and notified Chief George H. Hardy, who in turn notified the Belleville detachment of the Provincial Police.

He then phoned a store in Hoards Station to get further information and was informed that Ontario Provincial Constable Ray Johnson, in company with his father, Frank Johnson, had just left the store for Stirling. He phoned Stirling and had the cruiser stopped.

Retraces Journey

After receiving the message, Constable Johnson retraced his path, stopping each car and investigating it, until he finally came to a Campbellford taxi, with the three men he was looking for in the back seat. After questioning the men, he arrested them and took them to Campbellford where they were lodged in jail overnight.

Chief Hardy, together with Johnson and Constable Christie, of the Brighton detachment of the OPP, searched the area for the man who had been beaten, but after several hours had to give up the search.

Found Next Day

On Friday morning, a motorist picked up a man later identified as Nicholas Syopatal, of Belleville, and notified police of his condition. The motorist has not yet been identified.

Syopatal, who was taken to Belleville hospital, was reported to be in "fair" condition today, and as near as the police can make out, he was robbed of about $160.

Constable Don Erskin, who was assigned to the case, removed the three men to jail in Cobourg on Friday, where they will face charges of robbery with violence.

Fights Police Speed Traps Lamport Gets Summons

TORONTO, Aug. 5—Con. Lamport, who this week started a one-man campaign against provincial police methods of enforcing traffic laws, has paid at Newmarket court a fine of $12 and costs for speeding.

He was not in the car at the time, Mr. Lamport said. Driving was an employee who had been caught in a speed trap near Jackson's Point. The charge was that the Lamport car was travelling 41 mph in a 30-mile zone.

The fine had nothing to do with his complaints about OPP methods on highways in the Toronto area, the controller said. He was against underhand methods of apprehending speeders before, and still was.

Con. Lamport said that while he had paid the fine, he questioned the authority of the 30-mile limit outside Jackson's Point, especially since he contended, it was not marked.

PC Harris of Sutton said his force used an electrically operated speed trap on the Dalton road between Sutton and Jackson's Point. Only drivers doing 40 miles an hour or more were summonsed, he said.

Admit Monday Surgical Cases

The first surgical operation to be performed at the new Civic Hospital will take place on Tuesday, six days after the hospital opened. Patients entering hospital for operations are usually admitted the day before, and Monday will be the first day for admissions for surgical cases.

The hospital admitted its first patient on Wednesday, when the maternity department opened, and by Friday afternoon four women were in the hospital and two babies had been born there.

The new hospital has been running smoothly since it opened, John Hornal, superintendent, reports and all is ready for surgical patients on Monday.

"When we get well under way with the new surgical cases, we will transfer the others," Mr. Hornal said, and medical and other patients will not be admitted for several days.

Obituary

MRS. HAROLD LEGROW

After a sudden illness Mrs. Harold Legrow died suddenly Thursday at her residence, 175 Lock St.

Mrs. Legrow was born and educated in Peterborough and has lived here all her life. She was the daughter of the late William Geary and Catherine McGarrity.

Left are two sons—John and Harold, Jr., of Peterborough; three daughters, Mrs. Leo McCormick (Isobel); Mrs. Devlin (Teresa), and Evelyn, all of Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. Leonard Henry (Mamie) and Mrs. Duke Campbell (Myria), and three brothers, John, Joseph and George Geary, all of Toronto.

Mrs. Legrow was a member of Sacred Heart Church, the Catholic Women's League and the Altar Society.

The funeral will be from 175 Lock St. for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Monday in Sacred Heart Church. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Albania Protests

LONDON, Aug. 5 (Reuters)—Albania today protested to the United Nations that armed Greek provocations allegedly made during July "with the aim of inciting an armed conflict in the Balkans and in Europe." The official Albanian news agency said the protest named five alleged provocations between July 6-29.

Air Mail Forms To Be Changed

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 (CP).—Canada's 10-cent air mail letter-form, used for overseas correspondence, has had its face lifted.

The postoffice said Friday that the new form will be more attractive than the old. It will carry a picturesque stamp, never used before, showing a North Star aircraft flying over a small hamlet on a Canadian rivershore.

"We felt that the old form was rather too plain," a postoffice official said, "and as supplies were becoming exhausted we adopted a more attractive design for the next issue."

The new air mail forms are being printed in Toronto and will be on sale almost any day now. More than 6,000,000 are sold in Canada every year. They are sent to the United Kingdom, Northern Ireland, the Irish Republic and other places where the quarter-ounce air mail rate is recognized.

An ordinary letter enclosed in an envelope requires a 15-cent stamp for overseas delivery.

B-29s lashed Seoul for the second straight day, leaving the railroad yards flaming and shrouded in smoke. The medium bombers plastered the rail centre with 100 tons of bombs, 20 tons more than were dropped Friday.

The next big Communist drive was expected in the critical southern sector east of Chinju. There the Reds hurled four probing assaults Thursday and Friday but were repulsed with "heavy losses."

4 Crack Divisions

The Reds were reported massing four crack divisions for the big push in the southern sector. They were only 35 miles from Pusan, vital U.S. supply port.

"The enemy may launch an attack east of Chinju today," the U.S. Eighth Army said in a communique.

The Communists, evidently in some strength, continued to feel out the defences east of Chinju. Although the Eighth Army communique reported a "quiet" front Friday, a spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said:

The 35th regimental combat team of the U.S. 25th division hurled back two attacks between Chinju and Masan with "heavy losses" Friday night. This is in the southern sector, where two previous Red attacks Thursday cost the Northern Koreans an estimated 1,200 casualties.

Elements of the 15th Red division were moving toward the southern front to join the 1st, 4th and 6th North Korean divisions, already identified there.

MacArthur's briefing officers also reported—as had Eighth Army headquarters—a considerable concentration of Red forces on the central sector, east of Kumchon. However, MacArthur's spokesman said the enemy could bunch three divisions for a frontal attack aimed at Taegu, U.S. supply and communications centre.

May Try Two Attacks

He said the Reds "may consider themselves strong enough to try both (including the drive toward Pusan in the south) attacks at once."

Lack of major ground action contrasted sharply Friday to the wide-spread strikes of Allied warplanes.

They swarmed over Red supply lines and troops concentrations in the largest number of sorties of the war — more than 550.

A prime target was Chinju, springboard for the Reds' southern offensive and 85 air miles west of Pusan. Using napalm (jellied gasoline) bombs, Allied pilots struck undamaged sectors of the city, suspecting hiding places for tanks and guns.

Unchallenged by enemy aircraft, fighter planes of the Air Force, US Marines and Australians flew 452 sorties in attacks on troop concentrations, communications lines and gun positions.

On the southern front, the Eighth Army communique said patrols were in continuous contact with the enemy.

Observed Massing

AP Correspondent Leif Erickson reported the Communists were observed massing in that area Friday. He said the first objective of a Red drive probably would be high ground near Masan, only 27 "Should that fall, the American defenders would be pushed back to a point where Pusan would be miles west of Pusan.

Norwood Stage Transformed For Jamboree

NORWOOD, Aug. 5—(ENS)—The curtain in the Norwood town hall was raised on Thursday evening for an amateur night in the form of Uncle Ezry's Hayloft Jamboree.

For two hours the capacity crowd was treated to entertainment of a variety and quality not often attained by a small amateur group.

The platform was decorated with bales of hay, lanterns, bridles, pitch forks and horse collars, which gave the impression of a country barn. The program opened with a few words from the master of ceremonies, Melville Hamblin, impersonating Joe Kelly. All through the program old folk songs were sung and jokes were told.

The program followed with a square dance. Those taking part were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clements, Mr. Raymond Rodgers and Mrs. William Garden Jr.

The Hillbilly three piece orchestra, Mrs. Walter Rodgers, Mr. Harry and Harold Fife and the caller was Mr. Arthur Richardson.

Those taking part in the program were as follows: Trunk Cleveland as Hiram Hicks, Miss Toots Rogers as Lulu Belle, Master John Scott as Little Buckaroo, the Misses Shirley Coughlin and Vera Mathews as Highland Sweethearts, Mrs. Betty Andrews as Gracie Fields, the four Quiz Kids —Margaret Duncanson, Patricia Cleveland, John Stewart and Marshal Long, Raymond Rodgers as Eddie Allan, Robert J. Hill (Havelock,) Blackstone, Clarence Logan, a boy from Hawaii, Albert Thistlethwaite, Uncle Ezry, Thomas Chappell, Lonesome Cowboy, Golden Andrews, Jolly Jim, Mrs. Ward (Dartford) Kentucky Kate, Leslie Cameron, Josia Uterli.

The winner was chosen by actually casting votes. Those buying tickets before the show were given two votes, while one to those purchasing tickets at the door. Tickets were placed in boxes bearing contestants names. Then members of the audience were chosen to count the votes.

First prize, Mrs. Betty Andrews received a red ribbon and $10 cash; second prize, Misses Shirley Coughlin and Vera Mathews, white ribbon and $7.50 cash; third prize, Raymond Rodgers, blue ribbon and $5.00.

The play was directed by Miss Jane O'Neill of Kansas City, Kansas who reported the talent was exceptionally good and had great variety.

The evening closed with an old fashioned square dance.

Huckleberry Day On Farm Market

So many six-quart baskets of huckleberries turned up on the local market this morning, it could have been Huckleberry Day.

There was Gordon Scott of Arden with 60 baskets at $2.50 the basket or 50c a quart F. Casselman of Campbellford brought 30 to 35 baskets at the same prices and altogether there must have been 12 or 15 blueberry stands this morning.

The quality of the berries appeared to be excellent, but it was the quantity of this wild fruit that was surprising.

The price was exactly what the local stores have been quoting all week.

New honey was two pounds for 45 cents and red raspberries were 20 cents t pint box.

Crying Wolf

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 5 (AP)—An Albanian Communist leader accused Yugoslav Premier Tito today of sending spies, saboteurs and assassins into Albania in an effort to take over the country. Mehmet Shebu secretary of the central committee of the Albanian Labor party (Communist) made the charges in the Cominform weekly, published in Bucharest yesterday and distributed here today.

2 Women Suffer Minor Injuries

Two women required medical attention late Friday night when two cars collided on Highway 28, half a mile south of Lakefield.

Mrs. Thomas Crawford, Toronto a passenger in the car driven by her husband, is in Civic Hospital recovering from shock and a severe shaking up. It is not believed she has any injuries.

Mrs. Clarence A. Kearnes, Simcoe St., a passenger in the other car, driven by her husband, was treated for head injuries and a cut on one leg.

Dr. H. T. Gastle attended both women.

Thomas Crawford was going south on No. 28 when he slowed down at the bend known as the Maples. His car was overtaken by the Kearnes vehicle.

Crawford's car received about $100 damage, all to the rear end. Kearnes' vehicle was damaged to the extent of $300.

Provincial Constables Harold Armstrong and Russell Pollard investigated.

Institute For Blind Opens Tuck Shop

The tuck shop at the new Civic Hospital, which is being operated by Peterborough branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, is already set up and ready for customers.

Miss Shirley Butcher, a life-long resident of Peterborough, is in charge of the shop, situated in the hospital lobby.

It is well set up with attractive equipment and chocolate bars, cigarets and magazines are sold there. It is not, however, a food store.

This is the only venture of its kind to be carried out by the Institute in Peterborough and hopes are running high that it will be well patronized by those visiting friends in hospital.

Council Backs Plan For Welfare Group

GENEVA, Aug. 5—(Reuters)—The Social committee of the United Nations Economic and Social Council Friday approved a plan to establish a permanent children's welfare organization.

The plan, put forward by the United States, France, India, Iran and Brazil, will continue the United Nations' international children's emergency fund, changing its name from "emergency" to "endowment" fund.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 9 to 0 with Britain, Canada, Australia, Norway, Peru and Pakistan abstaining.

Britain Orders 3,000 Jet Planes

LONDON, Aug. 5—(AP)—The pro-labor Daily Herald says today Britain has placed orders for 3,000 jet planes to reinforce its fighter command.

Contracts for the planes were said to have been sent out Friday to the De Haviland and Gloster airplane companies. The planes are expected to cost £30,000,000 ($135,000,000).

The Herald says the jets, meteors and vampires, will be reserves for front-line fighter squadrons. The contracts were placed by the supply ministery. Existing factory facilities are expected to be adequate for filling the order.

Four types of meteors will be built, the paper adds. They will be the meteor eight, a standard fighter; a meteor photographic reconnaissance type; a nighter-reconnaissance type; and the new radar-equipped night fighter, which will use radar to help it seek out its targets.

Against Santa Claus Force Pastor To Leave

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Aug 5 (AP)—A pastor who preached against the tradition of Santa Claus was under a district court order today denying him and his family occupancy of the parsonage or any buildings of the Argentine Baptist Church.

The order was issued Friday by Judge William H. McHale.

A divided congregation aired a controversy involving the pastor in a nine-day court hearing in June.

Judge McHale ruled that a preponderance of the evidence, some of it introduced by the pastor, showed the pastor had violated traditions and usages of the church. In opposing the appearance of Santa Claus at Christmas programs some witnesses had quoted him as saying Saint Nick was a paganistic legend.

Three Injured Cars Crash On Road Bridge

LINDSAY, Aug. 5 — (ENS) — Three people were hospitalized Thursday following a crash at the bridge over McLaren's Creek on Highway 35.

In hospital are; Mrs. Louise Sweetman, Toronto, lacerated jaw and loss of teeth; her daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Kennedy, 26, broken left ankle, and Peter Flynn, Scarboro Bluffs, lacerated forehead.

In a second accident, near Norland, a car dropped 50 feet into a rock-strewn gully and only minor injuries were suffered by the driver, Walter Bennett, and Gordon Balford, both of Toronto.

In the Sweetman accident, William E. Sweetman, of Toronto, was driving with the family to Lindsay from their Balsam Lake lodge. Driver of the other car was John Flynn, whose son was injured. They were en route to a cottage north of Lindsay.

Other passengers in the Sweetman car were Donald Kennedy, husband of one of the women, and their five-month-old son, Peter. They and Mr. Sweetman were uninjured.

Police estimated damage to the Sweetman car at $200 and to the Flynn car at $500.

In the other accident, Mr. Bennett was driving east on Highway 36 and was turning left on a curve when the car's right wheels caught the shoulder.

The auto careened along the east shoulder for 104 feet, finally striking a guard rail, and bouncing to the other side of the road. It hit the west shoulder, went over the guard rail, and down into the gully, coming to rest on its side.

Police say the highway was wet at the time and that the surface of the curve is rough.

Mr. Bennett suffered a small cut to his left ear, and his passenger suffered skinned knees and arms. Damage to the car was estimated at $250.

He was defeated 8 to 3 his first day back when he tried to rule the Chinese Nationalists should leave the council table.

He got only four supporting votes when he tried to put the question of Red China's representation on the agenda.

Friday Malik said any decisions on Korea must be made in the presence of all five permanent powers — including Russia and Red China—and that it is a question of what the U.N. calls substance, meaning it is subject to a veto.

He also said the Korean conflict is a civil war and that both sides to the dispute — both North and South Korea—must be represented, and that foreign troops, meaning U.S. troops, must be pulled out.

Seek Economic Bloc

CAIRO, Aug. 5 (Reuters) — Finance Minister Ghulam Mohamed of Pakistan Friday called upon Moslem countries to establish an Islamic economic bloc. The minister enroute home to Pakistan from sterling talks in London, said: "in this age no single country can live in isolation and it is imperative for Moslem countries to co-operate with each other in the economic sphere and thus strengthen themselves."

He Can't Remember

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5 (AP) — Mike Xidakin, 35-year-old painter, got something in his eye, lost his footing and fell 100 feet from a highway bridge into the Missouri rive Friday—and lived. He suffered a dislocated right shoulder, a head injury and other bruises. "I don't know what happened," said Mike. "I walked off and woke up in the hospital."

Meters Sabotaged!

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Aug. 5 — (CP) — Parking meters here are out of action most of the time. "It's sabotage!" Mayor B. V. Holmes told city council. Nine-tenths of meter failures are caused by chewing gum pushed into coin slots, the Mayor said.

Businessmen and Farmers Despair For Future In Manitoba Flood Areas

By JACK SCOTT

MORRIS, Man.—The last time I saw Morris was on a cloudless day in early May from the window of an RCAF observation plane cruising a couple of thousand feet above the town.

Those of us in the plane were looking down on catastrophe, yet it was a strangely serene sight.

The empty town—the tall grain elevators, the frame buildings along the broad main street, the cars and trucks, the homes and the shade trees—everything stood up to its neck and was reflected in a calm, dead sea. In a macabre way it was a beautiful sight from up there above the mud and agony.

Today I went back to the town the Red River hit hardest of all in Southern Manitoba. There was no beauty, macabre or otherwise, to be seen. Only an awful lot of heartache and bitterness.

From this town of Morris emerges the unpleasant fact that the magnificent generosity of Canada in donating to the Flood Relief Fund is simply not being matched by Manitoba's coalition government. "They have failed miserably," a farmer told me. There is widespread bitterness about the vagueness and doubletalk of what Premier D. L. Campbell has called, typically enough, a "reasonably generous" policy.

I talked with small businessmen and farmers today who are in despair for the future, given no positive assurance of relief and, in many cases, destitute. I found people living in homes still open to the elements and wondering if they will be back to normal before winter comes.

I found little of the feeling of positive, all-out revival that was so noticeable and heartening during the aftermath of the Fraser River flood.

In the City

Other writers have described the recovery of Winnipeg, itself, as impressive. So it is.

Three months ago I wouldn't have thought the city could clean up its monumental mess in less than a year. Today the casual visitor may drive for miles throughout the town and see no obvious evidence of the great flood.

If you look more closely you can find plenty of scars and in terms of missing tourists and conventions, alone, the wheat city is taking a socking.

Still, on the surface, the return to normal is astonishing. In the Norwood district, for example a row of 20-odd homes that had been actually built into the emergency dike are cleaned up and seem little the worse for wear. Less than three months ago I'd have wagered that they'd never be lived in again.

When I took my family for a tour of the city last night to show them the hardest-hit section of Winnipeg, I found it hard to impress them with the scenes of tragedy and drama enacted there. I drove them down near the river, only two blocks from Portage and Main, where one of the rare comic incidents of the flood occurred. A bootlegger had refused to leave his stock although his small house was flooded to the eaves and had made a valiant attempt to personally consume his wares. Red Cross workers had carted him off by rowboat in a blissful coma. Now there were two men engaged in conversation on the porch. They looked up hastily as we drove by. I presumed that he, too, was back at the old stand.

I mention these things because they left me unprepared for Morris. That hamlet, some 140 miles to the south, had been one of th first to go under and so it seemed likely the rehabilitation would be even more complete than it was in Winnipeg.

But in Morris I found a sorry mess and a grim outlook for most of the town's 1,200 citizens.

The place looks as if it had recently been hit by a hurricane or under shelling.

At the northern entrance to Morris where you temporarily leave behind the starkly crop-empty fields, a service station building sags drunkenly, ready to fall at any moment. From that point on you see houses and buildings in various degrees of collapse.

The water was up to 16 feet in many of the houses and most of the people of Morris were evacuated for five weeks. The demuge this did is almost beyond belief.

I saw one house which had been bolted to a concrete foundation. The water lifted the house and it, in turn, pulled the concrete from the ground. A small pasteurizing plant of cement brick is now simply a heap of rubble. A sturdy brick home has great gaping holes in it, for all the world as if heavy artillery had scored a direct hit.

Many of the houses are jacked up to keep them erect. Many others — including the home of Morris' first widow of the Second World War—remain as the receding flood left them, gaunt and warped and caked with dried grey silt.

I stopped at one old mansion to inquire the way to the home of the mayor, with whom I had an appointment. An elderly woman was in the yard hoeing stubbornly at the crusted, caked soil. When we had been talking a few minutes she looked up the street, with its debris and disarray:

"You mightn't believe it," she said; "but this used to be a right pretty little place."

Judge's Order Cites Union For Contempt

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 5 (AP)—Judge William J. Archer signed a district court order Friday night citing the Seafarers' International Union (AFL) for contempt of court.

The complaint came as pickets ocntinued to walk a pier here, preventing the loading of the Canadian freighter Howard L. Shaw, owned by the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company of Toronto.

Judge Archer signed a temporary injunction Thursday forbidding the picketing. The vessel has been idle here since Thursday, awaiting a cargo of corn. But loading crews have refused to cross picket lines.

The injunction was issued against the SIU. Gerald W. Meaney, Duluth, a union lawyer, said the order was thus not effective against the Duluth Maritime Council (AFL) which set up the pickets.

The contempt citation will be argued before Judge Archer today.

Union spokesmen said the pickets were placed because the Shaw had among its crew "Communists who are a bad security risk for the United States." In Toronto, officials of the shipping firm have countered with denials of the charge.

Judge Archer has set Monday for a hearing on making permanent his temporary ban against the pickets.

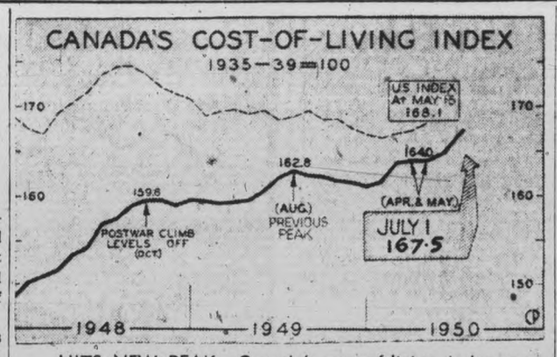
Garden Club Meets At Waterman's Home

FRASERVILLE, Aug. 5—(ENS) Fraserville Garden Club met recently at the home of Catharine and Mary Waterman. The leader, Eleanor Whitfield, inspected the girls' gardens. Then the president of the club took charge of the meeting.

After the reading of minutes by secretary Edythe Carl, Eleanor led in a discusson re vegetables, their care and use, emphasizing their value to health. Some plans were made for Achievement Day. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Conference Ends

LONDON, Aug. 5—(AP)— The International Federation of Business and Professional Women wound up its fifth congress Friday with a resolution reaffirming its belief in "the fundamental human rights of all people everywhere." Delegates from 20 countries, including Canada, also came out strongly in favor of equal pay for women who do the same jobs as men.



HITS NEW PEAK—Canada's cost-of-living index rose 2.1 points during June to hit a new peak of 167.5 as of July 1, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics announced Friday. The increase was due to higher costs for food especially meat, eggs and potatoes as well as increases in rents, coal and coke. The previous peak was set the previous month when it reached 165.4 after remaining stationary at 164.0 for the two previous months. The trend of the cost-of-living index is shown in the heavy black line. The dotted line represents the trend of the United States cost-of-living index. These are not comparable figures but merely show the trend of the two.

Food Prices Lead Way To Highest Cost of Living

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—(CP)—The things Canadians like to eat—meat, eggs and potatoes—have sparked another climb in living costs.

June price advances for these items, coupled with higher prices for rents, coal, coke and gasoline, have added 2.1 points to the cost-of-living index, bringing it from 165.4 to an all-time high of 167.5.

The index is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 prices equal 100. It was 162.1 a year ago, 156.9 in 1948 and 135.9 in 1947.

The Bureau of Statistics' composite index for 30 industrial material prices rose from 165.6 for the week of June 30 to 172.5 for the week of July 28—a net gain of 6.9 points.

Price advances were common for raw rubber, raw sugar, steel sheets, lead, tin, spruce, lumber, bleached sulphite pulp and steel generally.

Food Worst

Sharpest increases in the general cost-of-living index during June were in foodstuffs. The food sub-index rose a record 5.3 points from 209.0 to a new high of 214.3.

Eggs advanced 10.4 cents a dozen, potatoes climbed 8.6 cents for 10 pounds and meats rose 2.9 cents a pound for beef, 1.2 cents for veal, six cents for lamb and one cent for pork.

The rents sub-index climbed 2.2 points from 132.7 to a record 134.9. The miscellaneous group went up 0.1 points from 132.4 to 132.5, mainly as a result of higher gasoline prices in British Columbia.

Coal and coke were higher, too, in some areas, advancing the fuel and lighting group 0.6 points from 137.1 to 137.7.

The homefurnishings and services sub-index was steady at 166.9. The clothing group, which has been declining slightly during the last few months, also was unchanged at 180.7.

Did Man Emerge In Africa? Important Link Discovered

The latest discoveries made by Dr. Robert Broom in South Africa call attention once more to a problem which the ordinary reader finds extremely interesting but also disconcertingly confusing — the origin of man.

Memory Test

Chiefly, perhaps, this is due to the average person's difficulty in remembering even a rough geological time sequence, and to the fact that in Africa, where the most notable field investigations of man's ancestry have been carried out during the past twenty-five years, the work has been going on, simultaneously at two very different points in the long story. First there are the excavations, chiefly associated with the name of Dr. L. S. B. Leakey, in the Miocene deposits of Kenya. Here a large number of fossil fragments of the skeleton of anthropoid apes, belonging to a variety of species, has been found. These may be anything from 20m. to 34m. years old, and are therefore pre-human by a vast length of time. Among them were the genera discovered in 1931 by Dr. A. T. Hopwood, of the British Museum (Natural History), and by him named Proconul and Limnopithecus and one of Dr. and Mrs. Leakey's most notable achievements was the finding of a skull of Proconsul about two years ago.

Perhaps a Million

Somewhere among this tangle of primitive ape form there may have been a form from which man eventually emerged — perhaps a million years ago; but in the Miocent age no obvious direct ancestor of man has yet been found. It is notable, however, that evidence seems accumulating that at any rate three of the four types of anthropoid ape now living in the world may have originated in Africa. Two of them—the gorilla and the chimpanzee—still live there; and, of the other two, the gibbon seems to belong to the same stem as Limnopithecus of the Kenya Miocene, leaving only the orang-outang unaccounted for. This might lead to a strong presumption that man also originated in Africa, the continent whence came most of his nearest relatives.

Caves At Taunges

The second group of African researches relates to a very much later period, for the work done, chiefly in the Transvaal, by Professor Raymond Dart and Dr. Robert Broom picks the story up somewhere toward the dawn of the Pleistocene, at or about the point of man's emergence, say a million years ago. It was in 1925 that Professor Dart described from the caves at Taungs, in Bechuanaland, the skull of a creature which he believed to be intermediate between ape and man and which he named Australopithecus. Allied forms, to one of which the name Plesianthropus was given, were found by Dr. Broom at Sterkfortein and elsewhere in Central Transvaal in 1936 and 1938, and other discoveries followed. The earlier types found were comparatively small, subhuman creatures, with brains of between 450 and 650 cubic centimetres. In 1948 and 1949 larger and more advanced types came to light, including, at Swartkrans, one for which a brain of 850 to 900 cubic centimetres was deduced by Dr. Broom, and another found at Makapan in Northern Transvaal by Professor Dart.

Had Large Brains

In a lecture which Dr. Broom gave in England last year he said that it was hard to know whether to call them men or not. The importance of the fresh discoveries now announced is that they confirm Dr. Broom's deduction that that some of these creatures had brains big enough to be human. They reveal a form of Australopithecus with a brain perhaps reaching 1,000 cubic centimetres, which is well within the human range, and showing other points, the size of the teeth, the flatness of the face, and so on, of strong resemblance to man, yet also having a bony crest like that of the gorilla. Indeed the great variability of the group is in itself significant, for it suggests that even if none of its forms so far known is man's ancestor, some other form yet unfound possibly was. At least it seems clear that the Australopithecinae as revealed up to now were "almost man," and their presence in the Transvaal a million years ago strongly reinforces the possibility that something which we should recognize as man was first evolved in Africa.

ONE FOR EACH DAY

There are approximately 365 known species of eucalypt in Australia ranging in size from 10 to 300 feet high.

3 Movie Actors To Barnstorm In Shaw Play

By GENE HANSAKER

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5 (AP)—Three eminent actors, with a feminine star yet to be selected, are preparing to go barnstorming across the land next February in a play. It's said to be the first time such a project has originated here.

The actors are Charles Laughton, Charles Boyer and Sir Cedric Hardwicke. They'll set forth in "Don Juan in Hell" 50 years after George Bernard Shaw wrote it. They'll appear in college auditoriums and gyms, and their scenery—a big, red-velvet backdrop—will travel with them.

The rotund Laughton will be costumed as Satan. Boyer will portray Don Juan, legendary romantic rascal of many literary works.

Sir Cedric will be the Spanish commander killed by Don Juan on earth before all these characters met in Satan's kingdom. The actress will be the cammander's daughter, whom Don Juan betrayed.

The play, a one-hour and 45-minute insertion in Shaw's drama, "Man And Superman," will be presented without interruptions. It was put on a few times in Britain, Laughton says, but never in this country.

"Cathedral of Ideas"

He calls it "a cathedral of ideas, a brilliant, amusing discussion of sex, life, work, the world, social questions—heaven knows what all."

The project grew out of Laughton's reading of excerpts from the Bible, Shakespeare, and other works on a tour last winter.

"Everybody prophesied disaster," he remembers. "lo and behold, audiences came out of the ground. There seems to be an enormous audience for this sort of things." He has 83 more reading dates late this year—31 more than last.

Laughton says he wrote to Shaw— "an extremely frightening thing to do." The 94-year-old author's "very nice" reply gave permission for the play to be done separately from the whole work.

Museum Displays Some Old Relics

MONTREAL, Aug. 5 (CP). — A maltreated marble head of King George III—knocked from a monument in Montreal's Place d'Armes in 1775 and flung into a well—will be taken this month from McCord Museum and prepared for public showing at McGill University in the first week of October.

It will be one of 400 relics of Canada's past released from the museum for display when the Canadian Museums' Association and northeast section of the American Association of Museums meet here jointly Oct. 5-7.

All but a few pieces pertaining to General Wolfe, conqueror of Quebec, which now are on loan to the Citadel in Quebec City, will be exhibited for the first time since 1936 when McCord Museum closed its doors to the public dubbed with black and hung with a necklace of potatoes and a cross lic.

The head of the King's statue, by French-Canadians in May, 1775, was broken off by American occupation soldiers later that year. The soldiers heaved it into a well where it remained about 30 years.

STUDIES CANADA — Currently touring Canada to study health and welfare is Dr. Harbane Kaur Indarjit Singh, inspector of health centres in Punjab, India. During the second world war Dr. Singh was a captain in the Indian army.

Geologist Discovers Interesting Samples

SAULT STE. MARIE, Aug. 5—(CP)—Geologist John G. McComb Friday displayed ore samples which he described as "relatively pure pitchblende."

He brought them here Thursday and said he found them while exploring claims 20 miles north of Theano Point, on the Lake Superior shore some 70 miles west of here, where radio-active ore was discovered in 1948.

McComb said Geiger counter readings indicated that the samples contained about 60 per cent uranium oxide.

"There is nothing sensational about the claims," he added. "The samples are interesting, but they are useless as indications of the value of the claims."

No Razor Blade Run In Haldimand County

CAYUGA, Aug. 5 (CP). — There's no run on razor blades in Haldimand county.

Males of all ages have thrown them away. They're busy growing beards to advertise the 100th anniversary of the southeastern Ontario county's inception.

Three contests are being staged simulaneously—for the best-groomed, most comical, or longest beard. Each county centre has had its regional finals, with the grand champion to be chosen Saturday at Fisherville.

Thwarts Break-in TORONTO, Aug. 5 (CP).—Mrs. Robert H. Saunders, wife of the chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Friday helped police thwart what might have been a break-in. From her living room she noticed a prowler across the street and called police. They arrested Clarence McRitchie, 33, and charged him with possession of burglar tools.

Short of Quota

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—United States exports of wheat during the first year's operation of the International Wheat Agreement were reported at 61,287,000 bushels by the Agriculture Department today. This is 72,986,000 bushels short of the country's quota for the marketing year which ended Aug. 1.

Durham Farmers Visit New York For Field Day

BETHANY, Aug. 5—(ENS) — The Durham Five Hundred Bushel Potato Club sponsored a tour to Chafee, New York State, on Thursday, a round trip of 475 miles. Two chartered Colonial buses left from Bethany at 6 a.m. with a third one picking up passengers en route from Springville, Millbrook and Pontypool. The group totalled 110 sightseers, with Ernest Cavano, R.R. 2, Pontypool, in charge of arrangements.

The trip was scheduled in conjunction with the 17th annual field day of the Empire State Potato Club and New York State Extension Service, held at the farm of Maurice Philps, Chafee, N.Y.

The latest in modern potato machinery and equipment was on display, with about 50 dealers and manufacturers represented, demonstrating planters, diggers, etc.

Specialists from the College of Agriculture were available all day to discuss potato growing problems. There were interesting educational exhibits from the Departments of Agriculture in engineering, entomology, home economics, plant pathology, vegetable crops, etc.

In the college demonstration plots, there were yield tests taken of 24 new varieties of seed. Potato diseases were also discussed.

The operation of huge bulldozers demonstrated the easy way of hedge removal.

There were ploughing demonstrations by several machinery companies. Irrigation methods, spraying, dusting, etc., were all discussed and demonstrated.

The Trade Unions And Communism

Yesterday in these columns we drew attention to a protest which was made by Local 527 of the United Electrical Workers (the union at the Peterborough Lock Co.) against the support of the Communist "peace front" by the national president of that union, Mr. C. S. Jackson. We are glad that such a protest was made, and we are sure that it has the support and admiration of an overwhelming majority of people in this city. The members of U.E. are good trade unionists, and that union has served them well. But when U.E. leaders try to put the weight of the union membership behind a barefaced piece of Communist propaganda, U.E. members do their duty as citizens when they refuse flatly to have anything to do with it.

• • •

Other trade union leaders have not been slow to condemn the "peace front" In Windsor the president and executive of Local 195 of UAW-CIO have issued a statement of strong support for the United Nations' action in Korea. In that same statement they have some sharp things to say about attempts to line up unions behind the Communist scheme. They say: "There can be no place in the UAW-CIO or in any of its local unions for officers who would pervert our organization into an instrumentality that would betray our fellow-workers into Communist totalitarian bondage". In another UAW local the officers have been required to make affidavits that they are not Communists. It may be said that perjury is nothing to a Communist, but such a move shows a determined anti-Communist spirit among the membership of the union—just such a spirit as has been shown in Peterborough.

• • •

Joseph Barry, the business man for the chemical workers' union in Toronto, has spoken forcibly on this point, "We know now", he said, "more than ever before, the dangers to the democratic process here and elsewhere. The time is coming when all local unions affiliated to the Trades and Labour Council are going to have to check and guard resolutions and petitions and everything else, because we're going to be faced within the next few months with the greatest propaganda campaign ever foisted on the people of this country". And the aim of that propaganda campaign will be to persuade as many people as possible in Canada that the United Nations has done wrongly in taking action in Korea. The eventual aim of the campaign will be to destroy United Nations as a world force—an end which Russia has been unable to accomplish by perpetual trouble-making in U.N. meetings. Does any trade union of Canadian men and women want to lend its influence to a plan of that sort?

• • •

Several trade unions have already spoken their minds. They see the Communist plan behind the "peace front" —it is not hard to see. One local in Peterborough, belonging to a union the leadership of which has repeatedly been accused of Communist sympathy, has protested against being made to give assistance to the Communists in Canada by its leader. And those who have protested are better trade unionists because of their protest, for it was freedom which made trade unions possible, and it is freedom which Communism seeks to destroy.

Power In Foreign Policy

Imperial sentiment is deep-rooted in Britain, and any appeal to it and Britain as the heart of Empire is met favourably even by a Labour Prime Minister. The Australian Prime Minister, Mr. Robert Menzies, addressing a dinner audience of 700 in London which included Mr. Churchill and Mr. Attlee, gave the British imperial flag a vigorous hoist. He eloquently urged a unified imperial foreign policy and the bringing of it and imperial defence into harmony. The Conservative Daily Telegraph of London said that Mr. Menzies "peroration was a piece of pure postprandial virtuosity", a remarkable tribute to his oratory, if not to his theme People unable to put themselves under the influence of his eloquence will nevertheless be impressed by the high common sense in the Australian Premier's statement that: "Powerful foreign policy begets obligations and . . . a realistic defence policy makes you fit to perform them". Of course, foreign policy is not powerful unless there is power to carry it out.

The proof of the power of the United States foreign policy is now being shown in Korea. The military mess there in the first weeks has been an indication that the U.S. foreign policy however largely conceived, was not strong and certain. If it had been, there would not have existed the contradiction of a military policy to abandon Korea if war came there, and a foreign policy to defend it Only now is U.S. foreign policy emerging as "powerful".

It is an interesting thesis that the British Commonwealth should have a foreign policy. But how on this wide earth of the British Commonwealth can there be a defence policy powerful enough to perform the foreign policy, without depending on nations such as the U.S.A. to support a foreign policy not of their own making? It would seem. logically, that the British Commonwealth cannot have a powerful (and unified) foreign policy if the British Commonwealth has not by itself the power to implement it. It would seem that the only really powerful foreign policy that the Commonwealth could adopt would be one that had the full approval and support of either of the two most powerful nations, Russia or the U.S.A.

How Time Flies

Was it only yesterday that Dr. Boyer, former assistant professor of chemistry at McGill university was convicted of spying for Russia and sent to the penitentiary? No, it was not yesterday, for Dr. Boyer is now a free man. His time was up a fortnight ago. He was sentenced to two years in November, 1947, appealed and was released on bail, but the sentence was upheld in November, 1948. Dr. Boyer served one year, seven months and two weeks behind bars. (Time was remitted for good behaviour.)

Spy trials seem like today's news because both Britain and the U.S.A.—particularly the U.S.A.—have been filling the headlines with them. But Canada was the first to have to face them, owing to the revelations of Gouzenko, did it with decorum and despatch, and had done with them. At least, we can hope that Canadian secret workers for Russia have been rounded up, made harmless and taught the error of their ways

Centennial Year—Civic Holiday

On Monday we have a public holiday for no special reason, except that August does not provide us with a long weekend otherwise. And that is reason good enough. It is called Civic Holiday because each municipality declares its own, and although the first Monday in August is the popular day in most cities, there is nothing obligatory about it. Civic Holiday was begun about a half a century ago when people worked for longer hours than they do now, and when clerks in stores, especially, did not get much time in the summer in which to enjoy themselves.

This year Peterborough has a special reason to enjoy itself on Civic Holiday. It is our Centennial Year, in which our city completes a hundred years as a municipality, a hundred years of growth, and a hundred years of solid, worth-while accomplishment in a variety of spheres. We are setting out on another century, which not more than two or three of us will see completed, which will bring great changes, the nature of which it is impossible to foresee. But we begin the journey confidently and with light hearts. Monday is a breather in the midst of all the struggle and advancement. It is a day to be enjoyed without too much reference to the future, and with only the kindliest thoughts of the past.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Old Bill", Canada's oldest horse, has died at the age of 41. And may be assured of a glorious resurrection in a hamburger stand at the C.N.E.

Girls in the Soviet Sector of Berlin may not wear Western style clothes, as these are considered "unworthy of Soviet womanhood". If we may judge by the pictures we have seen, Soviet womanhood favours the gunny-sack, Mother Hubbard, and Omar the Tentmaker models.

Our old friend the Brantford Expositor, which has been watching our recent brush with Saturday Night about The Maple Leaf, is mistaken in thinking we supported the version which runs—

In days of yore, from Britain's shore
Wolfe, the conquering hero came—

Our version was the correct one—

In days of yore the hero Wolfe
Britain's glory did maintain—

And in this version we have the support of the author and Sir Ernest Macmillan. The Expositor, by the way, fell into Saturday Night's error of calling Alexander Muir, "James" Muir.

A British Editor In Canada

(Condensed from Articles in The Yorkshire Post)

CANADA today is like Yorkshire and Lancashire when the industrial revolution was transforming everyday life and vast fortunes were in the making.

That is the impression left with Mr. W. L. Andrews, editor of the Yorkshire Post, who was in Canada a month ago as a delegate to the Imperial Press Conference.

Mr. Andrews has his enthusiasms—that wild canary on the Isle of Orleans brought his hearty, "I believe Canada has everything" —but at heart he is a sturdy Yorkshireman and Yorkshiremen are not easily swayed. Therefore all the more precious passages like these in his reports to his paper:

"I AM implored by friends to put money in Canada. I wish I could. This burning faith in the future of Dominion makes new converts every day. Yes, it must have been very like this in Yorkshire when the industrial revolution was thrilling our forefathers."

"The interviews (with conference delegates) were accurate and judicious; the papers here are excellent and, running to 50 and 60 pages, prodigious in their amplitude. All I miss is the cricket scores."

"CANADIANS thoroughly believe the dictum of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, prime minister until 1910, that 'the 20th Century belongs to Canada'. Events are bearing out Sir Wilfrid's prophecy. In fact, Canada is enjoying a dynamic, natural resource expansion and investment boom that are causing her people to look forward to the best period in history."

"I have talked to scores of people from England doing all kinds of jobs, but have not yet come across any who regret trying their luck here. This Canadian air is radiant with confidence. I wish more of us at home had the same eager belief in ourselves and the future. What can we do about it?"

MR. ANDREWS was sure that if the food of England could be improved to the level of that in Canada the results in better work would be astounding.

He was impressed with Mr. St. Laurent—"tall, handsome and strong-voiced he must be one of Canada's best speakers. I got the impression he is more a bold orator than a subtle tactician".

Mr. Drew: "No less masterly a speaker, with a great sense of fun. A speech he made to us at the Ottawa Country Club was Churchillian in its broadly smiling wit and neat sallies against the Government."

He remembers the young student guide pointing to one of the great paper mills and saying almost the entire production went to "noospapers" in the United States.

"His audience of newspaper men from sterling countries demanded to know, in chorus of anguish, 'Why?'

"The young man looked startled, then bewildered. Britain's problems are not well known here, it would seem."

PERHAPS Mr. Andrews did not know the Canadians as well as he hoped. He reported that the shipment of a planeload of emergency supplies from the United Kingdom to flood-stricken Winnipeg, "kindled a glow in the heart of every Canadian". He might have added the glow was quenched in a good many hearts by the feeling the British needed the supplies more than anyone in Canada, including the flood victims whose distress was being eased by people in a better position to give, both in Canada and in the generous United States.

HE NOTED Canadian irritations over British barter deals with countries behind the Iron Curtain. He noted also the impression the British did not work hard enough. He found business people yearning for the day when Britain again had a government which would allow business again along free-enterprise lines.

"There is no disposition to write Britain off as a spent force, but most Canadians acknowledge the world leadership of the United States, even if it be often condemned as inept."

THERE could be little doubt said this observer, that Canada was becoming more American and less British.

"What can we do about it? My view is that renewed contacts with Britain through an enlarged flow of British people to Canada are needed to counteract this trend; and I am not at all sure that even these would suffice. I have come across no appreciable amount of sentiment favoring withdrawal from the Empire, and my conclusion is that Canada bids fair to become an increasingly American nation within the Commonwealth as the years go by."

AND these Canadian hotels, seen through the eyes of a man from bare Britain!

"We of the Seventh Imperial Press Conference have moved from one stately hotel to another. The towering, many-turreted Chateau Frontenac at Quebec; the Windsor (where the King and Queen stayed) and Mount Royal at Montreal; the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa; each offers rich comfort and all the spacious dignity of the best American hotels. Solid leaders of men and dazzling dollar princesses throng their Peacock Alleys. Even the lift girls and the book-store girls look like film stars.

"ABOVE all, everything looks new. You could imagine the cutlery, the towels, the bath-tubs, the beds, the chairs, the carpets had all been put in last Monday. One never sees in these hotels a faded rug or the tiniest crack in a wash-basin.

"Poor, worn, dilapidated England, how dear was our victory!"

WHAT A POINT!

When John Jones took his hunting dog in the fields to show him off to several strangers, to his amazement the dog pointed at one of them.

"He's smarter than you think," said the man, "My name is Partridge."

Centennial Year — Civic Holiday

He Wasn't Impressed

(FROM THE FORT WILLIAM TIMES-JOURNAL)

A YOUNG Fort William lad accompanied his parents to Yugoslavia two years ago. Brought up in this city, attending schools here, and having many friends, he was reluctant to leave. As he was not of age, being only 18 at the time, he felt obliged to obey the wishes of his parents who had succumbed to the plea from Tito in their native land that they return and help build up a glorious new country under communism.

As reported in the news columns of the Times-Journal, the change from the freedom of Canadian life to regimented Communist living proved too much for the young man. After two years he plotted with others to slip out of Yugoslavia. He reached Switzerland and is now at Ellis Island. He hopes to get back into Canada.

That the plunge into a Communist country should be particularly distasteful to a teenage boy who knows only the free and easy ways of Canadian democracy, is not surprising. Better proof, if proof were needed, of the gulf that lies between the slavery of the common man under Communism and the freedom of the individual under the system of free enterprise is the disillusionment of the older folk who quit Canada to return to Yugoslavia, lured by false pictures drawn by the Communist recruiters. Some of the lucky ones have returned to this country. Scores of others yearn for the life they once led here, but remain trapped behind the iron curtain.

Tito has attracted world-wide attention because he dared to stand up against Moscow, because he wanted to run his own country without dictation from the Russians. But he is, nothwithstanding, a dyed-in-the-wool Communist and will not likely fool any of the free western countries.

THIS week for example, one of his ministers in the Politburo was obviously trying to patch up the quarrel between Yugoslavia and the other members of the Communist bloc. Milovan Djilas offered to make peace with Russia and the Cominform on a basis of mutual respect. "Yugoslavia does not threaten any other people and no alien country has nor can have any means and groups in Yugoslavia which might threaten another country."

It is to be noted that this first effort to get back into the Russian fold came when the tide of battle seemed to be turned definitely in favor of the Communists in Korea, and when Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania were making threatening military gestures close to the Yugoslav borders. It will be noted also that in Security Council votes on sanction against North Korea, the Yugoslavs abstained.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up they voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God!.... He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young. (Isa. 40: 9, 11.)

And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, and sent messengers before his face: and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him. And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he would go to Jerusalem.

And when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did? But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of. For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village. (Luke 9: 51-56.)

Can't Stand Prosperity

(Winnipeg Tribune)

David Lewis, in his swan song as national secretary of the C.C.F. at the convention in Vancouver is reported to have told his fellow delegates that conditions in Canada "are temporarily against a rapid advance in Socialist support".

What Mr. Lewis meant, of course, was that Socialism can't stand prosperity. Socialism is a plant that requires a climate of hard tinies and economic and social unrest in order to flower. And even after Socialism has taken root, full employment and good times cause its flowers to fade and wither before long.

THEY NEVER LEARN

Peak of the holiday season for 1950 is right about now with regattas going full tilt at every Kawartha community of any size. Last weekend the ball started rolling at Kawartha Park and Crowe's Landing simultaneously. I am a Crowe's fan of many years' standing and can truthfully say, after attending the latter show, it is far bigger and better than it ever was. Those responsible for the great improvement should take a great deep bow. Regattas are the common leveller of any water playground.

When you meet, mix and visit with spectators — business and professional people you know in the city — they are as carefree as their children sweating it out on the racing courses. It is hard to realize that within a few short weeks that big fellow in the very short shorts and beat-up shoes wears a sombre barrister's gown over his natty clothes during his regular work in town. Be cautioned not to make eyes at the young thing in the brief swim suit with him; it's probably his wife.

See you at Juniper Island — power boating Saturday, sailing Sunday, juvenile and adult events on Monday, — Balsam Lake on Saturday, Tweed on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and Trent River on Monday, too.

You meet a lot of ingenious American fishermen in the district at this season, those gadget-minded lads who get as much kick out of inventing home-made equipment as they do out of fishing. Paul Arend of Cleveland, my neighbor, is one of these. His air-tight minnow bucket that he carries in his car, keeps 100 minnows alive during many hundred miles of car travel. Rigged up to his windshield wiper by rubber tubing his bucket water is aereated for the fish in transit. He has no water-changing trouble and has carried them many times from the Border to Georgian Bay nad the Kawarthas. His simple workbench lures that he turns out of an evening, as many as two dozen, are whizzes for pickerel and their monetary cost, negligible.

It's Still Carelessness

Nighty-eight per cent of all forest fires can be pinned down to human carelessness and the remaining one per cent, exclusive of lightning, has presented some odd findings to fire fighter investigators of the DLF.

Near Espanola a beaver-felled tree crashed across a power line causing short circuit which ignited the trees. A lightning bolt which struck a deer ricocheted from the animal's flank into the dry bush.

Birds have been seen picking up lighted cigarette butts and carrying them to their nests which, with the tree, are set aflame in no time. Abandoned cabins in the wilderness have burst into flames for no apparent reason except that hungry mice chewed on matches that were stored unsafely.

Burning railway flares dropped from moving trains as signals have occasionally bounced into the dry brush along the right-of-way. Incendiary bullets and sparks from diesel engines are other causes.

An old man subject to fits collapsed while lighting his pipe, set fire to grass and woodlot. Someone tried to smoke out bees from a ground hive. Broken glass acting as a magnifying glass for the sun's rays has been observed starting a grass fire by a lookout man in a forestry observation tower. Most of the cases listed above revealed human carelessness, so we might as well stop trying to prove fires are set by any other reason, except on very rare occasions.

One thousand Kamloops Trout yearlings were introduced into Catchacoma Lake from the Normandale Hatchery on July 21st. They look very much like the line drawing of the Rainbow Trout, show at the Right, so much so, says the Trent district weekly bulletin of the Department of Lands and Forests, that few anglers can distinguish between them. Open season on both species is May 1st to Sept. 15, minimum length limit seven inches and catch limit five fish per day.

A tag game between a dog and a 600-pound bear resulted in the bear's finish when dog owner Ray Lambert of Bobcaygeon took over the relay from his exhausted pooch with a gun. The head weighed 30 pounds. The way kibitzers can appraise the weight of a fallen bear in such round large figures, still amazes me. Who lifts it onto what scales?

Roundabout Log Drive

I was amused at a Toronto newspaper staff writer's recent article on Apsley. This scribe, in interviewing an old time resident and former riverman about running logs down Eel's Brook, wrote: "Floated them down Eel's Creek, there's still eels in it, to Harwood (on Rice Lake), through Peterboro and the logs were sawed at Nassau." Frankly, if the logs were pushed around like that in the good old days, they would be worn down to match sticks, clogging navigation on their way down stream and back. I won't labor on the spelling of our proud city's name, nor the report of eels in the Brook.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

On Principle

" 'Wot's the matter?' says the doctor. 'Wery ill,' says the patient. 'Wot have you been a eatin' on?' says the doctor. 'Roast weal', says the patient. 'Wot's the last thing you dewoured?' says the doctor. 'Crumpets,' says the patient. 'That's it!' says the doctor. 'I'll send you a box of pills directly, and don't you never take no more of 'em,' he says. 'No more o' wot?' says the patient, — 'Pills?' 'No, crumpets,' says the doctor. 'Wy?' says the patient, starting up in bed; 'I've eat four crumpets, ev'ry night for fifteen year, on principle.'

'Well, then, you'd better leave 'em off, on principle,' says the doctor. 'Crumpets is wholesome, sir,' says the patient. 'Crumpets is not wholesome, sir,' says the doctor, very fierce. 'But they're so cheap,' says the patient comin' down a little, 'and so wery filliin' at the price.' 'They'd be dear to you, at any price; dear if you was paid to eat 'em,' says the doctor. 'Four crumpets a night,' he says, 'vill do your business in six months!'

The patient looks him full in the face, and turns it over in his mind for a long time, and at last he says, 'Are you sure o' that 'ere, sir?' 'I'll stake my professional reputation on it,' says the doctor. 'How many crumpets, at a sittin', do you think 'ud kill me off at once?' says the patient. 'I don't know,' says the doctor. 'Do you think half a crown's wurth 'ud do it?' says the patient. 'I think it might,' says the doctor. 'Three shillin's' wurth 'ud be sure to do it, I s'pose?' says the patient. 'Certainly,' says the doctor. 'Wery good,' says the patient, 'good night.' Next mornin' he gets up, has a fire lit, orders in three shillin's wurth o' crumpets, toasts 'em all, eats 'em all, and blows his brains out.'

"What did he do that for?" inquired Mr. Pickwick abruptly; for he was considerably startled by this tragical termination of the narrative.

"Wot did he do it for, sir"? reiterated Sam. "Wy, in support of his great principle that crumpets wos wholesome, and to show that he wouldn't be put out of his way for nobody!"

Progress of Peterborough: XXX

'Almost Miraculous Growth' In Mid-'30's Mansions, Churches, 20 Shops, Big Village

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

When Dr. Hutchison moved to Peterborough in 1830, it had 60 houses and 400 inhabitants. He practised in the old Scott house, but within a year or two decided to go to York as his patients could pay him little cash; he promised to stay, however, when the citizens, built him the first stone house in town, on the north side of Brock near Stewart St. This house, built for $224 with volunteer help, is still occupied; Dr. Hutchison practised there until his death in 1847, and during the cholera epidemic of 1832, when hundreds were ill and 23 died, he was a tower of strength. The Rev. Samuel Armour in 1830 bought a lot on the hill in Otonabee east of the present Armour Road and built a house; one by one the leading citizens moved to the suburbs.

Early in 1832, William Lundy, a tailor from Ireland, set up shop in town. Thomas Need, arriving in July, marvelled at the town's "almost miraculous growth"; board and lodging were $4 a week in "a very comfortable though unfurnished inn". This was McFadden's Tavern beside the Otonabee rapids, which Mrs. Traill reached at midnight early in September: "Hurrying down the steep hill we found the House still open, but only to learn that there was no room"; but the hostess gave them her room, through whose unplastered lath walls "I could see the white frothy water of the rapids dancing in the moonlight as I lay in bed". She described the town in detail, including the plains stretching northward in "a beautiful natural park", "the squatters' ground" to the west and eastward "a steep declivity towards the river". "There are several saw and gristmills, a distillery, fulling mill, two principal inns besides smaller ones, a number of good stores, a government schoolhouse which also serves as a church... Some pretty little dwellings are being built". The population, actually about 450 or 500, she estimated at 700 or more.

There are cases in which it is indecent to go on living. One should die proudly when it is no longer possible to live proudly.

F. W. NIETZSCHE, 1889

Rumor spread in 1832 that the depot and market, a block of two across between George, Simcoe, Charlotte and Water streets, was to be sold to private persons, and a public meeting was held in opposition. A petition signed by Hon. T. Stewart, James Ferguson, Dr. Hutchison, Sam Strickland, the Rev. James Crowley, the Rev. Samuel Armour (clerk of the meeting), James Bethune and about 100 other citizens, was sent to the Executive Council, urging that this marketplace be granted to trustees on behalf of all citizens. The Executive Council, on which Hon. Peter Robinson sat, approved this step Oct. 11, 1832, and trustees managed the market depot until 1850, when it was granted to "the town council of the town of Peterborough in the county of Peterborough, and their successors in office, forever".

Early Descriptions

Need came to town in August 1833, noting "new houses built, new shops opened and a large influx of inhabitants...(At) my half-Indian costume, even the boys in the street hooted as I passed". He attended a land sale at which a townlot sold for $250 and a parklot for $225, an enormous increase in eight years. John Langton arrived the same month at "a very pretty picturesque thriving village with about 2,000 inhabitants and near 30 genteel families within visiting distance"; actually there were only 600-700 in town. A writer in the Cobourg Star praised the "fast-rising prosperous village... full of bustling merchants and amply-provided stores... the chief emporium of the back settlements ...the neat little villas on the hill above Hall's extensive establishment", but criticized "the singularly straggling position of the houses...the ill-developed streets with regiments of deplorable-looking pine stumps... the stagnant pond near Murphy's store"; he ended with a salute to the "civil, obliging and hospitable people" and prophesied that in a few years it would be "one of the richest towns in the province!"

In 1833 McKellar's store at the southeast corner of George and Hunter streets was the northernmost shopping centre, and from there north were only a few houses. On the west side of George between Simcoe and Hunter streets the two largest buildings were Sanford's Store and Baily's Tavern. Rev. J. M. Roger of the Church of Scotland came that year as the first Presbyterian minister, and bought a wooded lot bounded by Monaghan Road, McDonnel and Park and Smith streets, where he built a stone house called "Cordach" in 1834. The Rev. S. Armour resigned as schoolmaster in 1832, replaced by the Rev. R. J. Taylor, and as Anglican clergyman in 1833, replaced by Rev. R. H. D'Olier; plans were prepared and a contract given to Jos. Scobell to build a new Anglican Church for £1300 on a lot north of Hunter St. near the bridge. A subscription list of November 1833 for this project contains the names of most leading citizens of all faiths in town and vicinity. The first lawyer, Elias Burnham of Port Hope, opened his office, and became one of the wealthiest citizens, owning a block fronting the market square; another lawyer, J. S. Smith, came about the same time, but soon moved to Port Hope.

Further Expansion

In April, 1834, Need noticed further expansion: "It then contained a church, post office, bank, agency office, circulating library, and two comfortable inns" (the bank was probably a storekeeper's strongbox). Huston's 1834 map of central town showed that Bethune was the leading property owner; he had all the south side of Charlotte from George St. to the river, the west side of George between Sherbrooke and King streets, and the north half of the east side opposite. Mr. Yates, a teamster, had a shop and orchard on the southwest corner of Charlotte and George streets. The Brown mill property (formerly Scott's) was sold at this time to Major Hamilton, recently arrived with three sons and seven daughters; he enlarged the mills, added a distilery and brewery, and ran them in partnership with his son-in-law Fortye."

Langton wrote in June: "Mr. Ferguson purchased the government mills for £8000 from Mr. Hall who four years ago paid £3000 for them. ..they are going to open in connection with them an extensive store. .. I consider Peterborough our market now." These mills were built in 1827-28 for £2000. In September, Mrs. Stewart wrote that her husband was building a dam and mill at Auburn, and in December "Stafford Kirkpatrick has all the law business to be had. . He is active and energetic in the improvements of Peterboro' and the country." William Dixon had earlier started another sawmill on Dixon's Creek on the edge of town.

The big event of 1834 was in mid-July when Lt. Governor Sir John Colborne came up the Otonabee road with a militia escort. Langton was sarcastic: "The whole town was in as great a ferment as if His Majesty himself had been expected. Militiamen turned out and the guard mounted before a log house dignified with the name of Government House. By the way, the said House is so full of bugs that they dare not invite His Excellency to sleep in it, and had rigged up a tent near it under which his bed had been prepared. Colborne went to Dummer to inspect the settlements, then through the Kawarthas, and back through Ops to the lakefront". Langton found Peterborough life dull: "On Sundays we go to church and make calls and on weekdays drinking tea at Col. Brown's or the Fergusons is the only variety from wandering about from the blacksmith to the cooper, the shoemaker, the tinman, the mill and the different stores, fruitlessly endeavouring to hurry them on with what you want." Of most craftsmen we have no record, but in 1834 Marcello Mowry in Ashburnham began making axes, tools, wagons and sleighs.

Nicknames and whippings, when they are once laid on, no one has discovered how to take off.

W. S. LANDOR, 1824

Churches Built

In February, 1834, Bishop McDonell and the Peterborough Roman Catholics received two lots bounded by George, Brock, Chambers and Hunter Streets, also lot 14 fronting on Hunter St. West, and a parklot in North Monaghan; with Rev. John Butler as priest, and Alex McDonell and Dr. Connin as trustees a frame church was built, on the church site, after numerous petitions. By Christmas their new stone church was mostly completed, as Mrs Stewart noted "The tower is not quite finished at the top. .It is a most respectable-looking building on a hill prettily wooded with oak and pine." A year later, Colborne endowed St. John's Church with the whole block bounded by Hunter, Water, Brock and Sheridan Streets, as well as a townlot east of Aylmer street, two parklots, and ten Smith farm lots. This was a relief to the congregation, as they were in debt to complete their church.

Shirreff, visiting in 1835, estimated the population at 1000 and noted "a number of mean houses scattered over a considerable extent. .a polished and aristocratic society." Dr Gilchrist of Keene moved to town with his large family, setting up practice and investing in local mills. William Stephenson erected a mansion of pine lath and stucco at 141 Sherbrooke (demolished a year ago), which then faced a large pasture where the militia trained. Shortly after, Kirkpatrick, leading lawyer, and Church of England trustee, built a house on the Sherbrooke Street hill west of Monaghan Road, later the Morrow home.

Two disastrous fires occurred at this time, the Hamilton and Fortye establishments burned completely, but were soon rebuilt and expanded; the Roman Catholic church also burned down, but by 1838 St. Peter's Church was built of stone on Hunter Street west. In 1836 the post office was moved from the Ferguson store, to the old log Government House, where Ephraim Sanford was postmaster until his death seven years later.

FIRST BOATS OVER LIFT LOCK—When the Stoney Lake steamer with its cargo of notables was making the descent in the lift lock at the official opening, July, 1904, the Rob Roy (right) and the Lotus were on the way up. This picture shows the two boats loaded with passengers, having arrived at the top of the lock. It also shows that although it had stopped raining by that time, everything was still pretty wet.—(Roy Studio Photo)

LOCK A-BUILDING IN 1896. This is one of the locks above the Lift Lock. Those days of bowler-hatted work superintendents were before the time of bulldozers, as the bent men with picks and shovels reveal.

LOCAL MEN AT 1904 HOIST—Most of the cement and other material which went into the Peterborough Lift Locks was lifted into place by a hoist operated first by Eugene Hurtubise (second from right) and later when Mr. Hurtubise left, by Billy Jobe (right), who later became mechanical supervisor of the Trent Canal. The hoist operator looked through the hole in the centre of the building at his signaler who gave him his directions. The other two men pictured are Fred Doig (left) and Hugh Nesbitt.

The Story Of The Lift-Lock

World Marvel Lift Lock Famed Ship-Lifter Since '04

By ROBERT HATTON.

Torrential rains did their worst, but nothing could discourage the thousands of people who gathered at the Trent canal Saturday, July, 9, 1904, to watch the giant Peterborough Liftlock gently lower a steamer loaded with people floating in a gigantic basin of water 65 feet through the air.

Even when they saw it, they could hardly believe it. The Minister of Railways and Canals of that time, Hon. H. R. Emmerson, was just as awed as the rest.

In officially opening the lock he said, "This demonstration of the result of engineering skill, while inspiring, almost commands everyone of us to stand in silence before it."

One of the men who had operated a hoist helping to build the structure, Eugene Hurtubise, Stewart St., remarked recently, "It was the starting of Peterborough—that and the CGE."

"The canal was busy for a time," he added, "but the truck came along and killed it."

In the minds of the men who had promoted it and nursed it along, the liftlock, the largest in the world, was to be the most important link in a "national highway of transportation."

It was to provide a short cut between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario which would carry the huge wheat crops of the west, and coal, iron and steel by barge to Montreal and the outside world beyond.

But the Georgian Bay end of the waterways was never completed, and the project withered like a rootless plant.

The day the Peterborough Liftlock was opened, the canal was sealed off at both ends although 250 miles of navigation inland waterways were almost completed.

Back To 1825

The idea of a canal through the Trent Waterways was first thought of before 1825 by a member of the engineering corps of the Imperial Army. But the project ran into the troubles leading up to the Rebellion of 1837 and amounted to nothing at first. From then on interest waxed and waned. However some work was done as early as 1833 at Trenton.

In 1890 a Royal Commission, after studying the problem three years, turned in a report that "the Government should proceed at once with the completion of the Canal." Work on sections beyond the liftlock was being pushed in 1896-98.

But it wasn't until 1899 that workers began to dig in the spot where the 75 and 90-foot towers of the liftlock would stand. In the same year, the construction company began to pour cement.

Accidents Occurred

There were few accidents to the workmen on the job But one man, Andy Brotherson, who died a few years ago, had more than his share.

One day he was working at the bottom of the east well where one of the pans would later rest. Over his head a load of material was being raised out by rope pulled through a block by a horse. Somehow the rope slipped and the load of material came crashing down carrying scaffolding and timbers of all sorts with it. Brotherson who was trapped in the deep well had his straw hat knocked off; that was all.

Two days later, Brotherson was working at the top of the project. One of the buy ropes of the hoist broke and the boom at the end of the hoist went swinging crazily. The end of the boom hit him in the face. His fellow workers thought he had been killed when they picked him up. But in a little while he came to. He had a broken jaw, a broken nose and his teeth knocked out.

Few of the men who worked on the lock are still living. After Mr. Hurtubise left the job to work on a second liftlock at Kirkfield, his helper Billy Jobe took over and later became mechanical supervisor of the Trent and Murray Canals. Three other men who worked on the project were Jim McGraw, Jim Murphy and Bill Simmons.

Many prophecies were made the day the lock was opened. Some of them were not fulfilled. But one that has become a reality was written in the Examiner Souvenir issue which was published that day.

It ran, "This will make Peterborough a place of pilgrimage, from far and near, for there will be perpetual unrest in the public mind to see the wonderful and massive mechanism by which the simple natural law of equilibrium makes a steamer laden with a hundred passengers mount a distance of 65 feet through the air, like a bird, or a barge laden with 25,000 bushels of wheat, drop as gently and smoothly as a tuft of down, the same distance."

Erskine Blanks Orioles In 7-0 Triumph

By The Canadian Press

Carl Erskine's return to Brooklyn Dodgers appeared imminent today. Erskine Friday night rang up victory No. 10 Montreal Royals, blanking Baltimore Orioles 7-0. He fanned three, walked four and allowed only four hits. It was his fifth shutout.

Before the game, Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers said: "on paper it seems great, but opposing batters are helping him. They're swinging at the bad pitch, something they won't do in the majors.

"I feel certain you'll see Erskine back in Brooklyn before long."

That was before Erskine's brilliant effort Friday night. Perhaps Carl will be in Brooklyn livery sooner than anyone thinks.

The victory boosted Royals to within a half game of the second-place Orioles. Jack Lindsay and George Shuba, another Brooklyn cast-off, helped Erskine with a home run apiece. Irv Medlinger suffered his ninth loss.

Whip Cubs

At Rochester, another big-league prospect—Tom Poholsky of the Red Wings—came up with an 8-1 victory over Springfield Cubs. The Rochester right hander, property of St. Louis Cardinals, is the leading pitcher in the league with a 15-4 record and 16 complete games in 17 starts.

Toronto Maple Leafs turned back Jersey City 7-5, beating off a ninth inning rally by the Little Giants. The Jerseys loaded the bases in that frame, but got only one run, thanks to Jocko Thompson's fine relief pitching.

Golfers Ask For Flashlights As Big Tourney Gets Started

As headlights of cars still flashed along the highway early today, Dave Wilson, Kawartha Golf and Country Club, sleepily eyed the first fairway and then blasted the ball up it at 6:02 a.m. to start the fifth annual Kawartha open for the Calvert trophy.

With Hec Thompson and Bob Green, both of the Peterborough Golf and Country, Wilson formed the first trio to begin play in what is this year's largest amateur golf tournament in Canada.

Before taking his position on the tee, Green looked around the grey, misty Kawartha Golf and Country club course and then said to starter Lionel Brown, a director of the club: "Do they provide us with flashlights?"

Two minutes late starting, the trio worked quickly, bucking a fairly strong northwest wind which shot the grey low clouds across the sky. Well up the fairway by 6:07 the second trio, Tom Montgomery of the Peterborough club, Ed Turner and Ernie Gregson, both of the Kawartha club, teed off allowing the starters to pick up the lost time.

This year's 6 a.m. start is the earliest in the five years of the rich tournament play. Last year's 212 golfers set a record for the first four years by starting play at 7 a.m. but the additional 72 golfers this year forced the dawn-time this year.

Play Three Days

Every seven minutes from 6 a.m. until 4:18 this afternoon, the golfers will be leaving the first tee on the first round of the 54-hole play over today, Sunday and Monday for the $1000 in prizes and the Calvert trophy. It is expected the last golfers will be finishing just as the sun is setting.

A highlight of the early ceremonies was an announcement over the public address system by Mr. Brown. He surprised A. B. Smith, Kawartha Club, by wishing him a happy birthday. With the 6:21 threesome, Smith opened his game with a long drive down the centre of the fairway.

By 7 a.m. the wind had turned to a breeze, allowing the golfers to have a better beginning than their earlier competitors.

Calvert Trophy

At stake this year for the first time is the Calvert gold trophy, together with $150 worth of luggage, for the low gross winner in the first flight, golfers with a handicap from zero to nine. Some of these are Phil Farley, Bobby Fair and Doug McKellar, Toronto; Ernie Bentley, Ottawa; Johnny Koval, Sarnia; Moe Norman and Gordon Ball of Kitchener; Al and Mike Cassity, Toronto St. Georges; Ron Paterson, Hamilton Ancaster; Bill Neithamer, Erie, Pa

Hamilton Chedoke Club, which won the Schneider trophy for team play for the past two years, has 23 entries. If they manage to win it for the third time, it will remain in their possession.

Shrimps Defeat Hurricanes 4-1

The tadpole Shrimps held the Hurricanes back, 4-1, in minor lacrosse at Miller Bowl Friday, and the Petes shot the Lions 8-3 in a peewee game.

Parry alone started the scoring for the Shrimps in the first period and Walling notched the second tally to make the score 2-0. Parry combined with McCarthy for the only score in the second, and McCarthy made the score 4-0 in the third. In a fast, rough last period which saw penalties handed out to Pace and Walling of the Shrimps, the Hurricanes broke the goose-egg with Davis scoring.

Four Goals In First

Peewee Petes ran in four goals in the first period without a reply from the Lions. Ferguson with O'Neil counted the first, then Hunt the second alone and Hawthorne twice unassisted. Hunt and Ferguson both added their second counters as the Petes continued their attack into the second quarter. The Lions finally broke through when Parry took a pass from Patterson to score.

The remainder of the scoring was see-saw. First the Lions scored, Reid, and then the Petes added two; Ferguson, his third, and Hunt, his thir dalso Parry whipped home his second goal for the Hurricanes to finish the scoring.

Plan Championship Series In Lacrosse

Two-game series, goals-to-count, for the city championship in bantam, midget and juvenile lacrosse will be played Tuesday and Thursday nights at Miller Bowl, Walter Murphy announced today. Coaches of the all-star teams in these three brackets will be on hand for these games to select their teams to represent Peterborough.

The schedule for the two nights is identical: 6 p.m., the bantams, American Hotel vs Irwin-Godson; 7:30 p.m., the midgets, Legion vs. Kiwanis; 8.30 p.m., the juveniles, J. K. Hughes vs. Panthers.

Locke Favorite With Mangrum In Tam Tourney

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (AP)—The $20,000 Tam o'Shanter golf circus gets all three rings going at once today and the main attraction is British open champion Bobby Locke, the disappearing man from South Africa.

Locke, in his first American stroking since the 1949 U.S. open and his release from the PGA doghouse shares favoritism with "home pro" Lloyd Mangrum in the All-American Pro Tourney which starts today.

A field of 89 is in the 72-hole pro showdown which launches its first 18-hole round concurrent with the third round of the All-American Women's Open and the second round of the All-American Amateur.

The men's pro contingent includes Mangrum, 1949 winner, Sam Snead, 1950 leading-money winner, and virtually every other name player excepting Ben Hogan.

All Is Forgiven

All is supposed to be forgiven and forgotten regarding Locke's U.S. ban of the PGA on a charge of running out on tourney commitments last summer. The exile was ended last April 15.

Tossing a flip "no comment" to a query on whether he is happy to be cavorting again in American tournaments, Locke said he will return shortly to England and not reappear in this country until the 1951 masters next April.

By copping the $2,500 first prize in the All-American and the whopping $11,000 top swag in the dove-tailed 'world' meet at Tam, starting next Thursday, Locke can make his brief visit work $13,500.

Locke won the 1947 All-American in a playoff with Ed Oliver after each posted a 276. He finished second with 279 behind Mangrum's winning 277 in 1948. Last year with Locke tucked away on the other shore, Mangrum won with 276.

Softball Playoffs Start On Tuesday

East City opens the semi-final playoffs in the Men's Softball League Tuesday night at the Bowl with a doubleheader against the UEW. The series will be a best-in-seven series for the right to meet the Mutuals for the city championship. Thursday night the same teams will meet in the third and fourth games of the series.

Mutuals earned a bye into the finals by finishing the schedule in first place. The UEW were in second and the East City nine third. The Orphans, who were rapidly becoming strong opposition, were in last place.

Entered in the OASA junior playdowns Harold Dormer's Orphans will play a third exhibition game with the Hastings juniors next Wednesday night in Hastings. The Trent Valley team took the first two games.

Scoring Averages Fattened Weston Lions Beaten 20-6

Weston Lions proved poor senior A opposition for Red Creighton's Petes Friday night in Miller Bowl as the locals breezed through to a 20-6 victory. The win allowed the Petes to take full possession of third place in the senior standing by two points.

Late arriving the Lions had only two senior players aboard, veterans Jesse James and Lloyd Gair. The other eight players were from the junior and intermediate Weston teams.

Scored Five Goals

The Petes fattened their scoring averages. Jerry Fitzgerald brought his scoring mark in the last two home games to 15 points as he whipped home five goals and assisted on three others. Arn Dugan, leading the O.L.A. scoring race, racked up five points, three goals and two assists, to add to his 83-point total before the game. Emmett Creighton for the second home night performed the hat trick while teammates Bob Thorpe and Joe Nolan each had two goals.

Bill Knatchbell a junior was called in to fill the vacancy between the pipes and held the Petes off as they streamed through in the first quarter. From close in and far out he outguessed them as his teammates did little to stop the attack. Still the Petes were up 5-2 at the quarter.

While the Petes' offensive increased in the second, their defence also tightened. They slipped through the Weston lines throughout the quarter to push their score up to 14 by the half. Through quick breaks the Lions caught the Petes cold several times and scored twice.

Not wanting to run up too high a score the Petes tried to slow up the game but then the play became ragged. With brief exceptions the Weston Lions seemed tired from lack of reserve strength in the final half. Many of the 1,700 fans began to leave late in the third and early in the fourth quarters. The Petes outscored Weston 4-1 in the third and 2-1 in the fourth.

Tempers flared several times. Jesse James, an old enemy of the Peterborough players, was in the thick of the slashing and pushing throughout as he tried to rally the younger players. Once he was penalized with Dootch Vitarelli for dueling behind the Weston goal after a Petes' rush.

The only casualty was Emmett Creighton, Petes' centre, who was hit square on the nose when pushed receiving a pass. A check revealed no broken bones but a small cut and one large bruise.

Lineups:
Weston—Goal, Knatchbell; defence, Gair, James; centre, Jago; wings, D Chard, Gunn; rover, Thomas; alt. Bunda, W. Chard, Hauert.

Say 2 Players Tiger Property

TORONTO, Aug. 5 (CP). — Eric Cradock says the Interprovincial Football Union thinks Jackie Stewart and Earl Vallquette belong to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

But the president of the Union hastened to add Friday that doesn't mean they're arguing with the Canadian Rugby Union.

The CRU ruled the two players must play with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Senior League because they signed CRU playing certificates. Hamilton claimed they first had signed a contract agreeing to sign a certificate for Tiger-Cats at a later date.

Cradock said the Big Four executive at a meeting Thursday decided Tiger-Cats had a valid claim on Stewart because of a clause in the contract which read, "he will abide by any legal certificate that allows him to play football for that club."

Cradock added: "but that doesn't mean we're telling the CRU their certificate doesn't count . . . The CRU certificate is the only valid certificate.

"However, because of the clause the Tiger-Cats and Stewart may have a legal loophole . . . Should the CRU rule that the Tiger-Cats do not have a legal claim, we'll abide by the CRU ruling."

Proximity Winner In Detroit Debut

DETROIT, Aug. 5 (AP) — Proximity, the harness racing world's "Golden Trotter," made her Detroit debut Friday night and won the $5,000 feature free-for-all trot at the Detroit race track. She was driven by the veteran Clint Hodgins of Clandeboyne, Ont.

The trim-looking eight-year-old mare added $2,250 to her winnings which now total $212,379. She posted a time of 2:04 1-5 for the half-mile course, a record at the motor city track.

Her price was a meagre $2.40, $2.20 and $2.20.

Athletics Lash Tigers 10-8 In Sizzling Tilt

By The Canadian Press

The danger signs are up in the Ontario Senior Lacrosse League—"watch out for St. Kitts."

The Garden City Athletics, hottest team in the league right now, continued their torrid streak Friday with a hard-fought 10-8 victory over Hamilton Tigers. And they did it with the benefit of their usual last-half kick.

Athletics started out like a house afire, and wound up with a 4-1 lead at the end of the first quarter. But Tabbies bounded back and took the lead at the half.

The St. Catharines offensive really picked up steam then, and they wrapped the game up with a four-goal spree in the third quarter. Jim McMahon and Pat Smith were the only Athletics to score twice, while Merv McKenzie and Jack Dorney each had two for Tigers.

Maintain Leadership

Owen Sound Crescents maintained their league-leadership with a 19-13 win over the cellar-dwelling Toronto Riverdales. Sounders took an early lead and were never threatened.

Rusty Slater, Don Campbell and Jack Foote led the Owen Sound attack, while Lorne Howes stood out for Riverdales with four counters.

Brampton Excelsiors had an off night in Mimico, droping a 13-3 decision to the Mounties. Paced by Kenny Dixon, who netted four goals, Mounties moved into an early lead and kept pouring it in throughout.

Archie Browning, Gord Cruickshank and Harry Graham scored for the losers.

Smart Merchants Of 90's Experts In Advertising

BETHANY, Aug. 5 (ENS) — While advertising technique has changed during the past 60 years, there is little reason for believing the 60 years have been marked by progress. What better way to catch the eye than by the handbill of 1890 advertising the Gregory Nilands shoe store, which was at that time one of the flourishing stores of Bethany. The handbill reads:

"Gregory Nilands—Boots and Shoes! I have boots and shoes for everybody! Lumbermen, Farmers and Sportsmen; for Ministers and their Congregations, for Priests and their Flocks; Doctors and their Patients; Lawyers and their Clients; Merchants and their Clerks. Shoes for the fat and shoes for the lean; shoes for the long and shoes for the short. High shoes, low shoes solid shoes, broad shoes, narrow shoes, giddy shoes. Shoe, Shoe, Shoe; Give me a call, and if you are in arrears I will take no offence at a prompt settlement. Gregory Nilands."

There are many other local business names which have faded into history since the 90's. Stores which flourished in those days but are no longer in business, used the followinug advertisements:

McCartney Bros.—Life is Short. Time is Precious. The proprietor is not in, don't know when he will be. Have no money to lend, but borrow all we can. Spit on the floor, spittoons are for our management. Scarfs or suspenders not wanted; got a trunk full of them. No shoes blackened, we wear patent leather. Coffins provided for agents or canvassers. Bulldog in cellar, feed him on pedlars. But if you want one of the best buggies or waggons, cutters or sleighs for the least possible money, go to McCartney Bros., Carriage Makers, Bethany, Ont."

"John F. Benson, Agent for Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machines."

"H. C. Leslie, VS & VD.—Treats all diseases of the domesticated animals in the latest and most approved methods. Calls promptly attended to. Patronage solicited."

"Frank Minns wishes to announce to the farmers of Manvers that he has opened a New Harness Shop in Bethany, where he will keep on hand all sorts of Light and Heavy Harness, Brushes, Curry Combs, Blankets and all goods usually kept in a harness shop, all of which will be sold at the lowest cash figures. A call solicited. Repairing neatly and promptly done."

"F. W. Galbraith—Pay your taxes. Slab wood, Saw Dust and Shavings always on hand. Lumber and Shingles a specialty. Give me a call. F. W. Galbraith."

"Richardson and Hutchinson, Butchers, located in the Staples & Noble Block. Fresh Meats of all kinds in season; Fresh and Salt Fish and Oysters. We pay cash for Hides, Pork and Tallow."

"Bethany Dispensary" — Rich the treasure, sweet the measure, Sweet the pleasure after pain. You purchase pain with all that joy can give and die of nothing but a rage to live. Buy your pain relieving remedies at the Bethany Dispensary."

"Ryley and Preston are in it and are going to stay in it. Look out for their Christmas Display."

"Alfred Ryley — Buy your Christmas presents. Also, young people who wish to be made very happy, ma obtain their object by purchasing a marriage license for the extremely small sum of $2.00 from Alfred Ryley, Bethany, issuer of Marriage Licenses."

"T. Brownley, King Street East, Bethany—Say Johnny, mind you go to T. Brownley's for your flour and groceries. He keeps the best in town. Also, candles, cigars and tobaccos. Shaving parlour in connection."

"Touchburn & Preston — Sell your grain to Touchburn & Preston. Fair treatment and full market value all the year round. Buyers are S. B. Preston, Bethany; James Lytle, Franklin and Samuel Grandy, Omemee."

"C. M. McCarthy—Now for Bargains. Business booming at McCarthy's. Stock complete in Boots and Shoes, Dry Goods, Groceries and Tinware. My ready made clothing is all first class. Call at the Cheap Cash Store and examine prices of C. M. McCarthy, Bethany, Ont."

Charles Reynolds — Cabinet Maker and Undertaker. Keeps on hand a large stock of Undertaker's Supplies; also bed room, and all other kinds of furniture. Lowest prices. Also, agent for good loan companies. . . . Charles Reynolds, Bethany, Ont."

"Thomas Ivory & Sons. — Look here. Ivory's stock of fine dress goods and mantlings is something immense. The best value ever offered to the public. Grand display of millinery and Xmas presents."

"Staples & Noble.—You'll be sorry, if you yo to town with your cash when you can do better with Staples & Noble for hardware, stoves, tinware, hot air furnaces, eave troughing, etc."

BABE DIDRIKSON ZAHARIAS scored a record-breaking six-under-par 36-34—70 in the recent opening in the Tam O'Shanter women's golf tournament at Chicago. She broke her own record of 71 set in the 1948 All-American and earned herself $500.

Roberts Sparks Phillies To Blast Cardinals 4-2

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Robin Roberts looks like the Phillies' first 20-game winner since the good old days of Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Back in 1915, old Alex reeled off 31 wins and the Phils copped their first and only pennant for Pat Moran. Alex repeated with 33 in 1916 and 30 in 1917. But the Phils didn't.

Now comes Roberts, a 23-year-old lad from Michigan State, driving the Phils toward another National League flag.

Roberts hung up his 14th victory Friday night with a five-hitter against St. Louis Cards, 4-2. He took a 27-inning scoreless string into the game and carried it to 33 2-3 before Enos Slaughter hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning. It was a season high of shutout pitching.

Granny Hamner tripled with two on—and two out — in the eighth to score the tie-breaking runs following up singles by Del Innis and Dick Sisler.

Ennis and Sisler also figured in the Phils' two runs in the fourth. Ennis singled and scored on Sisler's double. Dick moved to third on a sacrifice and scored on Andy Seminick's fly.

Brings On Cards

The victory opened a five-game set with the ever-dangerous Cardinals. Eddie Sawyer's hustling kids, winning 16 of their last 22 games, now boast a three-game lead over second-place Boston.

Slaughter was the only man to trouble Roberts in his 15th complete game. Enos added a single and double to his homer but it wasn't enough for the Cards who dropped their seventh game in 10 starts.

Lefty Warren Spahn kept Boston Braves in the hunt with his 14th win, a four-hitter over Chicago, 10-2. The Cubs only runs came in the ninth on two hits and two walks.

Sam Jethroe stole his 28th base during the Braves' six-run uprising in the third that kayoed Bob Rush.

Brooklyn, moving at a seven-of-eight pace, scorched Cincinnati 7-1 for Don Newcombe's 11th win. Two doubles and a single by Pee Wee Reese plus a double and two singles by Carl Furillo led the attack. Five runs came off loser Ken Raffensberger. The other two off Howie Fox.

Helps Giants

Whitey Lockman's bases-loaded single in the eighth helped New York Giants edge Pittsburgh 3-2 for their 11th win in 12 starts. Despite this pace, the Giants remain in fifth place, 10 games off the pace.

Rookie Vern Law took a 2-0 lead into hte eighth but retired in favor of Murry Dickson after a single and two walks filled the bases. Lockman drove in two runs and Henry Thompson knocked in the winner with another single.

Pittsburgh filled the bases with one out in the ninth but Reliefer Dave Koslo made pinch-hitter Ray Mueller hit into a game-ending double play. Sheldon Jones, lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth-inning rally, was the winner.

New York Yankees stopped red hot Cleveland 1-0. Tigers bowed to Washington 5-2 in another gamee on the all-night schedule and Detroit's lead was sliced to two games.

Yanks Regain 2nd Spot

Vic Raschi helped the Yanks regain second place with a dazzling performance before 66,743 fans, biggest night crowd of the major-league season. Raschi, earning his 13th win, allowed three singles.

Bobby Feller wiggled in and out of several tight spots but escaped every time — except the fifth. With one out, Raschi was out at the plate on an attempted squeeze play but Hank Bauer singled off Joe Gordon's glove, scoring Woodling.

After polishing off the Yankees three straight, Tigers ran into its usual trouble with Washington. They murder the Senators at Washington but can't seem to beat them at home. In seven Briggs Stadium games, the Senators have won six. At Washington the Tigers have won seven games without a loss.

Scatters Hits

Bob Kuzava scattered 11 Detroit hits. Ted Gray's home run ball to Sam Mele with two on in the third cost him the ball game.

Chico Carrasquel, hitting safely in his 23rd straight game, scored the winning run in the 10th inning for Chicago's 3-2 nod over Boston.

Sam Chapman hit a grand-slam homer and Ferris Fain homered with two on for Philadelphia's 12-9 decision over St. Louis in the battle for the American League cellar. Don Lenhardt, Roy Sievers and Dick Kokos homered for St. Louis.

Campbellford Bows To Trenton

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 5 — (ENS).—Trenton came out on the top of a 5-4 tally in Campbellford on Friday night, when a ball game that turned out to be a pitcher's duel, saw the Compbellford team bow to defeat.

Campbellford took the lead in the second inning, but Trenton tied it and managed to get one run ahead in the third. It was a game that held the excitement of the fans all the way, and clever pitching on the part of Campbellford's McComb, kept the score as even as it was.

Batteries for Trenton were: Ivan Instead, rf; F. Miron, ss; E. Curtis, 3b; J. Scott, c; Lou Carswell, 1b; M. Jeffrey, lf; A. Scott, cf; H. Farr, p; G. Flynn, 2b; Jordan, spare.

Campbellford's nine were: Hoard, c; G. Bibby, ss; C. Macour, rf; Fralick, 3b; P. O'Sullivan, 1b; B. McComb, p; V. Harrington, 2b; P. Doherty, cf; W. Blake, lf.

Umpires were: plate, Herriot, and bases. O. Hendy.

Outstanding players for Campbellford were Fralick with two safeties, and G. Bibby with a triple and a single. For Trenton, Scott was best hitter.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Miss Canada IV, whose past has lebelled her as one of the biggest busts in power-boat history, is beginning to make noises like a champion.

Trying to live down a long sequence of broken propellor shafts clogged feed-lines and overheated engines that slowed her to a crawl when the chips were down, Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, Ont., drove his sleek contender for international honors in an unofficial test run at Gravenhurst Friday and nudged world-record time.

Wilson said after the run—his second of the day—that his speed was "not far off" the 160.3 miles an hour clocked by Stan Sayres of Seattle last month in his Slo-Mo-Shun.

Wilson hasn't decided whether to take an official crack at Slo-Mo-Shun's mark at Picton, immediately or wait until after he has challenged the United States for the Harmsworth Trophy next month.

The golfing Morland brothers of North Bay scored easy victories Friday to move into one semi-final bracket of the Northern Ontario golf championship at Kirkland Lake.

In the other half of the draw, Frank Wyatt of Beattie Mines meets Elmer Armstrong of Kirkland Lake. Both scored narrow victories today.

Murph Chamberlain, formerly of the Montreal Canadiens signed Friday night to coach the Charlottetown entry in the Maritime Senior Hockey League next season. Announcement of the signing was made following a meeting between the former National Hockey League star and local club officials. At the same time the club announced the Charlottetown team would be known as the P. E. Islanders.

Bud Roulstone of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club won the annual Royals regatta at Toronto Friday by coming home third in the afternoon heat after winning the morning heat on the final day of the six-heat regatta.

Roulstone finished with 36¼ points. In second place was John Robertson of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club with 35¾ points. The Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Club was third with 26, a scant half-point ahead of the Royal St. Lawrence Club of Montreal.

Work Starts On Arena At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Aug. 5. (ENS)—Work has commenced on the Millbrook-Cavan arena. On Tuesday the construction company gang arrived. They have been excavating for piers and building the forms.

It is expected that the cement for the footings will be poured today, and for the piers as soon as they are ready. One load of lumber has arrived for building the trusses and it is expected all the lumber for this part of the work will be here by Aug. 15.

There has been some volunteer labor already, and the committee in charge is hoping there will be much more. All volunteer labor is recorded. It goes into the cost and helps to qualify for the grant.

The government grant is in proportion to the amount contributed locally. The volunteer laborers are not paid, but the time put in is kept track of and added in to the amount raised locally.

Shoots 145

Long-hitting Bobby Gray, Jr., Toronto Scarboro professional, shot a one under par 145 over 36 holes on the tree-lined Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club course Friday to capture the Quebec open golf tournament and the Royal Montreal Golf Club trophy for the fourth time in his career.

Gray put together a morning round of two over par 75 and came home with a 70 to lead a field of 73 golfers, including 36 other professionals.

Gerry Proulx, Montreal Bonniebrook pro, came up with a pair of steady 74's to take second prize money.

Ontario's New Health Minister Would Change Nurses' Training

OWEN SOUND, Aug. 5—(CP)—Ontario's new health minister, Dr. Mackinnon Phillips of Owen Sound, says he would like to see some changes in the systems of nurses' training and of mental disease research.

The 52-year-old medical practitioner, known to hundreds of residents of Owen Sound and district as "Dr. Mac," in an interview Friday described the problem of recruiting nursing students as "appalling."

"We must find some attractive program to bring girls aged 16 to 20 into our hospitals," he said. "If not, we will be in a sorry mess."

He favors separating the practical and the academic phases of nurses' training. A certain period could be spent on the theory of nursing, possibly at the universities, and the students then could concentrate on practical work during their stay at hospitals. This arrangement might reduce the time required, now three years, for the taking of a registered nurse degree.

Higher Degrees

Dr. Phillips also suggested that higher degrees than that of Registered Nurse be made available for nurses. He said degrees for post-graduate work should carry a proportionately higher salary than that now paid.

He believes health authorities in Canada should spend additional time and money on research into mental diseases. Two new hospitals for mental disease cases soon to be opened in Ontario will be filled to capacity.

"Today the number of cases of mental disease far exceeds those of tuberculosis and other chronic diseases," he said.

The friendly physicians who can look back on 25 years of city and rural practice said he favors continuance of Ontario's hospital - construction program. Some economies could be made, he feels, if small hospitals arranged to borrow or share expensive equipment instead of each trying to buy it for itself.

Describes Work

Describing his own work at the time of his appointment, the new minister said:

"I am a general practitioner, doing a bit of surgery and everything else required. And it seems to me that the day of the general practitioner is returning. There is a big place for specialists in medicine, but I think we will be making an awful mistake if we go too far with specialization."

Dr. Phillips was born on a farm in a Dufferin county, 60 or 70 miles southeast of here. He attended Dundalk high school and University of Toronto and did post-graduate work at Harper Hospital in Detroit. He practised at Chatsworth before moving to Owen Sound. He and his wife, a graduate of Fort William's McKellar Hospital, have a son, Jim, 20, and a daughter, Madge, 17.

Stock Markets Record Higher Average

By FRANK KAPLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock markets this week climbed to the highest average price levels since the outbreak of fighting in Korea six weeks ago.

Prices advanced steadily, continuing the strong gains of the two previous weeks. Generally they have recovered most of the sharp losses suffered in the three weeks after start of the Koran war.

Observers had expected some technical reaction prior to the Korean war but were surprised by sharpness of the break when it came June 26.

New York climbed slightly Monday as selective demand boosted aircraft, rubber and automotive stocks. The list came from behind Tuesday with aircrafts favorites, but dipped Wednesday for the first time in seven sessions.

The late buying flurry boosted selected issues Thursday and continued Friday. But the gentle rises pulled prices to a six-week peak.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed Friday at 76.7, highest since June 23 and a gain of 1.5 from the previous Friday.

Canadian markets deflected Wall Street movements. Demand appeared for golds late in the week following recent week of decline. News of a revaluation of France's gold reserves sparked buying in producing golds.

Slowest In Year

Activity was the slowest in about a year on Canadian exchanges. Volume in Toronto totalled 3,241,000 shares compared with 4,346,000 shares in the previous week.

Demand was steady on the industrial board. Selected Paper, Utility, Steel and Agriculture stocks paced a slow advance to six-week-high levels. The exchange's index of representative industrial issues gained 5.555 from the previous Friday.

The late buying in golds boosted the gold index by 4.54, and Base Metals gained .61. Western Oils pulled out of a narrow price rut to add 2.51.

Papers highlighted a firmer Montreal market, gaining 16.30 on the averages. Other changes were: Banks off .12; Utilities off .2; Industrials up 2.8; Combined up 1.8; Golds up 1.35. Industrial volume was 216,633, as gainst 210,584, and Mines, 881,112, as against 814,958.

Grain markets declined for a second successive week. In Chicago, September wheat, corn, oats and rye showed losses ranging up to six cents. In Winnipeg, October ry dipped and barley held firm.

MEN OF THE FIRST BATTALION of the British Army's Wiltshire Regiment embark on the Empire Trooper this week. They are en route to Singapore to reinforce that base where the regiment commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. J. R. Welshman and an advance party are already installed.

Graders Collide At Trenton, Driver Killed

TRENTON, Aug. 5 —Collision of two heavy, slow-moving scraper-graders at the Trenton air station killed one driver Friday. The second escaped uninjured.

The graders were digging up a new runway at the RCAF airdrome and had piled a mound of earth so high it blinded the vision of both drivers. Howard Phillips of Gilmour, driver of one, was jolted from his seat and fractured his skull on the steel grader. He died instantly, according to Provincial Constable I. E. Tinkees. Fred Rallison of Trenton, driver of the second, was unhurt.

Dr. E A. McQuade has ordered an inquest for Aug. 10.

Frost Discusses Flood Control

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 — (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said Friday night that he had discussed with Prime Minister St. Laurent such things as flood control, forest conservation and national defence and other things and added "these days are too big for small bickering."

The premier said in an interview that Ontario seeks to be "co-operative" with the federal government. These were "perhaps the most serious times in the history of the world."

Mr. Frost arrived Friday night with Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. He plans to make a quick tour of Eastern Ontario beginning today.

Mr. Frost said that Ontario will build power lines in the counties of Prescott and Russell and will also service Glengarry and announced that the Ontario part of the Ottawa-to-Montreal highway is to be modernized.

Escape In Crash

MONTREAL, Aug. 5—(CP)—The pilot and three passengers of a Seabee amphibious plane escaped uninjured today when their aircraft overturned after making a forced landing in a field in suburban town of Mount Royal. The plane tipped over after running into a ditch following the emergency landing.

Order 10-Cent Boost In CAS Ward Rates

KINGSTON, Aug. 5 (CP). — An increase of 10 cents a day in the rate paid by 12 municipalities for maintenance of wards of the Kingston Children's Aid Society was ordered Friday by Magistrate James B. Garvin.

The increase boosts the rate to $1.10 a day. The children are wards of the Kingston society who formerly lived in other communities. Affected are Kingston, Toronto, St. Thomas, Trenton, Brantford and the counties of Frontenac, Prince Edward, Welland, Renfrew, Leeds and Grenville and Lennox and Addington.

The order is retroactive to July 26.

To Join Squadron

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 —(CP)— RCAF headquarters said Friday 165 air men will leave Ottawa, Edmonton and other points during the weekend for Tacoma, Wash. They will join 426 Squadron based at McHord air field and flying supplies across the Pacific. Headquarters said the men were ground crew for servicing the six aircraft on the airlift.

S. Africa Offers Fighter Squadron

PRETORIA, Aug. 5 (Reuters) —The South African Government has decided to offer a regular air force fighter squadron with ground crews to aid United Nations forces in Korea.

A cabinet statement indicated a special session of the Union Parliament may be necessary to authorize additional expenditure for a further program of modernization and expansion of South Africa's armed forces.

The cabinet said the government had kept in touch with the United States to find out whether assistance other than military aid could be given.

Seek Another Bonus From BC Government

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 5 (CP) —Another bonus, costing the province about $1,000,000 annually, will be sought by British Columbia government employees should the Canadian cost-of-living index rise another 4.5 points.

Civil servants were definite on this point when they heard Friday about the latest increase of 2.1 points, making the index 167.5.

They received their last bonus in October, 1949, when the index was 162. And they have an agreement with the government that additional bonuses be paid at every 10 point rise in the index, although Premier Byron Johnson was reported to have said the last bonus was final.

Made First Car In Canada Dr. Good Now 80

COLLINGWOOD, Aug. 5 — Hale and hearty at 80, Dr. Milton Hosea Good, one of the two Good brothers who manufactured the first automobile in Canada back in 1900, is now living in retirement at Wasaga Beach.

When Dr. Good and his wife, the former Jean Sheriffs, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary here recently, he recalled the day when his late brother, Nelson, bade the first trip from Kitchener to Brown City, Mich., in the first horseless carriage built in Canada.

Dr. Good was born in Waterloo in 1870, of Pennsylvania Dutch stock. He attended school in Waterloo and, after attending college at Northwestern and Eolbian, came back to Waterloo and became interested in the gasoline engine, with his brother Nelson, who was an electrical expert.

Two Cylinder Car In 1900.

"By 1900 we had developed a two cylinder air cooled engine and I'll never forget our first long trip from Kitchener (then Berlin) to Brown City, Mich.

"Using gasoline for power, castor oil for lubrication, and six-day dry cells for ignition, we sped along the road at the then startling speed of 12 miles per hour. It was a high tension ignition distributor and on damp days if a person placed a hand on the fender it was just too bad. The shock would knock them back a few feet.

"It was during a very hot spell when we commenced our first trip," Dr. Good said. "The first big hill presented real difficulty and we stepped up the engine to full speed in order to make the grade. As the car reached about three-quarters the way up the grade, a man, buggy and horse appeared over the top and although we waved and shouted he kept coming. My brother had a fear of horses running away so he stopped the machine. I got out and took the horse by the bridle with the intention of leading him by the car. He immediately reared up and brought both hoofs down on top of me. I ducked my head out of the way but his left shoe caught my coat and ripped it from top to bottom.

"I was plenty mad but the driver of the buggy was exceedingly pleased and pointed out that the horse showed remarkable intelligence in doing what he did under the circumstances. This event took place on the New Hamburg hill and I remember helping Nelson to push the vehicle up the rest of the way. Every once in a while the ignition would go haywire and we know the distributor was on the bum again. Ignition gave us trouble fifty years ago and ignition is still the main source of trouble today. It is far from being perfected yet. I still think we should use some diesel principles and perhaps change the engine also.

"At that time our carburetor was made by suspending wires into the gas; this allowed a space above the gas for air to pass through to the engine.

"We drove a lot at night because the engine gave more power. When we arrived at Sarnia and drove onto the ferry the immigration officials looked us over and decided that it was a machine. They placed us O.K. and our machine was the first automobile to cross the border. Contrary to the general belief, the first automobile crossed from Canada to the United States, not from the U.S. to Canada.

"The customs officials told us that we must leave security for our return. We were up a tree for a while but a hotel manager signed for us and the officials reluctantly let us go. There were no paved roads in Detroit at that time and the machine made a great commotion over the wooden blocks but it was better than that muddy road from Port Huron to Detroit.

Engine Seized Up Three Times

"The engine seized up three times on the trip and each time we had to pull off to the side of the road and take the engine apart and treat the piston rings with coal oil. A set of dry cells took us about forty miles and we had quite a time procuring them along the way. In one place a policeman roused a hardware merchant at midnight for dry cells but there wasn't a dry cell in town. That electrically-minded brother of mine was not beaten, however, and we rooted out the electrician at the town's electric light plant. When my brother asked the electrician if we could charge our batteries he reminded us that the plant operated on alternating current. Nelson agreed, but pointed out that he had an exciter for the alternator which is direct current. The electrician said, 'Well, go ahead; you fellows seem to know all about it'. Those batteries were charged and we got home on them. Remember, those batteries were dry cells."

Still Interested In Cars

Dr. Good is still very much interested in automobiles and follows all the latest developments. He still is of the opinion that we have a long way to go before ignition is completely mastered.

"Take all these airplane accidents. It is not the fault of the engines. The engines are wonderful and near perfect, but the fault lies in the ignition. We must make it better," he stated.

After the trip to Brown City the Dodge Brothers formed what was called the American Motor Car Company of Kitchener on King and Water Streets and the company turned out 25 cars.

"I do not remember who bought the very first car but the second one was purchased by Jacob Kaufman, grandfather of the present head of the Kaufman Rubber Company. The fourth or fifth car was sold to Mr. Watson in the town of Stayner," said Dr. Good.

Dr. Good recalled the first test and remembered how the thin, hard rubber tires flew off when the vehicle turned the first corner. "Right away we got down to the business of correcting this error and a few weeks later we staged a race with three of our cars around a circular track and the people thought we were real dare-devils."

The Good brothers' first automobile sold at $600 but the venture was not a financial success. "Canada was not ready for the automobile at that time and I think we would have made a real go of the company had we gone to Detroit when we had the opportunity. At one time Olds of the Oldsmobile Company was interested in our company but we decided to carry on by ourselves and manufacture the machines in Kitchener," he said.

Asks For Delay

MONTREAL, Aug. 5—(CP)—Francesco Salvo, Italian radio announcer, enter a writ of habeas corpus in superior court Friday asking for a delay to settle his affairs before the Immigration Department deport him to his native country on charges of overstaying his leave in Canada.

To Start Immediately On Four-Mile Dike

ERIEU, Aug. 5 (CP).—Immediate start on construction of a four-mile dike along the shore of Lake Erie from near Erie Beach to Erieu at an estimated cost of $300,000 was announced Friday by E M. Warwick, defeated Conservative candidate in East Kent.

Mr. Warwick, in a long-distance interview with Premier Frost and Highways Minister Doucett, learned that the Ontario contribution of $100,000 will be forthcoming immediately.

Earlier the Federal government and Kent county announced each would contribute $100,000, making the total of $300,000.

They are known as Burke's drainage area, is frequently threatened by Lake Erie water.

Fastest Freighters

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 5 — (AP)—Three new lake freighters to be built soon for the Pittsburgh Steamship Company, a United States Steel subsidiary, will be the largest and fastest in its fleet of 61 ships, President W. C. Hemingway announced Friday. Hemingway said the new 18,000-ton capacity ore carriers will have an over-all length of 646 feet and 11 inches, beam of 70 feet and depth of 36 feet. They are expected to cost more than $5,000,000 each.

He's Special Guest

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 —(CP)— A Swedish air cadet, Carl Lennart Persson of Stockholm, will visit Canada this month as a special guest of the Air Cadet League, it was announced here Friday. He will study Canada's air cadet movement for the information of Swedish air authorities.

Released On Bail

MONTREAL, Aug. 5—(CP)—Jack Wagner, 28, and Keith Pearson, 27, charged with murdering Aaron Marks during a fracas in a "blind pig" here eight weeks ago, were released on $10,000 and $5,000 bail, respectively Friday.

Miraculous Escape

SUDBURY, Aug. 5—(CP)—Leo Marier, 32, a construction laborer, fell from a bridge Friday and a 200-pound tile pipe fell on top of him. In hospital, attendants said he had only a slightly-bruised shoulder.

The building in the right background, Trinity Church Sunday School for some years, is now Beth Israel Syndgogue.

Peterborough Churches in Review

Murray St. Baptist

Murray St. Baptist Church is the daughter of Gilmour Memorial Church, so named in honor of its founder, the late Rev. John Gilmour.

A history of this church is involved with this personage whose name is a household word in the memory of many of the older citizens. Gilmour came to Canada in 1837, sent here by the New England Company to take charge of the welfare of the Rice lake and Chemong lake Indians.

While performing his duties he did not neglect the white settlers and in the first five years of his work he established the church that bears his name. Not content with this progress he contributed land on Aylmer St., now the Gillespie garage, to the value of £50 for the erection of a Baptist church chapel in Peterborough.

A building was erected to serve as the first meeting place for Baptists.

Soon the work outgrew the small building and it was found necessary to expand into larger quarters. The trustees purchased the building of the Bible Christians on Murray St., now the Legion Hall. They improved the building at a cost of $8,000.

In 1910 an ambitious building and expansion project was undertaken. One of the first steps was to purchase the site upon which the present church on Murray St. is. The structure cost $65,000 and is now estimated at $250,000 in value.

To the Rev. John Clifford went the honor of laying the cornerstone. The celebration was held on June 29, 1911. It was opened a year later in May with the Rev. O. P. S. Trotter and Professor Gilmour in charge.

The churches is of old English style in grey stone with interior decorations finished in harmony with the exterior. It suffered a rather serious fire in the twenties which did extensive damage to the organ and the auditorium. It was renovated and the damage repaired.

The ministers of the church have been John Gilmour, Edward Roberts, Charles Carroll, E. J. Stobo Sr., W. M. Walker, P. C. Parker, John Trotter, Jothan Basto, J. R. Webb and Dr. C. W. Rose.

The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe was called to the church as pastor in 1929 and in 1946 accepted a call to a church in Auburn, New York. He was succeeded by the present minister the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan who came from the MacNeill Memorial Baptist Church in Hamilton.

St. George's Anglican

The idea of inaugurating an English mission church in the southend of the city was the outcome of conversations between Canon Davidson, the Rector of Peterborough, Archdeacon Warren and the Bishop of Toronto. The culmination was the present St. George's Anglican Church.

Rev. J. H. Price was appointed the first missioner. Fifty-one were present at the inaugural outside service in J. D. Manley's garden at the corner of Lock and Braidwood Sts. on July 7, 1912. Mr. Manley also loaned the chairs and piano for the occasion. At the close of the meeting the question was discussed whether an organized church mission should be founded.

The next Sunday the group met and at a meeting after the service temporary church officers were elected, W. G. Howden, people's warden, J. D. Manley, the rector's warden, A. Cuffe, William H. Andrews, Fred Holmes, sidesmen.

At the same meeting the people decided to seek a place to worship. An old shed in the Exhibition Grounds was secured and the first service was held July 21, 1912.

The occupation of the shed ended Sunday evening September 1 as the building was required for the exhibition. For the next two Sundays the meetings were again held at Mr. Manley's this time indoors.

During those two weeks the congregation looked for a permanent building. At the last moment they purchased the Union Mission Church at Crawford's Grove which was no longer in use. It was then moved to the present site on Braidwood Ave. which was donated by T. H. Hooper of All Saints' Church.

After alterations were made the church was officially opened on November 3, 1912. The Rev. Price was officially esesesesses Price who was rector of the church closed his ministry in May 1920 and for the next six months the Rev. F. Elliott Baker was rector. For four years the congregation was led in worship by the Rev. W. R. Courage.

In June 15, 1924 the Rev. J. L. Hughes succeeded Mr. Courage and stayed until 1935. Since then the rectors have been the Rev. T. S. Gault and the Rev. T. H. Floyd. The present incumbent is the Rev. E. C. Moore.

St. Luke's Anglican

Through the exertions and liberality of the Rev. Mark Burnham, BA, the parish of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, was formed. He provided the site and aided in its erection.

The present parish was set apart as a mission July 1, 1876, and the first service was held July 9, the bishop of Toronto, the Rt. Rev. Dr. Bethune, officiating, and the first incumbent, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, preaching in the evening. The first building erected was a small schoolroom.

The first vestry meeting was attended by Mr. Bradshaw, Mr. Burnham, H. T. Strickland, Jacob Friend, A. Ingram, William Mills, J. Z. Rogers, G. C. Rogers and A. H. Peck. It was then decided to name the church "St Luke the Evangelist."

The schoolhouse soon failed to meet the needs of the congregation and at a meeting September, 4, 1876, it was decided to build a new church. A committee of Mr. Burnham, H. T. Strickland, Mark Curtis and John Burnham was formed to attend to the plans.

The first wardens were: H. T. Strickland, people's warden, and John Burnham, rector's warden, an office which he held for 21 years. G. C. Rogers was the first vestry clerk.

The foundation stone was laid on Ascension Day, May 10, 1877, at a special service. The church was opened on September 23, 1877, and subsequently consecrated in May, 1878, all debts being removed.

In 1880 a pipe organ was placed in the church with H. J. Hallet as organist. In that year steps were taken to raise funds for the building of a parsonage. The efforts were successful and the first rector was able to occupy the brick parsonage in 1881.

Through the liberality of the congregation an endowment was raised and the parish constituted a rectory. The first incumbent, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, was inducted by the Bishop of Toronto on October 26, 1884.

In 1885 the schoolroom was torn down, it being found too small for the number of Sunday School scholars. A new building was started with the laying of the cornerstone by John Burnham in 1885. By 1886 the new chancel was built and opened on December 12 by Rural Dean Allen of Millbrook, who was special preacher for the day.

Mr. Bradshaw was granted leave of absence in 1888 due to ill-health, and during the following year the Rev. George Warren was placed in charge. Mr. Bradshaw returned in 1889, but resigned a year later, to be succeeded by the Rev. J. W. McCleary. Owing to poor health, Mr. McCleary resigned in 1892, and his place was filled by the Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds. In 1901 Dr. Symonds was chosen as headmaster of Trinity College School. During the summer months of that year the Rev. R. A. Sims was in charge. The Rev. E. A. Langfeldt accepted the appointment as rector in September, 1901.

Dr. Langfeldt's resignation took place at Easter, 1911, and the Rev. F. J. Sawers was chosen rector. Mr. Sawers served four years and was succeeded by the Rev. W. H. White in February, 1915.

The Rev. George J. Bousfield succeeded Mr. White in 1921, and was rector until his sudden death 21 years later. The Rev. A. J. Arthur, now at Coldwater, was priest-in-charge until the present rector, the Rev. Walter J. Gilling, joined the congregation in 1946.

Trinity United

Trinity United Church is closely connected with George Street Church, dating back to 1873. Then the congregation of George Street Church was increasing in number and taxed the capacity of the building, so it was decided to form a new congregation to be known as Charlotte Street Methodist Church.

A site was secured at the corner of Charlotte and Reid Streets. There a building facing on Charlotte Street was erected.

In 1873, the cornerstone was laid and the work on the building was pushed with all haste for the opening on December 7, 1873.

The formal opening of the new Sunday School was held on September 20, 1891. This school was built as a wing to the original church and faced Reid Street, and is now the Jewish Synagogue.

Like other churches in the city it outgrew its capacity and in May, 1913, a decision was made to build a new church. It was to be erected on the Aaron Cox property at the head of Simcoe Street. The architects were Burke, Howard & White of Toronto, with a F. Bartlett as the resident superintendent. The building committee was headed by W. G. Morrow, with Robert Neill as treasurer, the Rev. J. P. Wilson as pastor, and R. F. Downey as recording steward.

The corner stone was laid in the afternoon of September 22, 1914, by H. C. Cox of Toronto. The church was formally dedicated January 2, 1916. The Trustee Board at this historical event was R. J. Kidd, W. G. Morrow, Dr. F. C. Neal, His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, W. C. Switzer, W. D. Campbell, A. B Cunningham, and Robert Neill Pastors since then have been: Rev. J. P. Wilson, Rev. F. E. Mallott, Rev. A. J. Langford, Rev. David Wren, Rev. F. M. Wooten, Rev. Dr. George S. Easton, and the present Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon.

Park St. Baptist

Park St. Baptist Church looks to a pioneer parent church for its birth. This church, erected to look after the growing needs of the southern section of the city, was in the first place founded as a mission of Murry St. Baptist Church. It continued in that capacity until 1895.

In 1895 the congregation adopted the name of Park St. Church when it decided to become a separate congregation. Large extensions and improvements were made to the property after it became an integral body.

The Rev. John Potter, who was then pastor at Murray St. Church, presided at the first services of the congregation. After the election of officers the congregation chose J. W. Pady to fill the pastorship. Mr. Pady was then at McMaster University and did not come to the congregation until the close of the term. His pastorate continued until April 1896.

James Chapman supplied for the summer of 1896 until the Rev. Mr. Trapscott was called. He remained only a few months. The Rev. O. C. Elliott was pastor from 1897 to June 1901 when he was succeeded by J. H. Hannah. He in turn was succeeded at the close of his ministry by the Rev. A. H. Bruce.

Rev. Bruce's ministry was one of the most successful up to that time. During his time until 1908 he baptized 105 persons, and solemnized 40 marriages. He doubled the congregation. The congregation so prospered that the first building became inadequate and in 1908 a new building was erected and opened.

Pastors since then have been the Reverends Riddiford, Connors, Douglas Brown, William Morrow, N. R. McLeod, James L. Harton, G. K. Tyler and C. C. Boyter. The present pastor is the Rev. C. C. Whan.

Knox United

A suggestion by two women in 1872 developed into the erection of Knox Church in 1907.

This church was one of the first churches established to meet the rapid growth of the city. In 1872 an Interdenominational Ladies' Visiting Association was formed in the city. The two women appointed to the south of Charlotte St. reported that part of the city lacking in a religious meeting place, especially for Sunday School work.

The only unoccupied building they could find in that section was a stable on the east side of Aylmer St. between Charlotte and King Streets. Actually it was the original Peterborough Presbyterian Church. The owner allowed the use of this building for the purpose of a Sunday School.

After renovations were made in May 1872 the doors were opened with T. W. Nesbitt as its first superintendent and nine children were in attendance.

In 1873 the school had outgrown its quarters and a new place had to be found. A vacant lot on Dalhousie St. between Stewart and Rubidge Streets was available and its owner, Walter Patterson granted it to the trustees for 20 years for $1.

By donations and subscriptions a building was erected and the school was conducted under the leadership of W. W. Johnson. The work continued under Mr. Johnson until 1892 when the workers were informed that the lease had expired and the property was desired for other purposes.

The property now occupied by Knox church was purchased but due to objections from the Presbytery the work was abandoned and lay dormant for 10 years. Then in 1902 the subject was brought up after a committee from St. Paul's church investigated the situation. A building committee was composed of R. E. Wood, W. G. Ferguson, T. A. S. Hay, William Madill, J. W. Bennett, Robert Harrison, Adam Hall, James Gillespie, J. H. Rogers and J. H. Connal.

It was then St. Paul's Mission and was opened as such with the Rev. J. A. Wilson as minister and assistant at the parent church. The Sunday School was under the guidance of James Hall. The first communion service was held in March 1904.

The next step was in that some month when St. Paul's church guaranteeing expenses, the congregation became a separate mission station.

On Oct. 25, 1906 a recommendation from the Presbytery to become an entirely separate congregation was accepted and became recognized on January 1, 1907. The Rev. H. J. Keith was called as first pastor and was inducted on April 11, 1907.

Further enlarging was required in January of 1909 and several large donations encouraged the erection of a new building. On Sunday, April 16 the cornerstone was laid for the $23,000 church by His Honor Col. J. M. Gibson, the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

The church was opened for worship on Sunday, December 11, 1910 with the Rev. Dr. D. B. Marsh of Springville, moderator of the Presbytery, conducting the services. Ministers since then have been Revs. H. J. Keith, James A. MacKenzie, M. C. McKinnon, William McDonald, S. J. MacCormack, V. E. R. Zufelt, H. J. Mahoney and the present minister since 1947, the Rev. H. G. Douglas.

In 1925 the congregation of the church voted to become part of the United Church of Canada.

Moral Foundations Require Constant Safeguarding

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

One hundred years or more before the great eran and succession of Hebrew prophets began with Amos and Hosea, two memorable prophets, Elijah and Elisha had appeared in Israel.

There is no "Book of Elijah," or "Book of Elisha," as there are books of other prophets, nor is there much record of what these prophets said; but there is a great deal about what they did, and about what they represented as the champions of purity in religion during a time of evil kings and much corruption among the people.

The story of Elijah and Elisha differs considerably from that of the later prophets in the extent to which it is permeated with miraculous and wonder-working incidents. Some of these incidents ought to be read in the light of the New Testament

When James and John wanted Jesus to call down fire from heaven and consume villagers who had used him inhospitably, as Elijah had done to the messengers of Ahab, Jesus had replied. "Ye know not what spirit ye are of." And the picture of Jesus blessing the little children is strangely and beautifully in contrast with that of Elisha, cursing the children who mocked him.

However one may regard such incidents, these earlier prophets were like their later successors in their moral earnestness, their fearlessness in rebuking evil, and in the intensity of their devotion to the integrity and welfare of Israel.

One misses in the entrancing story of their lives and deeds, as told in the Book of Kings, the grandeur and richness of their supreme prophetic vision of the God of the whole world. Fearless in their rebuke of evil, they found plenty of evil to rebuke.

Their story is interwoven with that of kings as typified by King Ahab, who stood between a line of evil predecessors and successors. And to the weakness of the kings was added the strength in evil of the fanatical and ruthless idolatress, Jezebel, whose name has become a byword for wickedness in women.

It should ever be borne in mind that the prophets' concern for purity or religion was not related just to ritual observance or their conception of one religion as against another. Idolatry meant corruption and impurity of life The various references to sodomites in the record is an indication of the moral depravity against which the prophets fought.

Much of the glory of Israel's integrity in that ancient world is associated with the higher moral conceptions relating to family life, and the relation of the sexes The Old Testament records much concerning romantic love.

But such moral conceptions and foundations needed constant safeguarding, as they do in our modern world. The devotees of Baal, under various other names, are still with us. Those who are on the Lord's side have much to learn, and much inspiration to find, from the example of the morally earnest and fearless Elijah. The incidents of his life have become rich symbols of zeal for God, and God's ways for man

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CI. No. 30 SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1950

A SHORTAGE OF CEMENT is hitting Peterborough and large and small projects alike are suffering. The men standing about in the UPPER LEFT photo have poured the cement mixture which used the last bag of cement owned by the W. A. Bennett Construction Co. which is paving Park Street, and will have to wait for more cement before starting on Monaghan Rd. The Peterborough Block Supply shown BELOW it has a good supply of cement blocks, but only enough cement for one day's production. The city has enough cement to finish the sidewalk on Gillespie St. shown in the CENTRE, the Maria St. sewer and Park St. drain. In the picture at RIGHT, Bud Bullerick (left) and Harold Dunk of the Bennett Construction Co. are using the last barrow of cement on the Park St. curb. In the LOWER, mixed cement is being poured to form a manhole at the Maria St. sewer. Pictured from left to right are Ron Deck, William Peacock, Joseph Harris and Bob Dundas.—(Examiner Staff Photos.)

Hon. T. L. Kennedy To Open Peterborough's Exhibition, First Fair Held In 1845

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, will open Peterborough's Exhibition of its centennial year on Thursday, Aug. 24. "Exhibition time is only two weeks away, and we are all set for it, with prospects of the best all around show we have ever had," said G. A. Gillespie, manager-secretary, today. "We can tell Col. Kennedy when he visits us that our organized agricultural and industrial fair is older than our organized municipality. I looked up the records a year ago, after the Millbrook fair centenary, and I found that the old Peterborough fair was first held in 1845."

"But, we are not looking back into the past, we are concerned with this present year, and the directors here have every reason to expect generous support from the people of the city and district!

"We have house-cleaned all the buildings, dusted and fumigated them. The grounds never looked better, and our entire establishment is in first class shape. We have had six men working for the last three weeks."

Two Displays From England

"Booth space is practically all taken. It includes two displays from England as a result of the visit last fall of the British trade representative who was luncheon guest of the city council.

"Live stock entries are already coming in. Several of the early enquiries for show space were not here last year, and I think they are newcomers to our Exhibition.

"Guernsey cattle is a new class, and our baled hay competition with $100 as top prize should bring in a lot of entries. We hope that our own district farmers who have taken off a good hay crop will not overlook this feature.

"We should have the finest flower show in our history. The Peterborough Horticultural Society cancelled their annual summer show this year to concentrate on the display at the Exhibition.

"Wednesday, Aug. 23, is Children's Day. They are admitted free to the grounds on that day, and I expect that all the youngsters of town and country will be with us."

"The grandstand attractions for them, and also for the adults, include: Three Troubadours playing guitar, violin and accordion; Zena Cheevers, Canadian dance soloist; Joe Murphy, impersonator and master of ceremonies; Paul Mason and Pets, a canine revue; Ken Good and his band; The Nicklings, equilibrists on horizontal bars; Bobo, Ifi and Erno in comedy capers; Sky High Thriller, acrobatics high in the air.

"Junior Farmers' Day is Thursday with boys and girls competing from Ontario, Durham, Victoria, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward and Peterborough counties.

"Their competitions are arranged and supervised by Frank C. Paterson and his assistant, R. E. Bell, with the agricultural representatives from the other counties. We leave that section of the Exhibition in their hands, and I think they expect close to 200 juniors. The program for the boys is at the Exhibition grounds and for the girls at market hall.

"Mr. Gordon S. Matthews, of Canada Packers, is looking after the banquet for all the juniors at the Empress Hotel at the end of the day."

HON T. L. KENNEDY Ontario's Minister of Agriculture who will open the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition which is being held this year from August 22 to 26 Mr. Kennedy will attend on Thursday August 24.

$3,000 For Horse Races

Mr. Gillespie also stressed the horse races beginning Thursday afternoon and continuing with two events carded for each afternoon and evening closing with the featured $400 free-for-all Saturday night. Total purse money allotted by the directors is $3,000. Charlie Quinlan is chairman of the race committee.

John Kitney is chairman of the special hay competition. With him are Harold Ball, Cliff Curtis, Ernie McWilliam, Stewart Hall and Norman MacMurchy. First prize is $100; 2nd $50; 3rd $25, and twelve prizes of $10 each.

MR. KING'S BOOKS

The names of the two books mentioned by Rev. Ian Burnet of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, as having been a strengthening influence to the late Mackenzie King were: Professor Streetor's 'Reality' and Sir James Barrie's "Margaret Ogilvy", with the Bible.

Islinda Sold To Wreckers Engine Becomes Scrap Metal

The Islinda is finally going to rest. But her engine may live on as part of the oil pipe line from Edmonton.

Scrap dealer Hyman Albert bought the engine recently from the Young family of Young's Point, and is cutting it up for sale as scrap. Some of it, he said, may go into the pipe-line from Edmonton to the Great Lakes.

When he heard this news, Captain Fred Young, who captained the Islinda for 25 years, said "I wish I hadn't found that out. That was the sweetest little machine that ever was on these waters.

"That was a special engine, and it was built by the Bertram Engine Works in Toronto. They aren't there any longer You know, you could sit in the engine room of that boat and whisper, and that machine wouldn't drown out your voice. You couldn't hear that boat coming, either."

Captain Young won't be the only sad one. Many still have memories of excursions on the Islinda — cruising through the rocky islands of Stony Lake and the shores of Buckhorn Lake.

The Islinda was the last of the excursion boats on the Kawarthas. She and her partner, the Stony Lake, were a famour pair.

But while the Islinda is heading for the scrap pile, the Stony Lake continues to sail Canadian waters. Sold several years ago to the Thousand Islands Navigation Company in Kingston, a year ago she was re-sold to a Montreal firm, and is now believed to have become a floating bar.

Workers will soon be dismantling the Islinda's hull for the sake of the bolts and oak planks, and the oak keel, part of which came from the keel of the old Mary Ellen, built in 1887.

The Islinda was actualy the second boat of that name. The Majestic was re-built and widened about 1897 and re-named the Islinda. About 10 years later, the Majestic was taken off the lakes and the Islinda built.

Now there are no excursion boats sailing the Kawarthas. There won't be any hooting whistles to bring back nostalgic twinges of the old cruises.

Next week, the junk men are going to scrap the Islinda's boiler.

Can You Spare A Bag of Cement?

Cement Shortage Slows Up Work In City Street Paving Awaits Curbs And Gutters

"Cement? We haven't any," said building supplier Harold Rehill Friday.

Big and little builders alike throughout the city have been finding for the last two weeks that they were unable to get any cement or have managed to acquire a few bags by scrounging around.

The W. A. Bennett Construction Co. which has the city street paving contract used its last bag which it borrowed from the city Friday. Foreman Jack Glover said he was laying off his whole crew.

He hopes that Tuesday after the holiday weekend a shipment of cement will arrive so he can start on the Monaghan Rd. stretch, the next part of the job.

If no cement arrives his work is at a standstill. His men put the finishing touches on the cement curbs on Park St. north of McDonnel St. Friday. Paving this street can now begin. But unless more cement arrives, the rest of this year's work will be seriously delayed. Cement curbs and gutters must be laid before asphalt paving can be put down.

City Also Short

The city has between 400 and 500 bags and hopes that a shipment of 1,000 bags will come in next week.

The city engineer's office has several jobs which require cement. The smallest of these jobs is the Maria St. sewage pipe The only cement foreman George Morency needs for that job is enough for about four more mannoles and enough to seal together the lengths of cement tile for about 1000 feet which will finish the job.

The Park St. drain will also require its share of cement. Work has begun at the extreme southern end, but no cement has been used yet. On the north side of Gillespie St. which runs west of Monaghan Rd. south of Lansdowne St. one long block of sidewalk has been laid. Friday, two lonely workmen were laying forms for the second block.

An official of the city engineer's department said the department had enough cement to go on for the present.

Small Builder Hardest Hit

Hardest hit are the people building their own houses and needing approximately 175 to 200 bags of cement for the footing, foundation and basement floor.

One such man, Granton Clarke, is building his home in Smith township on the extension of Fairburn St. north of the northwest section of the city.

But he is luckier than most.

"I just got under the wire," he said. He explained S. Bebee Jr., had been able to scrape up just enough cement for his job and the foundation was finished Tuesday. His next door neighbour Gerald St. Jean is not so fortunate. He has his excavation dug, but as far as Mr. Clarke knows, he hasn't been able to round up any cement.

"Maybe he'll use cement blocks, but perhaps there's a shortage of them too," Mr. Clarke commented.

One Day's Production

At the Peterborough Block Supply, there is enough cement for one day's production of blocks. The plant employees are on holidays until Tuesday. Unless more cement is delivered before then, there won't be much for them to do when they return to work.

The plant received a shipment last week and has had none since. They have a good supply of cement blocks on hand at various stages of aging.

The new city hall, for which the excavation is well advanced now, will not be effected. When asked about a supply of cement, contractor Hubert Eastwood said, "We're okay."

W. H. Mortlock, the contractor who is building an addition to the Prince of Wales School on Monaghan Rd. and two apartment buildings said the situation is 'very tight."

Blames Hoarding

He has completed the foundations of his apartment buildings and has the school addition foundation partly finished. He said he would have to hunt around, but was quite confident he would be able to find enough cement to complete the job. However, he said, he has no stock ahead.

He suggested part of the cause of the shortage was that some people are hoarding as much as three months supply. If there were no hoarding, the shortage would be eased considerably he said.

But the chief reason for the shortage as far as any one in Peterborough can discover is simply that the demand has jumped. One foreman said the cement companies had expected the demand to fall off 10 percent this year from 1949, but instead it had jumped 35 percent.

George Solmes CGE Buyer Dies Age Of 56

George C. Solmes, 468 Gordon Ave., died in hospital Friday evening at the age of 56 after a short illness.

Mr. Solmes was the purchasing agent for the Canadian General Electric Co. and has lived in Peterborough for the past 18 years, after being moved here from Toronto by the CGE. He was a member of the company's Quarter Century Club.

He was a veteran of World War I in which he served with an artillery unit in the Siberian Expeditionary Force.

Mr. Solmes was born in Montreal and started working with the purchasing department of the CGE at the Toronto head office. He rose to be the Purchasing Agent for the company at head office until the purchasing department was reorganized so that each plant handled its own buying. When this was done, he was sent to Peterborough as Purchasing Agent.

Mr. Solmes has been a director of the Kiwanis Club for the past two years and was the club's chairman of the Inter-club Committee. He was an ardent fisherman and a few weeks ago went with friends on a fishing trip to northern Quebec.

He first became ill about 10 days ago and immediate cause of death was a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Solmes is survived by his wife, the former Mildred Parker, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Hare, Picton, Mrs. Kenneth Walker of Demorestville, Ont.; and one brother Clayton Solmes of Oshawa.

The body is resting at his late residence until Monday morning. The funeral service will be held in the Comstock Funeral Chapel at two p.m., Rev. W. S. Kibblewhite, of All Saint's Anglican Church, officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

COUNCIL MEETS TUESDAY

City council resumes its sessional work Tuesday evening after a recess of several weeks in the spirit of vacation time.

VEGETABLES PLENTIFUL

The outside boards at the market this morning were heavy with potatoes, beets and carrots that were noticeably bigger than a week ago.

MORE MILK SOLD

Value of fluid milk sold in Peterborough county in May amounted to $80,174 as compared with $75,266 in the fifth month last year. The price advance was one-fifth of a cent. Cream receipts advanced from $6,682 to $8,325.

UNSEASONAL FIRE ALARM

Firemen shortly after midnight had a rendezvous with an old cold-weather friend—the flooded oil furnace. This one went out of control at the home of Mrs. Annie Blackwell, Benson Ave. It did no damage and was snuffed out with a chemical extinguisher.

IN AUDIENCE

Mrs. Frank Smith, 239 Lake St., has a chance to win herself $200 and a diamond ring. She was in the audience at the Capitol theatre Friday night when her name was drawn for Foto Nite. Mrs. Smith must present a photograph of herself at the Capitol the night of August 11 to win the prizes.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES

There was a double fatality Friday on the Chemong Road at the Bridgenorth outskirts. A skunk and a raccoon were found dead on the road within 40 feet of each other. Presumably they had been hit by a motor vehicle while trying to cross the road.

ARRIVING HOME AGAIN

CPR local was late in arriving here Friday night. Many of the passengers were vacationists home again after the annual industrial holiday in Peterborough factories. With sunshine promised for the week-end and Civic Holiday it is likely the home-stayers will be a minority.

Good Lighting Major Factor In The Home; Serves Two-Fold Purpose For Modern Home

Lighting . . . good lighting . . . is a major factor in home planning that no homemaker can afford to skip over lightly, for on its efficient and decorative selection depends in very large measure the livability of your home

Modern lighting has a two-fold purpose. The first is to give you eye-comfort illumination. The second is to decorate.

Modern Trend Against Direct Light

The modern trend in lighting is to the semi-indirect and totally indirect type. From the standpoint of both eye sight preservation and beauty, every precaution must be taken to avoid glare and harsh shadows. Such conditions are most likely to exist with direct lighting, whereas the softly diffused light of any indirect or semi-indirect fixture provides complete eye comfort and adds to the decoration of the room.

It is important to note that semi-indirect and indirect lighting depend upon ceilings and walls for light reflection. So it is important for best effects that ceilings be a dull white, cream or ivory. Walls in pale pastel blend with the general scheme of a room without detracting from the lighting effect.

The Hall

Whether your guests are greeted by gloom or cheer depends on the lighting. The hall is no longer a passage-way from door to living room, but another cheerfully lighted room where guests stop to remove their wraps and glance into a lighted mirror before stepping into the living room.

Select lighting equipment that provides enough safe light but with light sources concealed. Light from downstairs hall fixture should be supplemented by light from an upstairs fixture, to provide for safety on the stairs. Both hall fixtures should be controlled by separate switches upstairs and down so they may be turned on or off from either floor.

The Living Room

The most important room in the house is very appropriately named. Because it is here the family gathers in the evening the lighting must be adequate, at enough places, and flexible enough to fill the wide range of living requirements.

Ceiling fixtures: Modern ceiling fixtures employ in most every case indirect or semi-indirect lighting. They are not only decorative in themselves, but produce soft, glowing illumination which adds to room color.

Whether a pendant or close-fitting ceiling fixture is used depends upon the ceiling height. For the modern room with a low ceiling, the fixture may be built in or hung close to the ceiling. Remember, the duty of a ceiling fixture, regardless of style or type, is essentially to provide general illumination.

The most modern of all ceiling illumination is that provided by built-in cove lighting. The cove may extend around the room, or at each end of the room, or in sections over windows or doors. The lamb bulbs or tubes are placed in a trough, thus giving soft light that is novel and decorative.

Floor and table lamps: To meet the individual needs of every member of the family, floor and table lamps are necessary at every point where one sits to read, sew or work. These lamps must be chosen to blend with the decoration of the interior, but, more important, they must be chosen for their ability to provide proper light for any eye task.

Before you purchase a new table lamp for reading see if it meets these specifications:

Base: Lamp complete with shade should be at least 21" in height. Lamps shorter than this concentrate the light over a very limited area necessitating uncomfortable reading positions.

Shade: Shades must be deep enough to completely conceal the bare lamp from the range of vision. It must be wide enough at the bottom to permit a wide distribution of light, and it must be open at the top so that light may be directed to the ceiling and walls. In this way light is reflected back into the room providing general room illumination.

Choose only a shade with a cream, ivory or preferably a white lining. Dark linings absorb great amounts of light, while white linings reflect the light. On the outside of the shade bands, binding, flowers, etc., may be used for decoration. . : and to accept the furnishings in the room Finally the shade must be of sufficient density so that the burning bulbs are not visible "hot" spots.

Wall Brackets: Wall brackets should be considered for their decorative value only, and not as a source of light when reading, working or entertaining.

Clothes Closets

And clothes closets . . . how often have you fumbled in a dark closet trying to find something? A simple light either with a pull chain or the more convenient automatic door switch will keep you from pulling a battery of boxes on your head because you couldn't see.

Don't forget the entrance lights carefully selected to conform with the house architecture. A lighted house number is growing popular Make lighting at your entrance welcome the evening guests.

Fiancee Greets Bride With Pr. Of Handcuffs

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 5 (CP)—Nineteen-year-old Joanne Wilson stepped off a TCA plane Friday, to be greeted by a pair of handcuffs. . . and a prospective bridegroom.

Miss Wilson took off from Prestwick, Scotland, yesterday to fly to London to marry Alistair Duncan, a member of the London police force.

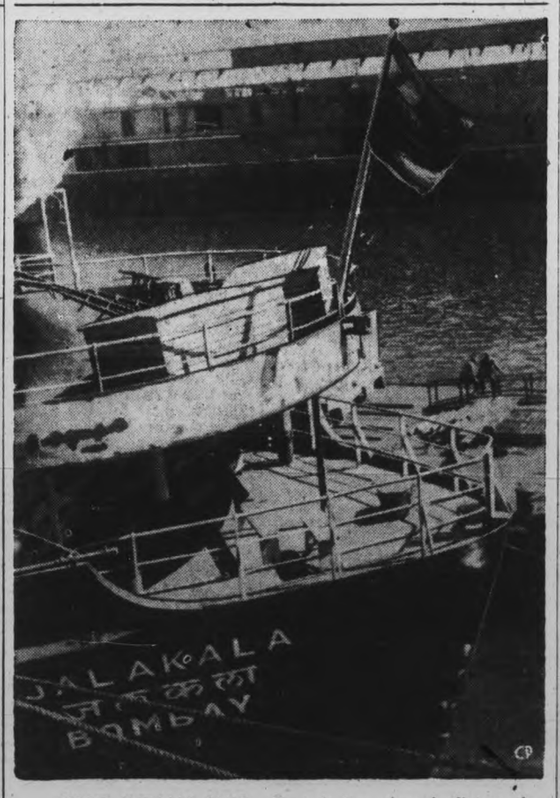
She was met at the airport by Duncan and his friends, and was in handcuffs as soon as she stepped off the plane. Duncan and his friends hustled her away for a celebration.

Aid For Fire Victims

QUEBEC, Aug. 5—(CP)—Premier Duplessis announced today that a provincial government relief committee formed after the May conflagrations at Rimouski and Cabano has received subscriptions totalling $806,862. More than 11,800 individual donations of cash and materials have been received.

Joins Film Board

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 —(CP)—Henri Dieuzeide, a member of the faculty at the St. Cloud Superior Normal School in Paris, has joined the National Film Board to study film production and distribution for a six-month period, it was announced Friday.



FIRST INDIAN SHIP—First Indian vessel, flying the flag of the Republic of India, to enter Montreal harbor is shown here. The Jalukala, a 10,000-ton vessel later sailed for Bombay with a cargo of Canadian products. She carried an all-Indian crew under the command of a Briton, Capt. N. D. Anderson.

Blonde Trying To Free Actor

VANCOUVER, Aug. 5—(CP)—A statuesque blonde today sought to free William Andrew Blackett, English movie actor, from jail.

The willowy blonde, Mrs. Alta Basford, whose home is in Santa Monica, Calif., came here from Montreal to raise $1,500 bail "for my friend."

She was in Montreal when Blackett, 30-year-old son of Lady Hobhouse, wife of Sir Charles Hobhouse, Somerset, England, was arrested on two charges of fraud.

"I hope to find bail through friends here," Mrs. Basford told reporters. "He is just a friend, that's all."

Blackett is accused of passing two worthless cheques here to pay for his hotel room.

The Englishman, called a "second James Mason" by interviewers, told police he had a successful movie career in London and Hollywood.

He was in jail awaiting the efforts of his friend to raise bail. He is scheduled to make a court appearance next Friday.

WMS Meets At Home Of Mrs. John Davidson

WESTWOOD, Aug. 5—(ENS)—Mrs. John Davidson was hostess on Wednesday to the members and guests of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society.

The president, Mrs. C. Brackenridge, took charge of the worship period and program and also welcomed several visitors to the meeting.

It was announced the quarterly tea will be held on September 6 at Welbeck, the home of Mrs. Brackenridge, at which it was decided to hold a novelty hat sale.

The program explained "the world convention on Christian education" which will be held in Toronto on August 10-16. Once in a lifetime it is the privilege of Canadian Christian workers to entertain the world convention on Christian education. Five thousand delegates from more than 60 countries will gather for fellowship and education. The convention hymn, "Fairest Lord Jesus" was included in the hymns, with Mrs. J. Sargent at the piano.

A Biblical contest sponsored by Mrs. Eric Pulfer was won by Mrs. Robert Hay.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

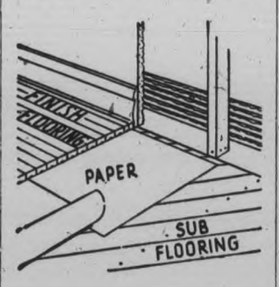
Want Additional Arms

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 (AP) — Senator William Knowland (Rep. Calif.) said today that he brought a special personal appeal from the president of South Korea to Washington officials for additional arms and defence equipment seven months before the North Korean Communists invaded in June.

Subflooring Forms Base For The Finish Flooring

The subfloor in a house is laid diagonally over the joists to form a base for the finish floor and to help strengthen the floor framing. It also acts as a working surface during construction. As the subfloor is laid before the roof is made weathertight, the boards should not be laid too tightly together. This helps prevent buckling caused by expansion.

It is considered good practice to apply a layer of moisture resistant paper before the finish flooring is laid.



Hardwood used for the finish flooring should be well seasoned and kiln dried. As excessive exposure ot cold or dampness may warp the wood, it should be laid as soon as possible after delivery to the site. Birch, maple and oak are the harwoods most commonly used. Although No. 2 grade is generally acceptable, better grades are preferable where a uniform shade is desired.

The finish floor should not be laid until the plastering and other preliminary work on the house has been completed, thereby preventing unnecessary damage to the floor. Where possible, the flooring should run parallel to the length of the room. It should be carried from room to room without change in direction of laying. The joints should be well distributed—preferably a foot or more apart. They should not be made too tight but must allow for the necessray expansion and buckling.

Civic Holiday Gives Workers Summer Break

By The Canadian Press

Thanks to the labors of a group of festive citizens back in 1869, Ontario and some western cities will have a holiday Aug 7.

The annual institution of the civic holiday on the first Monday in August originated two years after Confederation, when a deputation of Toronto citizens convinced the city council the workers of the day deserved a respite from midsummer's heat.

Since then the holiday has spread over all of Ontario and to Winnipeg, St. Boniface and Brandon, Man., and Edmonton, Alta.

There is only one protest on record against the institution That of an early merchant who protested that such a holiday would "only foster idleness." The enthusiasm of the citizens, however, apparently convinced the council and the holiday has been proclaimed annually.

During the Second World War war industries continued to operate throughout Ontario during the holiday but all other businesses were closed.

Different Days

There is no observation of the day in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec or British Columbia, but Dartmouth, N. S., has a "natal day" Aug. 5. Calgary takes a "half-day" during stampede week.

Inauguration of Labor Day — the first Monday in Sept mber— in 1894 completed the list of monthly summer holidays.

Several Canadian cities enjoy municipal holidays not observed by the rest of Canada. Sain' John, N.B., celebrates Ma' 18, the anniversary of the landing of the loyalists and Sydney, N. S., takes a holiday the day after civic elections.

Dining Room Should Be Bright and Cheery

While high level lighting is not an important factor when dining, it is essential that the room be bright and cheery and free from glaring light bulbs. Nothing will add more to the enjoyment of a meal or the decoration of this room than ample, pleasant lighting.

There are several methods of lighting the dining room correctly. A popular one is the five or six light candle fixture suspended over the table. When using this type of fixture be sure that all the lamp bulbs are shaded so as to direct the light downward and not into the faces of those seated at the table. Wall brackets are a pleasing background and are desirable if properly shaded.

The dining room is also adaptable to coloured lighting effects and there are fixtures especially designed to produce amber, moonlight or other desired light effects. White, or coloured fluorescent lamps installed in plaster, metal or glass covers around the room or at opposite ends of the room make possible many interesting effects.

The Kitchen

Follow this recipe for a well lighted kitchen:

The first ingredient is a central ceiling fixture, usually a single enclosed unit of the diffusing type. This unit is practical if equipped with enought wattage, which, with the help of light coloured walls and ceilings, give a soft pleasing light and practically eliminate all shadows.

The kitchen should have plenty of light everywhere. Fixtures should be so placed that the housewife, regardless of where she is standing, is never working in her own shadow This is unavoidable when there is but one ceiling fixture, since she stands at the various work centres in the kitchen with back to the light. Therefore the second ingredient is to provide local light over the range, sink and working areas.

In modern kitchens, lamp bulbs or tubes are recessed in the ceiling over the sink and range and covered by diffusing panels of glass or plastic Fluorescent lamps are ideally suited for installation over the range or sink, or under the kitchen cabinets to illuminate the work table.

It is important to have plenty of convenience outlets throughout the kitchen. Do not place these outlets in the baseboard. Install outlets on the wall about four feet from the floor or, more conveniently, on the wall right over the work table top.

Bedrooms

Every woman likes to change the arrangement of her furniture frequently. Too often, however, furniture arangements are limited by the lighting fixtures, especially if the room is lighted only by wall brackets. Therefore, every bedroom should have a central ceiling fixture.

There are many pleasing types of fixtures which fit well into the bedroom. For the easy chair provide a bridge or table lamp, or one of the new low floor lamps. If reading in bed is popular, be sure there is adequate light. Most bed lamps are hopelessly inadequate. Try placing end table lamps on a table alongside the bed, or a semi-indirect lamp or fixture on the wall just over the bed head to light the printed page with an even shadowless light.

The Bathroom

The most important mirror in the house is in the bathroom, for it is here that hubby usually attempts to shave. Attempts? Yes, only attempts if the light is one in number and over the mirror as has been the practice in the past.

Remember, you are not interested in lighting the mirror, but the face in front of it When the face is evenly and well lighted, the result is a clear, sharp, reflection back in the mirror To best accomplish this, use two fixtures, one on each side of the mirror. Brackets with bare bulbs should never be used. All bulbs or tubes concealed by diffusing glass bowls or shades are preferable. However, fluorescent lamps without shades are permissible.

The ideal lighting of bathroom mirrors is accomplished by framing the mirror on the top and two sides with built-in panels concealing the lights behind the frosted glass or plastic or some other efficient diffusing material.

Unless the bathroom is exceedingly small, it should also have a ceiling fixture, with the light source hidden and controlled from a wall switch just inside the door. If a central lighting unit has been omitted the mirror lights should be similary switched.

All of the foregoing covers the major rooms of a house but there are many other important spots where right lighting is essential.

Some sort of night light, either a wall lamp or table lamp using a small wattage bulb is a necessity in the child's room. A low wattage lamp in the baseboard under the bed will enable you to see your way about the room without disturbing the child.

The Basement

The basement, like the attic, is often neglected and does not receive the lighting it deserves. If it is just the furnace and storage room, good lighting is needed at the furnace and to find your way around. Basements without adequate lighting account for too many of the accidents in a home. . . especially the stairs. A glareless light placed at the foot of the stairs or at some place where all of the steps are well lighted should be controlled by separate switches at the top and bottom.

THE NEW
has revolutionized Automatic Oil Heating

THE PATENTED THERMO CONE COMBUSTION HEAD
Tested Fuel Savings Guaranteed To Range from 15% to 32%

The Econo-Mist Oil Burner equipped with the Thermo-Cone Combustion Head has proven itself the most efficient oil burner on the Canadian market. Field tests as well as tests made in the laboratories of Canadian Universities show that savings up to 32% is made over conventional gun type oil burners.

The Thermo-Cone Combustion Head the greatest advancement in oil burning, in the history of the industry. Because the Thermo-Cone Head uses minimum of excess air, higher CO 2 obtained, and at the same time lower stack temperatures. The relative position of the parts of the Thermo-Cone Head can be altered during operation to achieve the best operating conditions and adjustments can be made without dismantling the unit.

Check these 5 FEATURES!

1.—THERMO-CONE COMBUSTION HEAD
Thermo-Cone Combustion Head produces a finer mixture of air and oil than any other make of burner. There is no enlargement or distortion of the vapour particles so that you get more intense heat, more evenly distributed in the fire-box.

2.—ONE-PIECE CAST ALUMINUM HOUSING
No bolts to lose, no rattling parts; it's all set in a one-piece cast aluminum housing of unusual thickness and durability.

3.—PRECISION MACHINED
As the housing is cast in one piece, then precision machined, no working parts can become out of alignment, thus ensuring many years of silent, trouble-free service.

4.—FIRING ASSEMBLY
The firing assembly has been expertly engineered so that it may be removed as one assembly through the opening at the rear of the burner. Your serviceman can then clean and adjust the burner quickly and easily.

5.—18 MONTHS FREE SERVICE AND GUARANTEE.
We have tested it; we know it is good, and we therefore guarantee the "Econo-Mist" Oil Burner unconditionally for 18 months. Because "Econo-Mist" is a 100% Canadian product, parts are easily obtainable. It is fully approved and bears the seal of the Canadian Standards Association. Should any adjustments be necessary, we completely service your burner for 18 months absolutely free of charge!

Perlon Stockings Beating Nylons

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — Perlon, a synthetic yarn invented in Germany, makes stockings said to be as fine as nylons, and warmer to wear.

Thirty scientists in laboratories here are arranging with the Board of Trade for a sample supply.

The yarn will be tested for strength and stretch and sample pairs of stockings will be issued to women employees.

Perlon is known in Britain so far, apart from that used in odd Paris brought by returning visitors.

Do's and Don'ts When Visiting Sick

By RUTH MILLETT

I've spent considerable time around a hospital lately — as a visitor, not a patient. And I now feel qualified to offer a few hints for those wishing to "cheer up" unfortunate friends and relatives going through a hospital stay.

Resist the impulse to greet the friend or relative laid low by illnes with: "So you decided you needed a vacation. Pretty soft!" The last three out of four persons to pop their heads through the hospital door have probably already hit upon that particular "light approach."

And speaking of the light approach, which seems to be the only accepted one there is today for greeting those in misery. Don't over-do it. The person whose world is temporarily bordered by his own aches and pains, finds it hard to rally to the too light touch.

Plain old-fashioned sympathy may seem corny, but it is sure to be appreciated by the suffering patient who has had nothing but kidding from well-intentioned friends and relatives trying to cheer him up.

Bring no troubles of your own with you. There's just one thing wrong with the world so far as the sick person in concerned and that is whatever has gotten him down. So concentrate on that with him — if you want him to feel you really sympathize.

If you're sending a card in lieu of a visit, don't fall for the so-called funny kind that treat a visit to a hospital as a huge joke. It may be delivered when the patient is wondering whether or not he's really going to make it. If so, its humor will most certainly not be apreciated.

In fact any note you write yourself is sure to be a safer bet than some printed message you pick out of a stack of get-well-quick cards.

New Paris Styles To Emphasize Slim Silhouette

By FLORENCE MILLS

PARIS, Aug. 5—(AP)—North American women are going to be less busty and less hippy looking next fall, according to Stanley Marcus, vice-president of Neiman Marcus Incorporated of Dallas, Tex., now in Paris buying fall creations from French couturiers.

"The new season's profile is going to be very slim," he said in an interview. "Hips will not be padded at all and busts will not be made much of—we've had far too much bust these last three years."

The most important change, he believes, is in the new skirt silhouette which clings down the hips and thighs before flaring into a low-placed flounge, kick pleats or godets.

Practicaly every French designer is showing this type of skirt.

Another prominent American buyer, David Nemorov, president of Russeks, Fifth Ave., New York, agrees the emphasis will be on natural curves unaided by corsetry.

"But the bust will still be the focal point of the silhouette," he said.

According to Nemerov the styles will include tunics varying from 10 to 12 inches in depth and suits and dresses, slender skirts and wrap arounds that finish in an oblique line across the front. Even full-skirted numbers, kinder to women with well upholstered hips who can't take the severity of the super slim silhouette will be available.

"Hemlines will be anything from 14 to 16 inches from the ground," he said.

Wellman-Barger Marry In Toronto

St. George's Anglican church, Toronto, was the scene of the recent wedding of Helen Elizabeth Barger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barger, and Kenneth Peter James Wellman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wellman of Hastings. The Rev. G. M. Parson officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white nylon, styled on princess lines with short sleeves shirred with lace. Her fingertip veil was of silk illusion, appliqued with lace and attached to a matching sweetheart halo. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Hazel Killenbeck was bridesmaid and she wore a gown of pink net over organdy with matching headdress and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mr. Wm. Mogg was groomsman.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Haynes. The bride's mother received in a navy silk dress, navy hat, white accessories and a corsage of red carnations. Mrs. R. Haynes received for the groom. She wore a navy gown, navy straw hat and a corsage of red carnations.

Later the couple left for a trip to Peterborough and Hastings. For travelling the bride chose a wine gabardine suit with navy accessories.

Reporter Finds European Wedding Customs Strange

By TOM JAMES

OTTAWA, Aug. 5—June, the month of weddings, is over.

The brides and grooms of last spring are now seasoned veterans of many a domestic campaign—maybe even fisticuffs, who knows?

Anyhow, this reporter was assigned the task of delving into the matrimonial morass and fishing out some dregs of information about European weddings.

One of the big differences noticed by many new Canadians is the way our nuptials are conducted. Being loath to discard all their European ways, many brave immigrants have retained parts of the "old country" ceremony.

Take Latvia, for instance. Latvian lovers really go in for ceremony—both before and after the exchange of vows.

As a symbol of her maidenhood, the bride often wears a crown of flowers and sometimes wears a veil and carries a bouquet. Or, instead of the actual flower crown, she might have a small cloth one fixed to her veil.

At midnight on the day of the ceremony, veil, crown and bouquet are presented to the bridesmaid most expected to cop a man.

Another Latvian custom which isn't celebrated here very often is a pre-ceremony series of parties. One is held by the groom and his friends, the other by the bride's parents.

Groom Crashes Party

At the peak of the parties, the groom and his pals crash the bride's party, acting much in the manner of a pack of houn' dawgs after a coon.

They abduct the bride in a mock ceremony, carry her off to a pre-arranged spot known to all concerned. All the guests meet there and the ceremony takes place amid much singing, dancing and general hi-de-ho.

Just to keep the husband in line, custom decrees that he wear a wedding ring on the third finger of his right—not left—hand. This serves as his wife's brand, meaning "Beware. This wolf trapped."

In the event of divorce or death the husband switches the ring to his left hand. This means "Ah'm available garls. Come 'n get me."

Incidentally, the practice of men wearing wedding rings seems fairly prevalent all over Europe. Jewelry firms have been trying to introduce it to this continent but North American men-folk seem to like keeping the girls guessing.

It's more fun this way, some claim.

Asking for a girl's hand used to be done in a rather unusual way in Esthonia. No — not with a hatchet.

Looks For Lost Sheep

The embarrassed suitor called upon his girl's father and mumbled something about having lost something—usually a sheep or a lamb. This meant he wanted to marry the old boy's daughter.

The father could reply "Well, your sheep isn't here Jack.'

This meant "Nix to you. I don't like the cut of your jib."

On the other hand, he could say, "Well, I think we have a little article here you might be interested in."

At this remark the girl popped out from behind some curtains, looking very coy and surprised. Then her jellybean produced a bottle and the little group set about emptying it.

When the happy couple became engaged, they both wore rings on the third finger of the left hand, switching them to the right after the wedding.

Ceremony over, they drove to the bride's home to celebrate, but on the way friends blocked the road and had to be bribed with food and drink, mostly drink, to allow the bridal party to pass.

Honeymooners aren't cutomary in these Esthonian efforts.

During the reception at some Esthonian weddings, a little dance was held—sometimes it is done here in Canada. The bride is blind-folded and all the guests dance around her throwing coins into her apron. She usually does all right by her guests, but can't tell how much is thrown or who threw it.

When the wedding feast is almost over, the girls march around the bride in a circle and, still blind-folded, she places her bridal wreath on some lucky girl's head. This is supposed to mean that the decorated girl will be the next one married.

In like manner, the bridegroom is blind-folded and places his hat on some single male guest's head. This, too, means the ball and chain for the hat-adorned guest.

There's another cute custom to these Esthonian weddings. At the reception dinner, or feast, any guest may call out "Bitter!" This means he has tasted some bitter article of food or drink. The bride and groom then have to kiss to make the food sweet again.

According to my beautiful Esthonian informant, before Christianity reached her native land, some of the bridegrooms were quite the cut-ups. If two bridal parties accidentally met, the grooms fought, with the winner taking the loser's wife and leaving his own as the loser's widow.

Well, if you see any of the aforementioned shenanigans going on, don't be surprised — unless you witness the last little event.

If you do, call the gendarmes!

Gets Scholarship Hard Way Actress Dies "In Chair"

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK — (CP) — Madeleine Sherwood chose the hard way to get a dramatic scholarship—the electric chair.

The former Montreal radio actress didn't really die for her profession, of course. But she played the role of a woman whose career ends in a prison electric chair and her acting won her a scholarship with the Dramatic Workshop of the New School, a New York acting academy.

"I got executed every night," she said in an interview. "I was dragged off the stage and the audience could hear me screaming as the currrent in the chair was turned on. It was all very exciting."

That was last fall. Miss Sherwood, whose name off-stage is Madeleine Thornton, has just completed a New York appearance at the President Theatre in a revival of "All The King's Men" based on Robert Penn Warren's novel about a dictator in the United States.

The revival was staged by the President Players at the same theater where "All the King's Men" previously was put on in 1948. Critic Vernon Rice of the New York Post found the latest production disappointing, but had a good word for Miss Sherwood's performance.

He said "only Madeleine Sherwood (playing the role of the dictator's wife) and Scott Hale enacting the part of the man who murders the dictator) seemed anything more than puppets trying to capture a mood."

The play in which Miss Sherwood was executed? That was "Machinal," by Sophie Treadwell, a grim drama of crime and its sequel.

Awarded scholarship

"Thanks to my work in that play, Mr. Piscator (dorector of the New School) gave me a scholarship," the young actress said.

She has appeared in several other dramas, most of them staged by the dramatic workshop.

"I played the feminine lead in 'The Scapegoat'," she related. "And also the main feminine part in an adaptation of Kafka's 'The Trial.' That also was a grim one.

"Then I had a part in 'The Burning Bush,' dealing with the trial some centuries ago of Jews in Hungary. And there was leading feminine role in 'The Case of The Neglected Calling Card' A play with a police station setting."

Miss Sherwood who now lives in the United States, left Montreal 18 months ago and acted in various parts of this country before coming to New York last year.

Mature Men and Women Make Happiest Marriages

In a scientific study of marriage it has been found that middle-age marriages are happier than those contracted earlier in life. This indicates that intelligence goes farther than romance in making marriage a success.

Dorothy Dix

This conclusion is amply borne out by the fact that it is a matter of common observation that, taking them by and large, widows and widowers make the best wives and husbands, and that second marriages rarely end in the divorce court. This is true even of divorced people, for those who could not get along with their first mates seem able to get along with almost any sort of mate when they marry again.

Of course, there is a glamour about young love that elderly affection never possesses. Twenty is the time for circling wings and star dust and the chanting of the angel choir that forty never sees or hears; but it is also the time of awakening from a dope dream ,the time of mud-slinging and bitter vituperation, and if the old do not get the kick out of marriage that the young do, they also escape many of its bruises.

Eliminates Risks

There are many reasons why late marriages should be, as a rule, happier than young ones. The first is, of course, that it eliminates many of the risks of marriage.

The boy and girl who get married take a double chance on their marriages being successes. They not only do not know what the children they are marrying are going to turn into when they are grown up, but they have not the faintest idea of what they are going to be themselves.

The mature man and woman do not thus leave their fate on the knees of the gods when they marry. Their tastes and habits are formed. Their characters settled. And when they choose their mates, they are almost sure to pick out someone who has the qualities they desire, instead of trusting to luck that their husbands and wives will somehow, someway, turn into what they want them to be.

Then, too, those who marry later in life are ready for marriage. They have had their playtime and they are fed up with runnin garound trying to amuse themselves, and they are ready to settle down by their own firesides. They have had their fill of flirtations and light love. All they want is the enduring love of the one man or the one woman on whom they have set their hearts.

It is those who have married too young who regard marriage as a prison and long for freedom; who complain of domestic life being dull; who regard their children as brats and resent the time and labor they have to bestow upon them, and who wreck their homes by their philandering. They are still children and they still want to play about, and in their games they only too often pull their houses down upon their heads.

Young Lack Discipline

Mature people also bring the discipline of life to marriage, and that is something the youngsters lack. They have learned self-control. They have learned tact in handling situations, how to give the soft answer that turns away wrath, and how to put things in a way that will rob them of their unpleasanness.

We talk about the adaptability of youth. There is no such thing. All boys and girls are intolerant. Determined to have their own way. Nothing but time and experience teaches us to walk around a stone wall instead of trying to butt it down with our heads. When you see a middle-aged couple who are always quarfeling, it is the hangover from their early marriage when each was trying to make the other over according to his or her heart's desire, and when every word was the fighting word.

Those who have married late in life live in peace and harmony because they have learned how to adjust themselves to new people and new situations, and they know that their happiness depends upon their sidestepping each other's little peculiarities and handling each other with finesse.

The mature man and woman do not expect the impossible. They don't expect marriage to be an earthly paradise or for husbands and wives to be angels. Hence they are satisfied with a home that they have to build up with their labor, but that is a shelter where they are warm and safe and snug, and with husbands and wives who have a thousand faults, but who give them love and companionship and loyalty and fidelity.

All of which boils down into saying that marriage is a game for adults. It is no sport for kiddies.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Almost Miraculous

"A Thrifty Town"

Rev. Anson Green described Peterborough in January 1837: "a thrifty town with all the appliances of a city in miniature—churches, schools, stores and mechanics, where I saw nothing but trees and mudholes, with a rude Indian path, twelve years ago." The British writer, Logan, wrote "Peterborough is very romantically situated on a rising ground overlooking the river Ottanabee . . . I crossed the river by a ferryboat which the current carries across, it being attached to a wheel running along a rope." John Langton's mother, arriving in August, wrote "The houses are numerous but yet seem to form no streets. They appear surrounded by the forest . . . The church stands on rising ground in the midst of trees." The most detailed picture of the town has been left by William Cluxton, in the Diamond Jubilee issue of the Daily Review 1897: "In 1836-7 there were four large general stores . . . Nicholls, Perry, Crawford and Fortune & Shaw . . . Perry's was managed by Wm. Eastland, and Crawford's by the writer."

Due to the bank crisis in the United States and the rebellions in Canada, the town did not progress between 1837 and 1840. Few new settlers came, and none with money. Cash was scarce, few were paying their bills, and Bethune went bankrupt, with great hardship to many who had their savings in his care. Yet John Darcus started the first newspaper "The Peterborough Backwoodsman and Sentinel", and Cumming, another lawyer, and Cantwell, a money-lender, came to town. Holland & Morrow, a fifth general store, opened, and a courthouse was being built, of which Lt. Governor Sir George Arthur laid the cornerstone at 6.30 a.m., August 25,1838. The new rector of St. John's, Rev. C. T. Wade, was circularizing Great Britain to get funds to clear up a £500 debt and complete the church. In February 1838, according to one old inhabitant, it was "a backwoods town with stumps all through the streets . . . The only passable roads were George Street, Hunter St. East, and Sherbrooke St. West . . . The buildings save the Presbyterian and Episcopalian churches were entirely of wood, mostly framed, lathed and plastered inside and out . . . There were two gristmills, two distilleries, one brewery, one tannery, four churches and one school." Yet Rubidge testified in London "In the town there are now 24 stores or shops . . . upwards of 400 houses and 2000 inhabitants . . . Mr. Hickson is employed by the Irish as agent to send money to Ireland." Captain F. Marryat, noted British writer, who visited Peterborough in 1838, wrote. nearly 400 houses, many of them large and handsome, inhabited by about 1500 persons; a very neat stone church capable of accommodating 800 or 900 persons, a Presbyterian church of stone, two dissenting places of worship, and a Roman Catholic church in progress. The town has in or near it 2 grist and 7 sawmills, 5 distilleries, 2 breweries, 2 tanneries, 18 or 20 shops, a carriage, sleigh, wagon, chair, harness and cabinet-makers, and most other useful trades. Stages run all year bringing mails 5 times a week. . . There is one good tavern—White's— and 2 inferior ones."

Counting all the shoemakers, bakers, masons, etc. there may have been 20 "shops" in town, but there were definitely only about 150 houses and 800 or 900 people, in spite of these enthusiastic estimates. To complete the picture of the 1830s, three last events may be mentioned: the Baptists formed a congregation in 1838, which by 1841 had a regular pastor, although they did not erect a church until 1845. The Traill family moved from Lakefield to the Scotch village in 1839, remaining there seven years. And in 1839 came another epidemic of fever, when the first isolation hospital was set up; this was an improvement on the usual treatments, which consisted of bleeding and purging every sick person for all diseases. In spite of all obstacles, however, Peterborough had doubled its population and prosperity in ten years, an "almost incredible advancement", in Captain Marryat's phrase.

Standard Raised As UK Schools Regain War Loss

By JEFFREY RYAN

LONDON —(CP)— The post-war British child has made up some of the educational ground lost during the war years, but standards are not yet back to pre-war levels.

The reasons for this are varied, says the annual report of the education ministry. Biggest headache is a shortage of instructional staff.

By 1954 Britain will need 240,000 teachers, 29,000 more than the present number

This big increase in because the new school-leaving age is making itself felt. The age was raised from 14 to 15 in 1944.

The impact of war — bomb-dodging under desks, thrice-daily trips to shelters, hasty evacuation and disturbed home-life conditions—handicapped the 1939-45 scholar.

Now, 10 years later, his successor is nearing the end of a long climb back to the standards set by schoolboys of 1939.

More Human

Since the days of Dickens, says the report, British schools have slowly become more human. The horrors of "Brimstone and Treacle" have been replaced by free milk.

"In all primary schools more attention now is being paid to the development of children as individuals."

Comments of school inspectors brighten the report. These are typical remarks:

"Infant schools are making more progress and many of them are giving better education than pre-war."

"Poetry is ceasing to be something to be learned by heart once a week. Now children write their own."

On the debit side the report says mathematical and English standards are still much lower than before 1939.

"Older children in junior schools read more widely and write more freely than they did 10 years ago, but in arithmetic the standard of accurate mechanical work is lower.

Foreign languages flourish largely because cultural relations with other countries are closer.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tinney are at their cottage which has been completed recently on Pigeon River.

Mrs. Chas. Lowry, Port Hope is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Stewart.

Mrs. A. J. Earchman and Mr. L. J. Hutchinson left on Friday for a few days visit with Mrs. Oscar Hutchinson, North Gower.

What's Right?

You are trying to get a group together for a Dutch treat party.

WRONG: Invite the guests exactly as you would if you were giving the party yourself.

RIGHT: Make it clear from the start that the party is to be Dutch treat.

COOKBOOK of the WEEK

From the Collection of 24 of THE WORLD'S GREATEST COOKBOOKS

SPONSORED BY THIS NEWSPAPER

YOU DON'T HAVE TO roast or stew chicken for a good meal. Any number of unusual preparations are to be found in the Poultry Book.

Get New Ideas for Poultry Try Novel Dish of Chicken

Four cookbooks have now been released in the Examiner's wonderful Culinary Arts Institute series. They are Snacks, Left-overs, and Cakes, and now 250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds is available. These extraordinary books are simply full of cooking ideas plainly presented and so attractively illustrated that you cannot help but want to experiment.

For instance, if you are a dark meat eater you may find it economical to buy chicken legs only. Here is a novel way to prepare them, and all kinds of stuffings are suggested throughout the book.

Stuffed Chicken Legs

Select large chicken legs. Remove tendons and bone. Fill cavity with any desired stuffing, keeping legs in shape. Close opening with poultry pins. Place in greased baking dish, cover bottom with ½ inch boiling water and cook in moderate oven (350 F.) until tender, about 1 hour. Allow 1 or 2 legs each.

To get your copy of the Poultry Book present a coupon clipped from any issue of the Examiner, together with 25 cents at the Examiner office, from your carrier or at Braund's Home Food Markets.

Cambridge Course For Working Girls

CAMBRIDGE, England —(CP)—Newham College, famed women's college at Cambridge University, is holding a summer school for working girls who left school at the age of 14, and who now feel the need of further education.

Twenty-five such girls live in residence at the college for two weeks, side by side with undergraduates, sharing all phases of their lives except studies. The girls study in the morning and evenings, devoting afternoons to tennis, boating and sight-seeing.

Subjects taken include English literature, history government and citizenship, geography, physiology and music appreciation. Other subjects are available if desired. Only charge made is for food and lodging.

NORWAY TRADE

VENNESLA, Norway —(CP)— The new allboard factory here has started production and has made an agreement with Ethiopia to deliver wallboard in exchange for coffee and agricultural products. So far, 100 tons of coffee have been delivered.

NOTICE
TREASURER'S SALE OF LAND FOR TAXES
CORPORATION OF THE COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH

TO WIT:

By virtue of a Warrant issued by the Warden of the County of Peterborough, bearing date the 8th Day of June, 1949, SALE OF LANDS in the County of Peterborough will be held at the County Council Chamber, in the Court House, in the City of Peterborough, at the Hour of Ten o'clock in the Forenoon, on the 3RD DAY OF OCTOBER 1950, unless the Taxes and Costs are sooner paid.

Notice is hereby given that the List of Lands for Sale of Arrears of Taxes is being published in the Ontario Gazette on the 1st Day of July, 1950, and that copies of the said List may be had at my Office.

J. A. SPURWAY,
County Treasurer.

IN THE MATTER OF THE MUNICIPAL ACT AND IN THE MATTER OF A PROPOSED BY-LAW OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH TO STOP UP AND CLOSE AN ALLOWANCE FOR HIGHWAY AND SELL THE SAME TO JOHN S. BLACK.

NOTICE is hereby given, pursuant to Section 498 of The Municipal Act, that the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, proposes to consider and if deemed advisable to pass at its Regular Meeting to be held at the Council Chambers in the City Hall in the City of Peterborough, on Tuesday, the 5th day of September, 1950, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. a By-law to Stop Up and Close that part of Dublin Street more particularly described as follows:

COMMENCING at a point in the Northerly limit of Lot 19 West of George Street and South of Dublin Street distant Easterly fifty-one feet seven inches from the North Westerly angle of said Lot; thence Northerly parallel to the Northerly production of the Westerly limit of said lot a distance of ten feet; thence Easterly parallel to the Northerly limit of said lot a distance of twenty-five feet six inches; thence southerly parallel to the northerly production of the westerly limit of said lot a distance of ten feet more or less to the northerly limit of said lot; THENCE westerly along the northerly limit of said lot a distance of twenty-five feet six inches more or less to the place of beginning, and to sell the said allowance for highway above described to John S. Black.

AND TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that before passing the said By-law at its Meeting to be held at the time and place above mentioned, the Council of the City of Peterborough shall then and there hear in person or by his counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected by the said By-law and who applies to be heard.

DATED at Peterborough, this 4th day of August, A.D., 1950.
E. A. OUTRAM, Clerk.

Five Experts Investigate London Dock Area Strikes

By ROBERT BROWN

LONDON, Aug. 5 (Reuters)—Five men, meeting behind closed doors, have begun an investigation of the world's port and the habits of its 27,000 dockers, stevedores and lightermen.

The British Government has asked them to find out why the Port of London has been the most strike-troubled sector of British industry in the last five years.

Several earlier, unofficial, investigations have suggested possible explanations. The two most popular have been:

1. That Communists have infiltrated into the port, obtained key positions in the trade unions and brought the workers under their influence.

2. That the mammoth trade union which organizes a majority of the port workers has lost touch with the rank and file, does not adequately represent their interests and so drives them to unofficial action.

British Communists deny the first suggesion. The trade union denies the second.

Five On Committee

The five men who have to sift the evidence and try to reach an objective conclusion are: Sir Frederick Leggett, a former high official at the Ministry of Labor; A. M. Holbein, vice-president of the Federation of Civil Engineering Contractors; G. H. Bagnall, a former trade union official who now is an industrial administrator; Sir Robert Hyde, founder of the Industrial Welfare Society, and Sir Wilfrid Garrett, a former chief inspector of factories.

They held their first meeting at the end of May and their report is not likely to be published for some months yet.

Port employers, trade union officials and government-appointed administrators are expected to give evidence before the committee of enquiry.

Representatives of an official port workers' committee which has led several strikes in the port in opposition to the official union have demanded the right to be heard. But it is not yet known whether they will be admitted.

Biggest dispute since the war, occurred last summer, when the port was brought to a standstill by the refusal of dockers to work Canadian ships which they regarded as "black"—that is, the subject of a trade union dispute.

GORDON K. HARDY

Gordon Hardy Dies In Toronto

Gordon K. Hardy, former Peterborough police officer, and former Port Hope chief, died Friday night at Western Hospital in Toronto in his 50th year. He was the husband of the former Berenice Emmerson.

Mr. Hardy joined the Peterborough police force in 1939 after two years as town constable in Bobcaygeon. In 1942, he left Peterborough and took the position of chief constable in Port Hope.

Shortly after this, he resigned as chief constable after complaining that the Port Hope police committee was interfering with his work. He went into the real estate business in Oshawa, and worked there until he became ill recently.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Reginald Burns (Jean), Peterborough; Myrtle, Oshawa; and four sons, Donald, James, Ronald, and Gordon Jr., of Oshawa.

Funeral service will be held Monday in Bowmanville at 2:30 p.m. and burial will be in Bowmanville cemetery.

Say Chinese Red Invasion Planned For Ancient Tibet

HONG KONG, Aug. 5—(AP)—Plans for a Chinese Red invasion of ancient Tibet, lofty land of the Lamas, were reported today by the Chinese-language pro-Communist Wen Wei Po newspaper.

It printed what it said was a report by one-eyed Gen. Liu Po-cheng that Communist forces soon "will march into Tibet."

Liu, commander of the Chinese Communist second field army, was quoted in a report to the Communist southwest military and administrative committee, which ended a five-day meeting in Chungking July 31.

He said such a move would be aimed at driving out the "aggressive influence of American Imperialism" and "to consolidate the western line of national defence," the newspaper reported.

Propaganda Busy

For months the Red propaganda line from Peiping has plumped for the "liberation' of all Chinese territory, including Tibet and Formosa. Last January, Russia's two biggest newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, announced that as Red China's aim.

Tibet, on the fringes of China, Russia, India and Kashmir, and high in the windy Himalayas, has a population of about 3,000,000. It is ruled by Lamas, or Buddhist monks.

For centuries it has remained isolated from the world, aloof toward foreigners. China has claimed suzerainity over Tibet since the 17th century, but the country—for all practical purposes—has been self-governing.

Most north Americans know Tibet as the 'Shangri-La" of a best-selling novel, or as the famous "hump" over which supplies were flown to China during the war against Japan.

Tibet's top ranking monk is the 18-year-old Balai Lama who, in August 1948, conducted prayer meetings to protect Tibet from Communism.

Political Ambitions Dangerous For Unions

GRAVENHURST, Aug. 5CP)—A labor lawyer said Friday trade unions must not subordinate the interests of labor to political ambitions

The lawyer, C. L. Dubin, of Toronto, added that free enterprise "provides the only system under which trade unions can operate efficiently."

Mr. Dubin, one of four speakers at the closing day of a week-long summer conference of the Ontario Young Progressive Conservative Association, said many trade unionists felt that the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties "are not suited to their needs" and that "they have to have a political party of their own."

"Yet both the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties provide the only system under which the trade unions can operate efficiently. Traditionally, the labor movement stands for the maintenance of the free enterprise system just as the Progressive Conservative party does."

Need Bomb Shelters

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP) — Planning Commission chairman Jerry Finkelstein says it's time for New York City to build some atom bomb shelters. He suggests the shelters be constructed under the city's parks, playgrounds and buildings and when not needed for protection against bombs, they could be used for much needed parking garage space.

Executive Editor Robert Blood Dies

MANCHESTER, N.H., Aug. 5—(AP)—Robert McCutchins Blood, 67, who retired several months ago as executive editor of the Manchester Union-Leader, died Friday at his home after a long illness.

He had worked at the Lowell, Mass., Courier-Citizen, the Montreal Star, the Syracuse, N.Y., Post-Standard and the Boston Globe before he came here as managing editor of the old Mirror in 1918.

City Drafting Room Lure For 'Draftees'

HAGERSTOWN Md., Aug. 5 (AP)—The city engineer's office hopes it won't be bothered any more by potential draftees.

A sign on the office reads: "Drafting Room, Private," and young men have been coming in in droves for "draft information."

The engineer's office now has another sign:

"This is not the draft board. Go one floor below."

Liquor Real Worry

LOMA, Calif., Aug. 5—(AP)—The United States soon will become a country of "alcoholics unanimous" if the present trend continues, says Dr. John C. Almack, professor of education at Stanford University. He told the institute of scientific study for prevention of alcoholism Friday that about 50 per cent of high school and college students use alcohol and that it is becoming a problem among junior high school students 13 and 14 years old.

Tells Dinner Guests He's Leaving His Wife

BALTIMORE, Aug. 5—(AP)—Former opera star Rosa Ponselle testified yesterday "it was rather a shock" when her husband announced in front of dinner guests:

"Rosa, I have very unpleasant news for you. I have apparently failed you as a husband and as of 6:20 I am leaving you."

"And," said one of the dinner guests, "at 6:20, he walked out."

The soprano is seeking an absolute divorce from Carle A. Jackson and the right to resume her maiden name. She charges desertion.

There was no immediate decision on her request.

Miss Ponselle joined the Metropolitan opera in 1918 and quit her singing career in 1936 when she and Jackson were married in New York. She described him at the time as her "Prince Charming."

Removing Pennants Marking Centennial

The pennant banners which have been brightening towntown streets since summer set in are to be removed. City soot has darkened their colors, and in the decision of the centennial committee they are making way for the street intersection decorations now being fashioned by the Utilities Commission.

A tenative event for September is contemplated in the committee's instructions to the secretary to try to arrange with Robert Bonnell, carillonneur at the House of Commons, Ottawa, for a program on the bells of St. John's Church.

It was agreed that Mr. Bruce Sargent should endeavour to arrange for street folk dances, working out the details as they develop with the committee and secretary.

Another proposal is to give publicity to the visit of Joe Kirkwood to the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Saturday, Aug. 26.

A convention of the northern division of Cyzicus Sanctorum No. 42, Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans (IOOF) is to be held here Sept. 29-30. A letter from W. J. Bull requested the service of Peterborough Citizens Band for this occasion.

The committee is writing to Mr. Bull for details of date and time when the band would be required.

La Guardia Estate

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP). — The late Mayor Fiorello La Guardia left assets of $162,440 when he died in 1947, an estate tax appraisal revealed Friday. Mrs. Marie M. La Guardia, his widow, is sole legate under his will.

Visitors Surprised To See "Treeless Prairie" Has Trees

Written For The Canadian Press By PERCY GHENT

Visitors from eastern Canada who travel the western plains for the first time often are surprised that the "treeless prairie" is not nearly as bare of trees as they expected to find.

Tree planting for shelter belts around prairie homes and gardens has developed amazingly in recent years, and almost everywhere there are long stretches of native aspens and other trees to break the monotony of the prairie landscape.

While there is an almost Siberian severity in winter cold on the prairies, research and experiment shows that an opulence of beauty will adorn the land in years to come. It should not be forgotten that little more than half a century has elapsed since settlement on prairie lands really got under way on an ambitious scale.

What has been accomplished in the way of forestry and agricultural reasearch at such stations as Indian Head, Saskatchewan, is a matter for pride and gratitude.

Prospect Promising

Even for roses the prospect is promising. Some years ago at Indian Head a stray seedling rose was discovered. It is now known as the rose rambler. When discovered it was climbing high among the pines at the forestry station, and from it researchers are working to produce a climbing rose that will thrive in extremely low temperatures.

Many lilacs have been found hardy enough for prairie growth, and a surprising number of useful and ornamental plants introduced by settlers from their native lands have flourished. These, together with abundant prairie wild flowers, western birds and other wildlife make Canada's plains a fascinating realm for research and exploration for gardeners and naturalists alike.

Amphibious Plants

There are amphibious plants as well as animals. They thrive half in and half out of the water. Those plants of the waterside with dainty white flowers with the golden centres that insects love — the broad-leaved arrowheads — are amphibious. Lower leaves of the arrowhead are long, green ribbons moving gracefully in flowing water.

When ponds and streams dry up in summer heat, as they so often do, those ribbon-like leaves and the plant itself become high and dry. But after the rains bring nourishment, the plant revives in its new land setting, and broad, arrow-shaped leaves appear and grow to generous size.

Bordering many Canadian lakes and sluggish streams are the long stalks and deep blue flowers of the pickerel weed. It is a "wading" plant and both flowers and glossy leaves are attractive. Pickerel weed was so tagged because pickerel deposit their eggs among its leaves. So do many other finny species.

Water-lilies that adorn a thousand lake margins in every lakeland of Canada, are the loveliest of all summer wild flowers. There is no more striking scene in nature, perhaps, than a lily-adorned lake with a moose nuzzling at their roots, and, for background, some lofty, snow-crowned mountain of the Rockies.

Private Lives Will Star Charmion King

Noel Coward's Private Lives which has run for years through Canada, The United States and England will be the next production of the Peterborough Summer Theatre opening Monday night.

The original production starred Mr. Coward and Gertrude Lawrence. Later on it was taken over in the United States by Talulla Bankhead and she has toured most of the states and the principal cities of Canada with it.

This adult play is set at the Riviera and Paris. A divorced husband and wife by coincidence arrive for their honeymoons with their second mates at the same hotel. When they meet the fireworks start.

Coward is one of the most versatile playwrights living. He wrote and starred in the war film about the British navy, In Which We Serve. He wrote the comedy Blithe Spirit which the Summer Theatre produced last year and he wrote the operetta Bittersweet as well as many other well-known plays and musicals.

The Summer Theatre's production of Private Lives will star Charmion King. She starred in Night Must Fall and No Time For Comedy. In supporting roles will be William Hutt, Gerry Saraccini and Beborah Turnbull.

Frank Perry is directing. Running this week in Niagara Falls, Private Lives is the biggest success the Summer Theatre has had there this year.

India's Parliament Backs Action In Korea

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 5 (AP)— Parliament approved Friday the policy of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru supporting United Nations action in Korea.

The parliamentary action followed a debate on foreign policy in which Nehru defended his support of the U.N action against aggression in Korea, but chided the western powers for failure to give the Chinese Communists a seat in the U.N.

Blame Hoarding For High Costs

TORONTO, Aug. 5 — (CP) — Grocery wholesalers Friday night blamed panic buying of food items for the increase in the cost-of-living index to a record 167.5.

They said panic buying and hoarding of such items as sugar, vegetable oil and coffee was largely responsible. There was no shortage of any of these items.

The June index, 2.1 points higher than May, was announced today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. It is based on 1935 equals 100. The food sub-index increased from 209 to 214.3.

Appoint J. Robertson Supt. Of Airways

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 (CP)—J. R. Robertson of Toronto has been appointed superintendent of airways and airports of the Transport Department in Ottawa, he will succeed Maj. Robert Dodds, who was recently promoted to controller of civil aviation.

Mr. Robertson, a native of Blenheim, Ont., has been district controller of air services at Toronto since 1948.

S. S. Foley will be transferred from Moncton, N.B., to fill the vacancy at Toronto. He has been district controller of air services for the Maritimes ever since the office was created in 1948.

Mr. Robertson became chief inspector of airways in 1943.

Mr. Foley, born at Saint John, N.B., joined the civil aviation branch of the Transport Department in 1936 as assistant inspector, civil aviation.

Two Missing Soldiers Found In Red Camp

BERLIN, Aug. 5 (AP)—Gerhart Eisler, East German chief of information said Friday a British and an American soldier had deserted "to join our peace front."

Eisler said the soldiers were Robert Natzkakula, an American, and John K. Waller, a British corporal.

Both soldiers appeared at a press conference in their uniforms.

U.S. army officials said a private by the name of Natzkakula has been missing since April 17. They said he had three court martial demerits against him and was dishonorably discharged as "undesirable" about the time he vanished.

A British spokesman said a Robert K. Waller, 20, has been missing from a British supply depot since May 15.

Seeks Missing Son Find He's Jailed

MONTREAL, Aug 5 —(CP) — Mrs. Margaret Mullarkey, who reported her young son, John, missing 10 days ago, said Friday the first word she had of his whereabouts was when the Missing Persons Bureau advised her he had been sentenced to five years in prison on a holdup charge. She said the boy is 16 years old.

He was one of a group of teenagers who pleaded guilty to threatening a nearby Ile Perrot storekeeper July 15 with a knife and taking his cash register with its contents of $58.

Complete Staff Exercise

FONTAINBLEAU, France, Aug. 5 (Reuters)— The Western union defence ministers and generals today ended a four-day staff exercise.

Their "tactical exercise without troops," was understood to have been a mock battle between western ground, air and naval units against forces trying to invade Western Europe.

Reds Pour Across River Posing New Threat To Battling U.S. Troops

Big U.S. Offensive Bogs Down In South "Not Going To Plan"; 9,000 Communists Reported Across Naktong

TOKYO, Aug. 9—(Wednesday)—(CP)—North Korean troops poured across the Naktong river defence barrier in Korea Tuesday while far to the south an American offensive was slowed by heavy resistance. Upwards of 9,000 North Koreans were reported over the Naktong in two crossings. A war summary released here at 9.30 a.m. EDT today said the "possible threat from the small bridgeheads . . . has neither increased nor decreased," but a U.S. Army spokesman in Korea described them as of "primary concern at present."

Another possible threat developed when the South Korean army reported a Red Korean force of possibly 1,000 had slipped through Allied lines to within five miles of Pohang, the East Coast port where American troops landed three weeks ago Allied patrols were checking the reported infiltration.

The two-day American marine and infantry offensive in the extreme south made small and bloody gains in all-day attacks, Reuters News Agency quoted an army spokesman as saying it would be a "similar description" of the battle today it was "not going according to plan."

Plans Upset

However, in the face of heavy opposition the offensive had gained 10 miles and was 10 or 12 miles east of battered Chinju. Marines succeeded in freeing an army detachment which had been pocketed by a Communist flanking movement.

The Red bridgeheads on the Naktong posed threats to Allied forces at two places.

One was five miles north of Waegwan, 15 miles northwest of Taegu, the provisional South Korean capital. The other was six miles south of Changnyong, which is southwest of Tague.

At least three Red regiments—9,000 men with probably more slipping behind them in darkness—were over the river in two spots. Front-line reports said one of eight tanks sighted had been ferried across the river by the Communists.

Gen. MacArthur continued to take an optimistic view of the situation.

Reds Advance 2 Miles

The Communists had advanced two miles or more in some sectors across the river in the Yanggi sector. Seven Red tanks, waiting to move over the river were under top-priority American air attack.

One of Gen. MacArthur's intelligence officers estimated North Korean losses in six weeks were 44,500 men—an average of more than 1,000 a day in the war which started six weeks ago.

When the fresh army troops were thrown at the remnants of two Red regiments near Changnyong two American Mustangs joined the attack and strafed the U.S. by mistake, hitting 19 of them.

The Changnyong move had been against the weakened US 25th Infantry Division. Its 24th Regi-

HEADS LABOR DEPARTMENT—Veterans Minister Milton F. Gregg has been named to succeed the late Humphrey Mitchell as head of the Labor Department.

Appoint Gregg To Head Dept. Of Labor

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP) — A new minister has stepped into the labor department on the verge of a critical situation in the railway management-labor deadlock.

To take the place of the late Humphrey Mitchell, the government Monday named Veterans Minister Milton F. Gregg, soldier and educator who has been in parliament since late 1947.

The second leg of a two-way cabinet shuffle brought the veterans' affairs portfolio to Solicitor-General Lapointe, 38, whose job is being absorbed by Justice Minister Garson.

Mr. Gregg moved into the labor department as indications pointed to likely government intervention in the wage-hours dispute between 17 unions and the railways, threatened with a general strike Aug. 22 unless a satisfactory settlement is negotiated before that.

To Play Key Role

As minister, Mr. Gregg will be called on to play a key role in any settlement that the government may hammer out.

Appointment of the new minister was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent just six days after the death of Mr. Mitchell, and apparently it was hastened by the imminence of the rail crisis and the possibility of a general tie-up unless settlement is reached.

In taking up labor, Mr. Gregg moves into his third portfolio in less than three years. He was president of the University of New Brunswick when he was chosen fisheries minister late in 1947. His riding is York-Sunbury in New Brunswick.

Shirley May France Forced To Give Up 8 Miles Off Shore

DOVER, Kent, England, Aug. 8 (AP)—Florence Chadwick, San Diego swimmer, conquered the English Channel today in record time but Shirley May France was forced to give up eight miles off shore.

Miss Chadwick, who is 31, and a professional swimmer, cut the women's record set by Gertrude Ederle in 1926. She made it in 13 hours, 28 minutes, one hour and three minutes under the Ederle mark.

She swam to Dover from Cap Gris Nez, France, on a course of at least 22 miles.

Thousands of persons lined the white cliffs of Dover. Reporters asked Miss Chadwick if she was all right. "Yes," she said, "but these slippery, jagged rocks are not so good to scramble over after a long swim.

"I feel fine and am quite prepared to swim back."

When she was only a quarter mile out, she had been asked if she wanted to rest her legs.

"No, fear," she answered, laughing. "I'll keep going now. It looks only another yard or so to the finish."

Great Swim

A few feet from the shore line under the 250-foot cliffs, she clambered into one of her rowboats because of the rocky surface under foot. But no one doubted that she had finished her swim and made it one of the greatest in the history of channel attempts.

She was not far short—by channel swim standards—of the recognized men's record of 11:05 set by France's Georges Michel.

Miss Chadwick was the third American woman t. make this crossing—19 miles as the crow flies, but actually much farther in swimming distance because of the sweep of tides.

The others were Miss Ederle and Mrs. Mille Gade Carson, who crossed in 1926 in 15 hours, 28 minutes.

Forced To Give Up

Shirley May France, the 17-year-old girl from Somerset, Mass., had been swimming 13 hours, 46 minutes when she gave up. She was sobbing as she was pulled from the water, within sight of the white cliffs.

Miss Chadwick left France in the darkness 19 minutes ahead of Shirley May.

A long-time champion swimmer Miss Chadwcik in 1945 turned professional to appear in the film "Bathing Beauty" with Esther Williams. For the last two years, while working for an oil company in Saudi Arabia, she trained constantly often getting up before dawn for a two-hour swim before going to work. On

UN Brigade Recruited By Canada

Plan Special Force For Korea, Other Trouble Spots

OTTAWA, Aug. 8—(CP)—Canada moved today to double the standing fighting strength of her regular army as the world headed into weeks of crisis which Ottawa and other western capitals feel will show whether Russia intends to touch off a Third World War.

To the airborne brigade that has been earmarked to defend the country, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Monday night the army will add a second brigade, a "special force" that will be "specially trained and equipped to be available for use in carrying out Canada's obligations under the United Nations charter or the North Atlantic Pact."

Recruiting for the second brigade will start tomorrow.

That will give the army two brigades, each of about 5,000 men, one slated for home defence, the other to fight in Korea or elsewhere for the U.N. as the international situation dictates once it is ready after months of training.

If not needed in Korea, when ready, it could be sent elsewhere. The two brigades, in effect, will give Canada two-thirds of a division.

Broader Standards

Authoritative quarters said formation of the new force means these things:

1. The army will be gunning for at least 10,000 men—it has about 21,000—including 3,000 to 4,000 to fill out the regular force, 5,000 for the new brigade on terms of engagement for 18 months or longer if required, and reinforcements for the new brigade. The ban against married men is out and recruiting standards are being broadened. More thousands are wanted in the reserves.

2. There will be double recruiting—for the regular and for the special force.

3. The army won't take chances on facing the sort of criticisms that broke over the allegedly

Picton Gunners Arrested After Holdup

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 8 (CP)—Two men, described by police as deserters from Picton army camp, were arrested Saturday following the armed robbery of the Canadian Pacific Railway ticket office here.

The men, Gnrs. G. J. L Nelmes and J. T. Bennett, were arrested a few minutes after a bandit robbed the office of $80. Nelmes and Bennett were armed with three loaded automatics, police said.

They were arrested at gunpoint by motorcycle constable Herman Scarnati, who spotted them in brushland a few hundred yards from the station. Both denied any connection with the holdup.

They were charged with unlawful possession of firearms Army authorities said they left Picton July 23, armed with guns and ammunition.

A few minutes before they were arrested, a man walked into the ticket office and asked Clerk Melvin Miller the fare to Winnipeg. After he was told, Miller said, the man raised his hand and pointed a revolver at him.

"Are you kidding?" Miller said he asked.

"Not on your life," the man replied. "Hand over the money quick."

Miller said he passed over two $10 bills then was forced to hand over another $60. He was told to put down his window, he said, but as he did so he watched to see where the bandit went. As soon as he left the station, Miller called police.

Snake Escapes, Scour Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Aug. 8 (AP).—A six-foot-six-inch long boa constrictor which curves around a dancer in a night club act was slithering somewhere else Monday.

Firemen, police and some 200 searchers were beating the bushes in this tourist area for the big snake, which escaped early Monday morning.

Dancer Susan Williams said that after she and Sabu staged their act at a club she drove friends to a restaurant.

When they came out Sabu who "wasn't in a very good mood," had left his cage on the back seat of the car, Miss Williams reported.

A-Bomber Crashes 2 Fliers Bail Out

MUROC, Calif., Aug. 8 (AP)—Two fliers bailed out safely as a United States Navy AJ-1 attack bomber crashed Monday in the first reported failure of the plane designed especially to carry an atomic bomb

Pilot Daniel Darnell, Jr., 30, and Co-Pilot Charles E. Poage, 27, testing for North American Aviation, makers of the plane, parachuted from 15,000 feet when the planes right engine was torn away.

The navy is spending more than $12,000,000 on the development of the twin-engine AJ-1.

Had Wonderful Time

HAMILTON, Aug. 8—(CP)—Hamilton kids think a fire department open house is a swell idea. The fire department tried on Monday to show citizens what happens to the $1,000,000 a year spent for fire protection. But the citizens' children enjoyed it most of all—they climbed over the engines, tried on firemen's helmets and—when firemen weren't looking — slid down the brass poles.

France Gets 2 Warships Under US Aid Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—France will receive its first two United States warships under the foreign military aid program Aug 12 at Philadelphia, the U.S. Defence Department announced today.

The vessels are the 1,240-ton destroyer escorts Samuel F. Mills and Riddle, both in service in the Second World War. They will be renamed the Arabe and Kabyle.

France is the second country to get warships from the U.S. under the program. Two destroyer escorts were transferred to the Netherlands June 1. Eight more ships of the same class now are being readied for early delivery to western European allies.

Indo-China has received six support landing ships and eight C-47 transport planes from the U.S.

Turkey will get a submarine rescue ship Aug. 15. Two submarines now being refitted by the navy also are expected to go to Turkey.

Burma is expected to get a number of small patrol craft in the near future.

The tempo of arms aid to the smaller countries of southeast Asia is likely to be stepped up soon, defence headquarters indicated, following receipt of the preliminary report of the U.S. survey mission now in southeast Asia.

No immediate information was available as to specific recommendations in the report, but defence officials said the Vietnam army of Indo-China needs small arms, light artillery and some heavier weapons. Needs of the former French colonial state are being considered in addition to requirements of the French army now opposing Communist led rebels in Indo-China.

May Revive Price Controls

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP). — Parliament, at the session to be called in six or seven weeks, will be asked to revive some of the wartime controls on basic materials used in the production of war materials, it was learned authoritatively today.

The special session, to authorize the recruitment of an armed brigade for use by the United Nations in Korea or elsewhere, will be asked to revive the munitions and supply act, repealed at the last session of parliament.

The Act, passed early in the Second World War, gave the government authority to allocate such things as steel and other materials vital in the production of war supplies. It provided authority for letting contracts without calling tenders and for the auditing of the books of firms carrying out war contracts.

The government will ask for power to reimpose such controls, although it may not use the powers immediately. Present plans call for efforts to seek co-operation of industry on a voluntary basis.

Mr. King's Estate $750,000 Leaves 2 Houses To Nation

OTTAWA, Aug. 8—(CP)—Former Prime Minister Mackenzie King's estate is valued at about $750,000 and is to be used largely for public purposes and for the establishment of scholarships, executors of his will disclosed today. Mr. King, who died July 22, left these bequests: His private papers, a mine of Canadian history, are turned over to four literary executors, but his personal diaries are to be destroyed except for certain parts he has indicated. Laurier House in Ottawa, the home of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. King, is left to the government along with a $225,000 trust fund for its upkeep, in the hope that it will be kept up as a memento of its occupancy by two Prime Ministers.

The 500 acres and buildings of Mr. King's summer home at nearby Kingsmere are given to the government as a public park, OTTAWA.—(CP)—A radio address dealing with the will of former Prime Minister King, will be broadcast by L. W. Brockington, Ottawa lawyer, at 7.30 p.m. EDT tonight over the CBC's national network.

with Mr. King expressing the hope that part of the property will be set aside as a country home for future Prime Ministers

Income from a sum of $100,000, presented to Mr. King on his 74th birthday for his personal use by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is to be used to set up travelling scholarships worth $1,500 each and known as "Mackenzie King travelling scholarships."

Graduate Scholarships

They will go to graduates of Canadian universities for post-graduate study of international relations or industrial relations in United States and United Kingdom universities.

Police Detachment Sergeant Demoted

WINDSOR, Aug. 8 (CP) — Demotion of Provincial Police Sergeant W. M. Durnford in charge of the Essex county detachment, to the rank of first class constable was announced during the weekend.

Corporal William Gilbert took charge of the detachment on Sunday pending the arrival of a senior officer to replace Durnford.

No reason was given for the demotion, and Durnford said: "I have no comment. It is strictly a departmental matter."

Hope To Name Leader

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP)—The defence department is hoping to announce in the next few days the name of the man who will lead Canada's new army brigade. He is expected to be an outstanding veteran of the Second World War who returned to civilian life when peace returned.

Four Evangelists Prefer Jail Term To Paying Fine

VAL D'OR, Que., Aug. 8—(CP)—Four Baptist Evangelists Monday chose two-month jail terms rather than fines after they were convicted of obstructing traffic on a street in this northwestern Quebec mining town. In Montreal, a Baptist Church official said he was "stunned that such a thing is possible in Canada."

The Rev. L. T. Heron, pastor of Val d'Or's Evangel Baptist Church, and three assistants, each was fined $25 and costs with the alternative of two months in jail by Recorder J. L. Baillargeon They refused to pay the fines and accepted the jail terms.

Jailed with Mr. Heron were his sister, Miss Isobel Heron of Toronto, church deacon Malcolm Lesar, Windsor, and deacon Malcolm Purcell of Val d'Or.

The trial, held here Monday night, was the culmination of another in a series of court cases in Quebec Province which have arisen from evangelical street meetings, distributing pamphlets without a permit and similar incidents.

Late last month, another group of five Baptist evangelists were arrested at La Sarre, a mining town near Val d'Or for disturbing the peace. The charges were dropped a week ago and town council

Riviera Thieves Get 2nd Haul

CANNES, France, Aug. 8 (Reuters)—The second big Riviera jewel robbery in 48 hours took place Monday night during a cocktail party at the Villa Eldee here.

About 20 Italian guests of Mme. Louis Drefus, wife of a former French senator, were in a ground-floor lounge of the villa when it was discovered that the bedrooms had been looted.

The robbery occurred while police were investigating Saturday night's $56,000 jewel haul from the Cannes villa "Le Roc", rented by Mrs. Norman Winston, wife of an American nylon stocking magnate.

UK Conservative Delegates Have Alternative Steel Plan

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 8—(AP) — British Conservative delegates in the European Consultative Assembly today presented a new project for pooling Europe's steel and coal production as an alternative to the Schuman plan.

The British outline, drafted by David Eccles and Harold MacMillan, is said to represent the limit to which Britain will go in joining such a pool.

British Labor party delegates in the Assembly said they will remain neutral in discussions. Support for the new plan, they explained, might embarass their own government. On the other hand, they will not oppose it.

Under the Eccles-MacMillan proposals, the key control over the international steel-coal authority would be a committee of foreign ministers of the member countries with the veto right over authority decisions.

The project was contained in a 21-point resolution for the Assembly's consideration when it debates the Schuman plan. It outlines a treaty which members would submit to their respective parliaments.

Like the Schuman plan, the British Conservative proposal calls upon European countries to merge their steel and coal production and to create a single market for these two basic industries.

Unlike the Schuman plan, the proposed authority would not be responsible to a common parliament, but to the European council as a whole. The authority's record would, however, be submitted every year to the Consultative Assembly for review.

Police Seeking Dynamite Crank

KIRKLAND LAKE, Aug. 8 (CP)—Police today pressed a search for a "crank" who has a mania for using dynamite.

A hound dog's head was blown off Monday after someone tied a charge under its collar. Early Saturday a dynamite explosion shattered windows in a residential section.

Arthur Patterson, owner of the dog, told police that it was quiet and the killer would have no difficulty stuffing a dynamite stick under its collar.

No one was injured when a seven-stick blast rocked an apartment building.

2 Students First To Scale Mountain

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 8 (AP) — Two Harvard students have scaled hitherto-unconquered Mount Yerupaja, csalled the 'butcher" by Peruvians, but one is coming back with a frozen foot.

The two who made the journey to the four-mile-high snow-capped summit were David Harrah of Seattle, Wash., and James Maxwell of Braintree, Mass It was the first recorded climbing of the Andean peak.

Reports reaching here from the remote mountain region, about 300 miles northeast of Lima, said Harran suffered a frozen foot and Maxwell a frozen toe when ethy were forced to spend the night on the mountain without shelter.

Perpetual blizzards whip the top of Mount Yerupaja. Peruvian tradition says that not even the Andean condor, a tremendous eagle-like bird, has ever reached the "butcher's" summit.

Hurricane Hits Winnipeg, Damage Heavy

WINNIPEG, Aug. 8 (CP).—A flash thunderstorm of near-hurricane proportions struck Greater Winnipeg early Monday. Two men were killed. The gale caused hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage and a power blackout through much of the city.

The storm, accompanied by winds up to 68 miles an hour, was described as the worst of its kind to hit Winnipeg in 28 years.

Paul Chumilar, 41, died when he touched a live wire blown down by the storm and 64-year-old Clarence B. Lee collapsed and died of a heart attack while attempting to close the windows of his home during the rainstorm.

Seven other persons were injured by falling trees.

Buildings Damaged

The 40-minute blow, which started at 12:20 a.m., damaged scores of buildings, telephone poles and flooded streets, basements and subways. Thousands of trees were blown down.

Thousands of dollars worth of plate glass windows were demolished. At least one hundred in the downtown area were smashed. Roofs were torn off many buildings and homes — others were struck by lightning.

Trees and power lines are down all over Greater Winnipeg. City hydro and Winnipeg Electric repairmen were hard pressed to restore service as emergency calls flooded in.

Parks through the city suffered heavy damage to trees and flower gardens and at least one golf course was temporarily put out of action.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP) — Grains opened higher at the Board of Trade today, continuing yesterday's closing rally. The deferred contracts of wheat as well as those in corn and oats showed the greatest strength.

Wheat opened unchanged to ⅞ cent higher than yesterday's close September $2.24¾; corn was unchanged to ½ higher, September $1.52½, and oats were ¼-½ higher, September 77¼-⅜. Soybeans were ¾ lower to one cent higher, November $2.49½-2.50.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

AGE LOSES FIGHT AGAINST HOUSING

Since man first built his most humble shelter, old age and fire have constantly conspired to destroy every home he constructed.

But today, these saboteurs meet a formidable resistance where exterior walls are built of Johns-Manville Cedargrains.

J-M Cedargrains are asbestos siding shingles; not one has ever burned—not one has worn out! They have a rich grained appearance and are available in five attractive colours. They prove equally economical in construction of new homes or remodelling.

ment of Negro troops had been diverted to support the southern thrust by Marines and the US 5th Regimental Combat Team. This forced the US 1st Cavalry Division to extend its line southward 4½ miles along the Naktong.

In the extreme south the Marines scaled valley walls and fought over rugged hilltops to rescue the fifth Regimental Unit from the flanking attack.

The action of Chindong, 12 miles east of Chinju, where the Southern Allied forces pulled up Monday after kicking off on their first offensive of the war.

Heavy Artillery Attacks.

Associated Press Correspondents Don Whitehead and Tom Lambert reported heavy raking artillery and mortar attacks by Red forces in the south.

Red guns dominated the choked and dusty roads west of Chidong at a junction where the 5th Infantry turned northwestward toward Chinju. The marines headed southward toward Kosang.

Infiltrations cut back of the American positions Monday night and set up two roadblocks between Chidong and Masan.

One Red attack hit a unit of the 24th Regiment as the negro combat men climbed into trucks under orders to clean out another pocket at Haman, northwest of Masan. The Reds came over a hill and opened fire, Correspondent Whitehead reported, but were met by counter-attacking American small arms fire and aerial and tank attacks.

Briefing officers at MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters said the American offensive evidently beat the Reds by a few hours before they tried to jump off on a new drive toward Pusan, the main US supply funnel. This meant the two forces hit head-on.

The fighting on the southern front was heavy and progress was slow Tuesday.

UN Brigade

badly-trained force sent to Hong Kong in 1941. Training may be completed in Japan but there will be months of it in Canada.

4. It is hoped that distinguished soldiers from the recent war can be found to lead the new formation.

5. Veterans will get preference. It is felt a force largely composed of veterans, with officers from veteran and peace-time-trained groups, could be trained for fighting in six or seven months.

Under Discussion

It is not yet known whether the brigade, if it goes to Korea, will fight in a British or an American formation. This is under discussion in Washington and at UN headquarters.

7. Canada will foot the bill for any UN action it enters, pay the men at current army rates, provide pensions, care for the wounded, provide veterans' benefits on a basis decided by parliament, guarantee that the men get their jobs back.

The brigade's three infantry battalions will be second battalions of the three permament force regiments whose first battalions make up the infantry component of the airborne brigade. Thus they will be the second battalions of the Royal Canadian Regiment the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal 22nd Regiment. There also will be artillery and other components.

Army Requirements

The men must be physically fit, mentally alert, between 19 and 35 inclusive and 19 to 45 for tradesmen, and they can be either single or married. They could be kept in longer than 18 months "due to an emergency or action taken by Canada pursuant to an international agreement."

Under present rates of pay, a private on entry into the army receives $122 monthly in basic pay and subsistence allowance, with an additional $30 monthly if married.

Total pay for a sergeant is $161, for a warrant officer, first class, $216; lieutenant, $254; captain, $286; and major, $361.

Marriage allowance, in addition to the above figures, is $30 for other ranks, $40 for officers.

Will Recall Parliament In Six or Seven Weeks

OTTAWA, Aug. 8—(CP)—Canada has launched a vast program of rearmament-for-defence—including the doubling of her standing Army—and a special session of Parliament will be asked within a few weeks to approve the moves and foot the bill.

Prime Minister St. Laurent made these disclosures Monday night in a national CBC broadcast after weeks of speculation. He announced formation of a special Army brigade to fight in Korea or elsewhere, said production of ships, planes, guns and ammunition is being stepped up all along the line and declared these steps are made necessary by Communism's threat to world peace.

"It is going to be hard for nations hungering for peace and not yet recovered from six years of total war, once again to give first place to re-armament," he said.

"But events force us to be realistic."

Menacing Implications

He referred to the "menacing implications" of the Korean war, the action of the United Nations to stamp out this aggression and declared:

"If we are to avert the danger which threatens the free world, we must marshal and increase the resources available to resist aggression; we must build up military strength backed by industrial strength; we must accept the economic and financial policies which will enable us to maintain our strength."

The new defence program is one that puts Canada closer to a wartime footing than ever before during peacetime.

It is expected the new moves will boost Canada's defence budget from $423,000,000 to $600,000,000 or better. In addition controls may be clamped on materials vital to the preparedness drive should scarcities develop.

The Prime Minister's disclosures came after a series of cabinet meetings. The last of these ended late Monday with only three ministers absent — Agriculture Minister Gardiner, Works Minister Fournier and Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Senate. All are away from the capital.

To Call Parliament

Mr. St. Laurent said a special session of Parliament would be called in six or seven weeks, earlier if the threat of war continues to grow.

In addition to opening recruiting for the new brigade, Mr. St. Laurent said Canada is "pressing on" with recruiting for other active forces including the navy and air force and for the reserve army which forms an integral part of Canada's defence system.

She also is accelerating production of her new, all-weather jet fighter, the CF-100, which in tests had exceeded expectations. She is greatly expanding production facilities for her own jet engine, the Orenda, and is stepping up production program for naval vessels, armament, ammunition, radar and other types of equipment.

In this industrial mobilization she was working in close co-operation with the United States so that "our joint resources and facilities are put to the most effective use in the common defence," Mr. St. Laurent said.

It was not Canada's objective to make war, he said, but rather to prevent one. No one could guarantee that by the action now being taken by all free nations, a "general war" could be prevented.

Obituary

MRS. RICHARD HEFFERNAN

A life-long resident in the Norwood vicinity, Mrs. Richard Heffernan, RR 3, Norwood, died on Sunday after an illness of four months. She was aged 72.

Born in Otonabee, Mrs. Heffernan was daughter of William Garvey and his wife, Ann Fitzgerald. She was a member of St. Paul's Church, Norwood, where she was a past president of the Catholic Women's League and a member of the Altar Society.

She leaves three sons and five daughters: Alfonse, Richard and Bernard of Norwood; Mrs. Cecil Lynch (Mona) of Hastings; Mrs. Stanley Condon (Aileen) of Douro; Mrs. Jack Delaney (Rita) of Norwood; Mrs. Ralph Hamilton (Josephine) of Havelock; Miss Ann Heffernan, Reg. N., of Peterborough.

Two sisters are Mrs. Michael Heffernan of Norwood and Mrs. Mary Cavanaugh, Otonabee.

The funeral will take place Wednesday from the family residence to St. Paul's for requiem mass at 9:30 a.m. Burial will be in St. Paul's cemetery.

Prices Up Slightly In Mixed Trading

TORONTO, Aug. 8 (CP) — Prices pushed slightly higher in mixed trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials paced the market with strong gains in selective issues while trading in other groups was slow.

Volume for the first three hours was 494,000 shares.

In industrials, papers, steels and utilities all showed strong gains in selective issues. International Paper was a bright spot, selling $7 a share higher at $63. Ford A gained $1 at $44.50 in motors. Agricultures and refining oils also attracted buying.

Golds weakened after showing strong advances in recent sessions. Most of the losses were in junior producers while in the seniors Kerr Addison gained ⅛ at 16⅛ and Wright Hargreaves added four cents at $1.81.

Base metals pushed ahead. Ascot Corporation added six cents at $1.28.

In western oils, Central Leduc and Calvan paced a handful of gainers.

Mr. King's Estate

Residue of the estate, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, will found a series of post-graduate scholarships not exceeding $1,000 each and known as "Mackenzie King scholarships." They will go to graduates of Canadian universities, with one earmarked for a graduate of Harvard University, which Mr. King attended.

Another $15,000 is left to the University of Toronto to found the "John King scholarship" in memory of Mr. King's father. It will be awarded annually for proficiency in English literature or constitutional history.

Personal Bequests

In addition, the executors said, there are many personal bequests to relatives, personal friends and servants. Succession duties on these are to be paid out of the estate itself.

The general terms of the will, yet to be probated, were made known by the executors in a 1,000-word summary issued today. The 6,000-word text of the will will be made public tonight.

The executors and general trustees are the Royal Trust Company, Fred A. McGregor, formerly Mr. King's secretary and recently federal combines commissioner, and Duncan W. MacTavish, KC, of Ottawa.

In their statement, the executors said the great bulk of Mr. King's estate is dedicated to public purposes."

"It will appear from the will itself," they added, "that this dedication was close to Mr. King's heart and mind for many long years before he died. The will, therefore, can be said to be in large measure the fulfilment of his life-long desire to leave his properties and investments for the benefit of his fellow citizens."

Not Full Estimate

While it was not possible yet to estimate accurately the full value of the estate, they said, it was believed to be "something over $750,000."

Besides Laurier House and Kingsmere, it includes the former Prime Minister's personal savings; investments and insurance funds; and various legacies, gifts and personal trust funds which came to Mr. King for his personal use but which executors said he always segregated and treated as though they were personal trusts.

The $225,000 fund which accompanies the gift to the nation of Laurier House was one of these. It was originally given Mr. King by Hon. Peter Larkin and other friends to assist in the upkeep of Laurier House and meet other "personal and public needs," especially those that might develop after retirement.

The sum has remained intact in Mr. King's hands as a trust fund.

His Express Wish

The executors said it was his expressed wish that the home would be immediately associated with the public archives of Canada and made available to students of history, remaining as far as possible in its present condition.

Mr. King hoped that future generations of Canadians—in his own words—"will take an increasing interest and pride in the preservation of a house occupied through many years by two of Canada's prime ministers and reminiscent of an environment that was a part of their daily lives."

Mr. King gave detailed instructions for the preservation of Kingsmere, the rolling estate in the Gatineau hills on the Quebec side of the Ottawa river, which he has been acquiring piecemeal during the last 50 years.

It was his determination, the executors said, to hold these lands in trust for his fellow citizens. His general wish was that the property should be maintained in its present state; that it would be developed as a parkland; form a wildlife sanctuary and continue to have the character of a natural forest reserve.

Protects Rights

Mr. King has asked that certain rights of occupancy of the cottages on the property be continued for relatives and friends for a few years.

Mr. King's scholarship bequests are to be administered by a board of trustees consisting of Dr. L. W. Brockington of Ottawa, rector of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.; Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University, Montreal, and Dr. Norman A. M. Mackenzie, president of the University of British Columbia.

The executors said probate of the will is to be applied for as soon as possible.

MELVILLE FOUNTAIN survived the crash with a truck in which Miss Bernice Ruth of Emily Township was killed on Saturday on Highway 11, north of Toronto. Fountain, who was driving the car in which Miss Ruth was a passenger, is reported in "satisfactory" condition in Toronto General Hospital. Aged 27, Fountain is an employee of Canada Packers in Peterborough. His parents live in Fenelon Falls.

agreed to provide protection for further street meetings.

Refused To Move

Mr. Heron and his assistants were arrested here last Saturday night as they held a meeting across the street from the home of Mayor Oza Tetreault. They were told to move on by town police but 16 minutes later, with the meeting still going on, they were taken into custody.

John R. Armstrong, secretary-treasurer of the Union of Regular Baptist Churches in Quebec and Ontario, said Monday night in a statement to Montreal newspapers that he had been in touch by telephone with Val d'Or.

He said that a police sergeant guarding Miss Heron on her way to the cells after her conviction had broken down and cried. Mr. Armstrong also said that Mr. Heron has protested to the judge that his group had not been obstructing traffic. Mr. Armstrong added that the judge, in handing down judgment, said he was not sentencing the four for obstructing traffic but for refusing to obey a police officer.

Second Arrest

Mr. Heron also was arrested in 1949 in Val d'Or for obstructing traffic while preaching in a street.

Last April, a mob stoned and damaged a small store in Shawinigan Falls, Que., where a meeting of the Christian Brethren, another Protestant sect, was taking place. Mayor Francois Roy of the northeastern Quebec city said the incident was regrettable but unavoidable.

Shoots Rapids Hill Battered

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 8 (CP) —Major Lloyd Hill took a three-hour battering with two brief intermissions Sunday as he shot the rapids below Niagara Falls in a stainless-steel barrel.

At the end of the five-mile trip Hill emerged smiling but said he was "pretty badly bruised up."

The 32-year-old riverman says he intends to go over the falls in a barrel Sept. 10.

The barrel, dented when it was sent empty over the falls last month, was battered so much Sunday that Hill said he would use another one for the trip over the cataract.

Uses Hammer On Wife Toronto Man Suicides

TORONTO, Aug. 8 (CP) — Wilfred Kingsley beat his wife to unconsciousness with a hammer Saturday then hanged himself from the frame of a bedroom door.

His wife, Helen, 38, is in critical condition in hospital.

Kingsley's four-year-old daughter, Dawn, saw the beating and walked 200 yards to a neighbor's home and said: "Mummy and daddy are dead."

Police said the little girl told them: "Mummy was stirring potatoes on the stove. Daddy pushed her down. He had a hammer and he pounded her head. Mummy started to cry."

days off she swam eight to 10 hours. A restaurant run by Miss Chadwick's father in San Diego is adorned with about 75 trophies and 250 medals won by his daughter.

Miss Chadwick swam almost mechanically, apparently tireless, as her arms split the cold, calm water. Her pace at the outset was ambitious—60 strokes to the minute—but she cut it back to 26 later. Her flawless rhythm never faltered.

Miss Chadwick paused four or five times an hour to take cubes of sugar, her only nourishment.

The California swimmer financed her attempt—she estimated it cost her $5,000—without outside help. She had refused commercial tie-ups, saying there would be time to discuss such things if she succeeded.

Hers was the 32nd successful swim across the channel. She is the 12th woman to do it.

Miss Chadwick wore an oversize swim suit—inside out, so that the seams wouldn't rub her skin. She also wore a bathing cap.

54 Events In Three Days Make Juniper Island Biggest Regatta of Year

Juniper Island was the focal point of Stony Lake during the holiday weekend where, from Saturday until Monday evening, the biggest regatta of the Kawarthas attracted hundreds of boating and swimming contestants and more than 1,000 spectators. Forty-four events for sailing boats, motor boats, canoes skiffs and swimmers took place during the three days in brilliant sunshine. The variety of boats which gathered at the dock were in themselves, a spectacular sight. One hundred people in 25 canoes started the four-in-a-canoe race and by the time the race ended, 36 people, their canoes overturned, were in for a swim.

Crowds of spectators lined the docks overlooking the course from Juniper and others watched and cheered from other points round the course, some cruising up and down in boats.

Cottagers had come from distant parts of the lake and among the contestants and spectators were people from many parts of the US and Canada.

Open Canoe Race

Nine men entered the open canoe race for the three mile course round the island, Les Crowe coming to the finishing point first and Lloyd Findlay, a close second.

Lee Willoughby, winner of the ladies' single canoe race, completed the course in 58 seconds, taking only nine seconds longer than D. S. Lowry, winner of the men's single canoe race.

Canoeing with Jane Gillespie, in the ladies' tandem race, Lee Willoughby led in 50 seconds, only 7.46 seconds longer than Derry Smith and Alf Cole took to cover the same course.

A great assortment of silver cups and trophies were awarded on Monday evening after the final event, and approximately 100 prizes, including radio sets, table lamps, boating equipment and a variety of valuable articles, donated by Peterborough and Lakefield merchants were presented by Harold Knapman, president of Stony Lake Aquatic Association, which sponsored the regatta. Mr. Knapman was assisted by Mrs. Knapman, who was one of many responsible for the organization and smooth running of the regatta.

Mr. Knapman was in charge of the power boat races held on Saturday; Jim Collins was in charge of the juniors events and Keith Russell, the senior events. The power boat races were run on a course at Mount Julian.

A spectacular event at the power boat races was an exhibition of water skiing by Dr. Jay and Tommy Ryder.

The first day's events were followed by a dance at the Pavilion.

North America Heads Toward Economic Unit

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

There can be little doubt the North American Continent is becoming an economic unit, at least so far as the United States and Canada are concerned.

The second world war put it far on that path and the cold war kept it from drifting from it.

Today, production chiefs of the two countries meet in Ottawa to decide what shall be done to create one great productive bloc for the warmed-up cold war, and whatever may follow. One might say, economically, "Ping! That's it."

Actually, it has been obvious since the end of the second world war that would be it. The United States in two wars used up so much of her natural resources that it was apparent that, of necessity, Canada's relatively-untouched resources would have to be brought into play.

Misleading Terms

The greatest barrier to making best use of this continent's resources is a tendency to tab things by definite names, such as "customs union" or even "political union," phrases which are beclouding and misleading.

Such terms forget the basis on which our automobile industry, for instance, and many another, are built; they forget that this country could be turned into a near farmland without careful nurturing of its own place in the North American and world picture.

In practice Canada has played it well, both from her own point of view and her particular contribution to world affairs.

There is no effective co-operation between Canada and the U.S. which cannot be accomplished without black and white definitions.

It is likely there will be what amounts to a union; but it will be of the whole western world and, we hope, ultimately, the entire world.

The words "political union," or suggestions that the U.S. join the Commonwealth or that the Commonwealth join the United States, only throw sand in the wheels which are moving them toward real union.

Canada knows that through her experience with the real union of the Commonwealth without political union; and through her growing oneness with the United States without sacrificing her right and ability to make a great country out of the northern half of the continent.

Says Korea Promised Manchurian Provinces

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, Aug. 8—(AP)—A Korean refugee from Seoul said today Russia has promised to give Communist Korea two Manchurian provinces after the war.

Capt. Kenneth R. Cornell, American liaison officer with the South Korean forces, told a press conference the information came from a Korean school teacher who escaped from Seoul July 27.

The refugee estimated 3,000 persons had been killed in air bombing of Seoul up to July 27.

Find No Sabotage

FAIRFIELD - SUISUN, Calif., Aug. 8—(AP)—Air force investigators said Monday night they found no evidence of sabotage in the B-29 crash and explosion that killed 17 men here late Saturday night. Ten of the 20 men aboard the plane perished. The other seven killed were firefighters who rushed to the crashed plane before it exploded.

50 Die In Flood

TOKYO, Aug. 8—(CP)—Fifty persons were feared to have lost their lives Monday when flood waters smashed dikes and inundate at least 10,000 acres 100 miles northeast of Tokyo. Some 45,000 inhabitants of two towns and six villages were forced to flee.

$300,000 Home Costs Gov't $43,000

COBOURG, Aug. 8.—(Special to Examiner).—The Rowe estate at Cobourg, which was expropriated by the province in 1949 for use as a girls' training home, will be used to house convalescent or chronic mental patients. Reform Minister William E. Hamilton said Monday that the Rowe summer home, situated on No. 2 Highway, had been found to be better suited for a mental patients' home than for a girls' training school.

The three-storey house on the Rowe estate, built in 1909 by the late Wallace H. Rowe, a Pittsburgh steel magnate, is reported to have cost $300,000. The home was expropriated by the Ontario Government for $43,000 after Mrs. Rowe, widow of the late Mr. Wallace Rowe, had twice refused to sell. Mrs. Rowe had continued to spend the summer at Cobourg after the death of her husband, and had expressed a hope that she would be able to live in the home during the summer for the remainder of her life.

Cottesmore Hall, the name of the Rowe estate, is situated between the Strathmore and McCook estates, both of which had previously been acquired and converted into girls' training schools.

A well built house, Cottesmore Hall has no heating on the second and third floors, where there are only fire-places. It was used as a summer home, with two hot air furnaces.

The Public Works Department said the minister of reform is having a heating plant installed. "When the work is done the building will certainly house more mental patients—and very comfortable, too—than it would have housed wayward girls," the department says.

Mr. Rowe set up his family for the summer months at Cobourg when several other men of the steel industry were taking similar action. Mr. Wallace made several generous contributions to the community, and was a prime mover and the largest contributor in establishing the town's golf club.

Special Inspection

HAMILTON, Aug. 8—(CP)—Miss Canada won't be a mail-order winner after all. S. Radcliffe Weaver, Hamilton beauty parlor operator and sponsor of the annual Miss Canada contest, said Monday night the finalists—chosen by mail—will be given a personal inspection by the judges Thursday. Judging will take place at the Brant Inn, a night club at nearby Burlington.

Marsden Reunion, Alderville Largest Gathering Yet

ROSENEATH, Aug. 8—(ENS)—Upwards of two hundred and fifty guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Marsden, Alderville, for the annual Marsden re-union on Monday. Guests were present from Akron, Ohio; Toronto, Brantford, Oakville, Christian Island, Lakefield, Newtonville, Oshawa, Cobourg and Coldsprings.

A program of music and addresses started the afternoon's activities with Mr. Leslie Marsden, Akron, Ohio, as chairman.

Robert Marsden, of Christian Island, was among the speakers; a vocal duet was given by Misses Mae Thompson and Nina Bush, Roseneath; a ladies' chorus by Mrs. Art Smith, Mrs. Wm. Gibson, Roberta Smith, Toronto; Mrs. Leslie Marsden, Mrs. Bruce Marsden, Akron, Ohio, and Miss Elgie Marsden, Alderville.

Other parts of the program were a mixed quartette by Mrs. Norma Marsden, Alderville; Mrs. Bruce Marsden, Akron, Ohio; Mr. Robert Marsden, Christian Island; Mr. Thomas Marsden, Alderville; a vocal solo by Miss Nancy Marsden, Akron, Ohio. and speeches by Mr. H. Lander, Coldsprings, Mr. Moses Marsden, Lakefield; Mr. Thomas Marsden and Mr. Norman Marsden, Alderville; Miss Elgie Marsden, Alderville, sang a solo; Mr. Leslie Marsden was piano accompanist. A skit by Miss Marion Lessick, Toronto, and Mrs. Bruce Marsden, Akron, Ohio, concluded the program.

Sports were in charge of Messrs. Edgar Marsden, Brantford, Arthur Smith, Toronto, and Leslie Marsden, Akron, Ohio.

Results were:

Girls under eight—1, Karen Simpson, Alderville; 2, Patsy Sunday, Newtonville.

Girls under 12—1, Muriel Beaver, Alderville; 2, Carole Smith, Toronto.

Boys under eight—1, Winston, Marsden; 2, Frances Beaver Alderville.

Fat men's race—1, Mr. Amos Marsden, Alderville; 2, Bruce Marsden, Akron.

Men's pie eating contest—Frank Pasqually, Toronto.

Boys' pie eating contest—Richard Pennell, Toronto.

A horseshoe pitching contest and ball games concluded the afternoon's sports.

Supper was served at long tables.

Following the supper hour a short business period and election of officers was held for 1951 the following were named:

President, Robert Marsden, Christian Island; vice-president, Moses Marsden, Lakefield; secretary, Mr. John D. Loukes, Alderville; treasurer, Mrs. Ernest Crowe, Alderville; sports committee, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Marsden, Akron; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Moses Marsden, Lakefield; Wilfred Sunday, Newtonville; Messrs. Norman, Amos and Thomas Marsden, Alderville.

Plans were made to hold the 1951 reunion on Civic Holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Marsden.

A vote of thanks was tendered the host and hostess for their hospitality. Their spacious home and lawns had been the scene of many social gatherings but the 1950 Marsden reunion was the largest gathering on record at their home.

Is It Stupidity?

We were talking recently with a lady who has been in Canada for about three years; she is a Displaced Person who has in that time served a year as a domestic worker, acquired a good command of the English language, and found herself an excellent job which brings her into contact with a good many young Canadians of High School age. She had many things to say in admiration of our young people, but she had also a question to ask about them: why are they so ignorant of politics?

* * *

It was not easy to answer her question. In fact, it became clear after some humming and hawing that we could not answer it satisfactorily. Canadians are, upon the whole, a politically-minded people. Our elections are keenly disputed and our newspapers are full of political news. But why is there so little political curiosity among the boys and girls who are, within four or five years, to become voters?

* * *

Is it stupidity? No: we do not think that it can fairly be attributed to that. But it is perhaps something dangerously close to stupidity, namely, a kind of happy-go-lucky indifference—an easy and unquestioning acceptance of a way of life and a set of institutions which were not won by uncurious and happy-go-lucky people. Our young people need to wake up earlier to the existence and importance of politics.

* * *

We blame the political parties for some of this lackadaisical attitude. There are groups of young people who meet for discussion and instruction in political matters, but they are too few and too small. Political organization during the years before a vote is legally possible provides the parties with informed, alert, curious adherents. Such organization is not easy, nor does it always run smoothly. When a boy of seventeen disagrees with his parents on political matters the household is not likely to be a calm one. But it is better to upset a few households than to allow generations of young people to grow up indifferent to politics and ignorant of their workings. Politics is a vitally important part of every citizen's intellectual equipment, and at present it is being neglected among intelligent young people who have not yet been aroused to employ their intelligence upon this vital matter.

All Honour To This Hero

Recently a New York Central train pulled into the station at the city of St. Thomas; or perhaps "pulled in" is a misleading expression, for a large part of the train was far from the station platform, and the passengers who dismounted from these cars had to walk a considerable distance to the station itself.

All but one brave man. He announced firmly that he was not going to walk, carrying his luggage, from the back of the train to the platform. He demanded that his coach be brought into the station.

The officials of the train were nonplussed. If they gave way to this man, they might set a dangerous precedent. But after some consultation they yielded, the train drew into the St. Thomas station, and the hero got off. We do not know what his name is, but we wish we did. We would like to run his picture, within a border of maple leaves.

In Canada, as elsewhere, it is not the fashion nowadays for the individual to insist upon his rights. We demand our rights only in groups, associations, unions and leagues. But much of the history of democracy is written in terms of stories like this one about the man at St. Thomas who had paid to be transported to the station there, and who made the train move to oblige him.

He was right. Who has not, at some time, had to dismount at a considerable distance from a station platform, and lug a case or two down the line? And who, while doing so, has not complained about it? But the hero of St. Thomas did more than complain. He demanded his due, and he got it.

This is the biggest thing that has happened in St. Thomas since Jumbo met his death there. It is a victory for the individual.

Will Newsprint Be Rationed Again?

Emanuel Celler, Democratic member of the U.S. House of Representatives from Brooklyn, made a prediction to Editor and Publisher last week that sounded unpleasant to United States and Canadian newspapers. Due to the Korean situation, he said, there will be "early official action setting up priorities on distribution of newsprint". That would mean, in other words, that newsprint would be allocated and rationed in the United States; such action would undoubtedly affect this country's economy and might quite conceivably be duplicated here.

It should be emphasized, we think, that the only valid reason for rationing would be shortages caused by the demands of mobilization in both Canada and the United States. In such circumstances, measures to ensure fair distribution might well become necessary—as they might become necessary in many another field. The experience of rationing is still well remembered by adults, by newspapers and other organizations. Nobody liked it, but the great majority managed to live through it. It could be endured again—if the necessity for it were genuine.

We question the necessity of newsprint rationing at this time—and as long as that necessity does not exist, rationing should be resisted. According to Editor and Publisher, "the supply picture (in the United States) is better than it was two months ago", although it prefaces the remark with the statement that U.S. newspapers are not "literally swimming in newsprint". That would rather depend, we think, on how deep a newspaper must be before it is literally swimming. From what we have seen of a number of Sunday editions of various U.S. newspapers, they are at least wading almost chin deep. And when confronted with a Sunday edition of two hundred-odd pages—not counting comics and magazine sections—we find it virtually impossible to believe there is any shortage which would justify rationing.

Varied Genius Of Gladstone

Everybody knows that William Ewart Gladstone was a great statesman, a master of the House of Commons, the greatest orator of the Victorian era, and a notable churchman. But recently a British newspaper has declared that his most lasting memorial is his solution of the problem of packing a wet sponge: he used to put his sponge in a towel and jump on it until it was as near dry as possible.

We do not propose to dispute this statement. We merely reproduce it for our readers to ponder. We regard it as evidence in support of our belief that minds which are great in big things are often great in small things, as well. Gladstone was a man of many moods, and we are not surprised that there was a sponge-drying mood among them. There was also his health-mood, in which he would chew every mouthful of his food some sixty times. And there was a mood of gaiety, as well, for one of his daughters records that she heard strange sounds from her parents' bedchamber one night, and found them dancing about the room singing "A ragamuffin husband and a rantipolling wife"—a ribald ditty seemingly ill-suited to the Gladstone household. No great man exists in a single mood of unrelieved greatness for years on end. He has his moments when he dries his sponge, and he is quite likely to do it in an unusual and brilliant fashion.

The Late Henry Burgoyne

The publishing world and many other Canadians are grieved by the death of Major Henry B. Burgoyne, publisher since 1921 of the St. Catharines Standard. His association with that newspaper began in 1901, when he entered its service as a proofreader; in 1906 he became his father's partner in the publication; at his father's death he became wholly responsible for its direction, and under his guidance it became one of the best dailies in Canada.

Henry Burgoyne had an honourable career in the army during the First World War; he enlisted in 1914, and in 1916 he received his majority and the command of the 71st Battery. He was keenly interested in water sports and for twenty-six years was president of the Henley Aquatic Association.

He is succeeded on The Standard by his son, William B. C. Burgoyne, who will be the third generation of his family to publish it. The sympathy of Canadian newspapermen everywhere goes out to the Burgoyne family, and to The Standard staff.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is suggested that a phosphorescent paint would make it unnecessary to light houses with electricity. Yes, but how do you turn the walls off when you want to go to sleep?

What Is A Jew?

By PHILIP TOYNBEE
(From Tel Aviv)

IN Israel this old question might acquire a new significance. The country is open to the immigration of any "Jew" who chooses to come here, but no test of this status is applied to embarkation; there CAN be no such test, in spite of the absurd and haphazard methods by which the Nazis tried to impose one. "The Jews," it has been said, "are like other people, only more so." But this supererogation of humanity can hardly be detected by the immigration authorities at the port of Haifa. "The Jews," Arthur Koestler has written, "are the exposed nerve of humanity." But there are many unfortunate Gentiles who would justly and indignantly deny the Jews' exclusive rights to this title.

* * *

IT is not to be decided by religion, since the great majority of Israel's population is without religion. Certainly it is not to be explained by the exploded myth of racial definition. There was a DIASPORA (dispersal of the Jews) in the eastern Mediteranean long before the beginning of the Christian era, with a freedom of intermarriage which ceased only with the destruction of the second Temple and the mass exodus of the Israelites from Palestine. And in the first century there were whole communities of Gentile converts to Judaism, who considered themselves to be Jews and were so considered by their neighbours and their rulers.

* * *

NOR could any observer who has been a day in Israel believe that there are any physical distinguishing marks by which the quality of Jewishness reveals itself. It is, for example, a famous and an undoubted fact that Palestinian-born Israelis look very different from their parents, and have none of these facial characteristics which have been associated with the Jews of the dispersion. Again, a Jew from the Yemen looks far more like an Arab than he looks like his small, high-cheeked compatriot from Singapore.

* * *

IN fact, there exists only a subjective criterion. Ultimately a Jew is anyone who considers himself to be one. From this it follows that there is nothing in theory to prevent the mass-immigration into Israel of self-styled Jews who could make no racial or religious claims to the title. Even supposing that some ingenious definition were discovered which would prevent this, there is religious conversion to fall back on. Nobody here would wish or dare to suggest that converts to Judaism should be excluded simply through their lack of racial pedigree.

* * *

ADMITTEDLY, the question is potentially rather than actually significant, and it is likely to remain so. Except in the case of "fugitives from justice" (who could probably be excluded on these grounds), there is little which would tempt the average Gentile to come here. Israel is a poor country and a hard country; it does not flow with milk, honey, or even oil; its soil is eroded; its climate is difficult; its prices are high. A non-Jewish visitor may feel—as I do myself—a strong affection for this country amounting even to a positive wish to remain here. But, in statistical terms, this would certainly be judged an idiosyncracy.

* * *

YET there are already a few fascinating anomalies. There is the case of the Karaites, products of an eighth century schism from rabbinical Judaism, who reject the whole of the Talmud and all the doctrinal evolutions of the Middle Ages. They are undoubtedly descendants of the original Israelites, and they can claim, as so many Christian sects have claimed, that their faith is purer, more pristine, than the faith of the orthodox majority. Yet it has been disputed whether these heretics were to be considered Jewish; it hardly needs to be added that the decision was in their favour, since they not only consider themselves to be Jews, but to be the ONLY genuine Jews.

* * *

ALSO there are dispersed throughout this country an unassessed number of ex-British soldiers who have never made any claim to be Jewish by either race, religion or even by bare, unsubstantiated assertion. Some of these were deserters, who have strong and obvious reasons for remaining; others were genuine and courageous sympathisers with the cause of Israel; all are citizens of this country with the same civil rights as their neighbours.

* * *

BUT the most curious and fascinating case of all is that of the fifty-five Italian peasants who are now living in the communal settlement of Alma. Twenty years ago, in the village of San Nicandro, near Foggia in southern Italy, a new prophet arose. Panduccio Donato woke from a God-inspired dream to tell his fellow-villagers that the Trinity was a blasphemous invention, and the whole of the New Testament a wicked corruption of the true faith. He made many converts in the village, and for several years they lived in the isolation of their heresy. This isolation was only disturbed when a visitor pointed out to Donato that there were millions of other people in the world who shared all the essentials of his doctrine, and that these people were called Jews. The prophet was persuaded to write to the Chief Rabbi of Italy; but only after two letters had been disregarded as a joke was his request for an audience at last taken seriously.

* * *

THE result of that interview was that the villagers of San Nicandro submitted to instruction and became fully-fledged members of the Jewish faith. Donato died five years ago, but there was no back-sliding among his followers, and a prophetess arose in his place who promised that the community would one day be converted to Zion. Arriving here a year ago with her more devoted followers, she announced that GOD had told her to settle in a place called Alma. So to parched Alma they went, and in Alma they are now working and praying. The San Nicandrians may have been Jewish by conversion, and without any hereditary claims. But they are as Israeli as any branded survivor of Dachau.

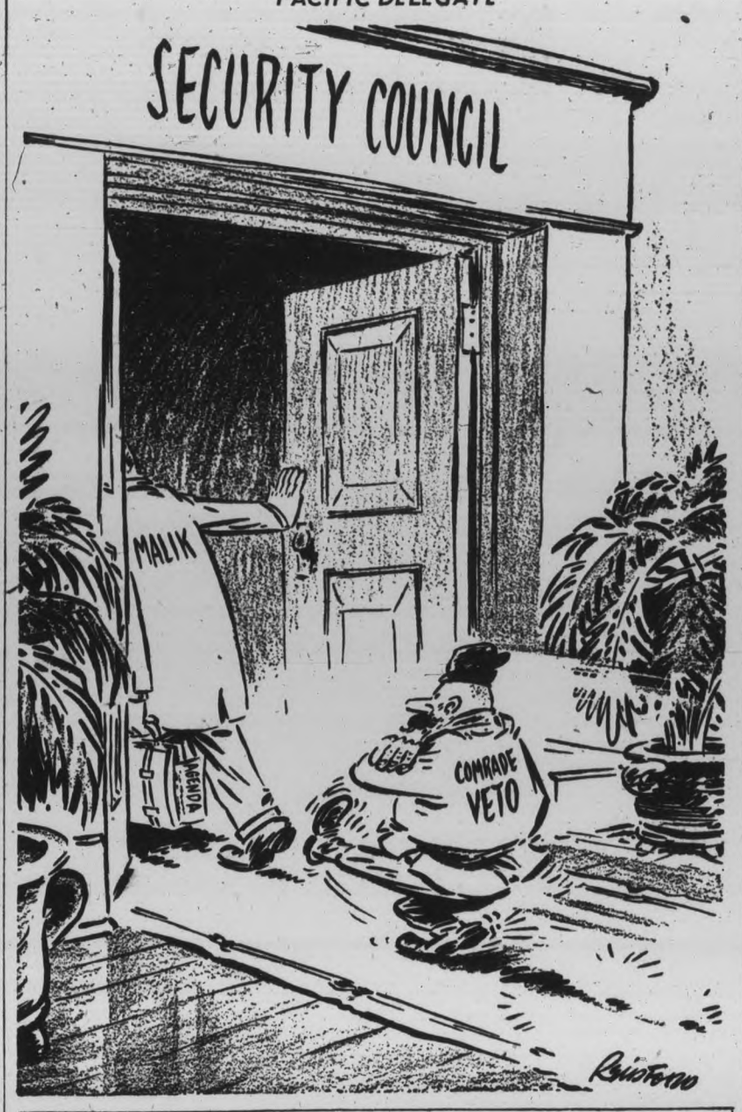
PACIFIC DELEGATE



The Traffic Ticket Racket

(J. H. Gray in the Ottawa Citizen)

CALGARY—An Edmonton citizen recently got some nationwide publicity when he got mad and exposed the trials and tribulations of a taxpayer caught in the toils of a traffic court. One parking ticket led to another as he tried to get his case before a judge and hours were consumed unnecessarily while costs mounted. The crowning touch was to discover a brand new parking ticket on his car when he emerged from the police court.

The traffic ticket has become a form of legalized extortion for all the cities of the West. Residents of the cities involved get off easily compared with chance visitors or tourists from inside the provinces.

* * *

Edmonton and Calgary both depend largely upon the trade of outlying farmers and small town residents. Both cities are jammed on Saturdays by the influx from the country. People from outside the province can violate parking regulations with complete impunity. But let a local tourist, i.e. a Calgarian in Edmonton or a farmer from Taber in Calgary, get a parking ticket and here is what happens to him:

He will get a letter in the mail in a couple of weeks demanding that he pay up. If he ignores the letter dunning him for a $1 parking fine, a summons will be issued demanding the fine "plus the costs of the court." This is $3 in Calgary and $4.05 in Edmonton. If he ignores this summons, he can be arrested by the RCMP and brought to the city for trial.

That this is sheer extortion can be demonstrated at once. No court costs have been incurred. The police officials have not even gone to the trouble to have a magistrate sign the summons. Before me is such a summons from Edmonton. The name of the police magistrate has been typed by the stenographer who made out the summons.

The offence alleged in this particular case was an early morning violation of a parking regulation. The service in an Edmonton restaurant was on the slow side, so we didn't get back to our car until shortly after 9 a.m. when the parking meters go into operation.

* * *

Curiously enough, the tourist who comes from outside the province doesn't even get tagged. That applies everywhere. But a tourist from inside the province can and does get it in the neck.

Yet the money a farmer from Taber spends in Edmonton is just as much tourist money as that spent by a visitor from California or Manitoba. All the cities go to trouble and expense encouraging outside residents to come in and spend their money. Without that spending half the merchants in the cities would be out of business. But what is being accomplished by tourist bureaus with the right hand is being undone by police departments with the left.

In all this there is nothing either new or regional. Ottawa citizens who visit Toronto, or Windsor citizens in Hamilton used to run into the same business.

The ultimate loss to the businesses of the cities is much greater. No victim of this legalized strong armed system of going to be very enthusiastic about going back. He'll take his trade some place else.

On the prairies the RCMP acts as provincial police. When, as happens, a stubborn motorist resists long enough, a warrant must be executed. Executing warrants to collect 50 cent and $1 parking fines hardly comes within the traditional role of the Mounties, or adds to the dignity of that service.

NOT BY HIMSELF.

"Johnny," said his mother, severely, "someone has taken a big piece of ginger cake out of the pantry."

Johnny blushed guiltily, and fidgeted around.

"Oh, Johnny," she exclaimed, "I didn't think it was in you!"

"It ain't all," replied Johnny; "part of it's in Elsie."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day. And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him. And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob. And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed. And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name. And he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there.

And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. (Gen. 32: 24-30.)

I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears.

The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them. (Ps. 34: 4, 7.)

Letters To The Editor

A. A. OFFERS ASSISTANCE

Sir: No doubt there are interested parties who would be glad to have the "A A" literature pamphlets, letters, etc., now in use across the border.

The Eastman Kodak Co., Thompson Products, and Allis Chambers are but a few of the big industries with "Alcoholic Anonimous" groups established in their plants. The results are excellent, if any company or individual would write in we will be glad to furnish the complete information.

Sincerely,
A. A., Peterborough, Ont.

ILL-TREATMENT OF FRED WEST

Sir: Would the people of Peterborough County be justified in demanding that the governor of Harris County Gaol and also the county attorney be brought to Canada and tried for their inhuman treatment of youthful Fred West of nearby Havelock, Ontario. It would appear that these culpable officials are little better than those in charge of Buchenwald and other notorious concentration camps of World War II. The assertion of the gaol governor that he had received no complaints exemplifies his inefficiency but not his guilt and perhaps the Attorney General of our fair province should call young West and his compatriots to Queen's Park and after a careful investigation decide what action is advisable. A few short years ago we rendered much material aid to the Koreans and now find they are true Fifth Columnists; therefore we might suggest that any military assistance we offer our neighbour to the South might be measured in terms of the co-operation we receive in punishing common criminals.

Moe Norman of Kitchener Kawartha Open Champion Farley, Toronto, Runner-Up

Possibly the most colorful golfer to appear in Peterborough in some years, 21-year-old Murray (Moe) Norman of Kitchener won the fifth annual Kawartha Open over the weekend by edging Toronto's Phil Farley by two strokes. In this year's largest amateur golf tournament in Canada—263 participants—Norman had a par 71 Saturday, three above par Sunday and five above Monday for a total 221 gross on the 54 holes. Farley had a 74 Saturday and edged within one point Sunday with a 72 but fell back another Monday with a 77. Jack Armitage of Dundas had 225 and Ernie Bentley of Ottawa 227.

Murray Wilson, sales manager in Ontario and Manitoba for Calvert Distilleries, presented Norman with the Calvert Gold Trophy and $150 in baggage. He also presented Farley with baggage for his second place 223 gross score for the 54 holes.

Other first flight scores over the 54 holes were: Bruce Dorman of Hamilton, 230; Bernie Johnson of Hamilton, 232; Ernie Nerlich of Thornhill, 234; Gord Snell of Hamilton, 235; Gord Ball of Toronto, 236; Mike Cassidy of Toronto, John Koval of Sarnia and Herb Epstein of Toronto, all 238; A. White of Glendale, 239; Ron Paterson of Chedoke and Tom Woodall of Weston, both 240; Fred Armitage of Chedoke, 241; Ron McGee of Toronto, 242.

Takes First Net

W. Neithamer of Pennsylvania took the first net place with a 209 in the first flight. He won a battery radio. Gord Snell was second with 21 for an electric blanket. Jack Armitage won a mantel radio with a net score of 213, while A. White had a nylon jacket for a 215 net.

Day prizes in the first flight went to B. Dorman, a 74, Bernie Johnson, also a 74, and J. Wagstaffe, Jr., New Uplands, a 72. Net prizes for Kawartha players in the first flight went to Mel Akers for 219 and W. Moultan with 221.

Hamilton Chedoke Club won the Schneider Trophy for team play for the third straight year, thus having permanent possession of it. A new trophy will be presented next year by the Calvert Company. Bernie Johnson, Gord Snell, Ron Paterson and Fred Armitage composed the Chedoke team's score of 948 gross. Scarboro placed second with a score of 961 with Phil Farley, Doug McKellar, B. Stewart, and G. Moran.

Coole's 242 Gross

Youthful R. Coole of Glendale with a 242 gross swept first honors in the second flight for a battery radio while E. Koken of Florida was second with 247 for a wrist watch. A second wrist watch went to E. Maxwell of Port Dalhousie with a net total of 205, while W. Miller of Toronto was second with a net of 209, Ed Riley of Kawartha placed third 210, C. Cunningham of Toronto fourth 211, and M. Macougan of Guelph fifth, with 213.

Day prizes in the second flight went to H. Barnett of Kawartha, A. Robinson of Oakville and B. Patterson of Scarboro. H. Woodcox win the first prize for the low Kawartha club player in the second with 214, while D. Meredith was second with 215.

Steve Csumrik of the Kawartha club edged L. Lindroth of St. Andrews 277 to 278 in the third flight gross. Bob Green of Peterborough club easily swept the third flight net score with a 199. A. Smith of the Kawartha had a net 207.

Day prizes in the third flight were won by G. Adams of Weston, J. Armstrong of Islington, and O. Oakes of Dundas. Kawartha net score prizes were taken by E. Gregson with a 210 and R. Welsh with a 218.

J. Wagstaffe Leads

While all eyes were focused on Toronto's Phil Farley and Kitchener's Moe Norman, 19-year-old J. Wagstaffe of the New Uplands club swept the Monday show with a one-above-par 72. He edged Murray Bentley of Ottawa and J. Armitage of Dundas by one stroke.

Other first flight scores Monday were: John Koval of Sarnia and Herb Epstein of Toronto, both 74; Moe Norman and W. Neithamer of Pennsylvania 76; Phil Farley, D. McKellar of Scarboro, J. Gibson of Cedarbrae, E. Nerlich of Thornhill, all 77; A. Cassidy of Toronto, Ron Paterson of Chedoke, and C. Low of New Uplands, all 78; Bernie Johnson of Chedoke and P. Cote of Sarnia, both 79 gross.

B. Paterson of Scarboro whackeed out a 78 gross to take top honors in the scond flight Monday. Two strokes behind paced E. Koken of Florida, E. Maxwell of Port Dalhousie and A. Levi of Lakeview. Scores of 82 gross were made by R. Coole of Glendale, J. Maxwell of Port Dalhousie, E. Burnside and R. Burns of Lakeview.

E. Maxwell had a net score of 65 in the second flight while 68 net scores wre chalked up by B. Paterson, J. Dysert of Glendale and Ed. Riley of Kawartha.

A. Smith registered an 86 gross in the third flight play while the only other score in the 80's was an 89 by E. Gregson of the Kawartha. Bob Green of the Peterborough club had a 94 with a 36 handicap for a low net for the day of 58. His nearest rivals were A. Smith with a 61 net and E. Gregson with a 64 net.

Scores Follow Closely

Scarboro's Phil Farley edged within one stroke of Kitchener's Moe Norman Sunday as he turned in a double 36 for a gross 72. J. Armitage of Dundas placed second in the first flight play with a 39 and 34 for 73 gross and Moe Norman divided third with B. Johnson of Chedoke with a 74 gross.

Twenty-one first flighters were in the 70's on the second 18 holes of competition. Other scores were: 76 gross, T. Woodall of Weston, B. Norman of Hamilton; gross 77, E. Nerlich of Thornhill, A. White of Glendale, E. Bentley of Ottawa; gross 78, W. Tredway of Scarboro, F. Armitage of Chedoke, B. Ball of Toronto and M. Cassidy of Toronto St. George's; gross 79, W. Moulton of Kawartha, J. Condon of Kawartha, G. Snell of Chedoke, A. Harvie of Toronto, P. Cote of Sarnia, Les. Reid of Peterborough Club and D. McKellar of Scarboro.

R. Coole of Glendale wacked out a cool 77 to lead the second flight Sunday. One stroke behind was A. Robinson of Oakville, L. Louth of Oakville had a gross for third while J. Maxwell, Port Dalhousie, W. Miller of Toronto St. Georges and D. Wilson of Chedoke all scored 82 gross. Eighty-three gross scores were tallied by H. MacGougan of Guelph, C. L Sherman of Brockville and C. Cunningham of Toronto Lakeview.

Coole and A. Coucill of Aurora had a low 65 net scores in the second flight, D. Price of Thornhill with an 84 gross and a 15 handicap carded a 66 net. Five fighters had a 68 net score, W. Miller, H. MacGougan, E. Riley of Kawartha, C. Cunningham and A. Robinson.

Leads Third Flight

Steve Csumrik of the Kawartha Club whisked through the 18 holes Sunday to lead the third flight with an 85 gross and a 62 net score; L. Lindroth tallied an 89 gross score and J. Armstrong of Islington, a 91. Other scores were: gross 93, H. McKenzie, Roy Welsh, and J. Legros, all of the Kawartha Club. L. Gordon of Toronto Lakeview, gross 94, J. McIntyre of Kawartha, gross 95, Alf Smith Kawartha.

Closest to Csumrik's 62 net were J. Armstrong and L. Lindroth each with a 67 net. L. Gordon and Bob Green of the Peterborough club scored 68 net scores while Roy White and J Legros, both of the Kawartha Club scored 69's.

By two inches Moe Norman of Kitchener missed a hole-in-one Saturday at the ninth hole as he tallied a 37 front and 34 back for a gross score of 71, par on the Kawartha course. His 71 put him three strokes ahead of Toronto's Phil Farley and Hamilton's B. Dorman who each had a 74 for the first 18-hole play. Gord Snell of Hamilton Chedoke placed third in the first flighter, with a 75.

Ernie Bentley, Ottawa, match champion last year, had a 36 and 41 for 77 while Gord Ball of Toronto had two 39's for a 78. Only five of the remainder of the 108 first flight golfers broke into the 70's. Mel Akers of the Peterborough club, B. Johnson of Chedoke, A. Andrews of Toronto, R. McGee of Toronto and J. Armitage of Dundas all had a 79 score.

G. Snell with a score of 75 and a handicap of eight had a net 67 in the first flight. Moe Norman, A. Andrews and Mel Akers all tied for the second honors with a 70-net.

Tie For First

H. Woodcox of the Kawartha club and F. Koken of Florida shared the second class honors Saturday with a gross 80. For second honors H. Barnett of Kawartha and W. Shaver of Chedoke battled with 82 gross. Five golfers turned in gross scores of 83, E. Maxwell of Port Dalhousie, R. Coole of Toronto Lakeview, D. E. Hanbidge of Kawartha, H. Harle of Kawartha, P. Burns of Lakeview, W. Miller of Toronto St. Georges. Dootch Vitarelli, Petes' lacrosse senior, scored an 84 for the Kawartha Club.

Net score honors for the day were taken by H. Woodcox who had the 80-gross with a 15 handicap for a 65 net. H. Barnet and E. Maxwell each had a net of 68 while K. Seager of Toronto St. Georges, E. Koken and W. Miller scored a net 69.

Scores in the third flight golfers were well up Saturday as Jack McIntyre of Kawartha and G. Adams of Weston led with gross 94 each. E. Gregson of Kawartha had a 48 and 47 for a gross 95 Gross 98 scores were made by A. Smith, R. Welsh, both Kawartha, H. Hoar of Humber Valley and L. Gordon of Toronto Lakeview. O. Oakes of Dundas, L. Lindroth of Toronto St. Andrews and J. Legros of Kawartha all golfed a 99-gross.

E. Gregson with a handicap of 25, scored a 70 net while clubmate M. Vermette scored a gross 104 with a 33 handicap for a 71 net. Jack McIntyre and G. Adams also shared third place in net scores with 72 while Bob Green of Peterborough club, L. Gordon and Dr. R. Vandervoort of the Bay of Quinte Club, had a net 73.

Furgol Leading By Two Strokes

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—(AP)—Ed Furgol, golf's gamest pro, today was on the track of his first major title in six years of tournament play.

He led the field by two strokes with 211—five under par—into the final round of the $15,000 all-American meet at Tam O'Shanter.

First prize is $2,500—a jackpot which would boost 1950 earnings for the lame-armed player from Royal Oak, Mich., nearly twofold if he wins.

Five others far down the financial list also are contending in the "poor man's showdown."

At 213 are Skip Alexander, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Dave Douglas from Newark, Del.

At 214 is young Fred Hawkins, from El Paso, Tex.

At 215 are South Africa's Bobby Locke, Skee Riegel, of Tulsa, Okla., and Lloyd Mangrum. Only one stroke behind them is Sam Snead, the 1950 top money winner.

Petes Take Ninth In Row With Win Over Staffords

Downing Toronto Staffords 13-11 in a Viaduct Baseball League slugfeast at Bowmanville yesterday. The Petes made it nine victories in a row as they took a tighter grip on second place. It was their fourth fray in five days, and they are due for a double-header against Dovers tonight in Toronto. The holiday tilt was run off in Bowmanville as Riverside Park is being made ready this week for floodlights.

Lefty Joe Lowrey pitched in fair style on the Murphyites' mound till he tired in the late innings, Gunner Whitehill putting out the fire in the eighth and finishing up. Bill Ellis just went three for Staffs, Jack Rossen going in then till Pete Wright was given the slab for the final two frames. None of the twirlers was in top form and the batters had a big day in the small park, bashing out five home runs.

Two For Dan

Danny Brown slashed two circuit clouts and a single in five tries for the victors, while Joe Lowrey had a triple and single in three. Two hits each were garnered by Joe Stewart, Bill Edger, Pat Wilson, Paul Estlick and Bud Harrison, the latter, Fred Garvey and Estlick having two-baggers. Walt Bevington hit two homers and Bill Heyes one for the losers, as George Macey led at bat with two singles in three tries. Windley, Aker, Barrington and Heyes were others who had two safeties. Each side pulled off a double-play and Pat Wilson roped in two neat running catches in right.

Janetville Wins Second Game 11-7

BETHANY, Aug. 8 (ENS). — Janetville won the second game of the semi-finals in the North Durham League on their home grounds Friday night, defeating Bethany 11 to 7. Each team have won one game and the third will be played in Bethany on Thursday evening. Thompson was on the mound for the winners, McNeil receiving. Batting honors for the Janetville boys went to Malcolm with a homer and Brough a double. Edmunds hurled good ball for Bethany, Reynolds receiving; field errors hurting. Sisson and Lowes starred at the bat for Bethany, Sisson with a double and Lowes a triple, both in the fifth inning.

Edger Pitches 2-0 Shutout For The Petes

Bill Edger was in rare form Sunday, in Toronto, as he shut out Aces 2-0, to sweep the home-and-home weekend senior baseball series between the two clubs. The slim, right-handed ace scattered six hits and was never in trouble.

Coach Ed Murphy's boys had just won their eighth game in a row in the strong Viaduct Major League and their 17th of the season. They are alone in second place.

Beven Bourke, 17-year-old righthander, twirled eight frames for Aces in a great duel with Edger, but yielded for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and Cam Church finished the game. There was no score till the eighth. Marines scored in that frame as Lowrey bunted, advanced on Garvey's single and scored on Harrison's smash to left. They added another in the final inning as Wilson and Estlick were both safe on errors and when Church bobbled Stewart's bunt, Wilson scored.

West Toronto Defaults Match

The Peterborough Whitaker cricketers had a disappointing weekend.

On Saturday West Toronto were scheduled to play here a District Council match but defaulted. This was to be a return match to the one played in Toronto on June 3, when the locals won 92-15. The local team will be credited with two points but would prefer to score them on the playing field and not by the default route.

Then on Civic holiday the expected match between the Peterborough Whitaker club and Halton County at Oakville in the semi-final of the Ontario County cricket championship series for the R. C. Matthews trophy was not played owing to a mix-up.

However the long expected match against the Bermuda team from the West Indies will be played on Wednesday in Nicholls Oval. Complete preliminary arrangements have been made by the local executive. Play is scheduled to start at 11 a.m. Luncheon will be served on the grounds and in the evening the visitors will be entertained at dinner at the Empress Hotel. After this function they will proceed for "bed and breakfast" at the Grove School, Lakefield, kindly placed at their disposal by the school authorities.

Hastings Beaten

HASTINGS, Aug. 8 (ENS). — Hastings Legion dropped closer to the cellar as Frankford handed them an 11-1 lacing at Frankford.

Boyle, on the Frankford mound pitched shut-out ball till the top of the ninth when Legion got their lone run.

West gave up but six hits, but his support wasn't there. In the third inning, Frankford, with a 1-0 lead, combined a hit, a walk and four errors for five runs. Then in the bottom of the fourth, still riding the crest, they pushed four more runs across. They added one more in the seventh to complete their scoring. Legion meet Wooler at Hastings Friday, and this is a do-or-die game.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

It's back to work for several thousand citizens today, including this scribe. Of the Scribes and Pharisees, Local 142. Oh, well, it's just a matter of 50 weeks and vacation comes again. We wintered well the past two weeks and return full of vim, vigor and frostbite. But flatter than soup on a soucer. Still, nothing that a couple of quick paydays couldn't cure. Girls' softball, men's softball and soccer were among sports holidaying the past fortnight, too, but now athletics will be booming the rest of the month around these parts. And well into September, too, 'ere autumn athletics crowd on to the scene.

* * * * * *

Our senior lacrossers have been doing right well for themselves lately, and snipers like Arn Dugan, Bob Thorpe and Don Ashbee are up around the top of the OLA pile. They have a big game with Brampton here on Friday. Couple of minor tilts tomorrow, Petes vs. Tigers at nine a.m., and Lions vs. Petes at two in the aft. Shrimps and Hurricanes go in tadpole tussles daily at 10.30 a.m., as bantams and midgets drill each afternoon at three. City titles in bantam, midget and juvenile will be tonight and Thursday eve in Miller Bowl in two-game series. American bantams vs. Irwin-Godson at six, Legion midgets vs. Kiwanis at 7.30, and Hughes' juves vs. Panthers at 8.30 each p.m.

Warm Series A-Comin'

Bowl d'Ashburnham will be abrimming with men's softball semi-finals tonight when East City plays UEW a twin bill to start the best-of-seven serial. Ditto on Thursday, winner to meet Mutuals in finals. Orphans, awaiting OASA junior play, go to Hastings tomorrow e'en. That Bowl semi-final series ought to be a hot one. Red Sullivan and his East Citizens have been keeping Ken Guilfoyle under wraps but he'll see plenty of mound action from here on in as the third-place Ashburnham outfit tries to rub out the second-place UEW-ers. The playoff twin bills should draw at least 2,000 cash customers a night.

* * * * * *

OASA draw for this district has Kingston playing our Senior "B" winners here Aug. 26, away Aug. 30 and third, if necessary, Sept. 2, victor to tackle Oshawa. Our intermediate "A" winner is at Oshawa on Aug. 25, here Aug. 29 and third tilt Aug. 31. Lakefield goes to Warkworth in intermediate "C" on Aug. 16 and is at home Aug. 18. Oshawa plays Orphans in junior "A" here Sept. 7 and in the Motor City on Sept. 11. Hastings is at Keene in junior "C" Aug. 21 and at Hastings Aug. 23. All these teams may contact the convener for further info, Bert Bailey at 575 Douglas Ave., Peterborough. Phone 2-0950. First two playoffs under arcs but both teams must agree on lights for a third tilt. Rained-out jousts the following evening.

* * * * * *

Hotter'n Somewhat, Eh?

Hottest club in the Viaduct Baseball League the past few weeks is the Petes. They've now won nine in a row to take a real tight grip by themselves on second spot back of Oshawa. And they have been playing as often as an American League club lately. With two against Dovers tonight in Toronto, they will have staged six games in six days! That's a lot of ball for an amateur squad, huh? They've been getting some swell pitching and timely hitting from a hustling gang, but the hurling staff is wearing thin under the pressure. Lefty Dadson has a sore leg, Doug Plunkett a sprained ankle—both being on the shelf—and it makes a lot of work for Bill Edger and Gunner Whitehill.

* * * * * *

Joe Lowrey relieved the pressure yesterday in Bowmanville as he twirled most of that 13-11 slugfest win o'er Staffords. The Gunner finished it up, but will be ready for a game tonight. Danny Brown had three hits—two of 'em homers—and Lowrey two blows in three tries, the whole crew teeing off. So did the Staffs. On Sunday in Toronto, Edger came up with a swell job to blank Aces 2-0, while Saturday in Bowman Villa saw Dadson go along well for six heats, despite his injury, and then Gunner go fine in a relief role to garner a 6-4 win o'er the Aces. Brown and Lowrey led the stickers. Yeah, the Petes are going great now and looking for the next home one Saturday under arcs.

Dese, Dem and Dose

Ashby's and Marines settle their semi-final girls' softball series tomorrow eve at the Bowl; no word this morn of a second game .... Bermuda's touring cricketers play Peterborough at the Oval on the morrow, commencing at 11 a.m. .... Senior lacrossers are at Brampton on Saturday; Jim Kinna may be out of action for another week .... Kawartha golf tourney proved a big success .... Local rugby executive holds a meeting tonight .... Our junior lacrossers took Fergus 12-9 o'er the weekend .... Trenton softball squad beat Campbellford 5-4 in the TVL .... Mount Pleasant knocked out Westclox 14-2 last week; tomorrow, it's Westclox vs. Rays at Brinton, and Woollens at Quakers .... Civic softball tonight: Bus Drivers vs. Foresters, and Loblaw's vs. Police .... Some PMBA scores of last week trickle in, showing southend peewees defeat northenders 10-7, East City peewees lost to the southenders 15-7, and Welch's peewees trimmed the northend lads 19-11 .... No minor ball schedule for the week to hand as yet .... Tch, tch, only 116 more shopping days till Christmas.

Junior Petes Win Over Fergus

Peterborough junior lacrossers racked up a neat 12-9 OLA win over Fergus on Saturday here. Batley and Heffernan each scored three goals for the winners, as Fontaine, O'Reilly and Shearer got two apieec. Morrissey and Batley twice aided on markers, as single assists went to Fitzgerald, Heffernan, O'Reilly and Shearer. B. Gear led the losers with four goals and an assist, Smith having two, and Cumming, Landoni and Howes one ach. Hanna helped on one. Nicholls and B. Robinson stood out, along with the scorers, for Lou Vitarelli's beench. Tams:

Fergus: Kelly, Dobie, Hanna, Mann, Smith, Cumming, Dodds, Campbell, D. Gear, B. Gear, Mulvey, Woods, Landoni, Howes.

Petes: Nicholls, B. Robinson, Batley, Fitzgerald, Fontaine, Heffernan, Wyatt, Killingbeck, O'Reilly, Beavis, Shearer, Morrissey.

Tigers Trip Riverdales

HAMILTON, Aug. 8 (CP). — Hamilton's lacrosse Tigers rolled to a 16-10 victory over the stillwinless Toronto Riverdales Monday night in an Ontario Senior Lacrosse game. Tommy Love and captain Blain McDonald fired three goals apiece for the winners, while Wimpy Timpson paced Riverdales.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

There was a lot of bowling on the greens during the weekend. On Saturday night there were 14 mixed rinks and on the holiday afternoon and evening 12 mixed rinks played.

The winning skips on Saturday night were: Wm. Jeffries, Stan Shields and W. Ashby.

On Monday, S. Cummings, W. Ashby, H. Taylor and N. Killingbeck.

A Niagara Falls, on the holiday, Harold Freeman and R. Hopkins won third prize. It was Niagara Falls' biggest doubles tournament of the year.

Tonight we contipue with regular schedule games.

Score Deadlock

BELLEVILLE, Aug 8 (CP).— Bata Shoemen broke out with four runs in the last of the ninth Saturday to gain a 7-7 14-inning deadlock with Brockville Memos in a Central Ontario Baseball League game. The Shoemen converted three hits, two errors and a walk into four runs to send the game into extra innings. The teams played five more rounds without scoring before calling it quits.

Gunner On Tap To Defeat Toronto Aces

Ed Whitehill came through with another great relief show at Bowmanville Saturday, as Peterborough handed Aces a 6-4 defeat before a good crowd. It was their seventh straight victory and gave them a good hold on second place in the Viaduct Major Baseball League standing.

The win was also Whitehill's third in a row within a week and the calm control artist seems to be in better form than ever, despite 15 years of toil on the slab.

Lefty Dadson started for the locals and twirled fine ball, too, for six innings—even with an injured leg and an ailing arm. Two homers over the short left-field fence in the seventh to tie the score at 4-4, proved his undoing and Murphy waved to his fireman. Gunner retired the next nine hitters to face him, four by strike-outs. After Menzies reached third to score on Williams' wild peg to Bell in last of the eighth and Brown reached third, Eddie doubled the latter in. Eight extra-base hits, including three homers, due to a short field, featured the battle.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen and Owen Sound Mercurys are dropping out of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League for the coming season and Niagara Falls has decided against entering the loop.

Only Toronto Marlboros and Hamilton Tigers remain as starters in the league, which last year had four teams.

Owen Sound will drop down to the OHA's Senior B ranks.

Both Kitcheneh-Waterloo and Owen Sound have indicated they will re-enter the league in 1951 "if conditions are right." Niagara Falls hopes to have a senior team organized by that time.

At Toronto Stafford Smythe, manager of the Toronto Marlboros said it would be "impossible" for Hamilton Tigers and Marlboros to try and keep the league going with only two clubs.

We will certainly try to make a new effort to keep things going this year," he said. "With Kitchener and Niagara Falls getting new rinks next year, the league should be in a sound position. But if we fold up for a year it will take at least two or three years to build things back.'

If the league did fold, Smythe said, Marlboros probably would send as many players as possible to Toronto Maple Leafs' Los Angeles and Pittsburgh farm clubs. The remainder would have to be released to other senior clubs.

Harold Wilson says in Gravenhurst he won't make an immediate bid for the world powerboat speed record in Miss Canada IV which came close to equaling the record last Friday.

Wilson decided not to make an official bid for the title at Picton over the weekend because the measured mile course was too close to shore to give his boat enough room to manoeuvre.

He'll concentrate on preparations for the Harmsworth Trophy race at Detroit next month and will try for the record of 160.3 miles per hour later. Miss Canada IV hit an estimated 159 MPH last Friday.

The American pacer, Linda's Boy, will be shipped to Toronto for next Friday's $15,000 Canadian Cup race. He will face his arch-rival, Diplomat, owned by Alex Parsons of London, Ont., and also Dr. Stanton, owned by Linley Fraser of Forest, Ont.

The Mackens of Montreal took three Ontario tennis titles in Toronto Saturday and came close to winning a fourth. Brendan, oldest of the family team, took three titles. He beat brother Jimmy in the men's finals, paired with Jim for the men's doubles crown, and won the mixed doubles with sister Pat. Pat lost out in the women's singles final to Barbara Knapp of Birmingham, England.

Bill Parnell of Vancouver, British Empire Games miler, tore nearly three seconds off the Canadian native mile record at the British Columbia open track and field championships in Vancouver Saturday.

Parnell stepped off the distance in four minutes, 14.8 seconds. Previous Canadian native mile record of 4:17.6 was set by Art Clark of Montreal in 1937.

Proximity, the world's top money-winning pacer, set a track record of 2:06 4-5 for the mile Monday in an exhibition at the Stratford Turf Club before 6,000 harness-racing fans.

Driven by Clint Hoggins of Clandeboye, Ont., Proximity sliced 2 1-5 seconds from the former trotting mark of 2:09 set by Mr. Van in 1938.

British Columbia and Ontario Monday were easy winners in the opening day's play at the Dominion cricket tournament at Winnipeg, B. C. defeated Alberta by three wickets and one run; Ontario took Manitoba by 82 runs.

6 World Records Smashed In Picton Races

PICTON, Aug. 8 (CP). — Six world motorboat records were smashed before 7,000 spectators Monday at the Prince Edward Yacht Club's cup regatta.

George Trimper, of Buffalo, N. Y., set two records in mile trials for service runabouts. He roared his "D" class runabout Mischief over Picton Bay at 51.724 miles per hour for one mark and then bested that with his "E" class runabout Baby Loot, averaging 51.799 mpn.

The five-mile competitive record for Canadian-designed boats was set by Dr. Walter Robinson of Alexandria Bay, N. Y., who hit 43 mph in his Mrs. Dockit. The same craft averaged 44.554 mph for a world measured mile record in the same class.

Other records were set by Herman Critchfield, St. Petersburg, Fla., and Paul Sawyer, South Harwich, Mass.

Critchfield's Hell's Angel established a new "E" class racing runabouts mark over five miles with 63.87 mph. Sawyer's Alter Ego smashed the 225 class, division two, five-mile competitive world record with an average of 75.157 mph.

Feature Race

The feature race, the 225 division one event, went to Thomas Cooper of Kansas City, Mo., son of the late racer "Pops" Cooper, killed in a race here two years ago. Cooper also averaged 88.1236 mph in Top's Tup, a Canadian record for 135 class boats.

Jack Langmuir of Brockville beat out Frank Smith of Kingston for the 1:35 cubic inch race for Canadians only. Bernard Dowsett, Lachine, Que. was third.

The Bay of Quinte free-for-all went to A. Prentice of Belleville, with Hugh Folkard and Don Thomas of Picton second and third.

Red Wings Blast Orioles In 7-2 Triumph

By The Associated Press

It's been 10 years since Rochester won an International League pennant, but the Red Wings appear to be a shoo-in this season.

With little more than a month of play remaining, the Wings hold a six-game bulge on runner-up Baltimore Orioles. Montreal, in third place is 6½ out. Then comes a big gap to fourth-place Jersey City—11 games off Rochester's pace.

Prospects of the Red Wings folding in the stretch is remote. They've got, by far, the hardest-hitting outfit in the loop and their pitching rates with the best.

They blasted Baltimore 7-2 on Monday night. Shortstop Dick Cole featured a 10-hit attack on two Oriole moundsmen with a three-run homer in the seventh. It eased George Copeland's seventh victory. Bill Kennedy suffered his fifth loss against 12 wins.

Downs Springfield

Montreal, meanwhile, trimmed Springfield 10-2. Jack Banta scattered eight hits in registering his fourth triumph compared to five set-backs. He lost his shutout in the ninth when Bob Thurman hit a two-run homer. Bob Spicer was charged with the loss.

Jersey City, sparked by Chet Laabs, walloped Buffalo Bisons 8-3. Laabs cracked his 21st circuit clout in the third inning with a mate on to clinch Roger Bowman's 11th success.

Syracuse and Toronto split a doubleheader. Syracuse won the opener 2-1 on Elbert Flint's eighth-inning single, but the Leafs rebounded in the nightcap to win 3-0 on Ken Trinkle's four-hitter.

Giants Have Eye On Pennant Drop Boston In 9-3 Win

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Remember the date—July 20, 1950. It may go down in baseball history as the day the New York Giants began their amazing uphill climb that brought them a pennant.

A fantastic pipe dream? Maybe. Remember the 1914 Boston Braves? They dug themselves out of a deeper rut to win the flag and the World Series.

Win or lose, the Giants' sensational run of 16 victories in 17 games since July 20 is a high spot of the season.

How and why the streak got under way is one of the top sports stories of the year. It developed from a brainchild of manager Leo Durocher with Larry MacPhail getting a long-range assist.

On July 19, the Giants took a couple of beatings from St. Louis Cardinals—18-4 and 10-3—to sink deeper into sixth place. That made it 13 defeats in their last 14 games.

The groggy Giants dragged their feet into the clubhouse prepared for a typical Durocher tongue-lashing. It didn't come.

Lifts Curfew

Instead, Leo just suspended all the training rules for the balance of the night. "Go out and have fun. I don't care what you do or when you get back. The curfew is lifted. Just make sure you show up at the ball park tomorrow."

Durocher was playing a hunch. He recalled a similar situation nine years before when he managed Brooklyn Dodgers. The Brooks were undergoing a similar stretch of non-winning games.

Finally, MacPhail, then head of the Dodgers, told Leo to cancel the curfew for the night. Leo obeyed. Just to make certain the boys broke training, MacPhail stayed up all night, telephoning his players. If they wouldn't go out and have a good time, then they wouldn't sleep either.

The result? The Dodgers went on a winning streak, overtook the Cards and captured the flag.

On Right Track

The Giants may not do the same bu they're on the the right track. What they did on the night of July 19 may never be known. It is no secret, however, they murdered the Cards, 13-3, July 20. And they've been "murdering" every club they've faced since then. Only a 6-3 loss to the Cardinals in New York July 30 prevented them from racking up 17 consecutive tirumphs.

For one inning it looked as if the Giants might drop another Monday night. They spotted Boston a 3-1 lead in the first but roared back with a 14-hit attack to win 9-3.

The triumph boosted the Giants to within 2½ games of the fourth-place Cards, who were buried under a 9-0 score by the pace-setting Philadelphia Phils.

They were the only games played in the majors Monday.

Held Scoreless

Monte Kennedy started for the Giants but veteran Jack Kramer picked up the victory, holding Boston scoreless after relieving Kennedy in the first.

Wes Westrum led the attack against loser Vern Bickford with a two-run homer.

Ken Johnson, a Cardinal discard, hung the shutout over his former mates, limiting the Redbirds to two hits. It was the fourth victory for the lefthander.

Mike Goliat and Willie Jones paced the Phillies' 11-hit attack off Harry Brechen and three relievers. Goliat hit a single, double and triple and drove in four runs. Jones crashed his 23rd home run with a man on base.

Stan Musial, who lost his batting lead to Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson by a fraction of a percentage point, got the old solid St. Louis hit. It was a single to right in the first inning. The other was a slow roller down the third base line in the fourth by catcher Del Rice.

WALKS AGAIN — Timmy, symbol of the Easter Seal campaign of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children this spring, is walking again. Eleven-year-old Herman Bellman—Timmy's real name—three years ago was stricken with a disease which calcified the hip joints and made it impossible for his legs to support his weight. He has been confined to bed on a wheel chair at his Toronto suburban Willowdale home. This week doctors reported a surprising recovery and Herman can now walk. Here he is shown with a bicycle he plans learning to ride.

Young Iroquois Boy Ends Goodwill Trip

VANCOUVER — (CP) — A lone, 13-year-old goodwill ambassador from Canada's Iroquois Indians to the Maoris of New Zealand, has returned from an 18,000-mile journey down under.

The youthful envoy, David Smith, who presented the king of the Maoris with a pair of Iroquois "snow snakes," stopped here briefly on his way to his home on the Six Nations Reserve at Brantford, Ont. His long journey, he said, "was just a gesture of friendship from one native race to another."

In return for the snow snakes—slender sport javelins — David was presented with a piece of greenstone, used by the ancient Moaris for weapon making and a ceremonial dance was performed in his honor.

Buddy Murdered

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 8—(AP)—Charles Kennedy, 28-year-old army veteran who is paralyzed from the waist down, was charged with murdering his legless buddy, Vance Clary, during an altercation in the paraplegic ward at McGuire Veterans Hospital here Saturday night. He was accused of firing six shots into Clary's body.

Believe Couple Safe

HALIFAX, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Ben Carlin and his wife are apparently safe in their attempt to cross the Atlantic in a shaky amphibious jeep. A weak radio signal was heard from the craft Sunday night, the first in more than a week when the Carlins were 200 miles southeast of Sable Island. They left Halifax July 19.

Marines Mobilize

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—(AP)—The U.S. Marine Corps is mobilizing nearly all its available manpower. An announcement Monday that it will put its 80,000 volunteer reserves in uniform tapped the last big reservoir. This will boost the strength of the fighting Marines to around 200,000.

Re-Elected President

Causes Excitement

TORONTO, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Police Monday night received a deluge of phone calls reporting a vivid flash of light in Lake Ontario a few miles east of here. Some callers said they thought a ship had exploded. Police said investigation revealed the light was caused by a fireworks display across the lake.

Danville Holds Special Day For Country Doctor Who Brought 2,000 Babies Into The World

DANVILLE, Que., Aug. 8 — (CP)—A country doctor who brought more than 2,000 babies into the world and then lost count is going to have his day.

The day is next Saturday. Out at the Danville fair grounds the folks of Danville and many from other parts of Quebec's eastern townships will honor Dr. R. H. Stevenson, physican, wise counsellor and beloved citizen for half a century.

There will be sports and games, a basket picnic and speeches and a presentation.

The good doctor is deeply touched by it all. But he shies from publicity. He said he would be a lot happier if the people would just put him in a tent, charge admission to see him and send the money to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund.

Has Dry Humor

Dr. Stevenson, now 71, looks fit and strong. He is still lean and brown. He has never lost his quiet, dry humor and his dark eyes sparkle under eyebrows that seem lifted in surprise.

Out of McGill University as a full-fledged doctor at 21, and looking barely 17, he set up practice in Danville.

One of his early calls was a maternity case. A jittery young man took the doctor to the home where grandma-to-be waited in a flutter on the front porch.

"Who you got there?" she called.

"It's all I could find, ma," was the reply. "All the other doctors were gone."

"Take the boy home and git a doctor."

But the embarrassed young physician was finally allowed to enter, and the baby was successfully delivered.

Uses Psychology

Dansville folk will tell you of Dr. Stevenson's habit of examining all the pictures in a sickroom before he gets around to the patient.

"That must be from attending children," he mused. "Children like to be treated as a piece of furniture. Then the first arrival of the doctor isn't quite such a shock."

There are scores more anecdotes, told in solemn truth, about the practical down-to-earth doctor who "isn't afraid to use the kitchen table."

The man who has brought three generations into the world has been an outstanding figure in addition to his work as physician.

He has thrived on his interest in community affairs. He has been president of the golf committee, the tennis club committee and — his happiest job — the cemetery committee. The explanation of the doctor, who had the cemetery graded, terraced and abundantly planted with flowers, is simple:—

"People are good enough to have me take care of them while they're living, so I had better take care of them when they die too."

Ont. Barbers Decide On 75-Cent Haircuts

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Journeymen barbers of Ontario, at their 38th annual meeting here Monday, endorsed a resolution which will probably mean 75-cent haircuts throughout the province. The union decided that in municipalities where its membership is sufficiently strong, members will raise haircuts to the 75-cent level and recommend that non-union barbers do the same.

Producer Plans Movie On AA Work

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8 (AP)—A movie about Alcoholics Anonymous is soon to be made but I can't tell you the names of the ladies who served me a highball while they told me about the project. They insisted on, and shall have, anonymity.

They came here to read the script and make suggestions. When the story is completed, they will take it to New York and A. A.'s president, Bill —, and the trustees, for final approval.

The idea for the story, appropriately titled "One Too Many," is Roger Babb's. He is an independent producer who has made only a film on sex education and one on a religious subject. He is not a member of A.A.

Like most A. A.'s, these two ladies have a fine sense of humor and are not at all embarrassed to call themselves "ex-drunks."

One, in middle age carefully groomed, expensively dressed and well-jewelled, is a former officer who helped start the organization. The other, young, blonde and pretty, does public relations. I wondered why a movement that lives on anonymity does public relations. "Only to protect our anonymity," she said.

A. A. Tradition

They came here at Babb's invitation and expense to see if the script conformed to A. A. traditions. Generally, it did.

The story will tell how alcoholism affects the lives of drinkers and non-drinkers in a small community. A. A. folks come to the rescue.

When the girl's husband tells her she is an alcoholic, she doesn't bat an eye. She just accepts it. But that isn't true to life, said these technical advisers. "We know," they insisted "We know how we reacted the first time. . ."

In another scene the "alky" (A. A. term for drinkers) buys three half pints of whisky so the bottles will fit easily into her small handbag. Bosh, said the ladies, "all alkys CARRY big handbags. That's the pattern. . . An actress at an A. A. meeting in Beverly Hills the other night asked if they still carry big handbags. We assured her they do."

Spirit Is Subject Of Lesson-Sermon

"Spirit" was the subject of the lesson sermon which was read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church in Peterborough, on Sunday. .

The Golden Text was "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law." Selections from the Bible included the following from Acts 17: 24,25. "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that He is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though He needed anything seeing He giveth to all life, and breath and all things:" CCorrelative citations from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" included the following, "In the Bible the word Spirit is so commonly applied to Deity, that Spirit and God are often regarded as synonymous terms; and it is thus they are uniformly used in Christian Science." and from page 331, "He fills all space, and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipresence and individuality except as infinite Spirit or Mind. Hence all is Spirit and Spiritual."

Boy 9, Lost Arm Fell Out Of Apple Tree

On the eve of his ninth birthday, Bobby Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clark of Warsaw suffered the loss of his left arm, amputated at the shoulder as a result of gas gangrene complication that nearly cost him his life. His condition today was reported improving but he is not yet out of danger.

The arm was broken when he fell out of an apple tree July 30, lacerating the flesh, and setting up gangrene. The operation last Wednesday at Civic Hospital required additional radium treatment to halt the infection as it threatened to enter his body.

Bobby is the second oldest of four children. Two brothers are 11 and six years, and there is a baby of three months. Several of the Warsaw merchants have suggested a fund to help the boy and his mother, and Jack Rogers of Peterborough, who has been actively interested in the Anglican parish of St. Mark has promised to solicit local sympathy and support.

Mr. Rogers told the Examiner that Bobby is an exceptionally bright and intelligent boy who at nine years has been the victim of a distressing family circumstances.

CHARGES ADJOURNEY

Charges of keeping service stations open after hours set by a city by-law were today further adjourned to August 14 by Magistrate R. B. Baxter. Charged are Russelle's service station, Water St., and Thompson's service station, George St. They are represented by T. J. Carley, K.C. It was intimated charges will be laid against other operators.

FOUR PEOPLE ESCAPED serious injury when their car, driven by Reid Mallory, George St., rolled over four times after the right rear tire blew out. In the car were two visitors from Morristown, Penn., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ridge and Mallory's 11-year-old son, Roger. The car did not collide with anything, but was a total wreck after ending up on its roof.—(Parks Studio Photo)

Challenge of 'Private Lives' Brightly Met On Local Stage

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

Noel Coward's play "Private Lives" is extraordinarily difficult to present successfully. It is something of a triumph for the Summer Theatre, therefore, that it is done this week with a very considerable degree of success. What makes the play difficult? First of all, it is twenty years old, and even the best champagne can grow horribly flat in that time. Next, Coward wrote it for himself and Gertrude Lawrence, and its brilliant success was one of the high points in his career. To challenge the memory of that sort of success and that sort of acting demands courage. Finally, the play lays the heaviest demands on the style of any company which attempts it, and actors with style are not found in every summer theatre.

The production here meets these challenges with tact and skill. It would be no compliment to these excellent actors to say that they conquer every difficulty: they know better than that. But it may be said with complete truth that they give a first-rate evening in the theatre, that they play with wit and intelligence and teamwork and that they are true to the author's intention.

Delightful Atmosphere

They have trusted their author, which, as he is a great craftsman of the theatre, was a wise and perceptive thing to do. They let the play speak through them, they do not obscure the play by displays of personal virtuosity. They create a delightful atmosphere with a play which, in heavier hands, can be objectionable. But with this company we feel that they are all, despite their erratic behaviour, charming people, and not a pack of adulterous and self-indulgent tramps.

The chief weight of the play falls on William Hutt and Charmion King. They bear it lightly, and their second act duologue (which Coward himself confessed was a hard mouthful to chew) was admirably light, varied and exciting. As the other couple in the play Gerry Sarracini and Deborah Turnbull were excellent, though the lady could have attacked her part a little more firmly. The cast is completed by Joyce Beggs of this city as Louise, who speaks French with a good deal of verve.

Importance of Speech

These actors, so good in so many ways, will not mind a single criticism, which it would be dishonest to omit. Plays of this kind —indeed, virtually all plays, but these plays of witty highlife in particular — depend heavily for their effectiveness on good speech. Mr. Hutt and Mr. Sarracini speak very much better than their female counterparts, and this gives them an advantage which the ladies should not permit. Such a play as "Private Lives" demands a speech which need not be aggressively English, but which should not be unmistakably that of Ontario. We are now beginning to have a lively professional theatre in Canada, and good speech is important. It is interesting that the actors have grasped this point and acted on it much more decisively than the actresses. And with the modern trend toward poetic and rhetorical plays this matter of good speech will soon drive the poor speakers out of the theatre, or confine them to a small and unrewarding repertoire.

Much of the credit for this excellent presentation of a very difficult play must go to the director, Frank Perry. When a play has not been well directed, the direction shows everywhere, and there is an atmosphere of artificiality combined with uncertainty which disturbs the audience. But good direction, even when fantastic things happen upon the stage, has about it an air of inevitability which convinces the audience and buoys up the actors. It looks as though a director of talent had been uncovered in Mr. Perry, who worked with Miss King and Mr. Hutt to give us, in "Private Lives" a succession of surprises and fresh pleasures in a play which has, in twenty years, become pretty well known.

This is another success for the Summer Theatre, and it should not be missed by anyone who cares for first-rate light entertainment.

Four Occupants Tossed Out Overturned Car

A tire blow-out threw a car out of control and it rolled over four times, tossing its four occupants about on the Lakefield Highway about five miles north of the city, Saturday afternoon.

The four occupants were only slightly injured although it was at first feared that Walter Ridge, of Morristown, Penn., had been seriously hurt with a deep gash behind his right ear.

His wife suffered an injured left knee and elbow. They were riding with Reid Mallory, 343½ George St., and his 11-year-old son, Roger. They were all taken to Civic Hospital and released a short time later.

The car, ending up on its roof, was a total wreck. Provincial Constable R. McKendrick, who investigated, reported that all the tires on the car, including the one that burst, had good treads.

The party was on its way to Buckhorn driving north toward Lakefield when the accident occurred.

Robert McBrien Quits Secretary Of Blind

WINDSOR, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Robert E. McBrien of Peterborough, secretary of the Ontario Association for the Deaf since 1925, has retired. He will be succeeded by Murray Brigham of Ottawa, chosen at the closing meeting yesterday of the association's convention here.

All other officers were re-elected. They are: Honorary president, George F. Stewart, Belleville; president, David Peikoff, Toronto; vice-president, J. N. Rosnick, Toronto; treasurer, Howard J. Lloyd, Brantford.

PICKING PEACHES

The first peaches of the season arrived on main street this morning from Niagara On The Lake with their intimation that summer is beginning to wane. Familiar files of swallows are noticed these days on rural telephone wires in resting periods for the young broods that will be winging away one of these days. Civic Holiday is behind us, and August opens with promise of typical warmth of weather through the weeks of Toronto Exhibition to Labor Day.

Five Men Brawl In Cafe, Four Locked Up

Four men, two from Toronto, are in cells today after a disturbance early this morning in which about $500 damage was done to the Churchill Cafe, George St.

They are Gordon Dunlop, 23, of Ida, Ross Chadwick, 22, D'Arcy Minard, 16, both of 6 Westlake Cr., Toronto, and Stanley Finn, 24, 407 Dobbin Ave. They are charged with causing a disturbance, and police say further charges may be laid.

The four pleaded guilty and were remanded in custody by Magistrate R. B. Baxter to August 10.

One man, who escaped before police came, is still being sought.

Early today, the five men entered the restaurant noisily and were asked to leave by night manager Bill Corous. The fifth man threw a glass and a bottle of catsup at Mr. Corous, hitting him on the side of the head.

While the other four continued the disturance, the fifth man escaped up Hunter St. The four were arrested on Murray St. Police say all had been drinking.

30 Years In Hospital Great War Vet Dies

After 30 years in hospital, World War I veteran George Shouldice, Peterborough, died in Westminster Hospital, London, Saturday.

Mr. Shouldice was born in Apsley, the son of William James Shouldice and Hannah Mary Wilson, both dead.

He joined the Canadian Army while living at Coe Hill. He was a member of the Canadian Legion. Members of the Legion acted as pallbearers at the funeral service held today at 1:30 p.m. at the Belleghem Funeral Home, Rev. E. J. Whan officiating. Burial was in the Apsley Cemetery.

He is survived by a sister Mrs. Hannah Mary Blackwell, Indianapolis, Ind., and a brother Harry A. Holbrook, Peterborough.

Pallbearers were W. Suddard, H. James, F. Burke, G. Paudash, A Peeling, and E. J. O'Donoghue.

Two Parked Autos Damaged On Street

Damage totalling $135 was done to two autos Saturday evening. L. Robinson, 54 Aylmer St., was driving east on Lansdowne St. and turned left onto Aylmer St. He struck a parked car owned by Leo Blodgett, 133 Aylmer St.

Damage to Robinson's auto was $35 and to Blodgett's, $50. Blodgett's car was parked in front of his house.

Another parked auto was damaged Saturday evening when the brakes on a second parked car failed and it rolled downhill.

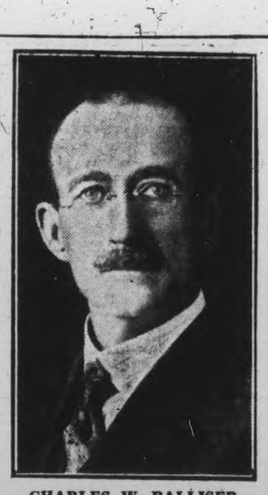
Bruce Humphries, RR 1, Peterborough, parked his car in front of a Reid St. store. While Humphries was shopping the brakes released, and his car rolled backward hitting an auto owned by William Doherty, 551 McKellar St.

PIPERS TO LINDSAY

CGE Pipe Band has an engagement at the Lindsay Kinsmen carnival Wednesday, Aug. 16 and they are also going up to Apsley on the following Saturday.

HELICOPTER OVER CITY

Peterborough residents had their first look at a helicopter airplane when one flew over the city Monday morning at a low altitude heading northwest.



CHARLES W. PALLISER

Florist Killed In Auto Crash, Six Are Injured

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 8 — ENS)—Six Campbellford people were injured, and one killed, when the car in which they were riding collided with the rear of a truck carrying a large load of steel, on the outskirts of the little town of Ste. Anne des Monts, about 130 miles east of Rimouski, on Saturday afternoon.

Chas. W. Palliser, well konwn Campbellford florist, died two hours after the accident in hospital in the little Quebec town. Mr. Palliser was 75 years of age. Mrs. Palliser suffered two broken ribs, shock and bruises. Travelling with them were their daughter, Anne, 17, who suffered shock, another daughter, Ruth, 36, and her husband, Donald Holmes, and their two small children, Patty, 4, and David, 3.

Mrs. Holmes suffered a fractured skull, compound fracture of her left leg, severe shock and multiple bruises. Ruth was not expected to live, but showed a remarkable recovery, and is now believed to be out of danger. Her husband, Donald Holmes, was not as badly injured, but suffered a bad cut under the eye, a lacerated arm, and injuries to his back. The two small children got off lightly, with Patty receiving a few cuts to her legs, and David escaping, except for a few bruises.

How the accident happened is not yet clear, but the party had left Campbellford earlier in the week to travel to the Gaspe' for their holidays. The group had taken the trip before, and had their cabin trailer behind the car. Both were badly damaged.

Mr. Palliser was a former councillor of Campbellford, and had retired from the florist business, turning it over to his son George, while he entered the real estate business.

Obituary

MAURICE JAMES TOBIN

Maurice James Tobin, formerly of Peterborough, died Sunday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew Miller, Harvey township, following a short illness. He was born in Douro, son of the late Thomas Tobin and Jane Ryan. He was employed for many years with the Barbeau Cartage Company and later resided in Toronto before moving to Harvey township.

Mr. Tobin was a veteran of the First World War. He enlisted with the 21st Battalion on July 15, 1915, and spent three years overseas. He was a member of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion. Mr. Tobin was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

He leaves his wife, the former Elizabeth Diagnault; one daughter, Mrs. Andrew Wilson (Dorothy) Harvey township; two sons, Leo, Peterborough, and Leonard, Toronto; one sister, Mrs. Murray Kendry, Peterborough, and two brothers, William and Leo, both of Peterborough.

Funeral service will be held Wednesday at 8.40 a.m. from the Duffus funeral home and will proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral where requiem mass will be said at 9 a.m. Interment will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Two Women Die In Crash Driver Badly Injured When Car and Truck Collide

A young Emily township woman was killed and a Peterborough man seriously injured in a car-truck crash which killed one other woman Saturday afternoon on Highway 11, north of Toronto. Miss Berniece Ruth, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Ruth, Emily township, died in hospital shortly after the crash. Also dead was Mrs. Hulda Gosplin, 48, of Wayne, Mich. Miss Ruth worked in the pay office of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd., Peterborough.

Driver of the car, Melville Fountain, 27, who works at Canada Packers in Peterborough, but whose parents live in Fenelon Falls, was reported by Toronto General Hospital today to be in "satisfactory" condition.

Fountain's car was in collision with a truck driven by George Hamlin, of Green River, Ont. Hamlin and two passengers escaped injury. The two dead women were passengers in Fountain's car.

BERNICE RUTH

Coroner Dr. Peter O'Hara said an inquest would be held.

Miss Ruth is survived by her parents and a sister, Evelyn, at home. The funeral service was held at the Comstock Funeral Home today at 2 p.m. Burial was in Emily Cemetery

2 Cars Crumpled Near Hastings

HASTINGS, Aug. 8—(ENS)— Two cars were badly damaged but no one was seriously hurt Monday evening when one car driven by Ronald Warner, RR 3, Hastings, met in collision with a car driven by Ben Gibson, 211 Rink St.

Passengers in the Gibson car were his wife, two children and the family dog. Jack Sargent, Westwood, was riding in the Warner car.

About $500 damage was done to the Gibson car and about $300 to the Warner car.

The accident occurred as Gibson was pulling out of the Collins' Hill township road into Highway 45 Warner was driving east on Highway 45.

The front of the Gibson car was damaged and the Warner car had a damaged right front fender, bumper, grill, and right side.

Provincial Constable David W. Coffey of the Hastings detachment investigated.

END OF THE HOLIDAYS

The wheels of Peterborough's industry awakened this morning from their vacation quiet and inertia, and resumed the business of production, including paychecks with which to buy bootees for the baby. The weather saved its best for the final weekend.

Hungry Droves of Tourists Find 3 Eating Places Open

The Gateway to the Kawarthas offered three restaurants to the stream of people who funnelled through its streets Sunday.

A roundup of the number of "eating places" doing business was exactly three—at 10 a.m. They were Hollywood and United on Charlotte and the Churchill on George St.

Constables were kept busy in their morning rounds answering one question, repeated perhaps several hundred times: "Where is there a place to eat?"

Two main streeters who were staying home for the day told the Examiner they did not pay any attention to the lack of restaurant accommodation until visitors hailed them for information about the meal supply.

After a long rush of business from daybreak or thereabouts, the Churchill had to close for an hour at 11 a.m. to reorganize for lunch and also to let the staff get a bite to eat. At that time, apparently only two restaurants were available.

The Examiner's informant said: "One woman said to me when asking about where her party could get something to eat 'this is ridiculous; a city of this size with hardly any cafes open'. And that is what it looked like 'ridiculous'.

"I verified the number of places open down town at three. If the Paris had opened a day earlier, they could have got away to a big start. The simple fact is that scores and scores of people stopped us along George St., all asking the same thing. And one of the policemen said it was that way from the time he had reported on duty. I am mentioning this in the hope that it will get to the attention of the council or the chamber of commerce. If it had been half a dozen enquiries, I wouldn't mention it. The number was in scores, and that was in the morning. I don't know about the rest of the day except that the Churchill had to lock the door for a second hour in the evening.

"The majority of those people I talked too were from Ontario, but there was quite a number of Americans, too. Why can't the restaurant men arrange among themselves to meet the summer holiday needs. You would think it was a Sunday morning in February, three restaurants open: at the Gateway to the Kawarthas."

Britain Worried Over Policy With Formosa

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Aug. 8 — (CP) — Concern seems to be increasing over the implications of United States policy in Formosa.

Although there have been few official pronouncements, it is easy to see Britain is worried that this Pacific Ocean island might provoke a war between Communist China and the United States.

This fear is not news. But it has been almost feverishly intensified by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's visit last week to Formosa, and the American promise to defend it against any invader's "foolish enough" to attack.

Most observers agree that this fresh avowal of common purpose with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, though it may not have been approved by President Truman, is a dangerous move.

As portrayed in reports from foreign correspondents, Chiang is the discredited head of a Kuomintang which is just as corrupt and unpopular in Formosa as it ever was in China. If the Chinese Reds invade the island, as they have sworn they will, there would probably be the usual defections from the Kuomintang ranks.

Give Provocation

Another factor is that China is admitted by many western sources to have a case for attacking Formosa. The independent Observer, a level-headed weekly newspaper, said editorially that Chiang's renewed bombing and blockade of the Chinese mainland give China some provocation to send armed forces "to a place from which it is being bombed, and to stop the bombing."

Generally speaking, the battle between east and west in Asia seems here to be less clear-cut than it may appear in North America. While the western powers are serenely convinced of the rightness of their actions, they may not persuade native peoples of their altruism.

In Asia's eyes, linking arms with Chiang makes the U.S. look less intent on fighting Communism than in preserving an undesirable status quo. British newspapers have been stressing a theme that could be distilled into four words: Pick your partners carefully.

Miscellaneous Shower For Marie Moncrief

MILLBROOK, Aug. 8 (ENS)—Miss Bessie Armstrong, of Millbrook, entertained on Saturday at a miscellaneous shower in honor of her niece, Miss Marie Moncrief. Miss Moncrief's marriage to Joseph Bradshaw will take place August 17 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moncrief, South Monaghan.

About 50 guests were greeted by the hostess and the guest of honor.

The bride-elect was led to a chair under a large garden umbrella on the lawn, both decorated in pink and white. A tea wagon loaded with gifts and trimmed in the same color scheme, was wheeled in by Mrs. John Tinney, Mrs. Joe Armstrong, Mrs Herb Perrin and Edith Elson. There were a number of young children present, and they passed the gifts to be viewed by the guests.

The brightly-colored balloons given to the youngsters, with which they played, added to the gaiety of the scene.

Mrs. Arthur Mulligan recited a verse to the bride.

Those assisting in serving refreshments on the lawn were the four who had wheeled in the gifts and Miss Margaret Armstrong.

18 Accidental Deaths Mar Civic Holiday Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Ontario's Civic holiday weekend was marred by 18 deaths from accidents and violence.

Eleven of them resulted from traffic accidents. Police had predicated that up to 20 persons might die from carelessness on the highways during the holiday.

In addition, a Canadian Press compilation from Friday night to early Tuesday showed three persons killed by trains, a fatal fall, an accidental electrocution, a drowning and a suicide.

Four of the dead—all traffic victims—were visitors from the United States.

No deaths on Monday—when highway traffic was probably heaviest—had been reported by early Tuesday.

Tourists Killed

Three of the traffic accidents results in multiple deaths.

The most serious of them killed three persons, two of them U.S. tourists, on the Trans-Canada highway, 75 miles west of Port Arthur. The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Frolik of Beloit, Wis., and Mrs. Imppi Lane of Fort William.

In Port Arthur, Frank Zawicki, 23, and Walter Risi, 21, both of Fort William, were killed Saturday in a collision between a car and a trolley bus. An automobile-truck collision in Toronto's northern suburbs Saturday killed Mrs. Hilda Gasplin of Wayne, Mich., and Bernie Ruth, 20, of Omemee.

The other traffic victims were: Norman Heimpel, 56, of Kitchener who died in a Toronto hospital as a result of injuries received in an accident July 24; Mrs. Nellie Murphy, 71, of Renfrew; Rene Sequin, 25, of Sudbury, and Henry Wilker, 16, the driver of a car involved in a collision near Seaforth.

Killed By Train

A Pembroke school teacher, Mrs. Elwyn Elliott was run down by a train Sunday night and killed. Near Nipigon, a Canadian Pacific Railway employee, Hector McKinnon, 26, was hit by a freight train and killed and in Stratford, Kenneth Stewart, 51, slipped and fell in the path of a slow-moving freight as he tried to run across the tracks ahead of the train.

Mrs. A. E. Weston of Listowel, a 50-year-old theatre cashier, fell down the basement steps of the theatre and was killed. In Iroquois, John Riddell, 28, was electrocuted when a power drill he was using short circuited.

In Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb, Wilfred Kingsley, 40, hung himself after beating his wife unconscious with a hammer.

Howard Charles, 57, was drowned in Lake Simcoe near Sutton Saturday.

File $100,000 Suit Against Newspaper

CALGARY, Aug. 8 — (CP) — A $100,000 libel suit was filed Monday by two Toronto stockbrokers against the Edmonton Bulletin Ltd., H. L. Straight, publisher, and C. Vernon Myers, oil editor of the Calgary Albertan.

The brokers, A. N. Richmond and L. B. Scott, last Friday filed a similar suit against the Albertan Publishing Company, Ltd., and Mr. Myers.

A statement of claim in the Bulletin suit said the alleged libel was published last March 29 resulting in the plaintiffs being "seriously injured in their character, credit and reputation..."

Stupid Actions

LONDON, Aug. 8 (CP)—Unofficial strikes are "selfish, stupid and senseless," Tom Williams, general secretary of the 800,000-strong National Union of General and Municipal Workers, said in an article published in the August issue of the union journal, "The time has arrived," he says, "when those irritants responsible for these stoppages must understand that other workers are fed up with their pathetic and senseless antics, which by no stretch of the imagination, are characteristic of the sense and responsibility of the British trade union movement."

Lord Wardington Dies

BANBURY, England, Aug. 8 (AP)—Lord Wardington, 81, former chairman of Lloyds Bank, one of the five biggest in Britain, died Monday.

Grim Resolve To Get It Over Attitude Of Teen-Age Soldiers

By PAUL PETT

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP). — Like his older brother after Pearl Harbor, the average teen-aged U.S. soldier is going off to war with no illusions about liking it—just a grim resolve to get it over with.

Generally, he joined up for what looked like a peaceful interlude of travel. Now he faces the prospect of fighting in Korea and he is stunned but not panicked.

This descriptive report comes from Associated Services, successor to United Service Organizations as a morale co-ordinating agency, which polled directors of servicemen's clubs.

The replies indicate the explosion in Korea has produced an over-all sobering and maturing effect, especially among the 365,000 teen-agers in uniform. There is a new concern with serious, practical, personal problems, and many servicemen who never went before are now attending religious services.

Bitter Medicine

From an area where troops have been shipping out, came this report:

"The men shipping out are mostly teen-agers. Their general attitude seems to be that of one who is about to get a bitter dose of medicine — 'might as well get it over with because it's going to happen anyway'."

A club director at an Eastern base reported:

"I note a recurrence of that same serious intensity which marked the youngsters back in '40, '41 and '42. They have that sort of catching of breath attitude of one who feels he wants to get into action but at the same time is inwardly uneasy about it."

Among the older servicemen shipping west, the chief concern is their wives and children and the hundreds of little details involved in getting them settled. Club directors reported there is worry, sometimes hysteria, among the younger wives; the older army wives, the ones who went through the last war, are more inclined to accept the situation.

4 Killed In Fall

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8 (AP)—Four workers fell 200 feet to their death Monday when an aluminum beam collapsed as they were painting the inside of a large storage tank.

Serious Shortage of Beds For British TB Patients

By E. S. JOHNSON

LONDON, Aug 8 — (CP) — Health authorities in Britain are grappling with a problem of how to provide hospital treatment for the country's mounting list of tuberculosis patients.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan has announced that more than 11,000 persons are awaiting admission to sanatoria, with slim chance of being accommodated within the next year.

A recent survey disclosed that empty beds were available to take care of nearly half the present waiting-list but that hospitals were unable to provide the necsesary treatment due to lack of staff. Shortage of nurses was reported to be particularly acute.

Demand for urgent consideration of the situation has come from several quarters.

Must Have Accommodation

Dr. Andrew Morland, Chairman of the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, said accommodation must be found to halt the toll of 400 deaths the disease is exacting every week. Nursing tuberculous, he said can be made as safe as any other form of nursing, with modern methods of hygiene and protection.

More aggressive action was also urged in a statement by the British Medical Association It said: "we all seem to accept it. There seems to have been no sense of urgency and little of the vigor that has brought under control the infinitely less tragic infection, diphtheria."

The statement added that more than 19,000 patients in England and Wales and about 3500 in Scotland died in 1948. In the same year some 52,000 cases were reported in the United Kingdom.

"Here is a chance to test the much-vaunted adequacy of the National Health Service," the statement said. "There should be, within the framework of the service, far greater possibility of solving the problem than there was before."

22,000 Women Are Prepared For Duty in US Armed Forces

By DAVID O. TYSON

WASHINGTON,— (AP) —The Korean crisis found 22,000 American service women — 7,000 of them nurses — already in uniform, backed up by an estimated 25,000 in the reserves.

The armed forces made no distinction in sex when they called for volunteers and enlistments. If a woman can fit int, a specialist grade the services say she's as welcome as a man.

The women's Army Corps (WAC), which reached a peak wartime strength of 100,000, now has more than 7,000 women in army posts throughout the world About 1,200 are overseas.

These 7,000 girls in khaki release about seven infantry battalions for combat duty. In addition, 4825 WACs are training in organized reserve drills.

The two-year-old WAF (Women in the Air Force) has 4,000 in uniform. About 200 are overseas, mainly in Germany and Newfoundland.

Flying Job for Men

They are supported by an estimated 3,500 reservists. No WAF are assigned to flight duty, as the Air Force believes flying a job better left to men.

The Navy's Waves claim an active strength of 3,00 — sufficient woman-power to release enough sailors to man two battlewagons like the Missouri. About 100 of them are overseas.

In addition, more than 4,000 civilian women are members of the Navy's organized reserve, taking part in all drills except cruises.

The Korean invasion found the Marines wtih nearly 600 women in their ranks most of them in Washington, none overseas An estimated 1,900 skirt-wearing reservists — members of organized Marine ground reserve units — are being called to duty along with the men.

The Coast Guard has no Spars on active duty, but about 250 in its reserve.

Nurses — all with officers' commissions — are found wherever servicemen need medical care. The army had 3,460 on duty June 1, more than 1,000 stationed abroad. About 63,000 army nurses saw service during the Second World War, and 5,140 are standing by in the reserves. The Air Force now has its own nurse corps 1,100 on active duty and 400 to 500 more in reserve.

More than 2,000 navy nurses are on active duty at 153 naval stations and hospital ships Best available estimates place the navy reserve strength at 5,000 The navy has five women doctors on active duty, one of them board a hospital ship.

Another type of service open to the feminine world is the Women's Medical Specialist Corps (WMSC), made up of dieticians and physical and occupational therapists. The army has 322 in its WMSC, 43 of them overseas, plus 456 in reserve. The Air Force WMSC has 80 active, with les than 50 in reserve.

Training the Same

The training for women joining the regular services parallels that given men. WAC enlistees, taken between 18 and 34, are given 13 weeks' basic training at Camp Lee, Va. Among other subjects, they now get a course in weapons demonstration, designed to acquaint them with weapons lingo used in army offices.

Camp Lee WACS pack knapsacks and hike off for a week of bivouac living. Several hundred WACs lived and worked for months under field condition in the Second World War. The army wants its recruits to be prepared for the same duty.

The WAF takes 175 recruits a month. It sends them to Lackland Air Force base, San Antonio, Tex., for indoctrination. The fledgling WAFs don't get up in planes, but they do take aircraft recognition and plenty of physical training and drill.

The Waves take about 160 recruits a month and send them to boot camp at Great Lakes Ill., for 13 weeks. Here they attend classes and drill with the men on true co-ed fashion. They even "go to sea" for a day on Lake Michigan.

Marine women recruits, taken between 20 and 31, are sent to Parris Island, S. C., where they don the traditional forest green and scarlet marine uniform for six weeks' boot training.

Some Foods Should Be Kept In Pantry for Emergency

By MARY MOORE

Many long years ago when I was a young and serious girl I used to plan the food column I would write telling experienced housekeepers their mistakes.

Oh, I was going to tell them what they should keep on that non-existent emergency shelf that could be used when carloads of company arrived at their front doors unexpectedly. Or, stuff to have on hand when fell diseases struck them down.

But. . .in the twenty-two years that I have been pounding these typewriters keys I never have enlightened the citizenry on what I think an emergency shelf should hold—and maybe it is just as well—for I do not own one, and I don't know!

But my sister does. Last Sunday we invented an emergency so that we could plunder it. On three-quarters of an hour notice three of us went off on a picnic and she provided the lunch, from an unplanned start. It was delicious, be-lectable and be-preciated (I quote from guess who).

On-The-Run Picnic Lunch

From HER emergency shelf we took a can of chopped ham luncheon meat a can of Norwegian sardines, a bottle of olives, a jar of mayonnaise, a can of evaporated whipping cream (see more about this below), a can of date and nut bread.

Pretty good isn't it?—but the rest had to come from the refrigerator and bread box.

So the menu was

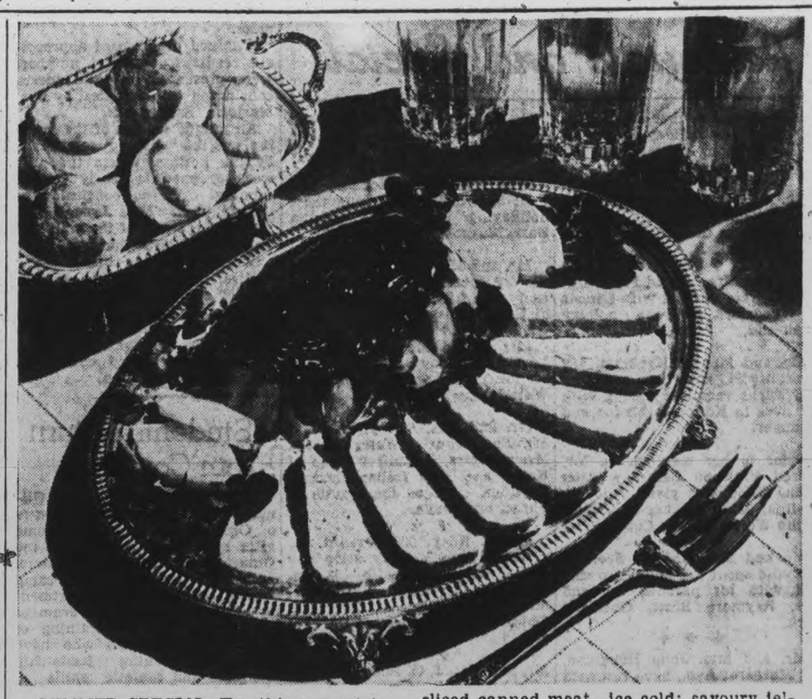
Whole Wheat bread Sandwiches containing:
Sliced Canned Luncheon meat
Norwegian Sardines
Nippy Cheese
all with Lettuce
Tomatoes Olives Celery
Bananas First - of - the - season white Peaches
Sliced Date and Nut Bread
Coffee (in Thermos)
Canned Cream (see note)

Note On Canned Cream

The canned whipping cream is a strictly Canadian product and the folks who did the research on this tricky process, and the manufacturers deserve high praise. It contains 30% butterfat and if well chilled whips perfectly. It is even good on cereal but for our family too rich We dilute it with whole milk for this purpose. Without doubt it is a fine new product that fills a particular need. And I know two families who use it in place of evaporated milk in their coffee because they prefer it, and because they like it better than fresh cream too. It makes delicious smooth homemade ice cream.

But to get back to this picnic—where only about five hundred ants were waiting for us.

A picnic is a place where I think one needs a large linen table napkin more than he ever would at the dinner table. We have reversed the napkin routine



SUMMER SPECIAL. Try this eye-catching platter on a warm August evening; sliced canned meat—ice cold; savoury jellied pears, hot tea biscuits and frosty lemonade. (Photo Marie Gifford)

We use oversize paper ones at the dining room table at home, and take the large linen ones to our picnics, because your dress, or slacks really need protection when you are eating a tomato sandwich over them, or trying to open a bottle of olives.

Anybody knows what happened to that food,—between us and the ants there was not a crumb left.

P. S. We did not forget the can-opener!

Sliced Fresh Peaches or Chilled Compote of Fresh Peaches (see notes)
Pineapple Gems, Coffee

Directions

You will be able to see I have been experimenting with non-fattening dressings for salads when I tell you these two tricks: For stufing tomatoes, chop inner celery stalks very fine. Moisten them with well mashed cottage cheese, softened with a few drops of lemon juice. If this is too sour for you, dissolve a saccharin tablet in the lemon juice before creaming it into the cheese. This is delicious and you reducers ought to try it, — then thank me!

The low-calorie dressing for the salad is another good one; mash the yolk of one hard-cooked egg with 1 tablespoon evaporated milk and add juice of ½ lemon or 1 tablespoon vinegar and plenty of salt and pepper.

This is nearly as good as potato salad: Use 1½ cups each diced boiled new potatoes and cold chopped butter beans which have been boiled and leftover on purpose. Mix with 1 ver. finely choped celery green onion and ¼ cup chopped chives about ½ cup chopped celery or cucumber unpared, about ½ to 2/3 cup genuine mayonnaise, and if desired 1 chopped hard-cooked egg and plenty of salt.

The Fresh Compote of peaches is good made from the first white peaches that come on the market; peel but do not stone them. Drop in boiling hot syrup of 1 cup sugar and 2 cups water flavoured with a small piece of stick cinnamon if desired. Boil for about 5 minutes ever so gently, cool, and chill well in syrup before serving.

Pineapple Gems

Sift together 1 cup pastry flour 1 teaspoon each salt and soda. Ad 1 cup each Graham flour and bran; Mix well and add ½ cup light molasses and ½ cup drained canned pineapple and ½ cup pineapple juice and ¾ cup milk and 1 tablespoon cooking oil or melted butter. Mix well and bake in well-greased muffin tins or paper baking cups at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes.

Teatro-Talbot Nuptials

Baskets of gladioli and ferns decorated Mark St. United Church Saturday for the wedding at two o'clock of Cherrie Laurene Talbot to Mr. Joseph Teatro, performed by the Rev. R. S. Morwood. The bride is daughter of Mrs. M. C. Talbot, Stewart St., and the late Mr. Edmund Talbot, and the groom is son of Mr and Mrs. S. Teatro of Lindsay.

Given in marriage by her great-uncle, Mr. Clarence Sampson of Toronto, the bride was gowned in filmy white silk net over satin, inlaid with pearls, styled with bouffant skirt, and silhouette bodice finished with lily point sleeves. Appliqued silk net caught to a tiara of pearls formed a coronet headdress and her bouquet was of red roses and baby's breath. Only bridal attendant was her sister, Miss Lorna Talbot, frocked in pink satin with matching nylon overskirt and wearing a wide brimmed hat and veiling of the nylon. She carried a bouquet of white asters with mixed sweet peas.

Attending the groom was Mr. Ralph Hannon.

Receiving her guests afterward in the Empress Hotel, Mrs. Talbot wore a gown of yellow silk sheer over matching satin with a hat of white nylon straw and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Clarence Sampson assisted in receiving, gowned in navy sheer with white accessories.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, after which they will live at 504 Stewart St. When going away the bride was gowned in pink silk sheer over matching satin and white and blue accessories and corsage of white and blue carnations.

Constance Northey Married In Knox Church, Lakehurst

The Knox Presbyterian Church at Lakehurst was the setting on Saturday for a pretty wedding as Lyla Constance Northey became the bride of Mr. Charles Frederick John Rogers of Toronto. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wolseley Northey of Lakehurst and the groom is son of Mrs. Elah Rogers of Toronto and the late Mr. Charles Rogers.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, performed the cermony. Mrs. George Kilborn, also of Peterborough, played the wedding music.

White eyelet embroidered organdy with a full tiered skirt extending in a slight train was the bride's choice. The dress was fashioned over white taffeta with a round neckline and short puffed sleeves. She wore matching mittens and a Juliet cap with fingertip veil of embroidered net and carried a bouquet of white carnations and sweet-peas.

She was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Miss Mae Northey, who was frocked in pink organdy over matching taffeta, made in similar style, and worn with a matching headdress. Her flowers were pink carnations and sweet-peas.

Groomsman was Mr. Alexander Murdock of Toronto and the ushers Carl Northey, brother of the bride, and the groom's cousin, George Lancaster of Toronto.

"Northolme," Lakehurst residence of the bride's parents, was setting for the reception. Mrs. Northey was wearing a gown of navy chiffon over matching taffeta, effective with lace inserts, a hat of navy embroidered mohair and navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses and sweet-peas. The groom's mother wore a gown of grey and pink crepe, a grey hat and accessories, and had pale pink roses and sweet-peas in her corsage.

The bridal couple left later on a trip to Northern Ontario, the bride wearing a navy taffeta dress with navy and white accessories and an orchid corsage. On return they will make their home in Toronto.

Fallis-Lewers Rites Held In Mark St. United Church

Baskets of mixed gladioli and snapdragon, with palms and ferns, were the pretty setting in Mark Street United Church Saturday as nuptial vows were pledged before the Rev. B. S. Morwood by Audrey Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Lewers and Elwood William Fallis, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Fallis, all of Peterborough.

The bride's gown was fashioned on princess lines with a nylon yoke, finished with lace ruffles on bodice and skirt of ivory satin, ending in a sweeping satin train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was held by a tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade of red roses. She was given in marriage by her father Mrs. Clarence Bishton, matron of honor, wore a gown of yellow taffeta, made with hooped skirt effect and finished with a yoke and bertha of nylon. She carried a ring boquet of mauve gladioli.

Bridesmaids were Misses Hazel and Helen Lewers, twin sisters of the bride, gowned alike in mauve organza with fitted bodices and full skirts and carrying ring bouquets of yellow gladioli. Each attendant wore a head dress of flowers.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Cecil Searles and she also accompanied Mrs. T. Brooks who sang "Bless This House" before the bride entered, and the "Lord's Prayer" during signing of the register.

Attending the groom was Mr. Clarence Bishton, Mr. Russel Sutton and Mr. Stanley Young ushered.

The wedding reception was held in the church parlors. The bride's mother received in a gown of navy sheer and wore a navy picture hat and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother also received wearing a gown of grey faille and lace, large picture hat and grey accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

When leaving on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a navy sheer dress, white picture hat, white and navy accessories and a corsage of roses. Upon their return the couple will live at 487 King George St.

Leona Todd, Alfred Pink Take Nuptial Vows Saturday

The marriage of Miss Leona Francis Todd, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Todd to Mr. Alfred Victor Pink, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Pink, all of Peterborough, was solemnized in Knox United Church Saturday afternoon, the Rev. H. G. Douglas performing the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Leslie Southgate, of Toronto wore white satin styled with a long graceful train and a shawl collar edged with French lace with the neckline filled in with sheer nylon. Her train-length veil of tulle illusion was edged with lace and caught to a tiara of pearls and she carried a bouquet of gladioli, completing her all-white ensemble.

Wedding attendants were the groom's sister and brother, Mrs Douglas Young and Mr. Gordon Pink. Mrs. Young was frocked in flowered pink organdy made in a pretty style with the full skirt frilled to the floor and the bodice finished with a shawl collar and insertion of net. She wore a matching caplet and mittens and carried a nosegay of pink and mauve gladioli.

Organist Mr. W. R. Potter played wedding music and during signing of the register contributed the organ selections "I love you truly" and "O Perfect Love."

The reception was at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Lockie, 495 Chamberlain St., who greeted her guests in a gown of navy crepe with bead trimming with which she wore a grey hat and accessories and corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother assisted to receive, gowned in navy sheer with navy and white accessories and pink carnations at her shoulder.

Leaving later on a wedding trip to the United states the bride wore a navy suit, a navy taffeta hat and white accessories and had a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Pink have a new home in South Monaghan where they will live on their return.

Parsons - Semple Marry At Double Ring Ceremony

At George St. United Church, where her father is minister, Miss Muriel Winifred Semple, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. James Semple, was married on Saturday to Mr. Orval Wass Frederick Parsons, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Parsons of St. Mary's, Ont.

Dr. Semple was the officiating minister, assisted by Dr. F. B. Allnutt of Toronto and Dr. S. L. Osborne, principal of OLC, Whitby.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. W. N. F. McKee, Lorne Park, Ont., sang "O Perfect Love" and during the signing of the register, "At Dawning."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. W. W. Semple of Kitchener. The bride's nephew, four-year-old Bobby, was ring bearer carrying a white square shaped satin cushion trimmed with satin chord, which was made by Mrs. Semple. The occasion was a double ring ceremony and both rings were held onto the cushion with jewelry clips.

The bride's gown was of white lace over blush slipper satin. It was styled with a high neckline with petal point collar, fitted bodice, long sleeves with points over the hands and a circular train. She wore a beaded tiara headdress which held her floor length veil of tulle illusion. Her bouquet was a cascade of white sweetpeas and stephanotis centred with an orchid.

The two bridal attendants were Miss Margaret Semple of Toronto, sister of the bride, who was dressed in mauve lace over ivory satin, and Mrs. Reginald Edwards of Belleville, whose gown was of turquoise lace over ivory satin. Both dresses were identical except for the colors. They had a boat neckline with matching lace stole and slight train. Both wore mittens of the same material and their headdresses were Dutch style in matching lace. They carried colonial nosegays of white and mauve sweetpeas, centred with yellow rosebuds.

John Parsons of St. Mary's was groomsman and John Jenner Toronto; William Colcock, Scarboro Duncan Campbell, Erieau, Ont. and John Colby, Chatham, were ushers. The groomsman and ushers and the rings bearer wore grey flannels and navy jackets.

The bride's mother was dressed in a long gown of navy lace over taffeta with navy accessories and she wore a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's nother's gown was of grey faconne with navy accessories and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

The reception in the Sunday School room was attended by more than 100 guests. The room was decorated with cedar trees and gladioli and grass forming a garden setting.

Donald Baxter, MPP, of Bloomfield, Ont., was master of ceremonies. The toast to the bride was proposed by Dr H. W. Kerfoot of Smiths Falls.

The couple left for a motor trip, the bride wearing a pink gabardine suit with natural color accessories and a corsage of white rubrum lilies.

Out of town guests were from Belleville, Smiths Falls, Perth, Toronto St. Mary's, London, Kitchener, Brockville, Altoona, Pa., Kingston, St. Thomas and Mimico.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Attention Readers: This is the season when Mrs. Moore receives letters from our readers asking for canning and pickling and jam and jelly making instructions. It would help her to help you if you send your requests early, giving her time to reply through this column while the fruit and vegetable season is at its height.

If you prefer a private reply enclose stamped - self - addressed envelope and address letters to Mary Moore, c/o this newspaper.

Question: Sometimes you say to serve Roquefort dressing on lettuce salad — head lettuce I think you mean. My Husband reads your column. He is a good meat cook and likes salads and fruits with his steaks and chops. Would you tell me how to make this dressing. It was my husband who asked me to write to you, so you see men do read your column. Chef's Little Helper.

Answer: I hope your husband read that story about cooking steak over a barbecue fire a little while ago.

Roquefort Dressing

One - quarter lb. Roquefort cheese, 3 tablespoons tarragon or spirit vinegar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of tamasco, ½ cup good quality salad oil — preferably very fresh olive oil. (By fresh I mean a freshly opened bottle of Italian olive oil.) Mash the cheese with a fork, then beat in the vinegar and seasonings, then when these are blended, slowly add oil, stirring all of the time. When ready to serve mix well again. Keep cold.

A good salad to put this on is Red And Green Cabbage Slaw.

Two and one-half cup each very finely shredded green cabbage and red cabbage 1 cup finely shredded or diced green celery, 2 tablespoons finely chopped chives or green onions, or Spanish onions, 2 hard-cooked eggs sliced, about ½ to ¾ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. If desired eggs may be used in or as a garnish on the salad. Mix ingredients and just before serving moisten with Roquefort dressing, or if desired, pass Roquefort dressing at table.

Note: Imported culture cheeses are best for this type of dressing, but many a good salad has been dressed with French dressing to which is added old Cheddar cheese, grated or crumbled.

Slim Silhouette Featured Accent On Bust, Hips

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS—(NEA) A slim silhouette with sloping shoulders, waspish waist, accented bosoms and gently rounded hips sounds like most people's ideal for a pretty feminine figure.

This year, except for a few style eccentricities it seems to be the ideal for the Paris world of high new fashion, too. There are some fancy names for it in the 1950-51 collections, but they all shape up to the same shape.

Jacques Fath, for instance, calls it the "column" silhouette, with drapery to give width to the bust for the column's top, and fullness at the knees for the pedestal. Jean Desses calls it the tunic theme, and Carven says it's the "lantern line."

Everybody, unless Schiaparelli is counted as a dissenter because of the fruo-fruo accents, seems to be following the pace set by Christian Dior whose collection was the first unveiled. Here are some of the ways the top-name designers express the idea:

Pierre Balmain takes his theme from Central Asia and the Near East with fullnes as part of the main construction of his dresses, introduced at side or back in deep points. Easy-to-year little dresses in wool and jersey — smart from dawn to eve — are teamed with unfitted flaring jackets in contrasting bright-brushed or teddy-bear wool.

Jacques Fath, who showed off the "column" with mannequins who looked like ballerinas, stresses narrow skirts almost like the hobble variety for daytime wear. Sometimes a back or front panel is buttoned at the hem to allow more freedom of movement. Most of his suits have short, unfitted coolie coats with narrow fur edging. He considers the short evening gown as no longe. fashionable.

Jean Desses uses the tunic theme in every way imaginable, always combined with the basic sheath dress.

Belts sport a handkerchief square which cascades down the side, and suit skirts have an "X" or "Y" effect at the back for ease of movement.

Carven following the same silhouette, adds the "lantern" idea with sleeves gathered at the shoulders, others pagoda-shaped, and some gathered into deep pleats.

Alwyn, a relative newcomer presenting his second showing, moulds the silhouette mummy-like from neck to hem, and adds fan effects with pleats or draperies that spring from the knee regions.

In all collections, skirts are about 14 inches from the ground; velvet is a favored fabric, and black is as smart as ever.

The extra touches are in lavish accessories—rich embroideries on one hand, and amusing items like little stylized gramophone records strewn across bodice and skirt.

Likewise, fur is everywhere with every size, shape and pelt featured in muffs trimmings, collars, and even on the anklets of a trousered skirt Balmain calls "Pantajudo."

As one witness at the openings observed, "Mink is used like the vulgar rabbit."

DOROTHY DIX

Does Nature Create Mate For Every Man and Woman?

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you believe that there is a certain mate created by Nature for every person, or do you believe that it is up to us to select our own mates?
T. A. S.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: I am sentimental enough to believe that there is a mate for each of us somewhere in the wide, wide world, someone who is our counterpart, who would satisfy our every need of soul and mind and body. But I am also very certain that our chances of ever finding our affinity are so remote as to be negligible.

The happy marriages are those of the lucky people who have found their mates. The unhappy marriages are those in which the husband and wife are mismated. The whole problem of the success or failure of a marriage is bound up in getting the husband or wife who is the right one for the individual.

Intrinsic Worth Unimportant

The intrinsic worth of the person has very little, if anything, to do with it. Every day we see fretful, discontented women married to men who are model husbands, who are tender, kind considerate and provide them with every comfort. And we see men who are unfaithful to wives who are beautiful, intelligent, amiable and domestic—paragons of wives. And we see women happy and content with husbands who fall off the water wagon now and then, who are high-tempered and irritable, who are shiftless and lazy and poor providers.

And we see husbands crazy about wives who are homely or dumb or extravagant or sloppy and slovenly housekeepers. The explanation is that the happy married people are those who have found their mates, the ones who had the qualities that satisfied them, and that outweighed all their faults. Whereas the mismated found even their husbands and wives' virtues intolerable because they answered no corresponding need in themselves. For proof of this theory you have only to notice how often second marriages are happier than first.

Inasmuch, however, as our chances of winning out in the matrimonial lottery by finding the mate which Nature intended for us are about a million-to-one shot, it is not safe to sit down and fold our hands and trust to Lady Luck to bring our prize to us. Nor is it feasible to wander about with a dark lantern in our hands searching for the Right One, as Diogenes searched for an honest man.

The best we can do is to look 'em over as carefully as we can, and to try to deduce from this and that whether he or she fills the bill or not. It is, of course, a procedure in which one is liable to make mistakes, but it leaves us an opportunity to at least exercise our own taste and discrimination.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am much interested in these young men who have been writing you who are fearful lest they should not have authority over their wives. If a man live a life of unselfish consideration for his wife, provides for her ungrudgingly, constantly develops the qualities which challenge her admiration, there will be no question as to his authority. If, on the other hand, he is tyrannical and stingy and arbitrary and demands slavish service and obedience, his wife may give him outward deference, but in her heart she will despise him.—A WOMAN OF 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are right, sister. If a man wants his wife to look u pto him, he has to live on a pedestal. If he wants her to admire him, he has to be worthy of admiration. If he wants her to defer to his opinions, they must be the views of a wise man and not the prejudices of a fool.

I know a wife who comes as near to obeying her husband as any intellingent emancipated woman does in these days. That is, she never does anything important without consulting him and she abides by his decisions.

In explaining this, she says: "Of course, I defer to my husband's wishes because he always considers mine, and I ask his advice because he has the best judgement of anybody I know. Also, he is always fair and just. But if I were married to a sily, prejudiced man or one who was always making mistakes, I shouldn't think of such a thing as being guided by him." And that about sums up the situation.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Please tell me what I can do about my social life. I feel that my whole life is ruined because I am handicapped by being a cripple. When the other girls talk about their beaux, parties and dates I feel as if a don't belong anywhere and my heart is heavy. How can I get over this?
GERTRUDE

ANSWER: To lose heart is worse than losing your leg, Gertrude. You must fight against this hopelessness and achieve what Stevenson called "the brave attitude toward life." That means making the best of things and not letting a misfortune drag you down into defeat.

I know that a girl of your age wants to do all of the things that other girls do. Take you rpart in them as a matter of course. Only realize that as you can't do as much physically as the other girls do, you must make up for it by giving more mentally than they do. And get something to do that will make you a career. Some way to support yourself, so that if you should not marry you will be financially independent and have something interesting to do and think about with which to fill your life.

What's Right?

You are going away to college in the fall and through the mail you receive invitations to rushing parties given by several different sororities.

WRONG: Answer only the invitations you plan to accept.

RIGHT: Answer all the invitations, whether you send an acceptance or a regret.

✧ ✧ ✧

You take a small child to visit in a friend's home.

WRONG: If you let him stand on the sofa, bang on the coffee table, etc., in his own home, don't pay any attention if he does these things in your friend's home.

RIGHT: Realize that though you may be resigned to such behavior at home, your friends won't appreciate having your child behave that way in their home.

COOKBOOK OF THE WEEK

Dressings for Roast Fowl Give Cook Scope for Variety

The fourth book in the Culinary Artist Institute Cookbook Series, 250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds, is now out. This valuable little book is a veritable storehouse of easy, practical, tasty, out-of-the-ordinary ways to prepare chicken and other fowl. Here is just one of many unusual suggestions found in it. This dressing is as good with turkey and duck as it is with chicken.

Pineapple Nut Stuffing

4 cups dry bread, ½inch cubes
¾ cup finely chopped celery
¾ cup pineapple wedges
½ cup walnut meats, chopped fine
1 canned pimiento chopped
Dash cayenne
1 teaspoon paprika
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup butter
2 eggs

Combine bread, celery, pineapple, walnut meats, pimiento and seasonings. Melt butter, remove from heat, stir in unbeaten eggs and add to bread mixture. Toss lightly. Use as stuffing for turkey, chicken or duck.

Use chopped cooked bacon instead of nuts, reduce salt to ½ teaspoon and add grated onion or use red or green pepper instead of pimiento.

If there is chicken left for the next day this remarkable cookbook has any number of unusual sandwich suggestions or, if you prefer your leftovers hot, you can find a casserole dish to your taste.

You will surely want your copy today. The poultry Cookbook can be obtained with one coupon from any issue of the Examiner and 25 cents at the Examiner office, your carrier, or at Braund's Home Food Markets.

Union Complains About Actions Of Mediator

TIMMINS, Aug. 8—(CP)—The Porcupine Mine Workers' Union (CCL) has voted to complain to the Ontario Department of Labor about the actions of Judge J. C. Reynolds, of Kingston, who was chairman of a conciliation board in a dispute between the union and several gold mines.

The union has also decided to take strike votes Aug. 10-11 to see if their members wish to call a strike against Preston East Dome, Coniaurum and Buffalo Ankerite Mines as a result of a wages dispute.

Herbert Orliffe, Toronto lawyer, who represented the union on the board, said Judge Reynolds made a last-minute switch in his report to favor the mining companies instead of the union.

(In Kingston, Judge Reynolds said he would reserve comment.)

Sudden Change

Mr. Orliffe said he and Judge Reynolds had been agreed on what the report should contain. It was indicated that K. C. Gray, the company nominee, would write a minority report.

Mr. Orliffe in his minority report said that Judge Reynolds sent for him and "bluntly told me that he and Mr. Gray had agreed on what the report should contain and that the recommendations he and I had agreed on were no longer to be the basis of his report . . ."

Mr. Orliffe said the judge would give him no reasons "for such a last-minute change."

The majority report recommended the incorporation of a 15-cent-an-hour cost-of-living bonus into the basic wage. The union had asked for the bonus plus a 12-cent increase and bonuses for off-shift work.

Membership meetings of the union have rejected the majority report of the board.

Truck Driver Freed Carelessness Charge

A charge of careless driving, laid against Percy Hill, of Oshawa, was today dismissed by Magistarte R. B. Baxter. Hill was fined $20 and $2.50 costs on a charge of parking a truck on the travelled part of Highway 7.

Provincial Constable J. G. Healey testified he found Hill's truck parked on the highway about two miles northwest of Peterborough.

Further toward Lindsay on the highway, said the officer, two guard posts were knocked out of the safety fence, and pieces of Hill's truck were found near the scene.

Hill said an approaching car had forced him into the fence as he drove toward Peterborough, and that when he hit the fence his radiator was damaged and he had to stop his truck where the officer found him.

The accident occurred early in the morning of July 11. Hill pleaded guilty to the parking charge.

Three People Killed In Shooting Spree

EMINENCE, Mo., Aug. —(AP)—Three persons were killed and two others wounded in a wild shoting spree in the Ozarks hill country last night.

The gunman fled into a heavily-wooded area near this south central Missouri town.

The dead were Bill Fansler, about 63, a farmer; his son, Homer L. Fansler; and a four-year-old girl, Barbara Harris.

Police identified the gunman as William Haris, 39, father of the slain child.

Lonely Hearts Killers Get Execution Stays

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—The "lonely hearts" slayers — Raymond Fernandez and Mrs. Martha Beck—have been granted stays of execution pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, a defence lawyer announced Monday.

Mrs. Beck, 30, and her friend, Fernandez, 35, were scheduled to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison Aug. 31. They were convicted of the bludgeon-strangulation slaying of Mrs. Janet Fay, 66-year-old Albany, N.Y., widow.

OBITUARIES

MRS. HANNAH WARAM

Mrs. Hannah Waram, 224 Westcott St., widow of the late Thomas Waram, died Monday at the Civic Hospital in her 82nd year after a short illness.

She was born in Smith township Hannah Nugent, the daughter of the late Samuel Nugent and the former Elizabeth Hatton. She lived her whole life in the district.

Mrs. Waram was a member of George St. United Church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Harold W. Hamblin (Vivian), Mrs. W. K. McGee, (Hazel), and two grandchildren, Donald Hamblin and Eleanor McGee.

The funeral service will be Wednesday at two p.m. at the Belleghem Funeral Home, Rev. Dr. James Semple of George St. United Church officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

WALTER CLARKE

A veteran of World War 1, Walter Clarke, 7 Anson St., died at the age of 73 in the Veteran's Pavilion of Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston after six weeks' illness.

Born in New Brunswick, he lived for many years in Woodstock and Campbellton, N.B. He enlisted in the 132nd Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force and served in France with the 87th battalion and the 11th battalion of the 3rd Division.

He was captured by the German army in 1917 and was a prisoner for almost two years until released six months after the war was over. He was badly wounded at the time of his capture.

When captured, Mr. Clarke was a member of a Browning machine gun team with Bill Jebb of Peterborough. The men did not see each other again until 25 years later, after Mr. Clrake had moved to Peterborough.

Mr. Clarke is survived by his wife, the former Annie G. Andrew, three sons, W. A. (Bud) (Bud) Clarke, sergeant- detective of the city police; Kenneth Clarke, and Hartley Clarke, Peterborough; and two daughters, Mrs. Allis on Cheney, Woodstock, N.B., and Mrs. Percy B. Cotton, Bangor, Maine.

The funeral service was to be held today at 3.30 p.m. at the Comstock Funeral Home, Major Cyril Everett, of the Salvation Army, officiating, with burial in Ray's cemetery, Lakefield.

Col. John E. Leckie Dies At Port Hope

Col. John E. Leckie, CMG, CBE, DSO, FRGS, BSc, world traveller, engineer and explorer, died Sunday at his home in Port Hope. He was 78.

Born in Actondale, Que., Col. Leckie was educated at Lennoxville and at the Royal Military College, Kingston. As a young lieutenant he fought in the Boer War before embarking on a civilian career of exploration. For his research and engineering work around Hudson Bay he was made a member of the Royal Geographical Society in 1927.

Col. Leckie, who less than two years ago made an extensive tour of Europe, moved from Vancouver to Port Hope in 1949. He was a member of the Vancouver Club. He leaves his wife, Stewart Galt Leckie, Port Hope.

Grain Vessel Loaded, Picketing Stops

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 8 (AP) — The Canadian grain ship Howard L. Shaw, idle here since Tuesday because of a labor dispute, sailed for lower lake ports Saturday night with a full cargo loaded after picketing ceased.

The ship was loaded after a picket was served with a district court order to show cause why he should not be cited for contempt of court. The order followed a temporary injunction issued against the Seafarers' International Union (AFL) when picket lines were set up Tuesday. The union charged the Shaw carried "Communist crew members who were bad security for the U.S."

The Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company, Limited, of Toronto, operator of the Shaw, denied the charge, contending the picketing was to force signing of a union contract.

Thomas M. McCabe, Duluth lawyer for the Canadian firm, said in a statement: "We regret exceedingly any differences with our American friends, particularly labor. We have 33 men aboard our boat and we can assure you none of them are Communists.

"All of them are definitely opposed to the Seamen's International Union of Canada and the American Seamen's Union. They have never at any time ever solicited their membership."

Colleagues Attend Burgoyne Funeral

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 8 (CP) —Newspaper and radio colleagues and representatives of many civic organizations attended the funeral Saturday of Maj. H. B. Burgoyne, president of the St. Catharines Standard and managing director of radio station CKTB. Maj. Burgoyne, 65, died Thursday.

The Rev. W. E. Bagnall, Anglican Bishop of Niagara, and the Rev. C. J. Loat, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church here, conducted the service at St. Thomas' Church. They were assisted by the Rev. William James, the Rev. K. Richardson, the Rev. James D. Tilley and the Rev. Canon A. H. Walker.

During an entombment service at Victoria Lawn Cemetery, the carillon of the new Mills Memorial Tower was played for the first time for a funeral.

Cavan News

Mr. Thomas McCamus and party, from New Liskard, after visiting friends in Manvers, Cavan and Bobcaygeon, left on Thursday for London, Ontario, where they are visiting the daughters of the late Rev. D. N. McCamus, and will also visit at Queenston before returning home.

Miss Joan Williamson, Peterborough, is vacationing with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wood.

"Canada Direct" Pays Off Local Group

A Peterborough group of followers of the Standardbred horses collected handsomely on Merton Storey's stout-hearted pacer "Canada Direct" at Thorncliffe in the featured event Saturday afternoon. And the boss himself had some tickets on just about the best horse he ever owned.

At that it was a photo-finish decision over Williamsburg that split favoritism with Sam Hy. The board hung up the pay-off $80 for a two-dollar ticket. On his performance last year, local opinion gave Canada Direct a good chance to take the race, but the rail talent didn't think so. Wilmer Hillock is credited with expert driving in that win.

Stan Blewett's Victory Hy was a repeated during the week in a mile event that paid $6.20 straight in the mutuels.

Charge Misdated Mud-Lier Freed

A charge of drunkenness against 56-year-old James Heffernan was dismissed by Magistrate Baxter today because the wrong date was on the information, and Heffernan had no counse .

Asked if he was ready to plead, Heffernan said: "I am and I ain't. Not guilty."

PC Dennis Traynor testified he found Heffernan on Hunter St. east in a drunken condition. Heffernan had been rolling in the mud, said the officer.

"I slipped and fell and hit the back of my head on the sidewalk," claimed Heffernan. "I didn't remember a thing until I woke up in jail the other morning."

PC Traynor said Heffernan lives at the Old People's Home and was "in no shape to go there."

Magistrate Baxter pointed out that the officer arrested Heffernan on August 3 and that he was charged with being drunk on August 2. Crown Counsel John Bradshaw moved the information be amended, but the magistrate dismissed the charge, saying accused was without benefit of counsel.

General Tells Truman To Stop Worrying

TOKYO, Aug 8 (AP) — W. Averell Hariman is flying to Washington with an optimistic report to President Truman on the Korean war.

The President's special assistant and adviser on foreign affairs carried this last-minute message from Gen. MacArthur.

"Tell the President not to worry. We are confident."

On a three-day visit Harriman conferred at length with MacArthur and visited the Korean war front. He also talked with President Syngman Rhee of South Korea and Lt.-Gen. Walton H Walker, United States Eighth Army commander in Korea.

Lumberjack Queen Weeps As Judges Give Decision

TWEED, Aug. 8 — (By Staff Reporter) — Keeping up a family tradition as yet only two years old, 15-year-old Adrienne Northey of Cloyne, was crowned Queen of the Lumberjacks Saturday at Tweed. Last year, her sister Marion was the queen. This year, it was dark, vivacious Adrienne who won the rose crown and who wept nervously when the judges told her she was queen for a day.

In previous years, the Lumbermen's Picnic has been held at Cloyne, about 45 miles north of Tweed, in Lennox and Addington counties. This year, to make it coincide with Tweed's Old Home Week celebrations, the picnic was moved south.

More than 3,000 people watched as the lumbermen chopped and sawed their ways through 14-inch-thick pine logs.

Crowds lined the track and filled the grandstand and only a few were attracted by games of chance in the fair grounds.

First on the program of the lumbermen's games was the cross-cut sawing—won by Ben Birchall and Bernard Inwood, both of Cloyne. Moving surely and swiftly, they cut through the 14-inch log in 8.6 seconds, two full seconds quicker than their nearest rivals, Elmer Pappie and Allen Buckwalt, of Cloyne.

Chopping Contest

Then came the chopping contest, and the oldest man taking part won that. He was 56-year-old Jack Kerr of Cloyne, a spare, grey-haired, agile man. His time was 35 seconds flat.

And into this northwoods atmosphere stepped Joe Laflamme from Montreal and his two brown bears. Joe, a genial, burly, grey-bearded man, coaxed the bears into standing on their hind legs for ice-cream bars and soft drinks.

The two bears, Louie and Skeesix, were peaceful enough when only one was getting the ice cream and pop, but when Joe first tried to feed ice cream to the smaller Skeesix, Louie swatted Joe's arm, but only scrateched him.

As penance, Louie was told to play "dead bear" until Joe finished the act.

Joe explained later that "Louie doesn't use de claws on me; he just keep 'em in."

Baby Contest

Future lumberjacks and jills took a bow in the baby contest, and the winner was 16-month-old Larry Genereaux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Genereaux, of Tweed.

And then there was the beauty contest. The Queen, of course, was Adrienne Northey, and runner-up for the crown of roses was red-haired Ronayne Armstrong, also 15, of Toronto, a summer visitor to the Tweed district. Third came Jean Flaubert, of Brockville.

Stricken With Polio

There was a story behind Adrienne Northey's entry into the beauty contest. Her sister, Marion, who was Queen of the Lumberjacks in 1949, was stricken with polio several weeks after she was crowned.

Adrienne decided she would try for the crown and that, said one of the lumberjacks, was the reason she cried when she was told she had won.

From another beauty contest, in Toronto, came blonde Ruby Mann, Miss Toronto for 1950, and Barbara McInnis, runner-up to Miss Mann. They acted as judges in both the baby and beauty contests.

Dummer Cottages Ask Road Tax

Cottage owners have petitioned Dummer Township Council that a special tax rate be levied on their group to maintain the roads leading into their cottages. This matter was considered at the regular Council meeting, and Councillors Olver and Hamblin moved that the clerk get the necessary information.

The 1949 collector's roll, showing a balance of $1,799.48, was received, and returned to the county.

Councillors Sloan and Gallaher moved that the road superintendent's salary be increased from 70 to 80 cents an hour. This was approved, subject to its being acceptable to the Department of Highways.

Road accounts totalling $523.95 were passed for payment, and general accounts amounting to $4,572.22.

Will Spend 6 Billion To Rearm France Asks More US-UK Troops

By ROBERT C. WILSON.

PARIS, Aug. 7 (AP).—France Monday asked that more British and American troops be sent to Europe and pledged to start a 2,000,000,000,000 franc ($6,280,000,000 Canadian) three-year rearmament program with U.S. aid.

The huge three-year program would be in addition to the 1950 military budget of 420,000,000,000 francs.

It includes the creation of 15 new French divisions, or about half the 30 western divisions which experts have estimated as the minimum necessary to meet any Communist aggression in Europe.

This would involve putting 250,000 more Frenchmen in uniform and bringing her armed forces to about 900,000 men.

Ask Unified Command

In announcing the plan, France also asked for a unified command of all western armies in Europe, central organs to plan and direct political and economic policy, and centralized management of the financial resources devoted to defense. The French said they would outline more detailed proposals along these lines later.

The French program was communicated to the United States just a week after President Truman asked Congress for $4,000,000,000 to help rearm the non-Communist world.

Under American pressure to increase their defense budgets in keeping with the accelerated $10,000,000,000 program of the United States, four Atlantic pact partners now have announced plans for the new expenditures in three years of sooner.

The pledges include (in U. S. funds):

Britain, $9,520,000,000 in three years.

France, $5,710,000,000 in three years.

Denmark, $57,100,000 in two years.

Norway, $35,125,000 in 2½ years.

Get U.S. Aid

All the plans call for American aid in arms, raw materials and money. The $4,000,000,000 asked by President Truman for such purposes is on top of $1,222,500,000 already authorized by Congress for this year. The president said $3,504,000,000 of the new amount would be for North Atlantic countries.

France did not say how much American help she expected to put the program into effect.

Herve Alphand, French delegate to the Atlantic Pact Council, declared France still was determined that Germany should not be rearmed to strengthen the West, nor the present ceiling on German steel production raised.

The French note made it clear that France does not regard a powerful United States army on the other side of the Atlantic sufficient protection.

Needed In Europe

Recalling the unhappy memories of 1940, when Nazi divisions ran over France in three weeks, the note said the large defense programs now being shaped would be useless if there were not stationed on the Continent of Europe sufficient land and acrial forces to assure the maintenance of peace.

"It is necessary," it added, "that the United States and Great Britain, notably, should participate in the defense with a sufficient number of divisions stationed in Continental Europe."

France now has five full-strength divisions of between 15,000 and 17,000 men, plus one borne division, both under mountain division and one airstrength, on duty in France, Germany and Austria. Two of these divisions are armored. She has two infantry divisions in North Africa, scattered battalions and regiments elsewhere and an army of about 150,000 Frenchmen, Foreign Legionnaires and Viet Namese in Indo-China.

Her armed forces now consist of 476,000 in the army, 66,000 in the air force, 53,000 in the navy, and about 60,000 in the gendarmerie—a total of 659,000.

Discover Quebec Has Largest Meteor Crater

TORONTO, Aug. 8 — (CP) — The Globe and Mail, in a world copyright story, said Monday that a meteoritic crater far greater than any yet known has been discovered in the far north of Quebec province, near Hudson Strait.

It was discovered, says the newspaper, by an expedition organized by the Royal Ontario Museum of Geology and Mineralogy, headed by Dr. V. Ben Meen, director of the museum.

Ken W. McTaggart, Globe and Mail staff writer, accompanied the aerial expedition, and in his account says that the crater is four to five times larger than one in Arizona, which is about 4,000 feet in diameter and which was the largest previously known.

Struck 5,000 Years Ago

Dr. Meen estimated that the meteorite struck Quebec's Ungava barrenlands 3,000 to 5,000 years ago and that it smashed into the earth with an explosive power sufficient to wipe out New York or London. MacTaggart's account adds:

"Today, to mark the fierce incident that smashed billions of tons of granite into fragments and hurled these fragments many miles, there stands a cone-shaped crater, rising to heights of 550 feet above the tundra-covered plains. In the cone lies a lake two miles wide with ice three feet thick on July 26.

The crater lies about 1,100 miles north of Montreal, 300 miles north of Fort Chimo and about 60 miles from Hudson Strait.

The expedition made the 3,440-mile round trip from Toronto in the newspaper's aircraft.

Two Men Being Held In Laundry Break-in

Two city men appeared in police court today, charged with breaking into Fanning's Laundry on Saturday night. Both were remanded in custody to August 10 by Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

They are Raymond Lee, 22, and Richard Bettley, 26, both of 229 King St.

Police say the two entered the building by a window at the rear. Nothing was taken.

Highland Fling Danced At Veterans' Picnic

A Highland fling and sword dance by Miss Elsie Hill of Ottawa highlighted the Veterans' picnic program Monday at Nicholls Oval. Miss Hill was accompanied by Pipe Major Robert Webdale.

Other entertainment included songs by Walter Farr, accompanied by Mrs. Mildred McBride, recitals by Mrs. Fern Brooks, accompanied by Mrs. Olive Searles and the Optimist Boys Town choir. The latter group was one of four boys' choirs in Ontario selected to appear at the CNE.

Council Awards Culvert Contract

MILLBROOK, Aug. 8.—(ENS).—Road Builders Ltd. tender for culverts was accepted Friday by Cavan Council, the $4,647 tender made by this company being the lowest. Two others were also received by the Council.

Mr. Ward reported on a visit to the 14th line with the reeve to see that work done on the road would not cause flooding and that a culvert would not improve it.

A complaint that the west end of the 13th road had been fenced in was received by the Council and the road superintendent is to be instructed to remove the obstruction.

Wire Fence Bonus

The clerk read a wire fence bonus bylaw, fixing the bonus at 65 cents a rod, subject to approval of the Department of Highways.

Councillor McKnight suggested some action be taken in view of the centennial of the formation of the first Council for the township, and the entire Council was formed into a committee to make arrangements.

The reeve and Councillor McKnight were appointed a committee to purchase an oil heater for the office.

A vote of thanks was proposed to Mrs. Bentley for the help she had given in renovating the office.

C. M. James Funeral

The funeral service for Clarence Melville James, 175 Bethune St., who died Wednesday, was held Friday at the Belleghem Funeral Home.

The service was conducted by Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church. Burial was in Little Lake Cemetery.

The pallbearers included his four sons, Roy, Ralph, Walter and Morley James, and Rolly Vass and Ross Nichols.

Bus Takes Ditch As Climax WI Outing

The regular meeting of the Lakefield Women's Institute was held at the farm home of Mrs. Wray Moore. The president, Mrs. Roy Bullock, opened the meeting with the Institute Ode and the Lord's Prayer. Members answered the roll call suggesting comforts for a sick room. Plans were made for a picnic to be held on Aug. 15 at the cottage of Mrs. Joe Moore, members to bring a pot luck dinner.

The institute was granted permission to have a booth at the Lakefield Fair, and a committee consisting of Mrs. Chatten, Mrs. Waldon, Mrs. A. Bullock and Mrs. Payton were appointed to arrange for the supplies. An interesting paper on "Health" was presented by Mrs. Chatten, and Mrs. S. White brought the members up to date on current events. Following this the members enjoyed a sing-song with Mrs. Payton at the piano.

Lunch was served by the committee, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. R. Charlton, Mrs. Bickle and Mrs. W. Moore.

The outing was brought to a surprise climax when the chartered bus in which the members were returning to Lakefield took to the ditch on the outskirts of the village. Fortunately no one was seriously injured and members completed their trip in private cars.

Ships Near Hong Kong Fired On By Red Guns

HONG KONG, Aug. 8 (AP) — Chinese Communist shore batteries early today fired five shells at the 4,951-ton Norwegian freighter Pleasantville. The ship was not hit.

It was the third shelling of ships near Hong Kong in three days. All three were fired upon about 15 miles south of the harbor.

The American freighter Steel Rover was fired on Sunday. A steel plate was dented. Red artillery scored two hits Monday on the British freighter Hangsang. Shell fragments wounded two British officers.

The British officers suffered superficial burns.

The Hong Kong marine department warned shipping firms to detour the Chinese Red-held islands near Hong Kong 'in the interests of safety."

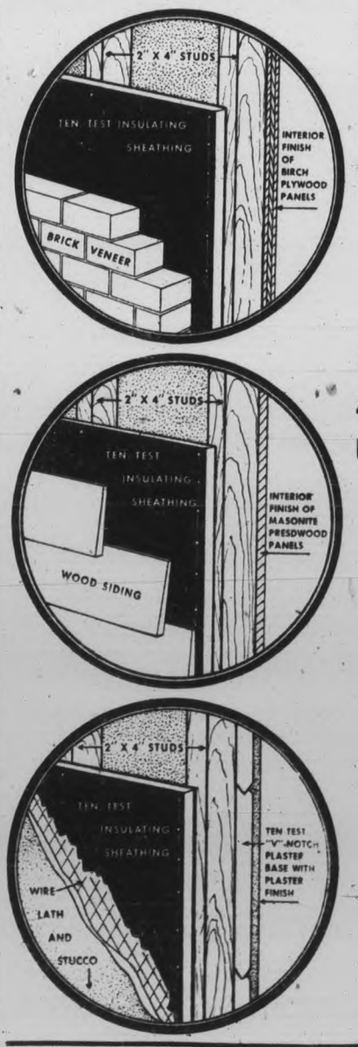
TEN-TEST INSULATING SHEATHING
THE "SENSIBLE" INSULATION FOR ANY EXTERIOR FINISH
BRICK • STUCCO • SIDING



It's good sense to use TEN/TEST Insulating Sheathing — the one product that does two jobs — insulates effectively and strengthens the walls in one application.

1. Save as much as 35% on application costs against ⅞" wood sheathing. Speedier installation lowers labor costs.
2. Save up to 20% on waste against ⅞" wood sheathing. Large panels—4' x 8' and 4' x 9'—are economical, easier to handle.
3. Save on fuel through strong, tight construction. 1" of TEN/TEST is equal to 3" of solid lumber in fuel-saving value.
4. Save time! All panels are white-ruled at 16" nailing centres, to go up fast.

Nose Influences Personality Doctor Reports

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE.

NEW YORK, Aug 8 (AP).—Nose itch?

It means maybe you re going to have company. Or you're going to get angry. Or that you will get a letter. Or that someone is thinking of you. It all depends upon local superstition.

Sneezes have their superstitions too. One is that three sneezes in succession is a sign you'll never get married.

Dr. Harold M. Holden, plastic surgeon of Los Angeles, tells of these and other things about noses in a new book, "Noses."

A person has one of two reactions to his nose, Dr. Holden says. Either he's satisfied with it aesthetically, or else it gives him some degree of neurosis.

The nose is one big cause of unhappiness and neurosis. If an over-sized, badly-shaped or disfigured nose is corrected by plastic surgery, the operation often brings amazing changes for the better in personality.

Plastic Surgery Old

Plastic surgery of a kind has been going on for thousands of years. It was a brisk business in India 3,000 years ago, he says, when it was done by Hindu potters and tilemakers. They took skin and fat from the buttocks to mold a new nose.

Man is still trying to classify people by the shape of their noses. Aristotle thought they indicated character. A bulbous ended nose denoted swinish character to him; sharp-tipped noses irascible people; large rounded obtuse noses magnanimous people.

On the service side, your nose is a good air conditioner. A person in ordinary activities breathes in about 500 cubic feet of air a day. The nose moistens, warms and cleans all of it.

Years For Morris To Recover From Floods

By JACK SCOTT

MORRIS, Man., — the Mayor of Morris and also the MLA for the district (Independent-Conservative), is a slight craggy-faced man named Harry Shewman, who is an insurance agent and auctioneer by profession and who has given as much as any man in the 1950 Red River floods.

A newspaperman of my acquaintance in Winnipeg who chronicled the drowning of Morris in early May told me: "The flood aged a lot of men, but none any more than Harry Shewman. He was a one-man crusade."

Mayor Shewman is one of the many in this beaten little town still living under wretched conditions. In some respects they are more wretched now than during the flood. There was a curious aspect of elation and purpose when the battle was joined. The real sobering time of trial came when the water receded.

The modest Shewman two-storey frame house is propped up on blocks. Planks serve as a flooring inside. They will until one of the district's over-worked carpenters is available. Says Mr. Shewman: "Most of us are just camping in the shells of our homes. We haven't doors or furniture or refrigerators. I'm afraid it's going to be a long time before we're back to normal."

Mayor Shewman, himself thinks it may be years before the town recovers fully from the disaster. In some business lines there is a temporary boom, but more than 83,000 acres of land in the municipality is unseeded. Without a harvest the economy of Morris simply breaks down.

Outside Help

Mayor Shewman, like his neighbors, speaks with bitterness about the "lack of leadership" from the provincial government.

"We stood alone down here when the flood began," he said angrily. "The premier and his cabinet stalled and gave out false assurances and did nothing at all until Winnipeg itself was threatened. We might forgive that — even the lack of planning for evacuation of people and cattle—but we can't forgive the way they've acted since the flood ended.

"We people in the Red River Valley were deeply touched that the rest of Canada should come so quickly and generously to our aid. We're ashamed that our leaders in Winnipeg didn't match them.

"Nothing at all is being done to relieve the distress of the farm people," he went on. "Not much more is being done for the small businesses. Here in Morris we're all living from day to day, hand to mouth, in the ruins you see about you and with no assurances from the government for our future."

The picture is not nearly so uncertain for those who do not farm or for those who do not operate shops or businesses.

The government's plan for repairing homes (to a maximum of $3,000) seems to be operating as efficiently as the number of appraisers and carpenters will allow. I have met nobody here who feels they will be better off than or even as well off as they were before the flood (not unusual in the case of the Fraser Valley flood victims), but most people seem to feel that the plan is adequate.

The spending of the more than $8,000,000 of the fund itself is widely acclaimed. This money is being used to replace furniture and personal effects. The word I heard use most frequently to describe this is "generous." Many of the people in Morris, learning that I write for papers across the country, asked me to pass on their thanks to those unknown friends who gave them a hand out of the muck.

The Losers

The small business man here is close to ruin.

At typical case is that of Cliff Mitchell, owner and operator of Mitchell's General Store, which means groceries and dry good.

While the water seeped into his store Mitchell and his wife piled as much of the stock as they could on the tops of the counters, then evacuated with the rest of the town.

When they returned they found that the rising water had tipped the counters. Everything was ruined, including their living quarters in the rear of the store.

"We lost $8,000 in stock and a thousand in fixtures," Mitchell says.

"I made a claim but they said they couldn't help me. Might, they said, if there was anything left over from the public fund.

"The wholesale companies are giving me credit. I guess I'm back in business. But God knows how long it'll take to get even again."

A few doors down the street from Mitchell's shop is the town's false-fronted movie house. The seats, mildewing and covered with silt, are stacked outside. They were a pre-flood investment. Morris does not expect its

Electric Device May Kill Off All Barnacles

LA JOLLA, Calif., Aug 8 (AP)—An electric shocking device which causes mussel and barnacles to commit suicide may someday save ship owners and seashore industries millions of dollars a year.

The inventor, Henry T. Burkey, a Los Angeles electrical engineer, believes that with a few adaptations his electronic apparatus will be sure death to the fouling organisms which cling to ship's bottoms and clog undersea pipes.

He has already successfully tested it at the Scripps Institute of Ocenography here.

The apparatus is essentially a series of vacuum tubes which generate timed electrical pulses in water. The pulse, too weak to electrocute the sea creatures, force them to suicide.

Can't Escape

In the case of the bivalve mussels, the current causes their shells to snap shut. Continuing pulses cause a muscular reaction which keeps them shut. Death occurs when the mussel either starves or, unable to eliminate wastes, succumbs to auto-intoxication.

In the Scripps tests all of a group of 100 mussels exposed to the pulses died within two weeks. Seventy died within one week.

The single-shelled barnacles, says Burkey, are equally vulnerable. They eat by fishing about in the water with tiny feelers. Preliminary tests indicate that the pulses paralyze these feelers.

Untold millions of dollars are spent annually to scrape barnacles from the hulls of vessels ranging in size from battleships to rowboats. Burkey says his apparatus can be rigged so it will both kill barnacles already present and prevent further accumulations.

Don't Move Boys

LONDON (CP).—Truck driver Edward Kelly drove his truck-trailer combination into a city fire station when he saw smoke coming from under the seat.

Saturday night movie this winter.

A business man who has had help is Leroy Anderson, whose restaurant, Andy's Snack Bar, was a complete casualty. Now Anderson operates a small kiosk with an open counter facing on the town's main drag, selling hot dogs and soft drinks.

"I guess they were as fair as they could be," Andy said vaguely when I talked to him. "Gave me $1,900 for my stock and equipment and other $1,340 for the building. But, of course you can't open a restaurant with that kind of money.

"I was born here, want to stay. I dunno. Maybe I could go into some other kind of business."

(A final report tomorrow on the farmer's plight.)

OPENS SEASON — Stevedores at Churchill, Man., are shown unloading part of the cargo of the British freighter Tricape, first overseas ship to enter the Hudson Bay port this season. Docking a week earlier than any ship in previous years, the Tricape encountered some trouble with ice. Insert is the ship's master, Capt. G. Norman Stark, a Canadian who sails under the British flag. The ship brought a cargo of automobiles and cement and will return with a load of wheat.

Ask Germany Join West For Defence

Conservative Urges Germans Admitted As Equals In Pact

STRASBOURG, France, Aug 9—(AP)—Robert Boothby of Britain called today for Germany's participation in western defence on equal terms with other countries.

In the first major statement in the European Consultative Assembly from a member of the British Conservative party, Boothby claimed that western Europe's defences are "for all practical purposes still non-existent," and urged immediate action to meet the threat of totalitarian Communism.

Reliable sources here previously predicted that Winston Churchill, Conservative party leader, would propose the Germans be armed to help in Western Europe's defence when he speaks to the Assembly tomorrow.

Churchill's followers said his speech would be of world importance.

"Either Germany is in our western European union on equal terms, or she remains out and occupied,' said Boothby. "We have to make our choice and we have to make it now."

Boothby said that unless Germany is brought within this defence framework, the western countries are not defensible.

"If Germany comes in, then she will have to make her full contribution to our joint defence on the same terms as everyone else," said Boothby.

He did not elaborate whether he meant a German army, or only German contingents in a European force.

Germans Have Choice

Boothby said that Germany, too has a choice to make, and he added:

"My most fervent hope is that she will choose to come with us."

In this event, he said, "she will be entitled to point out that she is closest to the potential aggressor, and to ask for assurances that we are all in it together from the start, if there should be a start.

"We shall be equally entitled to reply that, with modern weapons, 100 miles one way or the other makes little difference, that it is better to fight for freedom than to submit to slavery, and that, if she is attacked, we will fight by her side."

Jet Fighter Goes 325 Miles In 30 Minutes

MONTREAL, Aug. 9 (CP). — The CF-100 "Canuck" zoomed at an average speed of 638 miles an hour Tuesday night to establish what is believed to be a Toronto-Montreal speed record, completing the 325-air-mile jaunt in 30 minutes and 10 seconds.

An experimental jet fighter, the "Canuck" was flown here to take part in trials today before Defence Minister Claxton and senior RCAF officials at suburban Dorval airport.

The CF-100, a long-range reconnaisance and night jet fighter was sighted over Dorval airport at 7.34:10, exactly 30 minutes and 10 seconds after it took off from Toronto's Malton Airport.

RCAF officials here said it was undoubtedly a record but could not immediately find previous marks with which to compare times.

(An RCAF spokesman in Ottawa said the speed of the fighter was "no surprise." But he could not supply any immediate comparisons.)

Bill Waterton, a former RCAF squadron leader, piloted the aircraft. The Edmonton airman has been test pilot since the CF-100 was built by the A. V. Roe Company of Toronto and will fly the plane in the demonstrations.

The show was called to test the first Canadian-built F-86 (Sabre) jet fighters which holds the official world speed record of 670 miles an hour. The RCAF plans to adopt this day fighter as a first-line plane and Canadair, Ltd., here already have begun production of 100 of the planes.

Facing Historic Decisions As Cabinet Meets Today

OTTAWA, Aug. 9 -(CP)—Cabinet meets today for one of a series of meetings that will map out a defence preparedness program without parallel in Canadian history. Its first objective is the program to be placed before the special session of parliament to be called within six or seven weeks. But the full effect probably won't be felt until next year when its financial reflection could be the first $1,000,000,000 - a - year defence budget peace-time Canada has known.

Design and scope of the program will be governed, it is indicated authoritatively, by two major factors—the international situation and the government's gauge of Canadian public opinion.

Cabinet's meeting today is expected to be followed by regular gatherings at least once or twice a week from now until parliament is recalled. Defence preparations will be their dominant issue.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, his summer holiday already interrupted five times by trips to Ottawa, is planning to leave for his summer home at St. Patrice, Que. for brief, sporadic visits in the weeks ahead.

Bc On Hand

He will be on hand here for most or all of the cabinet meetings that are expected to jell a program that eventually will include higher taxes, certain controls, Canadian arms aid for Europe, a role as part of North American production team and possible declaration of a state of emergency that would give the government sweeping powers.

Canada's defence budget for this fiscal year, ending next March 31, so far is $425,000,000. That will be sharply increased but informed opinion is that the increase won't be as high as $250,000,000 because recruiting and war production can't be speeded that fast.

U.S. Freighter Strikes Mine

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 9 —(AP—The 8,250-ton freighter American Planter struck a mine in the North Sea today, German shipping authorities said, and is being towed to Bremerhaven.

There were no reports of any casualties. The ship normally carries a crew of about 50.

A spokesman for the vessel's owners, the United States lines, refused to confirm that the ship hit a mine. The company said cause of the accident would be investigated when the American Planter reached port.

The U.S. Lines said that, although there are accommodations for passengers, none were aboard.

The vessel was en route from Hamburg to Dunkerque, France. It left New York July 26.

A spokesman said the accident occurred near the Island of Heligoland.

GI Soldiers Hurl Back Enemy Units

Enemy Puts Pressure On Northern Front Despite Setbacks

TOKYO, Aug. 10—(Thursday)—(CP)—North Koreans today retreated before United States onslaughts on the southern and western fronts and airmen said the enemy was preparing to flee the southern base at Chinju.

U.S. patrols were only seven miles east of that bomb-wrecked city 55 miles west of the main supply port of Pusan. Chinju is the apparent objective of a U.S. counter-offensive on the south coast.

Gen. MacArthur's war summary said American forces farther south had run into heavy opposition in their attempt to trap North Korean troops by linking up with the main body east of Chinju.

This pincers southeast of Chinju last was reported within seven miles of closing.

Gains averaging about three miles were reported along the southern front.

Battalion Eliminated

The summary, covering fighting of the last 24 hours, said two enemy battalions—possibly 1,600 men—supported by tanks were "eliminated" from one bridgehead on the Naktong river.

But the enemy still was trying to breach the river line, which protects Taegu, front-line city and refugee South Korean capital 55 miles northwest of Pusan.

The enemy was putting the pressure along the northern front —the roof of the shrunken allied position in Southeast Korea.

South Koreans were forced to make a two-mile withdrawal at unspecified points on the northern sector, the headquarters summary reported.

The North also were building up their forces in the Yongdok sector, on the east coast end of the front.

Threats Eased

Serious threats to the important Taegu area on the central front were eased by the allied successes in the central sector. A communique issued by the U.S. Eighth Army reported: "Aggressive-minded United Nations troops carried out successful action in every engagement with the enemy along the entire 140-mile front."

The communique said the Communists in the southern sector apparently were withdrawing toward Chinju. U.S. patrols were within seven miles of the burned-out city.

LEADS UN BRIGADE—Brig. John M. Rockingham, CBE, DSO, of Victoria, B.C., has been appointed to command the Canadian Army Special Force. During the Second World War, he commanded the Canadian Highland Brigade in Normandy, of which the Glengarrians were a part.

Rockingham To Command New Brigade

OTTAWA, Aug. 9 (CP)—Brig. John M. Rockingham, CBE, DSO, 38, of Victoria, has been appointed to command Canada's special brigade for United Nations service and is expected in Ottawa tomorrow for conferences, Defence Minister Claxton announced today.

Brig. Rockingham is a native of Australia and won his present rank in the Second World War when he was given comand of the 9th infantry brigade—the famous Canadian Highland Brigade — during the Normandy campaign.

After the war he returned to civil life in Victoria as an official of the British Columbia Electric Railway Company but carried on his military career as a member of the reserve army. Since 1948 he has been officer commanding the 15th (Reserve) Infantry Brigade at Vancouver.

Brig. Rockingham is expected to reach Ottawa by air tomorrow. He will confer with Lt.-Gen Charles Foulkes, chief of the general staff, and other senior officers at defence headquarters

Recruiting Today

Recruiting begins officially today for the 5,000-man Canadian army special force he will command.

Brig. Rockington was educated in Melbourne and went to British Columbia as a youth. In 1935 he joined the Canadian Scottish Regiment in Victoria and was mobilized with that unit when war broke out in September, 1939.

The year 1942 found him overseas with the rank of Major and he was transferred to the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry. Less than a year later he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and given command of that unit.

In 1944 he attended the staff college at Camberley, England and then went to Normandy to resume command of his battalion which by then had gone into action.

Giving Canada Big Orders For Guns, Planes U.S. Officials Announce

Dominion Likely To Accept US Pattern For Troop Equipment As Means of Getting Latest At Low Cost

OTTAWA, Aug. 9—(CP)—Canada and the United States are planning heavy programs in the construction of naval guns for employment on escort vessels and the decision already has been reached to place these orders in Sorel, Que., munitions plants. This was gleaned from authoritative sources after Hubert E. Howard, Chairman of the United States munitions board, disclosed to The Canadian Press Tuesday night that the U.S. has decided, among other things, to place "huge" orders for 3.5-inch guns in Canada.

Mr. Howard, here for the Canada-United States industrial mobilization committee meeting, said the U.S. also was considering the purchase in Canada of heavy supplies of aircraft and aircraft parts, some clothing, vehicles and ships.

A Canadian source later amplified Mr. Howard's disclosure. He said the biggest part of the guns order would go to the U.S., but that Canada would obtain a small share for her own navy.

Accept U.S. Pattern

As the plan unfolded, it appeared that Canada would embark on a program of accepting American pattern equipment for her troops as a means of getting modern equipment at low cost.

Mr. Howard also stated that in the long-range planning, the U.S. is considering the placement in Canada of heavy orders for raw materials and manufactured goods. This decision resulted from the U.S. determination to step up its defence planning.

Contracts for the guns, he added, would be arranged under the current Canada-U.S. arms reciprocity arrangement, completed after the authorities found a loophole in the restrictive Buy American Act of 1934. The arrangement calls for the purchase by each country of about $25,000,000 worth of equipment. This arrangement would be stepped up under principles reached at the mobilization meeting.

Recommendations

Recommendations reached at the day-long meeting, it was disclosed, included these:

Loses Suitcase With A-Secrets On British Train

LONDON, Aug. 9 — (AP)— Scotland Yard hunted today a large brown suitcase containing atomic secrets reported stolen from an American scientist aboard a train Tuesday.

Scotland Yard had no comment, other than to say it was looking for the suitcase. The British press said the suitcase contained a brief case filled with atomic information.

The owner of the case was variously reported to be an American named Frank Greenleaf, F. W. Greentrees and Frank Miller Greenless.

"We've never heard of him," said a spokesman at the United States embassy.

"We're trying to find out what it's all about ourselves."

Atom Worker

Later, the Press Association, which identified the scientist as Greenless, said he worked for the supply ministry's atomic energy research establishment at Risley.

The suitcase was taken from a first class compartment on the London-ao-Blackpool train. The owner stepped out of the compartment for a few minutes. When he returned, it was gone.

At first he said the suitcase contained only clothing. Later, he remembered it also contained the brief case of atomic information.

At the Ministry of Supply a spokesman declined all information, saying:

"If somebody lost some atomic information of yours, you certainly wouldn't say anything that might help some one else find it, would you?"

Plain Granite On King Grave

OTTAWA, Aug. 9—(CP)—The gravestone of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will be a plain slab of rough-hewn Canadian granite.

The former prime minister does not even want the name of his high office written into his epitaph, he indicated in his will made public Tuesday night.

For his grave in the family plot of Toronto's Mount Pleasant cemetery, Mr. King gave these brief directions:

"I wish my grave to be covered with a piece of rough Canadian granite, on which will be carved my name and the day and year of my birth and of my death."

That's $64 Question

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 9 —(CP)—Was it a whale or a submarine? That's the $64 question in Newfoundland. A fisherman reported Tuesday night he saw an unidentified undersea raider just outside the harbor here Monday night. The Navy says it probably was a whale. There have been numerous reports of a sub —probably Russian—during the last month but many remained unconfirmed.

Seven Countries Meet

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Seven Commonwealth countries meet here next month to map out a six-year economic development program to stave off Communism. The conference will be a continuation of talks which have been taking place in Sydney, Australia, and in Colombo, Ceylon, aimed at laying down a general aid-Asia program. Taking part will be Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Indian, Pakistan, Ceylon and Malaya.

King, Queen Return To Be Near Elizabeth

LONDON, Aug. 9—(Reuters)—The King and Queen and Princess Margaret have returned from the country to Buckingham Palace to await the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby, expected within the next few days.

Buckingham Palace is just across the road from the 24-year-old Princess' residence, Clarence House. The King and Queen visited the Princess Tuesday night.

Sir William Gilliatt, the Royal Family gynaecologist, and Sir John Weir, the family physician, are likely to move into Clarence House today or tomorrow. They have been making daily calls.

Charge Bus Driver In Norwood Deaths

TORONTO, Aug. 9—(CP)—Patrick Patterson, 35, driver of a bus involved in a highway accident last July 7 in which six persons were killed, was remanded Tuesday to Aug. 29 on charges of manslaughter, careless driving and dangerous driving. Bail was set at $1,000.

Five of the six killed were members of one family in Norwood. They included: Marjory Davis, Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClay and their son James, 9. Mrs. McClay, Marjory and Robert were sisters and brother.

He was arrested as he left a hospital where he received treatment for severe internal injuries suffered in the accident at Churchill, 40 miles north of Toronto.

Patterson was the driver of a Gray Coach Lines bus which collided with an automobile.

Reds Making Berlin Threats

BERLIN, Aug. 9—(AP)—A new Communist anti-American press campaign raised fears today that the Russians may be getting ready to try again to force the Allies from Berlin.

They failed with their blockade of the city last year.

The new propaganda drive centres around charges that a United States plane, with the identification number "S-45", dropped fire bombs over a town near the Elbe July 27.

(In Washington an Army official said American planes do not bear "S" identifications and he had not heard of the alleged incident.)

The drive is fashioned on the same lines as the potato-bug campaign three months ago in which Allied planes were accused of dropping Colorado beetles on East German potato fields.

Russia's official newspaper in Germany, the Taegliche Rundschau, published an interview with an East Berlin Communist worker today. It quoted him as saying "The Soviet government should be asked to close the air space over the (East) German Democratic republic to American planes. It can not be allowed that some day our whole crop goes up in flames."

Western observers regarded the Taegliche Rundschau's article as a calculated threat by the Russians.

Human Chain Pulls Three To Safety

CHATHAM, Aug. 9—(CP)—Mrs. Neil Ryckman, her daughters Frances, 7, and Rosie, 9, owe their lives to a human chain that was formed to pull them to safety from 20 feet of water at the end of the Erieau pier.

William Land, Chatham, said that the tots had fallen from the end of the pier and that their mother had gone to their rescue. Attracted by their screams, Land jumped into the lake fully clothed and held the mother and children above water until a human chain could be formed to bring them back to the pier.

Crippled Plane Lands Safely

HALIFAX, Aug. 9 (CP) — A United States military air transport C-54 landed safely with two of its four engines "dead" at the nearby Dartmouth naval airport today.

The big airship reported itself in difficulties first from 70 miles at sea and an RCAF Lancaster took off to escort her to the airport. Unconfirmed reports said she was carrying 12 passengers as well as her crew of nine.

There was no immediate explanation as to what caused the engine failures. The transport was en route from Lagens, in the Azores to Westover Field, Mass.

Search and rescue officials here said she made a "beautiful" touchdown with two props stopped after being "mothered along" by the Lancaster.

France Would Feel Secure If 12 More Allied Divisions

PARIS, Aug. 9 (AP)—A high French official said today six American and six British divisions stationed in Germany would keep a Russian attack away from Western Europe for at least a year, and perhaps permanently.

In that year, he said, Europe could go a long way toward establishing its own adequate defence forces—providing all-out American aid was given.

The official, who asked that his name be withheld, said the actual presence of more American troops would remove one great European fear—the belief that a Russian attack would result in quick occupation of all of Europe before the United States came to the rescue.

The presence of American soldiers, he continued, would convince the Russians even more than US action in Korea that aggression in Europe would mean immediate war with the U.S.

But the French remember that American aid came in the First World War only after France was nearly beaten, and in the Second War only after the country had been thoroughly beaten and long occupied.

What France wants this time is cash in advance—in the form of American troops already on the spot. Evidently this was emphasized at the recent meeting of Atlantic Pact deputies in London.

In return for this commitment of American troops to European soil, France evidently would accept an American commander over all forces in Germany. These probably would include many of the 15 new divisions France has agreed to form. If an attack comes, France wants the initial major blow to come between the Elbe and the Rhine, not between the Rhine and the Seine.

Car Careens In Gully 4 Youths Injured

HAMILTON, Aug. 9 (CP) — Four Hamilton youths were seriously injured early today when the old model automobile careened off the Mount Albion road, plowed 60 feet along a gully smashed into a tree and burned.

The injured: Keith McLean, 19, compound fracture of the left leg and facial injuries; Stanley Le Blanc, 19, internal injuries, lacerations to the face and other undetermined injuries; James Langton, 19, fractured left leg, injuries to the head and mouth; Fred Johnson, 16, broken jaw, chest injuries and lacerations to the face.

All four are in "only fair" condition, hospital authorities reported.

2 Million Dutch Settlers Plan For Western Canada

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 9 (AP)—Plans for immigration of 2,000,000 members of Netherlands farm families to Western Canada were disclosed today.

Richard Machiele, Kent county farm agent, studied the project for the Reformed Church in America.

Machiele's report will recommend settlement of Dutch farmers on rich land around Calgary and Edmonton, and in the Peace River country of Alberta and British Columbia. These areas cover many hundreds of square miles.

Since the Second World War, some 28,000 families from the Netherlands have settled in Canada, mostly in Ontario. The Reformed Church and four other leading religious denominations in the Netherlands are fostering immigration to Canada at the rate of 10,000 families a year.

Machiele travelled 11,000 miles on his Canadian tour. He was accompanied by the Rev. Gerrit Vander Wolde, a resettlement official of the Reformed Church stationed at Cochrane, Alta.

Noronic Hostess Files $30,866 Damage Suit

MONTREAL, Aug. 9 (CP) — A $30,866 damage action arising from the S.S. Noronic fire disaster at Toronto last year was taken in Superior Court here today by a former employee of the Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd.

Miss Florence Wilcox, employed as a hostess aboard the vessel when it burned at its moorings in Toronto harbor last September causing death to 119 passengers, is believed to be the first Canadian to take action against the company. Most passengers were American citizens and claims estimated at $15,000,000 have been brought against the company at Cleveland.

Map Strategy To Break Red UN Veto

Soviet Delegate Stalls Any Move To Make Progress

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 9 — (AP)—Members of the United Nations Security Council mapped strategy today to break Russian president Jacob Malik's one-man stranglehold and filibuster which has stopped the council in its tracks.

The Russians were not invited to informal conferences which occupied most other delegations. The Council recessed Tuesday until Thursday afternoon after getting nowhere.

Taking the floor when he wished as Soviet delegate, Malik threw a resolution into the Council seeking to condemn the United States Air Force for bombings in North Korea. He charged the U.S. is the aggressor in Korea, dictating the role the U.N. is playing.

Warren R. Austin, U.S. delegation chief, retorted:

Who hasn't co-operated with 53 other UN members in the Korean action? Who could call off the North Korea invaders? What member of this Security Council is assisting the invaders in the Security Council?

In each case, he answered himself: "The Soviet Union".

But Malik refused to allow Austin's resolution of July 31, denouncing the North Koreans and demanding that aid for them be outlawed, to come up for discussion. He refused to seat the South Korean representative unless the council agreed to hear a North Korean.

Malik wanted the council to meet today and talk about the bombing of North Korea but was voted down 9 to 1, with one abstention—Yugoslavia.

Courses Open

After the meeting, Ernest Gross, a U.S. delegate, said a number of courses are possible to meet Malik's obstruction.

The most extreme, he said, would be to change the rules of the council of electing a president and make them effective immediately—virtually throwing Malik out of the chair.

Another extreme move—he stressed these are possible but not probable—would be to have no more meetings this month.

Another would be to transfer the problems to a specially-called session of the General Assembly where Russia doesn't have a veto. Secretary-General Trygve Lie said Monday such a session could convene in 24 hours if conditions warranted it.

NEW ZEALAND ENVOY — T. C. A. Hislop, recently-appointed High Commissioner to Canada from New Zealand, will arrive in Ottawa to take over his new duties this month. Scheduled to dock at Vancouver Aug. 25, he succeeds Hon. James Thorn.

A short time later he was made a brigadier and appointed to the 9th Brigade, leading it through bitter actions around Caen, the Falaise pocket, Boulonge and the Breskens Peninsula.

Units of his brigade were among the first Canadian troops to cross the Rhine into Germany

Brig. Rockingham won the Distinguished Service Order while leading the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry in Normandy and a bar to that decoration in the Rhine crossing.

After the war he was made a Commander of the British Empire for his outstanding war service.

Civil Servants In Army Will Keep Seniority

TORONTO Aug. 9 — (CP) — Ontario civil servants were assured by the cabinet today that any government employee enlisting in the Special Service Force will regain their job on return to civilian life without loss of seniority.

During the absence of any employee the government will assume the cost of his superannuation payments.

"Any replacements of staff in their absence will be on a strictly temporary basis," said Premier Frost.

Railway Chiefs To Meet Unions

MONTREAL, Aug. 9 (CP). — The wage-hour dispute between 125,000 strike-assenting union members and Canada's two major railways took a new turn Tuesday with announcement that discussions will open Thursday at the railroads' presidential level.

This unprecedented action was made known in a joint announcement by Donald [illegible], president of Canadian National Railways, and W. A. Mather, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

It said leaders and committee members of the 15th international and two Canadian union groups had been invited to meet at 10 a.m. Thursday with the presidents of the two major railways.

The announcement followed earlier meetings between railway and union officials at which, said railway executives, it became apparent discussions had reached a deadlock.

Bayonets played a big part in the southern drive. One American unit was said to have killed 40 North Koreans in a fierce, hand-to-hand engagement.

Field dispatches from the central front told how U.S. troops chased a North Korean battalion in the hills two miles south of Waegwan, 15 miles northwest of Taegu, the South Korean republic's emergency capital.

The Communists had forded the Naktong river in the night and taken up positions on a 1,200-foot ridge commanding the road to Taegu.

Killed By Comrades

North of Waegwan, South Korean troops drove the invaders back to the Naktong river. One hundred fleeing Communists were mowed down by their own comrades when they tried to get back across the river from the allied east bank.

Some of the Reds who had crossed the river six miles south of Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu, were driven out of the high ground they had seized by American troops

Late frontline dispatches from the Changnyong bridgehead said the bulge there had been reduced by U.S. troops who drove the Communists out of high ground. These dispatches said the Reds were being herded in exposed positions on a slope near the river.

The Allied central front is manned by the U.S. 24th Division, reinforced by newly-arrived Second Division elements from the United States, the U.S. 1st Cavalry and South Korean troops.

The foremost Red threat reached to 12 miles from Taegu, main supply terminal on the road-rail corridor leading northwest out of Pusan port, the big U.S. base.

Laborious Advance

In the extreme south, where the first U.S. offensive effort bogged down two days ago, tankled Marines got to rolling again—but laboriously. They drove past North Korean dead for gains measured in yards, pushing toward burned-out Chinju, 12 miles ahead.

A dispatch telephoned by Associated Press correspondent Don Whitehead from the southern warfront at 8:55 p.m., Wednesday (5.55 a.m. EDT) reported the American drive forced the North Koreans to begin retreating toward Chinju.

His single-sentence report was not amplified immediately.

On the central front outside Taegu, two American units attacked the Reds at their river bridgeheads.

The American 24th division, reinforced by fresh elements of the 2nd division, stalled before Communist troops holding high points six miles southwest of Changnyong. The town is 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

Twenty miles northward a 1st cavalry battalion drove against another Red force that crossed the Naktong near Kaepon.

South Korean forces reported Wednesday night they had just about cleaned out a Red Korean bridgehead across the Naktong five miles north of Weagwan, 15 miles from Taegu.

Strafe Enemy

The South Koreans said they drove the Communists back across the river in a counter-attack. About 100 North Koreans were strafed while scrambling for the Naktong's west bank.

American planes and artillery knocked out all tanks which the Communists had put across the river, the report said.

In the far north of the Allied defence base, the Communists made fresh gains with sharpened thrusts against South Korean forces.

A tank-led attack drove the 6th South Korean Division back several miles at a point west of Uisong and south-east of Hamchang, 45 miles north-east of Taegu.

A briefing officer at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said other Red assaults without armor made lesser gains through the South Korean 8th and Capitol divisions on the defence line eastward.

The spokesman said the defenders still were north of Uisong, a town the North Korean radio has claimed captured by the Reds. The battle in this area was considerably south of the Naktong's shallow upper reaches, which the South Koreans gave up last week.

Changes Hands Twice

To the west the 1st South Korean Division still was fighting to hold positions near the river. One unit met a Red attack five miles north of Waegwan, which is 15 miles northwest of Taegu. The battleground changed hands twice in two days.

Fourteen miles north of this battle, the South Korean 1st Division thrust two miles into Red territory in a counter-attack Tuesday at Sinchon, about 13 miles south east of Sangju.

Briefing officers at MacArthur's headquarters said the American ground offensive in the south had wrecked Communist plans to start a widespread climactic offensive of their own.

The Reds' elite divisions had been poised to strike simultaneously at Taegu on the central front and at Pusan across the south coast in an effort to drive the Americans off the Korean peninsula.

Caught Off Guard

Instead, one of these—the North Korean 6th—is meeting the American thrust head-on. The Sixth is backed by the 1st Division which led the drive southward from Seoul six weeks ago.

Maj.-Gen. William B. Kean, disturbed by failure of his extreme southern arm to keep up with his northern flank advancing on Chinju, ordered a night attack—the first on the southern front. The marines and 5th Regimental Combat Team broke out of the bottleneck during the night attack and caught the Communists off guard.

The southern arm of the American drive started a pincer swing that may trap thousands of North Korean troops. Whitehead reported the marines surged through a gap on the flanks of the U.S. 5th Infantry and both units pushed along the road towards Chinju from positions just west of Chindong.

Trying To Keep Even

Their aim was to join the 35th regimental combat team in plowing along the main highway to Chinju. The 35th gained 1,000 yards and killed 400 enemy troops in 24 hours. But its drive has been slowed to avoid outcharging the southern units, delayed while fighting their way through the Chindong bottleneck.

The American thrust was described officially as a "limited offensive, not the start of an overall offensive."

Correspondent Whitehead reported from the front that a link between the 35th regiment—pushing along the northern part of the offensive—and the Marines from the south would cut off the Red forces northwest of Masan, port city 27 miles west of Pusan.

Piecemeal Reinforcements

He said indications were the enemy had "rushed reinforcements from the north" and is throwing them piecemeal into the Chinju area in a desperate effort to prevent this American junction at Pansang, about eight miles east of Chinju.

AP correspondent Tom Lambert reported the 5th regiment was about four miles along this road from a juncture. The road once was dominated by Red artillery at a point west of Chindong, where another road leads southward along the Bay of Kosong, the goal of some Marine units.

Red troops assembled in this area had been poised for the thrust at Pusan.

Bridgeheads thrown across the Naktong farther north were to be the main thrust bases against Taegu as part of the master Red plan now thrown partially, if not completely, off balance.

Intelligence officers here said they regarded the Reds' Naktong crossing south of Changnyong as a "major thrust." It is backed by the North Korean 4th division, a well-trained outfit.

Drunk Driving Convention Topic

SASKATOON.— (CP)—Drunken driving will be a major topic at the September convention here of the Chief Constable Association of Canada.

Some 175 police chiefs attending the meeting will see a "drunkometer" demonstrated. This device establishes, by breath blown into a balloon, or by chemical analysis of blood and other body liquids, the percentage of alcohol in the blood.

The police officials may discuss whether these tests, now voluntary, should be made compulsory.

Compulsory tests would put drivers in the position of knowing that after absorbing a certain amount of liquor they would be liable to a law-violation charge.

Industrials Leading Steady Stocks Advance

TORONTO, Aug. 9—(CP)—Industrials paced a steady advance for the ninth straight session on the Toronto stock exchange today. Industrials, after slackening off in forenoon trading, spurted ahead in continuation of Tuesday's broad upturn. Volume was about 600,000 shares.

Utilities, papers, steel, refining oils and liquors all moved ahead in industrials. A few stock reached new highs.

Base metals also showed stronger tendencies. Consolidated Smelters and Base Metals were at new highs. Cobalt Lode and East Sullivan advanced strongly.

Western oils attracted considerable buying. Atlantic Oil, Calmont and Federal Pete were all ahead.

Mining issues, after encountering selling pressure in the previous session, regained losses for the most part. Several junior golds including Barymin, Chemical Research and Canadian Malartic advanced.

DONATIONS APPRECIATED

City council received letters of appreciation last night from the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund for the contribution of $6,621 from the Mayor's Fund, and from the council of Rimouski for the grant of $543.

EAST MEETS WEST — Youngest Scot at the Highland games at Maxville, Ont., in the Ottawa Valley, was 15-month-old Lynda Barrett of Vancouver shown making friends with drummer George Graham of Hamilton, Ont., during an intermission in proceedings.

NATIONAL SECRETARY — W. H. Kidd, 35-year-old Vancouver lawyer, has been appointed national secretary of the Progressive Conservative Party in the first of a series of moves by that party to strengthen its organization. Mr. Kidd will work from party headquarters in Ottawa where only a skeleton staff has operated since the 1949 general election.

Boatmen's Holiday

KOTTYAM, India — (CP) — Nearly 100,000 persons witnessed the recent boat festival here in the paddy-land of North Travancore, where nearly every home stands on an island. Many races were featured, with boats of all sizes, from 101-oar "chundans" or snake boats, to tiny one-man row-boats.

6,000 William Smiths

LONDON — (CP) — A card index containing 18,000 000 names has been compiled by Britain's general post office, to keep track of holders of national savings certificates. Included are 6,000 William Smiths, 5,500 John Smiths; 3,500 William Jones and 3,500 John Jones.

Says Veterans Can Speed Brigade Training

OTTAWA, Aug. 9—(CP)—The chief of the general staff said Tuesday night Canada's special army brigade for United Nations service could reach the stage of training as a formation "in relatively few months" providing it can recruit enough veterans and reservists. Recruiting starts today.

The chief, Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes went on the air over a CBC network with Defence Minister Claxton to issue a special call to veterans and others with military training to enlist in the new force so it can quickly take the field.

Statements by the defence leaders in their broadcast Tuesday night made these points:

1. To prepare the new brigade rapidly for action its three infantry battalions will be given "on the job training" with the existing regular units of the active force. That is men who enlist, say, in the new, second battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment will go to the existing first battalion of that regiment at once to live and train with its regulars, "absorbing the customs and characteristics of the parent unit."

2. Artillerymen will join the 2nd Field Regiment and go to the parent unit at Shilo, Man. Other units—engineers, medicals, army service corps—will go to schools organized for those corps.

Special Instructions

Gen. Foulkes gave these instructions to volunteers:

"If you are a former private soldier bring your paybook and your certificate of discharge to the nearest recruiting centre.

"Warrant officers and non-commissioned officers should apply at their nearest recruiting centres with their discharge certificates.

"Officers apply direct to army headquarters sending their certificates of service. But officers who served in the field with units of the type now being raised, that is to say infantry, artillery, service corps, electrical and mechanical engineers and medical units, if they meet all other qualifications, may be taken on by the GOC.

"Given enough veterans and men from the reserve forces, we can advance to formation training in relatively few months."

School Teachers Study Art Of Conservation

DORSET, Aug. 9—To further the provincial campaign to educate students in the principles of conservation, sevral score school inspectors, normal school, public and secondary school teachers and principals are, themselves, going to school near Dorset.

They are being given a two weeks' short course in conservation promotion. Their tutors are forestry, agricultural, biological and forest industry experts from several provincial departments and a score of industries. The course is being held in the Forest Rangers' Training School near the edge of Algonquin Park.

The pedagogues will be given a good deal of practical work, and will wear out not a little shoe leather around Dorset and within the limits of the park. The course is designed to help them teach both students and other teachers about conservation, and its application to the things of everyday life. Kenneth F. Prueter, Huntsville, is course principal.

Much of the teaching-the-teachers will be done with film and other visual aids to education. There will, of course, be panel discussions and lectures. One of the newer features of the course will be the importance of conservation in hydro power development.

These were won by Mrs. Gerald MacMillan, Miss Barbara MacMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kidd, Mr. and Mrs. Marven Wilson, Mr. Orland E. Kidd, Mrs. Kenneth Buott and Miss Leatha L. Kidd. This reward will be continued next year for anyone completing ten years' attendance.

Letters were received from Mr and Mrs. Lawrence Kidd of Jerry City, Ohio, and from Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Harrison of Almonte, Alberta.

Races were conducted by Barbara MacMillan and Orland Kidd. A nail-driving contest was conducted by Maitland Forsythe. Mrs. Ross MacNaughton had a quizz on the Kidd family tree book. A contest of obtaining people's names present at the reunion was conducted by Mrs. M. Forsythe and the prize was won by Mrs. Eva Knox.

At the evening meal, the president thanked the members of the executive for their co-operation and moved a vote of thanks to the past president, Leatha Kidd, for her organization in the past nine years.

The members of the 1951 executive are as follows:

President Mrs. R. MacNaughton, vice-president Mrs. M. Forsythe, secretary Miss Lulu Darling, treasurer Miss Barbara MacMillan, booth committee Kenneth Buott and Kenneth Drain, sports committee Orland Kidd, Thomas Cardwell Jr. and Maitland Forsythe, publicity convener, Miss Leatha Kidd, tea-making convener Mrs. Eva Knox.

Brigade For U.N.

Canada's response to the U.N. Security Council's request for troops is one brigade, "specially trained and equipped to be available for use in carrying out Canada's obligations under the United Nations charter or the North Atlantic Pact." Thus the Prime Minister carefully described the character and function of the combat troops who will be recruited and trained to fight possibly in Korea. By the time the brigade is raised and moulded and Parliament has sanctioned its employment under a foreign commander in a foreign field, the situation in Korea may be different from what it now is. There may be both need and room for it. Now there is an American need in Korea for more men and equipment, but it is doubtful that there is field room for any but American troops.

* * *

Canadian planes and ships for lines of communication work; a brigade of Canadian combat troops in the offing. Such is Canada's military response. It is not grandiose, but it sincerely backs up Canada's whole-hearted approval of the American determination to keep a western foothold at the gates of Communist Asia. Pacific Ocean nations like Britain, Australia and New Zealand, with closer interests in that part of the world have committed themselves more largely. It must be remembered that Britain is a great power and Australia and New Zealand are not, like Canada, major partners in another aspect of the struggle for power between East and West, the North Atlantic Treaty.

* * *

The Prime Minister has not labelled the brigade to be raised a Korean brigade. It is to be used, under U.N., in fulfilling commitments as a member of U.N. and a party to the North Atlantic treaty. Obviously, if Parliament sanctions its use, and there is no immediate danger in the North Atlantic region, the new brigade will go to Korea, if it can be properly used.

* * *

At this time it is not impertinent to ask, will Canada and other nations sending troops at U.N.'s request have any voice in naming the supreme commanders in the fields to which they are sent? It seems, for instance, that General Douglas MacArthur, American commander in Japan, came by his appointment as U.N. commander in a pretty off-hand manner. He is, incidentally, flying the Stars and Stripes, not the U.N. banner at his own tactical headquarters. If Canadian soldiers are to fight under General MacArthur they will be under a great officer, but it would be fitting if Canada were at least consulted on the appointment of these generals as U.N. commanders when it is being asked to supply troops to fight under them.

An Anti-Litter League Is Needed

In our Third Column today we republish an article which appeared in the last issue of The Rural Scene on a subject which we have often mentioned in these columns. It is scandalous that people should dump rubbish on the verges of country roads, and in farmers' fields. Every municipality has provision for the removal of rubbish, and farmers themselves usually burn or bury their rubbish. But there are a few people who insist on dirtying the countryside, and spoiling other people's property by casual dumping.

It takes a long time to change the habits of a nation. Little by little the idea has been implanted in the heads of most Canadians that tidiness is better than litter, but there is still work to be done. We have suggested two or three times in these columns that we need a national, or provincial Anti-Litter League, the members of which would pledge themselves to avoid needless litter, and which would circulate reasonable propaganda to persuade other people to do the same.

It may be suggested that there would be a taint of crankiness about such an organization. Possibly so; tidiness, like every other good habit, can be carried to the length of an obsession by a few people. But there is nothing cranky about ordinary decency, respect for property, and a desire to keep the town and countryside clean. That is just ordinary common sense.

Mackenzie King's Will

It comes as a surprise to most of us that Mackenzie King has left an estate valued at upward of three-quarters of a million dollars. At no time during his life was Mr. King engaged in what would appear to be profitable business dealing. His salary, though sufficient, was never a large one as rich men reckon such things. Nevertheless, by investment, by saving, and by receipt of gifts from those who wished him well he accumulated a good deal of money, virtually all of which he has left to the country which he served all his life.

It is no surprise that Laurier House has been left to the nation. Mr. King was always proud of the fact that the dwelling which was filled with memories of his old chieftain was left to him by Lady Laurier. From time to time it was whispered that he had willed it to the Liberal Party; we feel that he was right not to do so. Political parties have a way of dwindling, changing their fortunes, and changing their principles. Laurier House belonged to two great Canadians, and it is to the people of Canada, and not to a party, that it belongs. Our country is now old enough to have a place for such reminders of our great past, and we are glad that Laurier House is to be a public possession. The sum which was given to Mr King to maintain it goes with the house, for he regarded it as a trust rather than as a personal possession.

No one will be surprised, either, that a large part of Mr. King's personal fortune is to be dispersed in scholarships. Himself a man of superior education and scholarly habits, Mr. King had the highest regard for education as a refiner and polisher of inherent ability. He was not a rough diamond himself, and there is reason to believe that he did not set the highest value on rough diamonds in political life. The scholarships are chiefly for students of subjects allied to politics but one, in memory of Mr. King's father, will be awarded for ability in English literature.

Mr. King thought about little that did not concern the welfare of Canada while he was alive, and his will shows that he sought to do his utmost for this country after his death. His thoughtful disposition of both his homes and the bulk of his private fortune leaves this country still further in his debt.

Strange Silence Of A Prophet

A very popular English publication is Old Moore's Almanac; for 107 years it has been popular in farmhouses, public houses cottages and dwellings where few other books are found. It is handy because it gives the usual information about the rising and setting of the sun, the working of the tides, a calendar marked with the important anniversaries and the information which is expected in an almanac. It also gives a great deal of advice on matters of health to sufferers from varicose veins, rheumatism, victims of the drink or tobacco habit, people whose livers are torpid, and other unhappy creatures. But the special feature of "Old Moore" is his "Prophetic Notes", attached to each month of the year. And the most interesting thing about the Prophetic Notes for 1950 is that they make no mention whatever of Korea.

Here are Old Moore's predictions for July: "Trade between us and the South American countries is gradually recovering. Bulk buying accounts for most of it, and many people would like to see more meat from Argentine as in the old days. Our steel products are in great demand, but the question still remains how many tons of agricultural produce for one ton of steel machinery.—The hay harvest is proving a good one and the prospects are good for our farmers. They find they can manage with less subsidies.—Shipbuilding yards are busy and many more ships are being launched. There is some question as to whether they will have as much work in the future. Regulations are tightened up concerning conditions on ships afloat. —A watchful eye is kept on the cost of living figures and though these have only varied within narrow limits there is now a welcome move lower".

The prophet business must be a disappointing trade. The prophets of the Old Testament had the right plan: they simply foretold woe, in a large general way, knowing that eventually mankind would prove them right.

Immorality On Country Roads

By GEORGE W. MORRISON
(In The Rural Scene)

CITIZENSHIP means more than voting. It means living with respect for other people and in relation to them.

Respect for personality and property is fundamental in citizenship. Courtesy is the expression of this respect. Yet we see so much lack of courtesy, so much lack of respect for other people.

◇ ◇ ◇

NOT long ago, I was driving along in the bounds of my parish. One of my men was working at a fence along the road and his wife was out with him. Never liking to miss such an informal "pastoral" visit with a family at work, I stopped my car and got out.

◇ ◇ ◇

MY friend stopped fixing his fence to talk about my work and his. It's his work that matters now. The fence was needing repair largely because the road grader and the snowplow had shoved earth against it in the spring and snow in the winter, with the result that some of the posts were broken off, some of the wire sagging and some of it broken and tangled. Perhaps that is the price farmers pay for modern roadway maintenance. And not likely is the municipality to blame. It is just one of the things that happens. And the farmer was not complaining.

◇ ◇ ◇

TO have to fix the fence was bad enough. But to step into a paper full of rotting fish heads which some fisherman had thrown over the fence was hard to take. The smell (a good word for the occasion) was decidedly bad. And the man's mood after the experience was justifiably resentful of the discourtesy that had prompted such an act. No doubt someone wanted to get rid of an unpleasant bundle. Fish heads add nothing to the welcome a fisherman receives on coming home. But he should consider the farmer as well as his own family.

◇ ◇ ◇

THEN my friend went on to show me all the signs of discourtesy which were evident in a few rods along his fence. There were broken beer bottles, old cans, cardboard boxes, scattered paper, branches broken off the trees and like signs of muss and destruction. There had been, so he told me, a whole box of garbage dumped over the fence. And as he told me of this I could tell he was entertaining none too kindly thoughts of this town citizen who used the farmer's bush as a dumping ground for his garbage. The young man took pride in the appearance of his farm and the condition of his bush and he resented the careless actions of those who undid his work. Can you blame him?

◇ ◇ ◇

WHAT was seen that day is a concrete example of what one might see almost any day in our countryside. Roadways are littered with refuse. So are our town streets. A drive along our highways will reveal many discarded beer bottles—a menace to cars as well as to the children who walk the roadsides on their way to school. It is not uncommon to see in the ditch the winter's accumulation of cans and bottles from some one's kitchen.

◇ ◇ ◇

THIS makes work for road men. It despoils the handiwork of God who has clothed the countryside in beauty. It reveals thoughtlessness. It is even breaking the laws of our land which provide a penalty for such an offence. What has happened to people when this carelessness can be so commonly proven?

◇ ◇ ◇

THEN I had a letter telling of the writer's experience with her family homestead, of people who broke in, destroyed, and stole. Even when the property was inhabited, lumber and fruit had been stolen almost from under their noses. Why should people have to guard so carefully their own property?

The deplorable aspect about this is that the marauders are not just the bad element of the community who are a social problem and who are in every community. Nor are they just the boys who are out for a lark and delight in mischievous destruction. Some of the socially elite, the so-called respectable citizens, even leading citizens are guilty of this disregard of the rights of others. In one case it was a church choir group that did the damage.

◇ ◇ ◇

WE can make laws to deal with these matters, and a few prosecutions might help if the evidence could be established. But why should we need to make laws in a country like this about such matters which involve only civil courtesy? Surely something is lacking in our morality when we can be so thoughtless of the rights of others.

◇ ◇ ◇

SUCH immorality, and I use the word advisedly, is not only unsocial, not only disrespectful of others, not only a nuisance to others, not only irreverent where God in nature is concerned, but it is dangerous. There was a fire not long ago in the outskirts of our village which threatened one home, and which, had it not been brought under control by the men of the neighborhood and help from the foresters, might have caused costly damage. How did it start? No one knows. But it is fair to supose that some one, old or young, was a bit careless. We read about forest fires and are alarmed. But often the forest-fire is the result of carelessness. At that point carelessness becomes a moral problem.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE rights of property need to be safeguarded by laws. But their greatest safe-guard is in the courtesy which considers the results of our actions on the property and persons of others.

Let us not suppose, then, that citizenship is a matter of voting for one political party or another, or a matter of democracy or communism as a political pattern.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT involves courtesy in all relationships. No pattern will be satisfactory if people have no regard for other people. This is a job for public educators. The need for it is more evident than we realize.

RAISING THE SIGHTS

Illegal Picketing Again

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

CALLING attention to a dispatch from Windsor last Saturday, J. V. McAree, widely read columnist of The Toronto Globe and Mail, commented on the example of illegal picketing it reported. Office employees of an industrial plant there, who are members of an organized union, placed a picket line around the plant, preventing entry and exit of transportation equipment. Mr. McAree drew attention to this news item not because it was unusual, but because it has become commonplace. He declared "the strikers are blackmailing not only their employer, but the municipal authorities of Windsor, whose duty it is to put an end to this lawlessness, knowing that there are more pro-strike votes in Windsor, or indeed in any other Ontario city, than there are pro-employer votes. So the law-enforcing agency is paralyzed."

Mr. McAree is right about the paralysis of law enforcement agencies but it is not peculiar to municipalities. We can recall at least one occasion when Provincial and Federal police, at the scene of flagrantly illegal picketing accompanied by violence by strikers, made no attempt to enforce the law. We do not think it fair, however, to imply that failure to attempt enforcement in such cases is due solely to the large majority of pro-employee votes over pro-employer votes. There is another fact, of even greater importance, in our opinion.

What will the authorities use to enforce the law? Force? Then they must use a force which will compare in numerical strength with the picket line. If there are a thousand pickets, determined to resist, five hundred policemen would be in for a most difficult task, unless they used batons or other weapons. This might easily result in use of weapons by strikers. Furthermore, there would be a very natural reluctance on the part of the majority of policemen—or soldiers—to use arms on their fellow citizens in a case of this kind.

The first thing needed, we think, is an effective method of combatting illegal picketing. If legislation defining illegal picketing exists, well and good. If not, it should be passed. Provision for securing an injunction quickly should be made—and for imposition of severe daily financial penalties as long as the injunction was disobeyed. That, we contend, would give law enforcement authorities something to work with—and employers also should be free to take advantage of such legislation. The practice of barring premises against persons who have legal rights of entry and exit should no longer be condoned.

And Then What?

(Christian Science Monitor)

The chief of the two-man police force of Jamesburg, N.Y., (pop. 2,300) doesn't want to patrol the town all night. He told the town council that he was already on call 24 hours a day; that he had to keep the town hall clean; run the jail; provide his own revolver, club, whistle, car and the siren on it; do all the fingerprinting; take fire, police and dog-catcher calls, and that he had solved 200 of the 210 robberies perpetrated since he took office 15 years ago.

The council, apparently was unimpressed, and voted to discipline him.

Perhaps he should have been collecting the garbage, too.

He Didn't Hedge

(Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

Gerry McManus, known hereabouts for his activities as secretary of the Canadian Seamen's Union, was one of those comparatively rare birds—an outspoken Communist. Until last week, he was a leading member of the Labour Progressive Party, and he didn't take any pains to hide it. If anyone asked him, he said he was a Communist. He didn't hedge and dodge, in the way that most members of the C.S.U. executive did. You have to admire him for that.

Now we have to admire him for something else. He has thrown aside the beliefs he had held for 20 years because he found at last that they didn't mean what he thought they did.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. (Col. 2:8.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded in life is peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. (Rom. 8:5-7.)

◇ ◇ ◇

The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever; the judgements of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. (Ps. 19:7-9.)

◇ ◇ ◇

He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love. In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. (I John 4: 8, 9.)

Letters To The Editor

NIGGER IN WOODPILE?

Sir: I would appreciate a small space in your valuable paper. As a father of two boys, members of Boys' Town, I would like to ask the Optimist Club one question. As stated in a recent letter to the Examiner they claim that Wally Bent, supervisor of Boys' Town, had his services terminated by them last May. If this is so, why was Mr. Bent, as lately as last week, selling tickets for them? Like many another father, I attended Boys' Town choir show at the Oval tonight, and I am sure every one who saw the boys perform enjoyed the show. Many long hours must have been put in by Wally to have the choir perform the way they did. Having talked with several members of Boys' Town they all agree that Wally Bent is a great guy, 100 per cent. And they are hoping that some other organization will sponsor Wally and the boys in their own show. In my opinion I think there is a nigger in the woodpile and I would like to see him out in the open. Boys' Town is badly needed in the city, so I would like to hear from other fathers and see what can be done to keep Wally and his boys in Boys' Town. Thanking you, I am,

Yours truly,
JACK DONALDSON, Sr.

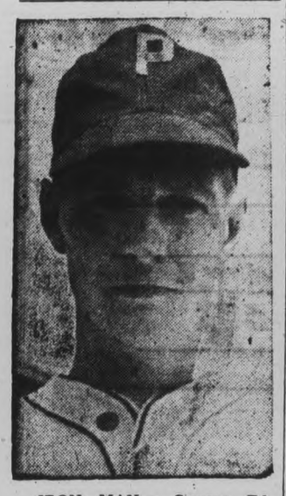
Whitehill Hurls Two Wins As Petes Get 11th In Row

Viaduct League standing:

	P	W	L
Oshawa	30	23	7
Petes	29	20	9
Aces	29	16	13
New Toronto	26	14	12
Dovers	31	9	22
Staffords	32	6	26

Playing their sixth game in as many days, the Petes downed Dovers twice in Toronto last night to chalk up their 11th straight victory in the Viaduct Baseball League. The double victory kept them well up in second place just two and a half games back of the leading Oshawa outfit.



IRON MAN — Gunner Ed Whitehill did the iron man stunt in Toronto last night as he pitched the Petes to two wins over Dovers as the Murphyites won their 11th straight Viaduct Baseball League fixture.

Takes Two

Gunner Ed Whitehill, classy veteran righthander with the sharp hook and fine control, won both games on the mound for the Murphyites. He went the route in the first to win handily, and he pitched into the sixth of the second scrap of the seven-innings tussle before being relieved, getting credit for that win, too. Doug Plunkett took over for him then but lacked control and Lefty Dadson finished it up neatly. Henderson went the distance in the first for Dovers, while Lustig relieved Romano in the sixth of the nightcap.

The Petes gave Whitehill swell support in both frays, reeling off four double plays in the first tilt and one in their errorless second struggle. Dovers were loose afield. The Petes also pounded the apple hard in the right spots, coming from behind twice in the last game to earn a nifty triumph. Joe Lowrey featured once with a running catch, and Danny Brown was in on all the twin killings, as the whole team clicked well.

Team Weakened

With Freddy Garvey sick and Al Menzies with a lame back, the weakened Petes had to use Pat Wilson back of the plate and, though not catching there for years, Wilson turned in a dandy chore to save the day. Ed Murphy had to play second till Howie Dalton—who couldn't get off work early—arrived. Bill Edger proved a handy guy again by playing the outfield.

Paul Estlick and Bill Edger were the leading hitters for Peterborough in the opener with three for four each, Tenenbaum topping Dovers with two in three tries. Wilson hit two doubles. Brown and Dadson each got one for one in the second for the Petes, who only got six safeties all told, Dalton smashing a two-run triple and being squeezed in by Estlick. McGarry led the losers with two doubles and a single in four. Walks and errors by Dovers contributed to their downfall in this latter tussle.

Petes Beat Lions

Petes edged out Lions 6-4 in their peewee lacrosse fray yesterday at Miller Bowl. Ferguson got a pair and Hawthorne one from Davis in the first for the winners as Reid tallied from Trudeau. After a scoreless second heat, Reid and Ellis hit the hemp for Lions from Trudeau and Reid, as Hawthorne got one for Petes from Davis. Ferguson and Kent clinched it in the fourth, Kent and Davis each garnering an assist, with Trudeau getting one for Lions from Ellis. Teams:

Petes: Heffernan, Davis, Mountney, Ferguson, Hawthorne, Hunt, Coombs, Pearce, Kent.

Lions: Chapman, Casey, Reid, Denahy, Ellis, Trudeau, Parry, Patterson, Collins, Scharf.

Referees: J. Sutherland and B. Hobart.

Playoffs Open In PMLA As Three Win

Three games opened the PMLA finals, all two-game series, goals to count, at Miller Bowl last night. Winners will be declared tomorrow evening there with three games, commencing at six. All-star teams will be picked during these series to go into OLA playdowns. J. K. Hughes' juveniles edged Panthers 8-6, Kiwanis midgets defeated Legion 9-4, and Irwin-Godson bantams won 17-14 over Americans.

In the juvenile go, Hughes' had a goal edge in the first and second periods to spell the difference in a good game. Caravaggie led the winners with three goals, Farley and Fontaine each having two, and Brioux one. Galley and Batley of Panthers tallied twice each and Cutwater once. Both goalies looked good. Teams:

Hughes—Hickson, Caravaggie, Fontaine, Brioux, E. Crough, Noble, Seabrooke.

Panthers—Nicholls, Fitzgerald, O'Reilly, Outwater, Galley, Batley, P. Crough, Howe, Brennan, Daniels.

A four-run drive in the second quarter put Kiwanis out in front in their joust and they stayed there. Dunn and Curtis scored for Legion in the first, Ryan aiding once, while B. Hobart scored from Hunt for the other side. Hunt ran in three and Cullen one for Kiwanis with Batley aiding twice and Ferren once. Hunt got the only one in the third from Batley. The latter, Delahaye and Legrow clinched it in the fourth, as Allen scored a pair for the losers, Dunn assisting on one. Teams:

Kiwanis—Simmonds, Delahaye, Bloom, Batley, Legrow, B. Hobart, Sutherland, Orde, Mullen, Cullen, Ferren, Moffatt, Hunt.

Legion—J. Hobart, Dunn, Allen, Curtis, Corbett, Drury, Jay, King, Lockington, Ryan, Scriver.

Irwin-Godson finished a bit stronger to win over Americans, Heffernan had four goals for them and three assists, Simmonds also tallying four. Chambers and Sutherland had three each, the latter also aiding on two. Doris had a goal and two assists, Hunt and Davis each scoring once and Morgan helping once. For the losers, McDougall came through with eight goals and two assists, as Cournyea counted three and helped twice. Hall had two, McGinnis one, and Board two assists. Teams:

Irwin-Godson—J. Sutherland, Davis, Chambers, Morgan, Doris, Simmonds, Hunt, Murphy Heffernan, D. Sutherland, Blodgett.

Americans—Ketcheson, Cournyea, McDougall, Board, McGinnis, Keating, Roberts, Hall, Innis.

Dunlap-Karrys Trade Now Fallen Through

TORONTO, Aug. 9 (CP). — A proposed Jake Dunlap-for-Steve Karrys trade between Toronto Argos and Ottawa Rough Riders appears to have fallen through.

The Big Four executive Tuesday voted down Argos bid to obtain Karrys, a former Toronto player. But the trade was apparently dead before that because Dunlap, a law student, found he couldn't leave Toronto.

At the same time, Rough Riders appeared reluctant to release Karrys now that half-back Tony Golab will probably sit this season out.

No Bob Hope

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP). — The National Amateur Golf Championship at Minneapolis Aug. 21-26 will go on without Bob Hope, the slide-nosed comedian who found the 36-hole qualifying tests Tuesday a bit too much. He took 80 swings on the first tour of the par-70 course and picked up his ball, conceding. The entry list was whacked from 1,033 to 210 as the amateurs roamed over the course.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Within a couple of weeks, the senior "B" grid prospects here will commence training, since they open their fall schedule the middle of September. Football is a hard game and requires a great deal of conditioning, as there is stiff body contact on every play. Coach H. L. Bamforth returns to the gridiron wars to pilot the Peterborough ORFU entry, in competition with Oshawa Raiders, Orillia Bombers and Cobourg Ghosts. Local club hasn't picked a monicker yet. Harv Bamforth was a highly successful senior coach at PCVS during the 30's, and handled the senior "A" Orfuns in 1939. A smart football skipper and a strict disciplinarian, he should have a solid squad in play next month.

Doc Chenoweth is prexy of the club this season with Clare Collins vice-president, Geoffrey Grinrod treasurer, and Dr. Aiken secretary. Another medico, Dr. Howes is club physician. Dave Wilson is the hard-working manager, and the board of directors include Hilly Yudin, Frank Foster, Stan McBride and Bud LaBranche. Honorary presidents are Hugh Campbell, Don McGillis, Sr., and Gordon Matthews. Yeah, the executive has been overhauled, a lot of spade work done, and a hookup with Hamilton arranged. Looks like we'll have a contending senior "B" team in the ORFU this autumn semester.

Those Softball Lasses

Prexy Bill Flint of the Girls' Softball League inform us that the set-up for tonight at the Bowl is Ashby's vs. Marines in a semi-final playoff at seven. If Marines win it, these same teams go right back at it in the second game. Should Ashby's win, they will be ready to meet Westclox in finals Friday and Saturday nights in twin bills. Or it might be Marines vs. Westclox these nights. City winner has to playoff in Kingston on Aug. 16 in PWSU playdowns, return game here Aug. 19. Managers tonight will decide on how long a series the city finals will be, depending on time left.

Plenty of keen action as the men's softball semi-final serial commenced with two tilts last eve in the Bowl beyond the bridge. UEW and East City split the twin bill, and they'll go back at it with two more melees there on the morrow, it being a best-of-seven affair which concludes next week. Winner meets Mutuals in the finals. UE took the opener last night 7-6 in 10 heats, while East City pushed over the winning run of a 13-12 score in the last of the ninth in the nightcap. Can't make them much closer than those tussles. Draw prizes each night during the playoffs. Players and fans paid a tribute to the late Mrs. Harold Legrow, mother of Buck of the UE squad.

Just Keep Rollin' Along

There's no stopping the senior ball-playing Petes lately in the Viaduct Loop. They racked up Nos. 10 and 11 in a row at Millen Stadium last p.m. in two seven-heat frays with Toronto Dovers. It was 7-2 in the first and 7-5 in the other end of the double-header, and Ed (Gunner) Whitehill pitched both victories! Yes, sir, and ma'am, the veteran took the first handily and got credit for the second when he lasted into the sixth. Didn't want to come out then as the old iron flipper was in fine form. A dandy show by the Gunner, who has been saving the Petes' victory string regularly in recent weeks. Once before he won a twin bill in Oshawa. The club rests now till Saturday when it goes to Oshawa.

● ● ● ●

Pat Wilson, another fine team player, went in and caught both games, when Menzies had a lame back and Garvey was sick. Pat has a stiff finger and a sore knee (and he hasn't caught in years) but he pulled an okay chore and rates much credit. The team wasn't at full strength but the gang all hustled and dished up a swell show in the field, having no less than five double plays. And they tagged the pill hard and in timely fashion to gain the triumphs. They're all coming through in the clutches at the plate these days. It was their sixth game in six days for 11 straight wins and they're barking away on the heels of the Oshawa loop leaders at the moment and well in front of the third-place Aces. Even Ed Murphy is smiling now.

East City Gets Close One To Tie Series

Haddy Eakins went the distance as East City turned the tables 13-12 on U.E. in the nightcap of the first two games of the best-of-seven semi-final men's softball series at the Bowl. The Ashburnham boys came from behind after a disastrous start and won in the final frame in an uphill battle as Scriver walked, O'Heron singled for his third hit and Cournyea rapped to Hall, to score Scriver. Cournyea's homer with two aboard in the eighth followed by Sullivan's triple and Wade's fielder's choice tied the score.

Eakins and his mates steadied down and allowed only one run in the final five, whilst adding nine on their own behalf as the bats of O'Heron and Cournyea, Sullivan and Jaquith began to poke melons all over the park. Birch twirled fine ball for seven innings, but he retired for Hall and the latter had the loss. Jim Conlin and Homer Pagett led U. E. hitters with three apiece, the former having a triple and two doubles. Cornwall shone at second for East City, while Griffin's catch of Spencer's sure homer in the sixth, was a gem.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Harold Freeman and William Jefferies are in Kingston today, playing in the second stage of the provincial doubles championship games.

Tonight we have the semi-finals and finals of the novice singles competition. It is for the P. J. Giffin Trophy and this contest is sponsored by the Peterborough Examiner.

Also tonight club doubles, according to schedule book.

It would appear that there is no interest being taken in the Globe and Mail doubles (ladies or gents).

Today's thought: One of the best things about a very little child is that he never thanks you for doing things for him—he is so sure you want to.

Men's Results

Kesselring Qualifies For US Golf Title Play

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug 9 (CP). —Gerald Kesselring, of Kitchener shot a 36-hole 146 Tuesday to qualify for United States amateur golf championship play.

Kesselring, a 21-year-old player who twice won the Canadian junior title, was one of five qualifiers.

Tony Matlock, also of Kitchener got an alternate spot in a sudden death playoff with Richard Neelon of Buffalo. Each had 150 for the 36 holes.

TVL Play Starts

MARMORA, Aug. 9 (ENS). — Marmora plays its first game with Norwood in the Trent Valley League semi-final play-offs at the Marmora Community Centre on Wednesday evening. The game promises to be a keen one as the visitors have a partiality for the Marmora diamond, giving Brooks' Maroons their first defeat of the season there in July.

At least 10 horses will start in Friday's $15,000 Canadian Cup pacing stake at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway.

Dr. Stanton, owned by Linley Fraser of Forest, Ont., and Gene Abbe, trained by the celebrated Eddie Cobb of Washington Court House, Ohio, arrived at the track from New York Tuesday.

The entry list for the country's richest harness-racing purse closes today.

The CBC has arranged to broadcast the stake Friday afternoon and Edwin T. Keller, dean of harness racing announcers in the U.S., will do the commentary.

Dr. Stanton and The Diplomat are expected to provide the strongest Canadian competition for American horses shipped to Canada for the big pacing test.

The Diplomat, owned by Alex Parsons of London, Ont., has been training at Thorncliffe for several days. Dr. Stanton has been campaigning at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island, N. Y.

Other Canadian contenders: Oro G. Herbert, Sam Hy Dixie Lee Hy and Lucy Lester.

Oro G. Herbert has won most of the stake races during the first five weeks of the meet and holds the track records for the mile and the mile and one-sixteenth.

Gene Abbe has a record of 2.00-3-5.

Thorncliffe also received the official entry of Linda's Boy, owned by Mrs. William Tillner of Warsaw, N. Y., and trained by Levi Harner. Linda's Boy recently won a free-for-all at Hamburg, N. Y., covering the mile and a sixteenth in 2.12. This is two seconds faster than Oro G. Herbert's Thorncliffe standard.

Manitoba and Ontario Tuesday won their respective matches against British Columbia and Alberta during the second day of the Canadian cricket championship at Winnipeg.

Manitoba defeated B.C. by three wickets and one run while Ontario won over Alberta by five wickets and five runs.

Florence Chadwick, 31, of Sandiego, Calif., who Tuesday broke the women's record for swimming the English Channel, is being invited to take part in the women's three-mile swim at the Canadian National Exhibition. George Duthie, CNE sports director, cabled her the invitation after learning of her channel swim.

Winnipeg Scottish staged a second-half driving offensive on Tuesday night and whipped Montreal Hakoahs, 6-1 to enter the Dominion soccer final against the Alberta-B.C. winner. Winnipeg took the best-of-three series by winning the first and third contests. The second ended in a tie.

Tar Heel, a slick black colt owned by W. N. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N. C., won the third and final heat of the $14,480 Geers Stake for two-year-old pacers Tuesday at Goshen, N.Y., circling Bill Cane's triangular track in 20:3.

A six-man British relay team swam the Tnglish Channel Tuesday in 11 hours and 10 minutes, rested awhile in France and then started the swim back.

Their time was one minute better than the record set last year by an Egyptian team.

Lefty Curt Simmons, a 14-game winner, rejoined the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday after return of his National Guard unit from camp.

Simmons' Pennsylvania National Guard division has been ordered to active duty. No date has been set for reporting but it probably will be sometime within 30 days.

UEW Triumphs In 10th Of First Game

U.E.W. took the opening game of the best-of-seven semi-final series in the City Softball League against East City by a 7-6 margin last evening at the Bowl. The game went 10 innings. One of the season's largest crowds saw what turned out to be possibly the two most thrilling battles of the season, to date.

Reg. Gordon toed the rubber for U.E. against Lefty Doris and both went the route in fine style; the former allowed nine hits, the latter 12 and each fanned and walked a pair. U.E. held a 5-3 margin till the eighth when East City scored three. U.E. tied it in the bottom half and then scored the winner in the 10th as Mackness and White lofted long flies and both were dropped, enabling Mackness to score. It was nip and tuck all the way. White and Thomson each hit three safeties for U.E., while Scriver had four for five for East City. Mackness and White sparkled afield.

Giants Suppress Braves As Cards Trip Pirates

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Flying Phillies are a prohibitive favorite to win their first National League flag in 35 years. Why? Because manager Eddie Sawyer has convinced his men they could beat Brooklyn.

How well the young Phils took Sawyer's lectures to heart is attested by their triumph in 13 clashes with the Dodgers this season—a close 6-5 verdict.

Until Sawyer took over in the middle of the 1948 season, the Phils finished outside the first division since 1932. During those years, they'd been able to win only one season's series from the Dodgers—11-to-10 in 1937, with one game rained out.

In his first full season at the helm, the Phils held the Brooks even in 22 games.

This year they've been even more potent against the defending champions. Tuesday night's decision marked the Phils' sixth win in their last seven meetings with the Brooks.

The triumph widened the Phils' first-place lead over Boston in five games—their biggest lead thus far. The Dodgers, in a virtual third-place tie with St. Louis, trail by 5½ games.

Cardinals handed Pittsburgh Pirates their 10th straight loss, 6-4, while New York Giants suppressed the Braves 2-1, for their eighth consecutive victory.

Boston Red Sox made the biggest gain in the American League race. They trounced New York Yankees 7-4 while Chicago White Sox defeated the front-running Detroit Tigers 9-6. The fourth-place Red Sox now are six games behind the Tigers who lead the Yankees and Indians by three. The defeat dropped the Yanks into a second-place tie with Cleveland. The latter's game with St. Louis was postponed by rain. In the night's only other action, Cincinnati's Reds swept both ends of a doubleheader from Chicago, 10-1 and 9-0, to climb within ½ game of the sixth-place Cubs. Philadelphia's Athletics blanked Washington 5-0.

Young Robin Roberts gained his third straight triumph over the Brooks this year although he needed assistance from ace reliever Jim Konstanty in the ninth. It was Roberts' 15th victory. Don Newcombe was the loser.

Konstanty came in to protect a 6-5 lead with one out and a man on first. A double by Roy Campanella put runners on second and third. Konstanty then retired the next two Dodgers on grounders with the potential tying run dying on third. Doubles by Richie Ashburn and Dick Sisler and a single by Willie Jones produced the winning runs in the eighth.

Wes Westrum's 19th homer with one on in the sixth inning gave Sheldon Jones and the Giants a 2-1 triumph over Warren Spahn and the Braves. Bob Elliott's 18th homer of the season was Boston's 105th of the season, one better than the club mark set in 1949.

Stan Musial's 16th homer with one on in the second proved to be the deciding blow in the Cards' triumph over the Pirates. Ralph Kiner and Clyde McCullough homered for the losers. It was No. 30 for Kiner.

Splendid pitching by Ken Raffensberger and Will Ramsdell highlighted the Reds' two victories over the Cubs. Raffensberger, celebrating his 33rd birthday, scattered 10 Chicago hits for his 10th win in the opener. Ramsdell allowed only five safeties in registering his first major-league shutout.

Mel Parnell yielded eight hits for his ninth Boston victory.

The White Sox overcame a 5-0 Detroit lead to win. They knocked out starter Hal White with four runs in the sixth, added two more against Hank Borowy in the seventh and finished with three off loser Paul Calvert in the eighth. Eddie Robinson's 12th homer snapped a 6-6 tie.

Lefty Lou Brissie pitched a two-hitter for A's over Senators.

St. Kitts Lash Crescents 7-5

By The Canadian Press.

It was the pay-off game for St. Catharines Athletics Tuesday night when they squared off with Owen Sound Crescents in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior tussle in St. Catharines.

Before the game, Athletics were one game behind the first-place Owen Sound Crescents. When it was over St. Catharines had a 7-5 victory and the two clubs were tied for first place.

In the other scheduled game, Toronto Riverdales maintained their record of not winning a game this year. They lost 26-10 to Brampton Excelsiors.

Jim McMahon and Harry Wipper each collected a pair of goals to lead the Athletics in the St. Catharines game. Marlow Woods scored twice for Owen Sound.

At Brampton, Bill Timpson got five for the hapless Riverdales while Archie Browning, Ollie Raine and Harry Graham each got three goals for the Excelsiors.

Officials Say League Stands

TORONTO, Aug. 9 (CP). — Senior hockey in Ontario may not be dead yet, but it's looking more like a corpse every day.

It was dealt a body blow Tuesday with announcement that a proposed Niagara Falls entry, counted on to keep the Ontario Amateur Hockey Association Senior "A" series functioning, was definitely out.

That, plus the rumored withdrawal of Owen Sound and Kitchener, left only two teams definitely in—Toronto and Hamilton. But George Panter, league business manager, refused to admit the league was through.

"Because one group pulls out of hockey in a city doesn't mean a whole league has to fold up," he said. "Senior 'A' hockey is anything but dead in Ontario."

League officials denied they have received notice of withdrawal from Owen Sound and Kitchener, but officials of the two clubs have stated repeatedly they are through with senior hockey for the present at least.

The league operated last year with four teams—Owen Sound, a combined Kitchener-Waterloo entry, Hamilton and Toronto, whose Marlboros went on to win the Allan Cup. Attendance was none too heavy in Owen Sound and Kitchener.

The clubs complained the customers were tired of seeing the same teams play night in, night out. And with the high price of hockey talent, they had to satisfy the customers to survive

Apsley Women Enjoy Picnic

APSLEY, Aug. 9 (ENS) — Apsley Branch of the Women's Institute held a picnic at Paudash Tourish Park for the August meeting. There was a good attendance and despite the cool weather, all had an enjoyable afternoon.

At the business portion, plans were made for a visit to Buckhorn Branch and girls were named to act on the August 26 tag day in aid of the Institute of the Blind.

Afternoon taggers: Shirley Reynolds, Joan McCauley Gail Reynolds, Joan Oitment, Rose Everett; evening taggers: Mary Jean Wilson, Elaine Brown, Betty Lane, Marion Johnson, Phyllis Johnson.

Sports, under management of Mesdames Don Newberry and W Lean were enjoyed. Winners were:

Hopping with glass of water in hand — Mrs. Norman Redick; Dropping clothes pins into bottle —Mrs. Martin Reddick; eating biscuit and whistling—Mrs. Rol Tucker.

A pot luck supper was enjoyed. Mrs. Stanley Windsor, a former president, who now lives in Peterborough, attended the picnic.

UPSIDE DOWN AND BADLY DAMAGED though this aircraft may be, the four occupants at the time of the accident sustained no injury. The 'plane flew out of the Curtiss-Reid flying school near Montreal but had to land on the intersection of two sparsely settled streets in the town of Mount Royal.

Clowns Funniest When Trying To Be Serious

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9 (AP).—Can clowns really be funny with breaking hearts Must the show always go on? Do they want to play tragedies?

Emmett Kelly, North America's most noted clown, is the sad-eyed, wistful little hero who played for years with many circuses. His weary Willie has made millions laugh.

Kelly, a soft-voiced, pleasant man of middle years, has a round, expressive face with eyes lingering between sadness and humor.

Play It Serious

"My theory of comedy has always been to play something very seriously," he says. "I am always intent on what I am trying to do. The comedy comes when everything goes wrong."

What about the Pagliacci tradition that a clown should laugh even in sorrow?

"It's true," he replied. "I've gone on many a night with tears in my eyes. Most other clowns have done it, too. You see, the audience can only see the painted smile on a clown, not his real expression.

"Or with a clown with a sad makeup, like myself, real sadness makes him seem funnier. Very often I get my biggest laughs when I am not feeling good. But I usually feel better by the time I come off."

Lot of Hooey

What about the tradition that "the show must go on?"

"That's a lot of hooey. There have been times when I was too sick to go on and I stayed in bed. Any performer who tells you he never missed a show is handing you a line."

Kelly, frustrated in his early desire to be a newspaper artist, turned to entertaining chalf-talks before audiences. In his drawings he evolved the character of Willie taken from an old comic strip. Eventually, he assumed the role of the sad clown and joined the circus. Except for a stretch as an acrobat, Kelly has been Willie for 30 years.

HON. EMILE VAILLANCOURT, Canadian ambassador-designate to Peru was honored in Montreal by the Inter-American Association. He is shown addressing the gathering. Others are Senator Leon Mercier Gouin (centre) and Ceasar A. de la Feunte, charge d'affaires at the Peruvian Embassy in Ottawa.

WMS Plans To Raise Allocation

WARSAW, Aug. 9 (ENS). — The WMS of the United Church held the August meeting in the Sunday School Room. Mrs. William Darling presided. The worship service in the Missionary Monthly was carried out. Miss Betty Parcels, Miss Donna Payne and Mrs. Edwards took part in the study period. Mrs. George Dyson sang. Mrs. George Taylor led in prayer. It was decided to have a Parcel Post in the fall to raise the allocation. Mrs. Roland Payne and Mrs. Sherwood Payne served a lunch.

Man-Sized Darts

GRAYFORD, Kent, England (CP).—A darts contest with a difference was played here. One team played with regulation darts while the other scored with bows and arrow and a larger board.

Aluminum plates give Bakery pies that "Homemade" flavour

An "Inside Story"

1. Baked in aluminum plates and bought in those same aluminum plates—that's why so many "over-the-counter" pies taste as good as the homemade kind.

2. Aluminum plates give you tender, thoroughly baked pies with the delicious juices all sealed in.

3. Aluminum plates mean no more broken pies for the baker . . . no more thick, soggy bottom crusts for you!

4. No other material is more "food-friendly" than aluminum. When you see aluminum on the outside of a food or a drink, there's an "inside story" of perfectly protected flavour, quality.

Hints to the Housewife

The natural minerals in foods and water sometimes leave a dark deposit on cooking utensils. It's easily removed from aluminum. Simply use a tablespoon of vinegar in boiling water.

VOL. CI. No. 32 — WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1950 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

Courtesy Pays Dividends In Tourist Trade

Courtesy on the part of Peterborough citizens is the main reason of the Kawartha's success this year in the tourist industry, said James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce today.

While many holiday areas in Ontario have not the expected number of visitors, said Mr. Fraser, this area is thriving. Tuesday he had difficulty trying to accommodate several groups of tourists. Resort operators reported all accommodation was booked until August 19.

Letters of Appreciation

Every day, explained Mr. Fraser, letters of appreciation for services rendered and for the courtesy received by tourists in this area are being delivered to the office. Most letters stress the courtesy and friendliness of the merchants and clerks in the various businesses in the Kawartha area.

H. E. Hamilton, district freight and passenger agent in Pittsburgh with the Southern Railway System, wrote: "Yes I am looking forward to next year; but the sad part of it is, there is an interval of 11 months. You may also rest assured that I am pretty well sold on Stony Lake, and do not hesitate to let it be known among my friends."

Rear Admiral E. L. Sackett (Retired) USA, who recently docked his cruiser at George St wharf, wrote: "I wish again to express our appreciation for your kind offer of a sight-seeing tour and dinner yesterday. We always regret having been unable to take advantage of the offer as we have been much impressed with your city and the surrounding country."

Referring to several local businesses which serviced his boat Mr. Sackett added: "We had hardly arrived on our first stay in Peterborough when they contacted us and offered their help. We soon found that we had only to ask them to get the best of information on all local subjects and services.

"Such kindness goes a long way to make Peterborough a five-star stop along the way".

Peterborough citizens may remember seeing Harry M Groat of Alliance, Ohio, in the city in July. He wore a black hat and curly beard to celebrate the centennial of Alliance, Ohio. The men were required to grow beards or buy a $1 shaving permit.

A Wonderful Place

Mr. Groat wrote Mr. Fraser "I want to tell you and all the wonderful people in the vicinity of Peterborough and Rice Lake that it is a wonderful place to spend a vacation or holiday as you folks call it. We enjoyed ourselves immensely.

"The folks are so polite and accommodating in everything. No one ever commented on my beard except in a complimentary manner. So in closing I want to say that I don't know a nicer place to spend my vacation than in that vicinity. I want to thank you and all the kind people for all the lovely things that happened to us in the month of July, 1950. All the trades people were very nice. Whether you spent $10 or five cents or asked for information, it was the same story. They said: 'Are you having a nice holiday' and always 'Thank you. Come back again'. So long until 1951."

Parting Gift Given Dr. Semple By AA's

The Rev. Dr. James Semple was honored at the regular weekly meeting of the Alcoholics Anonymous meeting held Tuesday evening, at Dixon House, by a presentation, prior to his departure to North Bay.

The presentation was a Shaeffer pen and pencil set that was given to Dr. Semple in appreciation of the great interest that he has shown in the movement. Mrs. Semple was also remembered by a gift.

Approximately 75 members and visiting members from Cleveland and Akron, Ohio, Toronto, Lindsay and other centres were in attendance.

DON'T LOOK NOW, but the baseball lights are finally making an appearance. Tuesday afternoon workmen of the Utilities Commission and the Boyce Engineering and Construction company of Toronto erected the first pole. Others were added today. UPPER LEFT, Utilities employees add the finishing touches to the lights, adjusting each, before the pole is raised. LOWER LEFT, L. Courneau, R. Hopkins, S. Watson, I. Watts and M. Montgomery inspect one of the 1500-watt lamps that will light the park for night baseball. RIGHT, the first pole is gradually lowered into its final resting place along the first baseline. This is the single type, 16 lamps, each 1500 watts, employed.

Gives Self Up, Wanted For Theft $375

John Joseph Balleny, 44, was remanded to Thursday today on a charge of theft. In the absence of a magistrate, Justice of the Peace James J. Fleming set bail at $2,000.

Balleny is charged with the theft July 28 of about $375 from the Reynolds Construction Company here. None of the money has been recovered yet, police say.

The theft was discovered July 31 when office staff, returning to the company's O'Connell Ave. office, found Balleny and the $375 missing.

He gave himself up in Niagara Falls, saying he was wanted by Peterborough police. He was brought here Tuesday night.

Balleny had been accountant for two weeks, knew the combination of the safe, but passed up a large payroll for Reynolds workers in Kingston.

Cement Delivery In Nick Of Time

Cement arrived today in the nick of time to keep Peterborough's street paving program rolling. Friday morning, the Bennett Paving Co. used its last bag of cement and laid off its crew of men laying curbs and gutters, first stage in paving a street.

Tuesday, when word was received that cement was on the way, the men were back at work without having lost a day. They were building forms on Monaghan Rd. south, where work was started last week. Their work on Park St. was completed Friday.

Foreman Jack Glover said enough cement had arrived to keep work going for some time.

At the Peterborough Block Supply, work was almost at a standstill because no cement had arrived. Manager Rod Armstrong said he hoped cement would arrive this week, but he had no definite promise of any. However, the company has a good supply of cement blocks for the present.

Workmen Place First Lights For Baseball At Riverside

Years of waiting by Peterborough baseball fans for lights at Riverside park ended Tuesday with the erection of the first pole, equipped with lights and accessories. Actually local workmen hoped that at least two poles would be put up Tuesday but the crane, brought from Toronto by the Boyce Engineering and Construction company, did not arrive in the city until noon. By 2:30 p.m. the 76-foot high lift was ready to begin work.

The first hole was started by T. F. Doughty's shovel about 2.45 p.m. beside the first baseline, where the pole was to be placed About five feet down water began to seep into the hole.

At the same time the crane started to raise the three-ton fixture. In about five minutes the pole was raised to the vertical and lifted about eight inches off the ground. There it was steadied by six Utilities workmen until the hole was finished. Gradually the truck moved the pole above its resting position and lowered it down. Guide wires were fastened to pegs to hold the giant pole in place.

Just when the lights will be turned on, allowing the senior Petes to play their first home night ball game, is still the 64-dollar question. It is hoped that all work will be completed by August 19.

Get Poles Up

All the poles will be erected this week, said a Utilities spokesman, but further wiring will be necessary next week.

Placed In Cement Base

Ten poles bearing lights will be placed around the park, reaching 80 feet into the air and buried 10 feet in the ground in a cement base. Two other poles will be used as guide poles for the wires.

Seven of the poles were western red cedars and five were douglas firs. They were first sent to Quebec by rail from British Columbia and then trucked to Peterborough. Cost of each pole is approximately $270.

Will Shift Diamond

Alex. Sinclair, recreation director, explained that the diamond will be shifted five feet south and three feet east. Future plans also include stands.

Fixtures Are Placed

On each single pole will be 16 lamps, 1,500 watts, and on each double pole, 32 lamps, 1,500 watts. Already the fixtures have been put on the poles. Each light is faced with glass which baseballs cannot break. Also each light is adjusted at different angles so that there will be no shadows or dark spots on the playing field. All the poles have safety platforms.

Early this spring the recreation commission and the city council agreed to provide lights for night baseball in Riverside Park, provided that the senior ball club would promote minor baseball, raise $15,000 towards the approximate $30,000 cost and to repay the balance through 25 per cent of the gate at each game.

The Petes this year have operated a summer ball school under the direction of their shortstop, Danny Brown. The $15,000 has been raised by subscriptions and has been turned over to the recreation commission.

Lumber Yard Office Burned

A brief fierce blaze of unknown origin destroyed the lumber yard office of the Peeling Lumber Co. on High St. near Lansdowne street Tuesday night.

The loss of the small wooden one-storey office building was between $500 and $700, Fire Chief George Smith said. Equipment inside included an oil space heater a typewriter, some filing cabinets and some desks.

Everything was lost. When the fire truck arrived after getting the call at 10:35 p.m., flames were already shooting high through the roof. The blaze attracted a large crowd of people who came on foot and in cars. Some of the cars interfered with the fire fighters by driving over the fire hose.

The fire alarm was turned in by taxi owner Gyp Feeley who was driving Mrs. Henry Phelan to her home just north of the lumber yard office. At first they thought it was Mrs. Phelan's house burning. They could see flames shooting through the roof.

Mrs. Phelan ran into her house to make sure her elderly father and children were all right and Mr. Feeley drove to a coffee bar on Brown St. to phone in the alarm.

"I could see flames at the front and underneath," Mrs. Phelan said.

Deputy Chief Virgil Carr directed the firefighters. Traffic officer Gordon Trennum and Constable Louis Rodreque handled the crowd and kept traffic clear.

Gangrene Sufferer Reported Improving

Nine-year-old Bobby Clark, who had his left arm amputated Wednesday after gas gangrene set in at the wound around a broken arm, was reported improving at Civic Hospital today.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clark of Warsaw, young Bobby had his arm amputated on the eve of his ninth birthday. Radium treatment was needed to stop the gangrene from entering the rest of his body.

He broke his arm July 30 when he fell out of an apple tree.

Outdoor Market Occupy 50,000 Sq. Feet

Proposed site of the outdoor market is the southwest corner of George and Rink Streets as reported to the council from the property committee by Ald. E. C. Braund, Tuesday night.

"This area, approximately 250 ft., by 200 ft., would accommodate two "U" shaped tables, one inside the other. The vendors could back their cars into both sides and the customers could walk in the middle, having vendors on both sides of them.

"We would suggest a small amount of levelling; a shed to house the tables, and toilet facilities.

"We suggest that this market would be operated only from April 1 to Oct. 31, and closed the balance of the year."

It was also proposed that the vendors' fee should be studied "with the view of a sharp upward revision, and that the vendors at the finish of their business leave a clean place."

Ald. Braund said it might be arranged with the Lacrosse Club for the use of their toilet accommodation.

Purpose of transferring the outdoor market stems from the prospect of setting up parking meters on the present location at Water and Charlotte Streets.

It is understood that the meters have been ordered, and that they may be put in place this fall.

Truck Topples Four Hurt

Four men were slightly hurt when their light pickup truck toppled down a 20-foot bank about three and half miles east of Crowe's Landing on the Stony lake road about 10.30 p.m. Tuesday.

In Civic hospital with cuts and bruises are John Boynton, Warren Rd., Toronto, and Peter Harris, Duncanan Drive, Toronto, who also has possible head injuries.

Provincial Constable Archie Eady, who investigated, said the truck apparently got over on the shoulder of the road and couldn't get back on the hard surface. It toppled over on its side as it started down the steep rock-fill bank and ended up on its top.

Driver of the truck was Ralph W. Cadman, who lives near Pittsburgh, Penna., and is staying at a cottage near Crowe's Landing. With him in the cab was James Hughes, also from Pittsburgh, staying with Cadman. Both received only minor injuries and did not go to hospital.

The two Toronto men were in the back of the light truck. The left top side and cab of the 1950 truck were damaged.

Provincial Constable J. C. McKendry assisted in the investigation.

Claim Firemen Taking Painting Jobs

Protest of Master Painters against some off-shift firemen taking painting jobs was referred by the council Tuesday night to the Fire Fighters Union for consideration and report as soon as possible.

"That's not giving us a break," said Mr. Arthur Bennett, speaking for a deputation of painters, who were supporting their petition signed by fifteen of their associates.

Mr. Bennett said the firemen were receiving good salaries which were paid by the taxpayers, including the master painters. "But they are still going out taking painting jobs on their off shift. It's time the council did something about it."

Mr. Bennett said the "one man-one-job" principle should apply.

"The condition brought to light tonight is a complaint of long standing," said Ald. Doug Miller. "I recollect that it was a problem before the council 15 or 20 years ago. It is a rather difficult problem, and councils have tried to bring it under control The Judge who presided at the arbitration of the Firemen's salaries several months ago made the statement that he himself was working in his own spare time and he said he did not know any law that could prevent him from doing such work in his off time."

Not Getting a Break

Mr. Bennett remarked that the council was not giving the painters a break, and "that this matter could be dealt with as easy as A,B,C," The firemen he was complaining of could sleep at night when they were on their own duty, and then could take painting jobs in the day time when they were off duty.

Many times painters had quoted prices on jobs and learned later that they had been underbid by some firemen, whose salaries the painters were helping to pay.

"The council will follow this through," Mayor Swanston replied to Mr. Bennett.

Approval Given Building Plans

Plans by Cliff Towle for a building of his own on George St. were approved by the council Tuesday night.

It will be 60 ft. frontage and 95 ft. in depth in the block on the west side of George St. between Rink and Lake Sts. O. J. Hayward, contractor, is ready to begin at once.

Since 1936 Mr. Towle has been in business on Water St., immediately south of the Examiner. It has grown in volume to such an extent that he has been forced to larger quarters. He is an authorized service distributor of most of the leading makes of special equipment for automobiles and tractors, and has long been regarded as an expert in carburetion, ignition, starting and other such essentials of automotive efficiency.

Cost of the Towle building is estimated at $35,000. Granting of the building permit was moved by Ald. T. D. Miller. Ample space is being laid out on the George St. lot for off-street parking.

Mr. Towle has been in this specialized business since 1918 when he was graduated from the Toronto Automotive School.

"It was conducted by a Frenchman," Mr. Towle recalled today to the Examiner, "and was far better than most people appreciated. His diploma meant one thing a good sound grounding in that auto work. I went to Lindsay in 1919 and came on to Peterborough in 1929.

"A big percentage of our business is wholesale, and we have to carry a tremendous stock. I stayed here as long as I could and have now come to the place where I've got to have extra room."

The Towle building, another business transfer to George St. south, will be steel and cinder block faced with brick.

The Towle application for a building permit was referred by City Engineer Chalmers to the council because it appeared to come within the scope of a garage service station and used car lot regulations the council adopted.

Although the Towle building is not a garage or service station Mr. Chalmers felt that he should send the application to the council. The Miller motion was only a formality.

Biggest Block Sale

The biggest single offering of real estate on the Peterborough market was made today by Braund and O'Toole, acting for the Toronto Savings and Loan Company.

These downtown central properties are for sale

The southwest corner of George and Hunter streets, from Elliott's drug store south to Deyell's book shop, and west to Steinkrauss's wholesale tobacco shop;

The southwest corner of Water and Hunter streets, from the Bank of Commerce south to Cherney's furniture store, and west to Fisk's barber shop.

The building on the north side of Hunter street containing Campbell and Best's hardware store, the Men's Style Shop, and the Canadian Pacific Express office.

Terms of the sale, Garth Braund said today, are 40 per cent cash.

The property will be sold at the owner's "designated price," he added, and there will be an investigation of all potential buyers.

Dog Trails Man Into Swamp, Arrest Is Made

Roger MacNaughton, 33, of Young's Point, charged with taking a truck without the owner's consent and drunk driving, was today remanded to Thursday on bail of $1,000 by justice of the peace James Fleming.

MacNaughton was trailed to a swamp two miles east of Nassau by a collie dog, Bud, owned by Miss Helen Brown, RR 9, Peterborough. Corporal Lloyd McClure who arrested MacNaughton said: "She and the dog went in there as brave as lions."

The dog has only three legs, the fourth having been amputated some time ago.

MacNaughton is charged with taking a truck owned by Mrs. Mabel Armstrong, RR 3, Peterborough. The truck was left parked on George St. near Simcoe with the ignition keys in it.

MacNaughton is said to have driven north on Highway 28, and to have cut east at Nassau along a township road. The trail ended at a rail fence through which the truck was driven. In the field, the truck made a circle, and came out through another part of the fence.

Miss Brown came down with her dog to see what happened to the fence, and later set the dog on the driver's trail. Miss Brown and her brother Charles are owners of the farm on which the fence was broken.

Nesting Night Hawk Now Cottagers' Pet

Cottage pets—worms, snails, turtles and a great variety of creatures— are held in fond affection not only by children, but usually by the entire family. At Mrs. Ford Turner's cottage on an island near Kawartha Park, the Turner family is watching with great interest an unusual family pet, namely, a night hawk, whose two eggs hatched in a nest only last week, which Peter Turner found one day almost on the threshold of his cabin.

Peter, 18-year-old son of Mrs. Turner, found the nest containing the two eggs and a few days after his discovery, they were hatched.

Mother Night Hawk is very jealous of her two youngsters and keeps a hawk eye for intruders. So cleverly does she conceal her nest on the ground that although the Turners have seen it several times, they always have a long search before they can locate it.

HOOKS BIG PICKEREL

Bob McCabe, 91 Crescent St., hooked an 8¼-pound pickerel Tuesday night in Little Lake about 100 yards from his front door. The fish, 28 inches long and a girth of 16 inches, was lured by a river runt while trolling Vernon Gosselin, Crescent St., accompanied Mr. McCabe. He caught a pickerel weighing more than seven pounds three weeks ago about 200 yards from where the fish was caught Tuesday.

Cricket Team From Bermuda Plays At Oval

The Bermuda Touring Cricket Team, which arrived in Montreal Sunday to start a five weeks' tour of Canada and the Eastern States, started its third Canadian game in Peterborough today, playing the Peterborough Whitaker Cricket Club at Nicholls Oval The Bermuda team, captained by Alma Hunt of Hamilton, Bermuda is made up of the best players selected from teams throughout Bermuda.

Playing in Montreal on Monday and in Ottawa on Tuesday, the team was entertained Tuesday at a banquet in Ottawa by the U.K. High Commissioner and left the capital early today in time for an 11:30 a.m. start at the Oval.

The game began at approximately 11:45 a.m. Peterborough winning the toss and putting the Bermuda team in to bat. By noon the score was 13 for two

E. Cotton took the first wicket L.B.W. and the second Bermuda batsman to be out, hit his wicket while endeavoring to hit a ball bowled by Frank Booth. Mr. Booth, who opened the batting, is captain of the Peterborough team.

Mayor Bowls First

Before the game started Mayor M. J. Swanston, who was at the Oval in time to greet the visiting team on arrival, bowled the first ball on the wicket, as a gesture of civic welcome to the men from Bermuda.

Many of the Bermuda men are playing on a turf pitch covered with matting for the first time. "In Bermuda we use matting over concrete with a turf outfield," Mr. Hunt explained. The mat goes only to the crease on the Oval pitch whereas the Bermuda players have a full length pitch of concrete with the mat reaching to the wicket.

The game was scheduled to end at 6 p.m. after which the players are being entertained by the city and Whitaker & Co. Ltd at a banquet at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Lunch and tea were served at the Oval by wives of Peterborough players.

The visitors will spend the night at the Grove School, Lakefield, before continuing their journey for the next game at Oakville.

Players for the Peterborough Whitaker are Frank Booth, Captain; Sidney Jennings, vice captain; W. G. Wright, R. Rollwagen, Frank Dyer, Jack Wild, E. Cotton, T. Scott, H. Dibben, W. Rashleigh and Ray Titshall.

Accident Victim Widely Mourned

The funeral for Miss Berniece Ruth, 20, Omemee, who was killed in a car-truck accident near Toronto Saturday, was held at the Comstock Funeral Home Tuesday afternoon. Friends and relatives filled the chapel to capacity and overflowed into the other rooms.

The service was conducted by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of the Omemee United Church. Burial was in Emily cemetery near Omemee.

Miss Ruth, who worked in the pay office of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd., here, was a passenger in a car driven by Melville Fountain, Peterborough, who is in Toronto General Hospital where his condition was last reported as "satisfactory."

Another woman passenger, Mrs. Hulda Gosplin of Wayne, Mich., who was also killed in the crash with the truck on Highway 11 a few miles north of Toronto. The driver and two passengers in the truck were unhurt.

Pall bearers were John Reid Gordon Reid, Edward Ruth Frank Irwin, John Hall, and Eric Gardiner.

Traders Decide What Stock Dividends Worth

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The current dividend action by International Paper Company is, in effect, a substantially increased dividend, plus a chance for a capital gain.

It does two things: It gives a stock dividend of 25 per cent; and a cash dividend of 75 cents a share, an increase from the 62½ cents paid in March and June.

Let us see how this affects a person holding, say, 100 shares:

His 100 shares is increased to 125. This does not increase his proportionate ownership in the company for every one else's shares have been increased likewise.

Whereas in June he received $62.50 on his 100 shares, in September he will receive $93.75 on his 125 shares.

In a year, if the 75-cent dividend is given each quarter, he will get $375 instead of $250, a gain of $125.

Both stock and cash dividends are payable Sept. 22 to shareholders on record Aug. 25. So people buying the stock up to Aug. 25 are willing to pay more so that they will get the benefits to be given on that date. That is the reason stock Tuesday jumped $6 ⅛ to $59 ⅝ on the Toronto Stock Exchange; $5 to $60 in Montreal, and $3.75 to $54 in New York.

Late Market Decline

Yesterday's closing price was below the day's figures, but this may have been due to a general late-market decline.

International's earnings are running in the neighborhood of $9 a share, so there would appear to be good prospects of its maintaining a dividend payment of $3 a share. This may keep the stock selling relatively high. If he retains his shares, he may make a nice capital gain out of the extra shares.

The amount of any such gain will depend on the price at which the stock sells on Aug. 25 and after, and on the price he paid when he bought.

The stockholder has to consider, among other things, that the stock has been advancing from a year's low of $37.50 and it is difficult to say how much of the current price, even before Tuesday's rise, may have been in anticipation of some such action as was taken. The more the action has been anticipated by an increasing price, the more the stock may drop at Aug. 25.

Simply An Increase

A capital gain, of course, is simply an increase in the value of something you have. If you buy a house for $10,000 and sell it at $11,000, you have a capital gain of $1,000. Or a person who bought 100 shares of International at $53 a share Monday and sold them at $59 Tuesday already has made a capital gain of $600.

International Paper Company's head office is in New York. Its chief Canadian subsidiary is Canadian International Paper Company, with head office in Montreal, and operations at Three Rivers, Gatineau and Temiskaming in Quebec; Hawkesbury, Ont., and Dalhousie, N.B.

File 2nd Application For Review Of Ruling

TORONTO, Aug. 9 (CP)—The Globe Printing Company Tuesday filed a second application with the Ontario Labor Relation's Board for a review of the board's decision certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild as bargaining agent for editorial employees of the Globe and Mail.

An earlier application by the company was rejected by the board Aug. 4. In its second appeal, the company said that "numerous representative employees" in the circulation department had notified the paper that they have revoked their membership in the guild and "it would appear that less than one-half of the eligible employees desire to be represented by the Toronto Newspaper Guild."

Soviet Writer Says Reds Think US Pushover In War

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Aug. 9—(CP)—It looks as if Russia thinks Britain and France would be pushovers in any major war. That, at least, is one conclusion to be drawn from a recent conversation between Russian propagandist Ilya Ehrenburg sometimes called the Socrates of Soviet Journalism, and Richard Crossman, left-wing Labor member of the British House of Commons.

The conversation took place at a luncheon party arranged by mutual friends during Ehrenburg's visit to London to speak at a Trafalgar Square "peace" rally. It was conducted in French through an interpreter, and there are two versions of what was said.

Speaking in the Commons later, Crossman quoted Ehrenburg as saying Britain and France are physically and morally incapable of waging war.

"I am quite convinced that nothing I said to Ehrenburg had any effect at all," Crossman said in his Commons speech. "That's why I felt singularly depressed by the conversation."

Denies Everything

In a 600-word letter published in The Times and The Manchester Guardian, Ehrenburg denied everything. What he did say, he wrote, was "that in my opinion the British people were not capable of aggression".

Crossman took up the cudgels again. He said there could be no doubt Ehrenburg used the words attributed to him. Anyway, any conflict between east and west would be described by Soviet propaganda as a war of aggression.

"What is vital," wrote the British MP, "is that Soviet policy should not be based on similar misapprehensions about British morale."

A Rough Passage

The stocky, white-haired Ehrenburg had a rough passage on his British visit. Reporters who attended his one press conference wrote sarcastically of his performance, saying his answers to direct questions seldom bore any relevance to the subject matter.

Ehrenburg also drew a reprimand from British playwright J. B. Priestley who, like Crossman, once was an ardent supporter of Russia. In reply to criticisms of Priestley's recently-changing attitude made by Ehrenburg at the Trafalgar Square rally, the British writer said:

"If Mister Ehrenburg and his colleagues are really afire with a crusading spirit, let them get up in Moscow, preferably when its peace-loving government is parading more armed men, tanks and warplanes for an afternoon show than we could muster for a war, and show some fiery crusading there."

Nurse Has Moved To Clarence House

LONDON, Aug. 9 — (AP). — Helen Rowe, a maternity nurse, moved into Clarence House, residence of Princess Elizabeth, on Tuesday night.

Nurse Rowe will attend the Princess at the birth of Elizabeth's second child, expected within the next few days. She also attended the Princess at the birth of Prince Charles in November, 1948.

Meanwhile, the King and Queen and Princess Margaret returned to Buckingham Palace from a holiday week-end at Sandringham, their country residence, to await the Royal birth.

Resolution Asks Marketing Plan

CHATHAM, Aug. 9 (CP) — A resolution to ask the Ontario Federation of Agriculture to take immediate steps in the establishment of a soft wheat marketing scheme, was endorsed by members of the Kent County Federation of Agriculture here Tuesday night.

E. B. Huffman said Ontario growers were to be commended on the way they met this year's storage and marketing problems. Most growers are holding their own wheat, he said.

Past president of the federation, Eugene King claimed the growers' problems were a "blessing in disguise."

"We've tried to build a marketing plan and this year's market emergency is helping strengthen the movement. We must handle our own marketing problems," he said. Mr. King added that farmers put up thousands of dollars on farm machinery but decline to finance as important a piece of equipment as a marketing "machine."

Now! Proof that BRUSHING TEETH RIGHT AFTER EATING WITH COLGATE DENTAL CREAM HELPS PREVENT TOOTH DECAY!

Research shows that decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel.

2 Years' research by LEADING UNIVERSITIES proves that test groups brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream showed amazing reduction in tooth decay!

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, was a startling reduction in the number of new cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

FURTHER PROOF FROM SCHOOL CHILDREN

Leading Canadian dentists examined and directed over 8,000 school children in corrective dental habits. In addition to diet changes where required, the children were asked to brush their teeth after each meal.

The results! 16% fewer children with tooth decay!... Cavities dropped from an average of 5 per child to just over 3! ... 53% more children received dental care that prevented either loss of teeth or serious dental troubles later in life! ... The number of children with no defects—increased by 200%!

CLEANS YOUR BREATH AS IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH!

Scientific tests prove that in 7 out of 10 cases, Colgate's instantly stops bad breath that originates in the mouth! Colgate's active penetrating foam gets into hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stops stagnant saliva odors—removes the cause of much bad breath!

HELP YOUR CHILDREN AVOID TOOTH DECAY!

Insist that your children always brush their teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream. They'll love Colgate's delicious double-minty flavor, so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly.

Union Leaders Fear Sabotage On Great Lakes

DETROIT, Aug 9 (CP) — The danger of sabotage in Great Lakes shipping was stressed Tuesday at a special meeting of American Federation of Labor Maritime Union leaders here.

The meeting was called to implement a recent pledge made in Washington by AFL and CIO maritime unions, permitting the government to bar arbitrarily any crew member. It was attended by union leaders representing 6,000 American and 12,000 Canadian Great Lakes sailors.

Speakers at the meeting said it would be "an easy matter" to drop a time bomb into the Sault locks.

They also stressed that shipping could be tied up by vessels scuttled in narrow straits at Port Huron on the St. Clair river, the Livingstone Channel in the Detroit river and at the Welland Canal.

Screening Committee

Two resolutions were drafted at the meeting. They ask:

1. Establishment of a screening committee of representatives of management, unions and U.S. naval intelligence.

2. Abandonment of a Second World War executive order permitting Canadian ships to carry cargoes between United States ports.

The union leaders noted that Canadian crews are only superficially checked by United States immigration authorities.

Russell Smith, Canadian AFL organizing director, said Canadian ore carriers could enter steel plants in the United States "and unload a group of possible subversives who could blow the place sky high."

Max Pierotti, Canadian AFL representative, charged that the chief danger was among crew members of the leftist Canadian Seamen's Union.

A Big Surprise

Mr. King's Personal Bequests May Run To More Than $100,000

OTTAWA, Aug. 9 (CP)—Personal bequests which may run to more than $100,000 were left by former prime minister King to relatives and friends, it was shown in his will made public Tuesday night.

The largest personal bequest was of $5,000 a year for life to Mrs. H. M. Lay of Barrie, the former prime minister's sister.

The other annuity—$2,500 a year—is to be paid jointly for life to Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey B. Patteson of Ottawa, friends of Mr. King for more than 50 years.

Largest cash gift—$10,000 apiece—go to Fred A. McGregor and J. Edouard Handy, long-time associates of Mr. King. Mr. McGregor, former private secretary, later was federal combines commissioner under Mr King and, at the time of the former prime minister's death, was helping him with his memoirs.

Mr. Handy for 17 years was personal secreary to Mr. King, serving him up until he died.

Remembers Minister

The Rev. Ian Burnett, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, which Mr. King attended, was left $2,000.

Miss L. F. Zavistke of Renfrew, received $3,000. She was assistant secretary for many years at Laurier House.

Miss Lillian Breen of Ottawa, assistant secretary when Mr. King died, and Miss Florence M. Moore of Ottawa, a former assistant secretary, are given $500 apiece.

John S. Nicol of Ottawa, who retired two years ago after 30 years as confidential messenger, was willed $1,500.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kelly, caretakers of the Kingsmere country home across the Ottawa river from here, receive $1,000 between them.

Hugh Armstrong, gardener at Laurier House, is given $250.

Mr. King willed $1,000 to Margaret Nevins, who is in the service of his sister Mrs. Lay of Barrie.

Something For Servants

Mr. King also specifiied that Laurier House employees at the time of his death not otherwise mentioned in the will were to receive $250 for each year of their employ and also three month's wages. About four persons will be affected.

In addition there were these bequests to relatives:

Sums of $5000 apiece to Miss Rosabel Lay of Barrie a niece; John Lay of Toronto a nephew; Mrs. Gordon P. Dunlop of Trenton a niece; Harry M. Lay of Ste. Adele Que. a nephew; Mrs. D. Macdougall King of Denver Colo., a sister-in-law; Mrs. W. Lyon M. King of Toronto, widow of Surgeon-Lieutenant W. Lyon M. King, a nephew, and Arthur Macdougall King of Toronto.

Commodore Horatio Nelson Lay of Washington, $1,000, and Robert Lay of Ottawa, $1,500.

The full amount of the personal bequests are to be paid to the legatees with the residue of the estate taking care of the succession duties.

Size Of Estate Said Shock To Ex-Premier

TORONTO, Aug. 9 (CP) — A close friend of Mackenzie King said Tuesday night that even the former prime minister was "shocked" to learn that his estate was valued at about $750,000.

"The size of Mr. King's estate will surprise many people," said Leonard W. Brockington, an Ottawa lawyer who is administrator of part of the estate. "It was for long unknown to him and at last was a shock even to himself."

During almost 50 years of public life, Mr. King "carefully husbanded his own resources and was never extravagant in his personal life," Mr. Brockington said in a dominion-wide CBC broadcast.

He explained the will—which leaves most of the estate to the Canadian people—at the request of the executors.

Kept As Trusts

Much of Mr. King's estate was made up of "honorable gifts and bequests" received during his lifetime. Lady Laurier, widow of another prime minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, left him Laurier House, a private home in Ottawa.

A group of 17 friends had presented Mr. King with a $225,000 fund for his personal use and to assist in the upkeep of Laurier House. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had given Mr. King $100,000.

"Mr. Rockefeller once told me," said Mr. Brockington, "that next to his own father, the late prime minister was the most powerful influence in his life."

Mr. King had dealt with all these gifts "not as though they belong to him personally but as though they were trusts imposed upon him for the benefit of his native land."

Parliament Dissolved

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 9 (AP). —Denmark's Social Democratic cabinet resigned early today and its parliament was dissolved following opposition party refusal to approve new import duties. Writs were issued for new parliamentary elections to be held Sept. 5.

Get Fines Back

GUELPH, Aug. 9 (CP).—Nineteen persons who paid $5 parking fines will get their money back, city council ordered Tuesday night. They were fined under a 1923 by-law banning parking outside the baseball stadium at Exhibition Park. There were complaints over the fines because there are no signs banning parking in the area and in other years the by-law has not been enforced.

Evelyn Lorenz is Married To Joseph Borden, Toronto

In St. Peter's Cathedral, where the altar was beautifully decorated with gladioli of pastel shades marriage vows were pledged on Monday by Miss Evelyn Lorenz and Mr. Joseph Borden, the Rev Leonard Sammon of Pembroke officiating at the nuptial mass The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lorenz of Peterborough and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Borden of Donkin, Nova Scotia.

A gown of blush satin, which fell gracefully into a train bordered with lace, was the bride's choice. It was fashioned on simple lines with inset yoke of lace in the fitted bodice and tightly fitting sleeves which came to point over her hands. She wore a fingertip veil of tulle illusion caught by a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade of regal lilies centred with an orchid.

Mr. Lorenz gave his daughter in marriage and she was attended by her sisters, Miss Rita Lorenz as maid of honor and Miss Loretta Lorenz as bridesmaid. The attendants' frocks were of yellow and green taffeta and they wore matching headdresses and gloves and were carrying nosegays of Johanna Hill roses, cornflower and gladioli cups.

Mr. Stewart Jewell was groomsman and ushers were Jack Sullivan and Gordon Lorenz.

Church organist Mrs. Marion Aman accompanied Miss Helen Hajnik when she sang "On this day", "Panis Angelicus" and "Ave Maria" during the mass and the signing of the register.

Receiving the guests afterward at the reception in her home, the bride's mother wore a gown of pale blue with navy and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by Mrs. G. Walker, sister of the groom, who wore a grey dress with white and grey accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses.

For travelling on her honeymoon trip to Montreal and to Nova Scotia the bride wore a summer suit of tan gabardine with white and green accessories and when going away had a corsage of white carnations.

On return the couple will make their home in Toronto.

Forest Fires May Start In Novel Ways

TORONTO — (CP) — A veteran forest protection official, on fire-watching duty in a tower in northern Ontario recently, noticed a slight puff of smoke curling from the grass at the foot of the tower.

Investigation showed the dry grass was being lit, blade after blade, by the sun's rays reflecting through a broken piece of glass.

"That may be an uncommon way for forest fires to start," he said in an interview, "but people would be surprised at the number of forest fires that start in strange ways."

Careless humans cause the majority of all forest fires he said, but birds, animals—even broken bottles—can also be guilty.

Rangers investigating a fire near Espanola, found that a tree, freshly cut by a beaver, had fallen across a power line, causing a short circuit which had set fire to the trees.

"Smoking" Birds

Even birds have unwittingly set fire to more than one stretch of woodland, it has been found. Sometimes a bird will pick up a lighted cigaret butt and carry it off to its nest. In no time at all, the highly inflammable structure is aflame, and in turn sets fire to the tree.

Sometimes cabins in the wilderness the doors locked and the windows boarded up have mysteriously burst into flames and started a forest fire.

"Quite often this is just a case of hungry mice chewing on matches, causing them to ignite," said one forest ranger.

Fusees, a type of flare dropped behind a train to warn the next one coming behind that there is a train ahead of schedule, are a fairly common cause of fires.

Sometimes the spike used to weight the flare strikes a rock instead of the earth or a tie and bounces into the dried brush along the right-of-way.

Peterborough Girl Marries In White Plains

In White Plains, N.Y., on Saturday, Miss Frances Agnes O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. O'Brien of Sophia St., Peterborough, was married to Mr. Launcelot James Cooney, son of Mrs. Launcelot J. Cooney of the Bronx and the late Mr. Cooney.

The ceremony was performed in Our Lady of Sorrows church by the Rev. W. J. Cavanaugh and Mr. John Crowe sang during the mass. White gladioli, asters and palm were on the altar. A reception for members of the immediate families was held in Donnybrook Lodge, Scarsdale.

Mr. O'Brien gave his daughter in marriage. She was attired in a gown of white Chantilly lace made with an off-the-shoulder neckline, a bertha trimmed with sequins, long pointed sleeves and a full skirt. Her fingertip veil of illusion was arranged from a matching lace cap. She carried a mother-of-pearl prayer book adorned with white orchids, stephanotis and satin streamers.

Miss Mary O'Brien of Toronto was maid of honor for her sister, wearing a bouffant frock of nile green taffeta with off-the-shoulder illusion neckline and a matching picture hat and mitts. Her cascade bouquet was of yellow roses. Another sister, Miss Barbara O'Brien of Hamilton was bridesmaid and wore a similar frock of yellow taffeta and matching hat and mitts. She carried Talisman roses in a cascade bouquet.

Mr. James G. Cooney of the Bronx was his brother's groomsman. Ushers were James O'Brien of Peterborough, brother of the bride, and John Sherlock and Hugh Barrett, both of White Plains.

Following a wedding trip through New England, Canada and Niagara Falls, the couple will live at 70 Harding St., White Plains.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing Hamilton and has been on the staff of St. Agnes Hospital in New York State. Mr. Cooney, a veteran squad leader of the Ninth Infantry Division, is associated with Launcelot Restaurant and Bar in White Plains.

Oshawa Wedding Dolores Bannon Of Interest Here

Of much interest here is the wedding at Oshawa Saturday, in Knox Presbyterian Church, of Delores Lucille Bannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bannon, formerly of Peterborough, to Mr William Albert Rorabeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rorabeck, all of Oshawa.

The Rev. H. F. Davidson performed the ceremony, Mrs. Marion Dewland played the organ and Mrs. Kelvin James was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white Chantilly lace and net over satin, designed in a basque bodice with high round neckline and sheath sleeves with lily points, atop a billowing skirt of net inset with wide lace panels. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was gathered to a bonnet of satin and lace and she carried a cascade of red roses and fleur d'amour. Attendants were Mrs. Charles Lintner of Whitby, matron of honor, and Miss Kathleen Tink, Oshawa, bridesmaid. They were identically gowned in frost white eyelet organdy over summer green taffeta with matching mittens and had hand-crocheted hats, tied under the chin with green tulle which also veiled the wide brims. They carried round bouquets of Talisman roses.

The groom was attended by his brother Mr. Morley Rorabeck and ushers were Gordon Bannon, brother of the bride, and Charles Lintner of Whitby.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Bannon chose a dress of marsh rose crepe and lace, a small navy taffeta hat, navy accessories and a corsage of white roses. The groom's mother wore a silver grey dress with green flower motif, small green felt hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

After a reception in the Legion Hall the couple left to honeymoon in the Haliburton district. The bride wore a navy crepe dress with white pique trimming, white and navy straw hat, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rorabeck will live in Oshawa.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Mrs. C. I. Lowery, of San Bernardino, California, writes as folows: "One of my opponents melded three aces and then discarded her one remaining card which was a king. Her side did not have a canasta, so she was not out. My partner could take the king. What should be the procedure? I read your column every day and hope you can answer, as there are a whole bunch of us interested."

Mrs. Bowery's question is a rather important one as this situation happens quite often. Here is what should be done according to the laws of canasta.

The last paragraph of law 10 reads as follows: "When a player melds out legally, he need not discard. At all other turns to play a player must both discard and retain at least one card in his hand after discarding."

The laws further provide that a discard once made must stand. Hence the discard of the king stands and Mrs. Bowery's partner is entitled to take the discard pile.

The meld of the aces does not stand since that would leave the player without any cards in her hand. Instead the aces become penalty cards. As such, they are left face up on the table, and definitely are not melded. Instead they are treated the same as cards in the player's hand except that they must be discarded one at a time unless they can be melded legally.

✧ ✧ ✧

At her next run to play the lady with the aces on the table will draw. If she can take the discard pile she may do so. In this event, she will have cards in her hand and will be able to meld the aces. Or maybe she will be able to complete a canasta in which case she may meld the aces and go out.

Failing either of these nice happenings she will have to discard one of the three aces. The same process will have to be repeated at each of her next two turns to play whereupon she will be rid of the aces and be able to play normally.

Finally, if some one else goes out before she is rid of the aces they will be counted against her. When some one goes out penalty cards are counted as if they are in the player's hand.

You Can't Shield Children From All Life's Difficulties

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it fair to bring children into the world when everything is so uncertain? Some people, through no fault of their own have such unhappy lives. Is it worth while having children from the parents standpoint?

MRS. I. N.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANSWER: It is certainly as serious a matter to give life as it is to take it, and men and women should consider long and thoughtfully what sort of chance they are giving a child before they bring it into the world. Certainly no one has the right to give a child such a rotten deal as to handicap it with the stigma of illegitimacy, or to doom it to a lifetime of suffering by inflicting on it hereditary diseases.

But if people refrained from having children until they could assure them a perfectly safe and prosperous journey through life there would never be another baby born, because there has never been a safe world and there never will be one.

Life Always An Adventure

Always, and to every child, life will be an adventure full of dangers and difficulties through which he must fight his way and no provisions of the parents can safeguard him. No man knows what fate may befall his children. And that is what makes life interesting and exciting, and probably no baby, if given its choice would prefer to come into a cut and dried world, no matter how safe.

As to your question whether it is worth while having children from the parents' standpoint, I should say yes, if the parents are normal human beings. Possibly people who are selfish, self-centered egotists do not find children worth the trouble they cost, but most me nand women get the purest happiness they ever had out of their babies.

As we grow older our interest in ourself wanes. We don't care so much about ourselves and our personal hopes. We don't believe in ourselves so much. We know that nothing much awaits us in the future. What was in us to do, we have done, and it wasn't so hot. And so if we have no children we have no keen interest in the future.

But if we have children, we still have a stake in the game. What we haven't done we expect them to do. Where we have failed we look to them to succeed. We live again in them and it keeps us keyed up, alert and young ourselves.

DEAR MISS DIX: What is the difference between an intelligent wife and an ignorant one? Are consideration and truthfulness the keynotes to happiness? If either the husband or the wife is a gossiper, does it make for unhappiness in marriage? Does knowing mum about one's affairs show superior intellect? These subjects have been matters of discussion in our circle and we would like to know what you think.

ANSWER: First, I am tempted to say that the difference between an intelligent wife and an ignorant one is the difference between success or failure in a marriage. An intelligent woman is better fitted in every way to be a helpmeet to her husband than a stupid one.

Second. Consideration whether we apply it to other people or they apply it to us, certainly makes for happiness, since we all love to have our little peculiarities respected and deferred to and object to having people tread on our toes. But I doubt if any of us could speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth to our fellow creatures without making wholesale enemies and being avoided as if we had the plague.

Third, Stevenson rated being a gossip as one of the most desirable qualifications that a wife could have. I agree with him. A gossiper need not be a scandal-monger. Certainly the wife who cannot go two blocks to the grocery store without seeing and hearing something interesting makes a dinner table a far pleasanter place than is the one presided over by a silent woman who never says a word except to correct Junior about the way he eats.

Fourth. Keeping mum about one's affairs is a bar to friendship, but it is no indication of profundity of intellect. People who don't talk are generally empty-headed ones who have nothing to say. We used to fall for the great silent men, but now we know them for what they are. Just stuffed shirts.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR MISS DIX: If a man has done wrong and paid the penalty and is determined to come back and go straight, is it best for him to return to the town in which he has always lived when he is let out of prison? Is it possible for him to ever entirely come back?

SEEKING THE WAY

◇ ◇ ◇

ANSWER: Of course, he can come back if he wishes to do so. Many have gone back to the old home town and made good there but I think it is far easier for them to do so in some strange place in which they will not be continually reminded of their past and have it held against them.

FRIED CHICKEN is easy to make if you follow The Examiner's latest release, the Poultry Book.

Spring Chicken Maryland Useful Recipe for Family

Young and old come to the table in a gay mood when the odor of fried chicken beckons. And hardly a snack will be left for supper if it's Spring Chicken Maryland, as described in the Examiner's fourth release, 250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds.

Like the first three books of the series the Poultry Book is crammed full of exciting pictures and recipes for new and unusual ways of serving, together with the old standbys like this one:

Spring Chicken Maryland

3 broiling chickens.
6 tablespoons fat.
¼ cup flour,
½ teaspoon salt,
⅛ teaspoon pepper,
2 slices salt pork, cut fine,
Dash nutmeg,
3 cups cream or evaporated milk,
Parsley.

Clean chickens and cut into quarters. Brush with fat and dredge with flour, salt and pepper. Fry salt pork until brown. Add nutmeg. Place chickens on pork and baste with melted butter. Cover the skillet and cook chickens about 30 minutes. When tender, pour in one cup cream. Remove cover and let cream cook down. When it is fairly thick, pour in another cup of cream, cook and add the third cup. Cook until thick. Serve chickens with the cream gravy. Garnish with parsley. Serves eight to 10.

The Examiner's Poultry Book as well as the Snack Book, Leftovers, and the Cake Book, are available for 25 cents and a coupon clipped from any issue of the Examiner at the Examiner office, from your carrier or at Braund's Home Food Markets.

Winning of Maid Difficult Fight In Modern India

TORONTO (CP). — The wooing and winning of a maid in India is a tough battle.

But it can be done, says a vivacious woman doctor from Punjab.

Dr. Harbans Kaur Indarjit said in an interview here the family system of marriage still stands in India but the habit of choosing one's own mate is gradually seeping in.

If boy meets girl and they want to marry, the boy gets the sympathetic ear of either his father or his mother. From there on it's up to them to decide, she said.

Elopement? Well, sometimes, but the guilty pair must bear the punishment of being cast forever from the important family circle.

Of her own marriage, Dr. Singh said: "We had to fight, of course, but I was a captain in the army and he was a major, so that made it a little easier."

The attractive, dark-eyed doctor, despite the fact she is in favor of the Western custom of choosing a mate, can still put forth a good argument for family influence.

Expect Too Much

"Why, our mothers and fathers were perfectly happy," she says. We expect too much of man and woman. We are looking for perfection and after all neither can go on putting on a show forever. Then comes disillusionment."

In India Dr. Singh points out a woman hasn't time to decide that she has been handed a bad bargain. The man she marries is the only one she has ever seen, and then before she knows it she has started having her family.

Dr. Singh, an inspector of health centres in Punjab, is in Canada to study health and welfare.

"Do you realize," she says, "that in the whole of India there are more women doctors than in Canada."

"Of course, we women must admit that probably in certain fields, such as surgery, man is better suited. There is the aspect of emotionalism in a woman."

Second Birthday For Quadruplets

JOHANNESBURG (CP). — The Zulu quadruplets—three girls and a boy—who were under observation at the Bridgman Hospital here for their first year, have celebrated their second birthday.

They are now being cared for at the Salvation Army settlement on the borders of Northern Zululand. The matron of the small hospital there said that the four already visit the local school to play with other children, and are considered advanced, both physically and mentally, for their age.

Hats and Shoes Of Raffia Popular in UK

LONDON (CP).—Raffia, cane and basketwork accessories are first choice with British holiday-makers this year.

Whether for Britain's south coast or the French Riviera, basketwork accessories are designed to suit every occasion.

For sophisticated black linen dresses and beachwear, there are cane Chinese coolie hats edged with black, cane lunch-basket handbags embroidered in black, and raffia open-work sandals with black raffia-covered wedges.

For the first time since the 1920s, shops are selling basket-work court shoes in white with linen-covered heel. The price is 11s 6d. ($1.78).

Thick rope-work sandals with deep wedge and ankle-strap can be found in many colors at 45s (6.95) up. These can be matched with large, rope-work raffia handbags costing 15s upwards.

Huge Picture Hats

For plain linen dresses there are huge raffia picture hats with net-work crown and thatch-work brim, worn with capacious raffia envelope handbag with shoulder strap. Finely worked, they are suitable for town-wear and can be combined with fine, open-work raffia sandals or net-work walking shoes.

There are many pretty raffia belts or linen belts, embroidered with raffia. Raffia embroidery is popular on plain, expensive linen dresses and suits.

Vying with raffia accessories are pretty, pastel-shaded linen shoes and bags. These are cheaper in price and therefore more popular with the younger set.

For the first time since the war, cheap, shapeless straw beach-hats are procurable on every promenade for 5s.

Exciting Trimmings Used On Latest in Paris Hats

By DOROTHY WADDINGTON

PARIS (Reuters). — The Paris millinery picture, as sketched in collections now showing, has two outstanding trends.

First, for the small girl, there are many variations of high crowns to add inches to the silhouette.

And the tall girl will find her complement in draped turbans which continue on to the shoulder, softly framing one side of the face.

Simplicity of line is the sign of 1951 millinery. Glamor is introduced with exciting new trimmings. Diamond pins dangle for the centre of Mary Stuart bonnets. Simple velvet berets are embroidered with good-sized brilliants.

Dior, to give supplementary inches to the small girl, has towering hats for tiny heads with "corkscrew buns" made of fur, tulle, or even hair, crowning a plain-Jane hair-do.

Jacques Fath, whose millinery is always sensational, tops a slender silhouette with parson-shovel hats, diminutive derbies and little feather caps trimmed with pale feathers which sweep forward into birds' beaks.

Have Pixie Caps

Maud and Mano feature pixie caps in panne velvet, the old-time stand-by of milliners but the sensation of the new season.

Albouy has new veil treatments, using two layers of fabrics contrasting in color and mesh. A large black veil is worn over a fine flesh-colored mesh which tints the skin.

Rose Valois offers solutions for the girl with "difficult" hair. The first group suggests the North African chechia, high round cap worn by Zouvaes. The Parisian touch is introduced by a side tilt, although the cap still completely covers the hair.

Another hat inspirtation is founded on the kepi of the Foreign Legion. The woollen scarf falls over the back of the neck and over the shoulders to protect hair from snow or rain storms.

CANADIAN CITIZENSHIP: "I was born in Canada, one of a large family. A midwife was the only attendant, consequently my birth was not registered. However, I do have my baptismal lines. Is this sufficient to have me granted Canadian citizenship?"
The Clerk of the Peace office at the City Hall says you must go to the Registrar of Births, Parliament Buildings, and have your birth registered now. However, that only holds if you were born in Ontario. The best thing for you to do is contact the Registrar of Births in the province in which you were born, explain the situation to them, and they will give you full details.
MALE STENOGRAPHER: "I am one of those peculiar males who actually like typing and office work. I shall be ready to accept a position in October. What is the maximum salary I may expect?"
Your starting salary, if you are really good, will range between $30 and $32.50. After that the rate of your increases depends entirely on you. One interesting fact is this. Plenty of men employers prefer a male stenographer.

NewCommander Led Local Men In German War

The appointment of Brigadier John M. Brockingham, CBE, DSO, 38, of Victoria, B. C., to command the new Special Force Brigade now being formed has aroused warm interest in Peterborough. Hundreds of city and district veterans served under him in Europe from the time Brigadier Rockingham took command of the Ninth Brigade, the Canadian Highland Brigade, in 1944 just after the Highlanders had broken out of Caen. The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry regiment was the spearhead of the brigade in many attacks under Brigadier Rockingham. The other two infantry regiments in the Ninth were the North Nova Scotia Highlanders and the Highland Light Infantry of Galt.

"Rocky," as he was known to his fellow soldiers, joined the 9th Infantry Brigade, in August 1944 and was its commander until VE-Day.

Excellent Tactician

Former officers now living in Peterborough who served with him were unanimous in their opinion of the well-built, six foot three brigadier, as a very able soldier. Major Harry Willis of the S. D. and G's said he was an excellent tactitian and "very sound all the way through."

Ken Kingston, a general staff officer of the 2nd Division said his work at the Scheldt Estuary in an amphibian action and at Boulogne were fine examples of his leadership. Major Willis said Brigadier Rockingham encountered all types of actions and dealt with them with equal efficiency.

Born in Australia, the brigadier came to British Columbia as a youth. In 1935 he joined the Canadian Scottish Regiment in Victoria and was mobilized with that militia unit when war broke out in September, 1939.

Units of the Ninth Brigade were the first Canadians to cross the Rhine into Germany ending up at Emden, Germany.

Brigadier Rockingham won the Distinguished Service Order while leading the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry in Normandy, and a bar to the DSO in the Rhine crossing. After the war he was made a Commander of the British Empire (CBE) for his outstanding war service.

He returned to civilian life shortly after the Japanese surrender in August, 1945. He is married and has one son and one daughter.

ATTENDANCE DOWN

Attendance last week on the city playgrounds was 6,061, slightly down on the figures for other weeks this year. At the same time the attendance was the average weekly attendance of 1,949.

That's A Good Catch

MARMORA, Aug. 9 (ENS)— Catching an 16½ lb. lunge measuring 44 inches on Monday Elmer Gibson of Bowmanville broke the lull in fishing success in this district. The catch was the result of a dramatic struggle in which Mr. Gibson had to get out of his boat to end the fight.

Occupying one of William Bonter's cabins this week, Mr. Gibson sailed across the north side of the lake and using a Heddon Crazy Crawler as surface bait, got a bite at about 9:30 a.m.

After battling with the lunge for about 20 minutes, the line broke.

Out of the boat jumped Mr. Gibson and with his bare hands, he subdued the fish. This was Mr. Gibson's first really good catch in six years.

Council To See 'Heart's Core' In A Body

For the premiere of Robertson Davies play "At My Heart's Core," specially written by him for Peterborough's centennial year, Mayor M. Swanston said at the council meeting Tuesday night: "The best thing we can do to show our appreciation is to attend in a body."

The first performance will be Monday, Aug. 28. In the council's working calendar that date called for meetings of the finance committee and the board of works.

"We could hold our meetings in the afternoon at 4 o'clock," Ald. Herbert Young suggested.

Ald. E. C. Braund remarked with a note of humor that two hours in the committee room, followed by the theatre engagement, would be a long sitting.

Aldermen Dewart and Gillespie suggested that the committee meetings be transferred to Tuesday night to provide ample time for the council to attend "At My Heart's Core."

"Those two committees often take more than two hours," Ald Gillespie said.

The letter from the Centennial Committee requesting the assistance of the council in providing a reception for the cast and invited guests was referred to the legal and reception committee.

The Davies play has been written around a theme of pioneer life in the county of Peterborough about 1837. The Centennial Committee is inviting the members of the council, Board of Education, with the mayors of the neighbouring municipalities of the Peterborough district, and others.

Doctors Trying Separate Twins

MELBOURNE, Aug. 9 (Reuters).—Doctors trying to separate Siamese twin girls born in April have taken a minute sample of their brain matter in a skull operation to determine whether they can be safely parted.

The babies, joined by the tops of their heads, weigh about 14 pounds each. They have been under medical observation since birth.

The twins' father, Erskine Smith of Natone, Tasmania, was told last month that it would take two months of examinations before an attempt could be made to separate them. Surgeons would have to cut through bony structure close to the brain of each child.

After yesterday's initial operation the twins' condition was reported "satisfactory."

The babies, named Kathleen Rose and Lexie Irene, have been bottle-fed on much the same diet as their mother used for her other five children.

They have separate personalities. Kathleen Rose is darker and livelier than Lexie Irene.

Cliveden Hospital Opened To Public

TAPLOW, Buckinghamshire, England. — (CP)—Cliveden Hospital built in 1940 by the Canadian Red Cross Society, threw its doors open to the public recently on a special visitors' day.

Special buses brought visitors from Slough and Maidenhead in Berkshire to view the inside workings of the hospital which the Canadians turned over to a British committee in 1946.

One of the special attractions was a machine called a phonocardiagraph, which makes a photographic record of heart sounds.

The hospital is on the Astor estate, whose grounds overlook a famous stretch of the Thames river.

FRACTURES LEG

David Walling of Lindsay, crew member of the Navy frigate Swansea, suffered a broken leg Monday when the motorcycle he was driving crashed into a stone wall in Halifax. His condition is not serious

Petitions Pro Gas Station Counter Cons

City Planning committee is being asked by the council to reconsider the application of Conger Lehigh Coal Co. for a permit to build a service station at the southeast corner of Lansdowne and Snerbourne Sts.

A petition opposing the service station was signed by 19 property owners and nine tenants of that east end of Lansdowne St. and vicinity. On the other hand, T. J. Carley, K.C., representing the applicant company submitted another petition from 47 citizens "who do not object to it." Thirty-two of them are owners and 15 tenants. Of those 47 persons, ten had signed the prior petition. Seven of them were owners and three tenants.

Mr. Carley argued that there should be room for legitimate business expansion, and emphasized the variety of business already established on Lansdowne St., east of George St. Included in his list were: gasoline stations, tourist homes, groceries, tinsmith, Reliable Welding, Peterborough Transport, plans of Borden Co. to build on a vacant lot, and so on. Some of the opponents to the service stations were already in one kind of business or other.

Hastings Home For Aged Granted $64,000

TORONTO, Aug. 9 — (CP).— Representing half of the cost of construction completed to date, the Ontario Government to-day granted the Hastings Home for the Aged $64,000. Total cost of the project is estimated at between $350,000 and $400,000 of which the government will contribute half.

The grant was made under legislation passed in 1949 in which the government agreed to share equally with municipalities the construction of accommodation for the aged.

"Good county homes ease the pressure on our hospitals both general and mental by being able to look after the aged people," Welfare Minister Goodfellow said. Three such homes were in process of construction, while one at Sault Ste. Marie had been completed.

The minister said that a similar home would open in Belleville shortly and that the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry were building one near Cornwall. Ontario County will build near Whitby.

The minister said that eventually provision would be made for the care of married couples without the necessity of separating them.

UAW Protests Gregg In Job

WINDSOR, Aug. 9 — (CP). — Appointment of Hon. Milton F. Gregg as Federal Labor Minister has been protested by leaders of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) in Windsor.

In a telegram to Prime Minister St. Laurent, George Burt, Canadian UAW director, said "Mr. Gregg's background in labor matters is completely lacking."

The telegram said there are "a number of outstanding Liberal members who are better qualified," and added that Mr. Gregg's qualifications in other fields are "indisputable."

A public statement by Mr. Burt and three other UAW leaders here said that David Croll, Liberal member for Toronto Spadina, or Health Minister Martin, would be "much more qualified by their experience."

It was signed by Mr. Burt, and supported by presidents of the big UAW Windsor locals— Earl Watson of Local 195, Roy England of Local 200, and Webster Cornwall, president of Local 240.

Mr. Gregg previously held the Veterans' Affairs portfolio.

Recruiting Response Wonderful–Claxton

MONTREAL, Aug. 9—(CP)— Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said today that response to the army's appeal for recruits for a special army brigade for the United Nations was "wonderful even in advance of the official campaign."

At Dorval airport here where he was observing first test flights of Canada's first F-8 Sabre jet fighter, Mr. Claxton said in an interview that hundreds of volunteers "who wanted to sign up right away," besieged recruiting offices across the country Tuesday.

"We have put extra men on recruiting staffs now," he said "and we hope to be able to handle crowds without delay."

Giants Divide Twin Bill, Laabs Sparkplug

By The Associated Press

Who says Chet Laabs is washed up? Surely not Buffalo Bisons or Toronto Maple Leafs

Fact is, each would like to have him back. But Chester, home-run hitter de luxe, will do his slugging for Jersey City Giants this season.

The Bisons had the 36-year-old outfielder last year and they let him go to Toronto. Then the Leafs gave him his walking ticket early this season—after all, hadn't the once mighty powerhouse hit only one homer for them?—so Chester shopped around.

Enter Jersey City. Joe Becker, the Little Giants skipper, picked him up. Perhaps a few pinch-hitting roles. Nothing more.

But when Chet exploded a homer against Toronto June 7th, Becker decided to give him a regular berth.

Laabs hasn't stopped hitting since. He's socked 24 homers in all—six against Buffalo three against Toronto.

Split Doubleheader

The stocky flychaser found the range three times against Buffalo Tuesday night as the teams split a doubleheader.

The Bisons captured the opener 3-2. Jersey's tallies resulted from Laab's two-run poke in the sixth. But it couldn't keep Lynn Lovenguth from his fifth victory.

The nightcap was a different story. Laabs hit two homers in this one. The Little Giants prevailed 9-7 in 10 innings. Laab's second homer of the game in the 10th inning, snapped a 7-7 tie and gave Tony West the nod over Harry Byrd. In all, Laabs drove in seven runs, five in the second game.

Toronto divided a twin bill with Syracuse. Art Hartley stopped the Leafs 5-0 on six hits in the opener. But lefty Jocko Thompson paced the Maple Leafs to a 7-3 victory in the second game as he scattered five Syracuse hits and struck out 12.

Baltimore scored twice in the 13th inning to defeat the league-leading Rochester Red Wings 5-3. Eddie Pellagrini's double snapped a 3-3 tie.

Joe Landrum, making his first start for Montreal, pitched the Royals to a 5-3 edge over Springfield. Landrum yielded five hits and walked one man while fanning eight.

Locke, Mangrum In Playoff For Golf Prize

By JERRY LISKA.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP).—An "extra - inning" international showdown between British open champion Bobby Locke and 1946 U.S. open titlist Lloyd Mangrum was on tap today for the all-American pro tournament top prize of $2,500.

They Popped out of newhere on Tuesday to add to the usual confusion in Tam O'Shanter's Fairways spectacle by deadlocking at six under par 282 for first spot in the all-American.

An 18-hole playoff (2 p.m. EDT) was ruled by promoter George S. May.

Meanwhile, a play-off among five 294 shooters had been conducted which finally landed Lawson Little among the 32 eligibles for the high world tourney which starts Thursday.

Precedence Established

Besides, some precedence was established when Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and Wilford Wehrle from Ormond, Fla., tied in the all-American amateur Sunday and settled their affair at 18 holes Tuesday.

Stranahan won in a vague finish in which Wehrle forgot medal-play rules and picked up on the 18th green. Technically, he was disqualified, but Stranahan with a four under par 68 was five strokes ahead when the error occurred.

Locke, banned from U. S. fairways for a year by the Professional Golfers' Association for dodging dates last summer, exploded a closing nine 31, five under par, to negotiate his tie with Mangrum. Both had final-round 67's, but Mangrum did his spurting with a first-nine 31, also five under par.

Planning Struggle

CALCUTTA, Aug. 9 (Reuters) —P. C. Joshi, expelled Indian Communist party secretary, Tuesday charged Communist leaders in India with "planning an immediate armed guerrilla struggle in as many rural areas as possible" Internal, political and economic conditions in India were against such a revolution, he said.

Requests Stricter Laws To Curb Spying In US

WASHINGTON Aug. 9 (AP)—President Truman Tuesday asked Congress for immediate action on stricter laws to deal with spies and deportable aliens, but even as he made the request he warned: "We must not be swept away by a wave of hysteria."

In a 3,500-word message, Truman said that, in addition to armed aggression, "Communist imperialism also seeks to weaken and overthrow free nations by working within their borders."

Therefore, he said, Congress should pass these laws before the close of the present session:

1. Extend the statute of limitations for peacetime espionage. At present, a violator of this law must be prosecuted within three years. Truman thinks that is not long enough, and should be extended.

2. Require persons who have received instructions on spying or subversive tactics from a foreign government or political party to register under the foreign agents registration act.

Security Rules

3. Give the president additional power to set up security rules for the protection of military bases and other defense installations.

4. Permit the attorney-general to supervise aliens subject to deportation, and make them report where they are and what they are doing.

Truman's message was read to the Senate just before it was scheduled to act on anti-Communist and internal security legislation.

Truman said:

"Laws forbidding dissent do not prevent subversive activities; they merely drive them into more secret and more dangerous channels.

"We must therefore be on our guard against extremists who urge us to adopt police state measures. Such persons advocate breaking down the guarantees of the Bill of Rights in order to get at the Communists.

"They forget that if the Bill of Rights were to be broken down, all groups, even the most conservative, would be in danger from the arbitrary power of government.

"Legislation is now pending before Congress which is so broad and vague in its terms as to endanger the freedoms of speech, press and assembly protected by the first amendment."

This kind of legislation, the president said, is unnecessary, ineffective and dangerous.

Unnecessary, because Communists never work in the way ordinary political parties do.

Aussie Planes Have Good Day

TOKYO, Aug. 9. — (CP). — Royal Australian Air Force Mustangs have had their biggest and most successful day of the Korean war.

The RAAF squadron which has been hitting Red targets since early July flew 34 sorties Tuesday along the Naktong River line.

Most of the flights were in support of the surging ground action But the Australians also said they hit six tanks and 16 trucks in addition to an artillery position near Chinju, Weagwan and Hyopchon.

Maj.-Gen. Sir Horace Robertson, commander-in-chief of Commonwealth occupation forces in Japan, will fly to Korea tomorrow to visit RAAF advanced bases.

He will visit transport staging posts and bases from which Australian Mustang fighters are flying.

It will be Gen. Robertson's first visit to Korea where no Commonwealth ground forces are yet committed.

He is expected to return to Tokyo the same day.

Hastings Victorious In Softball Tourney

HASTINGS, Aug. 9 (ENS). — Hastings Legion proved themselves strictly a money team in their tournament held at Hastings Monday afternoon and evening.

Just one step out of the cellar in the T.V. League, they managed to take Norwood 3-1 in the first game, and then after Red Sullivan's Peterborough nine took Campbellford 10-1, polished off that squad 12-9 in an exciting nightcap.

The first game was a regular pitching duel between Crowley and Richardson, with Crowley turning in a beautiful two hit effort, while Richardson was touched for six. Crowley set down 12 on strikes. Line-ups:

Legion—M. Fife c, Scriver 2b, P. Fife cf, Crowley p, Beavis ss, Phillips 1b, Hawkes 3b, Wilson lf, Thomas rf.

Norwood—B. Garden ss, Kelley 3b, Richardson p, Simpson 2b, W. Garden 1b, Morrison c, Spencer lf, Aldred cf, Herrington rf.

Peterborough East City romped home an easy winner over Campbellford in their game 10-1, as Heffernan held Campbellford to six scattered hits, and was given air-tight support.

Campbellford were without a hurler, and lefty McCoy, a Hastings pitcher from away back, was pressed into service, and did a creditable job, being touched for 12 hits, and issuing four passes, but his support was spotty, particularly when the chips were down. Line-ups:

East City—Currie 2b, Donaghue c, Sullivan 3b, Jaquith cf, Spencer ss, Fitzgerald lf, Goselin rf, H. Heffernan 1b, G. Heffernan p.

Campbellford—Bibby lf, Herrington cf, Robertson ss, Robinson 2b, Hoard c, Garden 1b, Hardie 3b, McCoy p, Blake rf

The last one proved a real thriller, as first East City, then Legion took the lead, but finally Legion climbed on top, and managed to hang on till Crowley struck the last man out in the bottom half of the ninth.

Both pitchers were twirling their second game of the day, but Crowley had the deciding edge, giving up six hits to Heffernan's 14, and had the edge in strikeouts 10 to two.

Line-ups:

Legion—M. Fife 1b, Scriver 2b, P. Fife rf, Crowley p, Wilson lf, Phillips cf, Beavis ss, Oliver c, Morrow ss.

Farmers In Flooded Area Disappointed With Premier

By JACK SCOTT.

MORRIS, Man.— A few days ago a delegation of some 400 farmers, representing the grain growers whose fields were flooded this year by the Red River, went to Winnipeg to ask Premier D. L. Campbell and his Coalition Cabinet what was going to happen to them.

They went back to their farms next day with a ringing assurance from the Premier that "I am not losing sight of the problems of flood victims."

It was an empty promise for a farmer like Charles "Dixie" Dixon who has 660 acres a few miles north of Morris, and one of hundreds hereabouts who know the bitter taste of ruin.

Dixon is a handsome, English-born middle-aged man with a black, military moustache, a one-time junior bank executive who turned to farming and made a success of it.

As we drove out to his farm this morning, "Dixie" Dixon spoke with the bitterness you come to take for granted in Morris.

"I'm not mixed up in any kind of politics, but I vote Liberal," he said. "The men I helped put in office have failed miserably in getting the farmer out of this mess. What you see in Morris is a town dying on its feet. There will be almost no crop here this year. A great many of us are going to need relief from the municipality to keep us alive, to get seed for next spring, to get fuel to keep our tractors running.

"So far there's been nothing at all done, or announced, to let us know how we stand.

"The farmer is just naturally an independent cuss," he went on. "We don't ask for charity. Hell, we've been hailed out, dried out and drowned out by rains in the past. But with those things you had a fighting chance. It was all part of the gamble. This flood has been different. It hit right into the economy of Manitoba. It isn't a matter for the individual, but for the province. And they have failed us badly."

In the Ruins

Dixon's farmhouse is a stone's throw from the Red River.

It seems incredible that this limpid, brown, sluggish stream, lying deep down between its banks, is the same swollen river I saw last May. Standing at the top of theb ank on the prairie level I noticed a power line eight or ten feet above my head. A great cluster of straw like a stork's nest had been caught on the cable, a weird water-mark.

The large, gabled farmhouse, an immense new barn and the other buildings stood like gaunt derelicts. Two small buildings had been torn from their foundations and had floated a short distance away. Inside the piggery the grey silt was thigh-high.

Dixon stood looking around at this disorder with his jaw out.

"The men around here have been great," he said, 'They're all pitching right in. But it gives you a down-deep, hopeless feeling when you see the amount of work that's got to be done. You just don't know where to start."

Some of the returning farmers seeded their land, late as it was. About 10 percent of the flooded land was seeded, six weeks late. But Dixon and other experienced men I talked with say this was done in desperation. An early frost will put these farmers still deeper in the hole.

Even working the land as summer fallow, as Dixon is doing, is difficult since the oil companies have suspended credit to flooded farmers. (It costs Dixon about $800 a year for fuel for his machines.)

'Most farmers live on credit." he pointed out. "The harvest is the payoff. Now we can't expect a crop until the fall of 1951. Just means that those farmers with some capital will have to use it. The poor fellow who lives from year to year will have to get what municipal relief he can."

Help Wanted

Dixon, himself, will be living for the next 16 months on the cash from the sale of his 40 head of Black Angus beef cattle. "We'll get by," he says, "but we'll be paupers this time next year. It'll be a long time before we have cattle again."

Like the others I met, Dixon is not ungrateful for the help he is getting.

"We are getting assistance in restoring the house and furniture and the money donated by the rest of Canada is being fairly spent," he told me, "but for us on the farms, it is just a beginning. We desperately need a farm assistance program, compensation for our unseeded acreage, help in getting credit to see us through."

We walked over to what had obviously been a well-equipped tool shed. Now the implements were rusted and caked with mud and lay in a tangle that was evidence of the flood water's swift current.

"This is the kin dof picture they can't seem to grasp up in Winnipeg," Dixie Dixon said. "How a man is expected to go about replacing this sort of mess I don't know. The government just shrugs or makes some noise intended to be encouraging and in actual fact have done nothing. The rumor is that we're to get some help if there's money left over from the Canada-wide fund. It seems to me we're entitled to more than rumors."

Benelux Experiment Success Ready For Economic Union

THE HAGUE (Reuters). — Benelux — most detailed of the many plans for international co-operation since the war — is a success.

The Benelux plan, aimed at economic union between Belgium, The Netherlands, and Luxembourg, was put into effect on an experimental basis a year ago, with the idea that full economic union should become a fact by July 1, 1950.

Although it has been necessary to postpone the date of the full economic union for a few months there has been no cooling-off on the idea on the part of the three countries.

It is now almost exactly five years since the idea was suggested of an economic union between Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, under the short and snappy title of Benelux. After many trials and tribulations, the pre-economic union, or experimental period, for one year began on July 1, 1949, thus setting the target date for the full union at July 1, 1950. n

Belgian Crisis

There is little doubt that this date would have proved practicable but for the Belgian political crisis over the royal question, which virtually deprived Belgium of any real operating government for the months of March, April, and May—months vitally important to the real introduction of the full Benelux scheme of July 1.

The experts now are ready with the administrative machinery, but the constitutional machinery, demanding a treaty which must be passed by the parliaments of all three countries concerned, is slowing down the program.

Postponement Good

In some ways, a postponement for a few months may prove to be all to the good.

One Dutch economist told me: "A little delay now can only produce good results, provided that it is made clear that it is due "solely to constitutional procedure and not to politicical or economic expedience."

Although the pre-union has been in operation for about a year, it is still impossible to quote figures giving concrete proof that it has been advantageous to all three countries.

Since the temporary union the Dutch have had to pay more for their gasoline and the Belgians more for their beer. This was the result of an agreement by both the governments to bring their respective prices for these commodities nearer to a common level.

Yet gasoline is cheaper in Holland than in any other country in Europe. It is probable that if the price had not been raised under the Benelux scheme, the Finance Minister, faced with a deficit budget, would certainly have looked in that direction for more money.

It is admitted in Benelux circles here that the whole plan has a long-term rather than a short-term attraction and that the man in the street must not expect any sudden or spectacular changes in life or conditions.

TRAP RED TROOPS ON CHINJU FRONT

Will Begin Niagara Work At Once

U.S. Senate Approves Power Project; Handle Needs Till '58

TORONTO, Aug. 10—(CP)—Construction will start almost at once on a new project to harness the Niagara river and give Ontario an additional 900,000 horsepower of electrical energy. In the wake of ratification of a Canada-United States treaty by the U.S. Senate Wednesday, Ontario officials said work on the $200,000,000 project can begin almost immediately. In 1953, 200,000 horsepower may be taken from the river. The completed project should handle any new power needs for Ontario until 1958.

Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, said ratification of the treaty couldn't have come at a better time.

The commission had a big labor force coming off such recently-completed developments as the Des Joachims project on the Ottawa river. The men could be swung immediately onto the new Niagara project.

The treaty provides for additional diversion of water from the river. It was passed by parliament June 14. Negotiations began 2½ years ago.

On the Canadian side, it will mean cutting a new canal from above the falls to the Queenston area. When completed, the project will double the present power output from the Niagara area.

On the U.S. side, rebuilding of existing plants may triple the power output.

Mr. Saunders said present power developments in Ontario can cope with all anticipated needs until 1953. By then, some power will be available from the new Niagara developments. There will be no additional problems until 1958.

The answer to that problem would lie in the St. Lawrence waterway scheme, now held up by the U.S. Congress. If work on the waterway could begin in 1951 or 1952, Mr. Saunders said, it could be producing power by 1958.

Royal Birth Expected Today

LONDON, Aug. 10 (Reuters)—Only three London policemen and a guardsman sentry were on duty today outside Clarence House, Princess Elizabeth's home, where extra police were posted Wednesday night to control the crowds awaiting news of the expected Royal birth.

There was little activity outside the house, where the Princess is awaiting the birth of her second child, due some time this week.

Sir William Gilliatt, the gynaecologist, and Sir John Weir, the Royal Family's physician, who have been making daily calls on the Princess, were remaining within easy reach.

Sir William, who has a reputation for accurate prediction, was believed to have said earlier in the week he thought the child might be born today.

Chocolate Bar Price Jumped To 7 Cents

TORONTO, Aug. 10— CP)—The nickel chocolate bar is back up to seven cents here, a survey of leading Toronto candy manufacturers disclosed today.

Last December the wartime price of seven cents was dropped to five. But with the cut in price came a reduction in the size of the bars. Now, with the price up again, there's no change in size. You'll pay seven cents for the small bar from now on.

William Neilson, Ltd.; Willards Chocolates, Ltd., and Patterson Chocolates, Ltd., announced the change. They said increasing cost of cocoa beans, cocoa butter and sugar is the reason. They declined to say whether companies in other cities are taking similar action.

Cancel UK Trip

LONDON, Aug. 10—(CP)—Several Canadian and United States scientists have cancelled plans to attend an international convention here, apparently because their services are needed at home. The British Association for Advancement of Science, which holds its annual meeting at Birmingham Aug. 30, said the scientists—among them Dr. C. J. MacKenzie, president of the Canadian National Research Council — have given no reasons for cancelling their trip.

Senate Passes Death Penalty For Spying In US

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP).—Congress moved fast Wednesday to stack up more lawbook defenses against spies, plotters and loose-tongued government employees.

The Senate passed three such bills, among them one which would make it possible for the government to keep any suspected subversive alien—even a diplomat—from entering the United States.

The House of Representatives Committee on Un-American activities moved beyond President Truman's recommendations in laying its plans for a security crackdown on Communists and seditionists.

No Objections

The senate passed its three anti-subversive bills without a single objecting vote.

One of them would authorize the death penalty for peacetime spying on behalf of a foreign government.

Another would give the heads of so-called sensitive government agencies power to fire or suspend employees regarded as "bad security risks."

The third, approved late in the day, would insert drastic new exclusion powers in the immigration laws. Admission could be refused Communists, Fascists, Anarchists, and anybody else who might seek to come into the country for subversive purposes. The measure would also make it easier to deport suspected aliens already here.

Mystery Passenger

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 — (CP)—The Journal-American says today that United States authorities are investigating the possibility that the airman who landed his rented plane at sea and was picked up by the Polish liner Batory may have had a passenger with him aboard the plane. The airman, who finally identified himself as William Newton of New York, flew to the vessel Wednesday about 100 miles out from New York. The captain of the Batory radioed the Coast Guard to come to pick him up, but the Coast Guard refused. The ship took Newton and his rented plane aboard.

2 Railways Offer Compromise

Issue Ultimatum All Offers Void If New Plan Rejected

MONTREAL, Aug. 10—(CP)—The railways today made a compromise offer to their 124,000 strike-assenting employees, stipulating that if it is not accepted all compromise offers are withdrawn.

Going beyond a previous compromise offer, the railways today suggested this "final offer":

"Recognition by railway management of moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time.

Recognition by the unions in principle, subject to negotiation in detail, of 10 amendments to existing contracts.

"A. Either (A) a 44-hour basic work week with a 9.1-per-cent increase in hourly rates so as to maintain take home pay in regard to monthly-rated clerical employees there will be an understanding that a five-day actual work week may be granted by local arrangement in selected cases where the hours now actually worked are less than 44, on condition that the requirements of the service are protected up to 44 hours per week.

Offer Alternative

"Or (B) An increase in basic wage rates approximately equivalent in expense to that involved under plan (A). This would average 8½ cents per hour for all employees but it is to be graduated in three steps so as to provide for (1) a maximum hourly or monthly wage increase (2) lesser amounts in specific cases where it is necessary; (A)—to avoid raising the occupational rates still further above those paid in outside industry for comparable work. (B)—To widen the differential between successive positions so as to provide a reasonable incentive for advancement."

Missing In Lake Storm Toronto Family Safe

NORTH BAY, Aug. 10 (CP)—A search for a Toronto family, missing on stormy Lake Nipissing since Wednesday noon, was called off today when they turned up safe, but cold and hungry, after spending the night in lakeshore bushland.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Long and their children Myrna 16 and Gordon 11, had their small boat battered by wind-lashed waves while fishing west of North Bay.

A sister of Mrs. Long, Mrs. H. T. Mendes, informed Provincial Police that they were missing when they did not return Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Long told police that after battling waves in their attempt to get back to North Bay the boat's engine failed. They managed to make shore about 8 miles west of the city and spent the night in the dense bush there. This morning Mr. Long repaired the engine and the family was able to return.

Trying To Solve Riddle Of Mosquito Dive Bombing

BALTIMORE, Aug. 10 (AP)—Why do mosquitoes dive bomb you one day and snub you the next?

What makes a bee more active at one time than another?

Why will a moth dance around a light one night and stay in the shadows the next?

A Johns Hopkins University scientist believes the answer to those and other insect-life mysteries may be found in a study of tiny time and space changes in the weather near the earth's surface.

The university announced today that the scientist, Dr. Vincent G. Dethier, has opened a research station at East Bluehill, Me., to try to get to the bottom of the riddle of what makes an insect act as it does.

Dr. Dethier is studying these minute weather changes, usually occurring within five feet from the ground, with the assistance of a bevy of bees, moths, mosquitoes and other insects.

The United States army is a cosponsor with the university in the project.

It is particularly interested in testing the value of newly-developed insect sprays and other repellants.

The university said Dr Dethier is making the first intensive study of those tiny weather changes in relation to their effect on animal life.

The so-called microclimate has great influence over the behavior of living things at the earth's surface, Dr. Dethier explained. In fact, he said, it is those almost undetectable changes that have the most influence.

PRIME MINISTERS MEET—Prime Minister St. Laurent, left, and Prime Minister Menzies of Australia were guests of honor of the Ottawa Canadian Club during the Australian prime minister's visit to the capital. Mr. Menzies addressed the club on world problems. This was his first visit to Ottawa since 1948 when he came as leader of the Opposition in the Australian Parliament.

Ships, Drydocks Jamming Russia's Backdoor Ports

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(AP)—Russia is reported assembling drydocks, merchant vessels and supplies as Vladivostock, right on Korea's doorstep. A study released Wednesday by American ship owners reports a large number of Soviet vessels of all types have been sailing out of Baltic and Black Sea ports to the Soviet's chief Siberian seaport, only 500 miles from Korea.

The American Merchant Merine Institute, a trade organization of ship owners whose vessels fly the American flag, drew the following picture after studying available records:

Russian tankers with full cargoes have sailed to the Far Eastern harbor of Vladivostock recently from the Black Sea oil ports of Constanza and Batum.

Tow Drydocks

Within the last two months three drydocks have been towed from Latvia, on the Baltic, and from Odessa on the Black Sea, to Vladivostock.

Many merchantmen bound for the Far East were loaded with grain. Others carried general cargo. Even trawlers were reported in the movement to the Pacific.

Meanwhile, in Soviet-controlled shipyards of Eastern Germany, repair work has been going on at full tilt on Russian vessels. Seven Soviet vessels were at Antwerp recently waiting repairs.

"What bearing all this may have on the Korean situation remains to be seen," the institute said.

"This heavy movement by water could mean the Trans-Siberian Railroad is fully occupied with transporting military materials."

It attached special significance to the transfer of drydocks, all of which put in at Singapore for fuel and stores.

The stop at Singapore of the tug-towed drydocks is an example of the manner in which the movement of Soviet vessels may be traced.

East Germany Gives Territory To Poland

BERLIN, Aug. 10—(Reuters)—The Communist East German parliament has ratified an agreement handing over a huge tract of East Germany to Poland.

No vote was cast against the agreement in Wednesday's ballotting in the Lower House.

The agreement, which fixes the Oder-Neisse River line as the "irrevocable" frontier between Germany and Poland, formally cedes to Poland the territories occupied by her at the end of the Second World War.

Dies In Cafe During Scuffle

MILTON, Ont., Aug. 10—(CP)—A scuffle in a restaurant here early today resulted in the death of Gordon Titus of Milton and the arrest of four Oakville men by provincial police. Names of the arrested men were not released.

Witnesses said that Titus, accompanied by two friends, Phillip Lecoq and Gus Morrison, became embroiled in an argument with the four men.

During the scuffle that followed Titus, 36-year-old father of four children, fell to the ground and never regained consciousness.

Dr. George E. Syer, coroner, said the cause of death could not be determined until after an autopsy.

Ordered To Fire

HONG KONG, Aug. 10—(AP)—Unconfirmed waterfront reports said today Red China shore batteries have orders to fire on any foreign ships coming within two miles of the many Communist-held islands in the west entrance to Hong Kong harbor. Earlier this week three cargo ships—British, American and Norwegian—were fired on in the Lema Island area.

U.S. Advances 13 Miles For Big Rout

New Threat Developes As Communists 8 Miles From Airport

TOKYO, Aug. 11—(Friday)—(AP)—United States troops yesterday drove 13 miles almost to the outskirts of Chinju and snapped shut behind them an armored trap on possibly 1,000 enemy troops.

It was the biggest single day's gain of the war for American forces.

As Chinju, major enemy base in South Korea, tottered, North Koreans at the other end of the 140-mile front rolled to within eight miles of a U.S. East Coast fighter base before being halted.

Gen. MacArthur's war summary said South Koreans checked the enemy drive eight miles west of Pohang. The fighter base is near this city 63 miles north of Pusan.

The enemy also loosed new attacks along the northern front, putting renewed pressure on the important supply city of Taegu, 55 miles northwest of Pusan.

Hold One Bridgehead

They were advancing against resisting South Koreans on a front about 30 miles north of Taegu. The enemy still held a Naktong river bridgehead 29 miles southwest of Taegu against fierce American attacks. Another bridgehead 12 miles northwest of Taegu was reported wiped out.

U.S. eighth army leaders took hasty steps to protect the fighter plane base. It is eight miles southeast of Pohang on the Sea of Japan 55 miles north of Pusan.

Two Red forces rolled back crumbling South Korean troops there. Hay Boyle, Associated Press correspondent at Pohang, said the Reds were protected from American naval guns by lofty mountains in some of Korea's most rugged country.

Churchill Postpones Address To Friday

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 10—(AP)—Winston Churchill has postponed until Friday and address in which he is expected to call for rearming West Germany to bolster Europe's defences against Communism.

The British Conservative party leader has been scheduled to address the European Consultative Assembly today. No reason was given for the postponement, but most assembly circles thought he needed more time to prepare what is expected to be one of the major addreses of his career.

He is expected to deal with the question of German military participation in Western European defence, the Korean war and threats to world peace.

The postponement disappointed diplomats and spectators who had crowded into the assembly hall early to hear him.

AL. B. CLARK, Physical Director of the Peterborough YMCA, whose appointment as general secretary of the Ingersoll YMCA was announced today. Mr. Clark will assume his new post September 1.

RearmingEurope May Ruin ERP Recovery

PARIS, Aug. 10 — (AP). — Marshall Plan economists warned today that rearming Europe for a possible third world war may ruin the progress made in putting the continent back on its feet after the last war.

This warning led off a voluminous report on Europe's financial stability, prepared by economists of the 18-member organization for European economic co-operation, the Marshall Plan's overseas partner.

"The level of government expenditure devoted to the reinforcement of defence might compromise the progress achieved in the last years, if great car is not taken to combine economic policy as a whole with the normal implications of such expenditure," the report said.

The economists thus warned Western European countries to keep their rearming costs within a reasonable proportion of national incomes, instead of going al-out into a "guns-instead-of-butter" spending spree.

Another section of the report brought up the problem of European economics after the Marshall Plan ends in mid-1952. That section, too, was an ominous warning.

"It is difficult," said the report, "to forecast what might happen to the balance between supply and demand (when the Marshall Plan ends). In a few countries the extraordinary aid is relatively so large that its disappearance could hardly be balanced by any probable increase in domestic production or saving."

To such countries, the OEEC economists gave only this suggested solution: Cut costs and raise production.

Canada Will Do Deciding On Where Brigade Fights

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Aug. 10—(CP)—The forthcoming session of parliament is expected to hear the opposition raise the question of who will decide when and where Canada's new special army forces goes to fight.

It may also learn whether the force, a brigade group of around 5,000 men, will fight beside the Anzacs and British Tommies in Korea as part of an unprecedented Commonwealth division.

The prospect of such a division had been raised because Canada Britain and Australia and New Zealand are raising formations with rough similarities in strength and composition. Officials say Canada hasn't yet been asked to join one.

There is some opposition to that sort of a formation in high places but official reaction seems to be that Canada would accept a role in a Commonwealth division if that appeared to be the best way of doing things.

Official circles say the government will make it clear that Canada herself, through parliament, will decide where the force goes.

It is probably the first formation any modern nation has created specifically to back its commitments and obligations to international organizations. But it won't be turned over either to the United Nations or the Atlantic Pact powers for automatic use as those bodies see fit.

The most significant paragraph in Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement Monday was this:

"This brigade . . . will be specially trained and equipped to be available for use in carrying out Canada's obligations under the U.N. Charter or the Atlantic Pact. Naturally it will, subject to the approval of parliament, be available for service in Korea as part of the U.N. forces if it can be most effectively used in that way when it is ready for service."

Shield Faces From Flames Gl's Advance

Burning Villages Mark Route Of Red Army Retreat

By ALEX VALENTINE

WITH U.S. TROOPS IN SOUTH KOREA, Aug. 10 — (Reuters) — Flames from burning roadside villages licked out at American troops today as they trudged forward.

The U.S. soldier in Korea was having a new experience—that of advancing. But he was finding that advancing has its heartaches.

There was none of the bitterness of constant retreat. There was none of the despondency which no account of general staff platitudes on "planned withdrawal" could repel.

In their place was sheer physical effort and the misery of seeing destruction of war as only an advancing army can.

As I went forward with the U.S. troops today, I could see that a new spirit was entering this army.

Better Soldiers

Without even being aware of it himself, the individual was becoming a better soldier.

He was talking less about the new car he had left behind in Tokyo or Kansas City and more about the hard job ahead. His main preoccupation was turning from just getting out of this war-torn country into finishing the task here before he left.

He was also getting himself accustomed to leaving his jeep and using his feet—and grumbling less than usual about it.

The change in morale came from the advance, and the advance itself was getting additional impetus from it.

On the road west from Masan today I saw American columns driving on the Communist road and rail centre of Chinju.

Shield Faces

We had to shield our faces as we passed through the blazing heat of villages set afire by retreating northern forces.

Occasionally a sniper's bullet whanged overhead to remind us that the Communists were not so much retreating at this stage as folding back from the roads into the hills above us.

Man Shortage Over For Girls

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 (CP).—Girls, it looks as though the time has arrived when you can again afford to look over the field before snapping up the first proposal of marriage.

There now are more than enough men to go around, the Bureau of Statistics disclosed on Wednesday. It estimated that at June 1 there were 7,030,000 males in Canada compared with 6,790,700 females.

And, the report added, males in most age groups under 80 were greater than the number of females. From 80 upwards there were 88,000 females to 80,500 males.

This was the third successive year that the male population showed a gain over the female population. Prior to 1948, the female population was gaining on the male. The excess of males over females dropped each year from 291,700 at the time of the 1941 census to 222,800 in 1947.

Cuba, Canada Raise Legation To Embassy

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 — (CP)—The government has accepted a proposal by Cuba to raise the respective legations in Havana and Ottawa to the status of embassies the External Affairs Department announced today.

Dr. E. H. Coleman, Canadian minister to Cuba, at present on leave in Canada, will be returning to Cuba to resume charge of the Canadian mission.

Cuba has indicated that the appointment of an ambassador to Canada will be announced shortly.

U.S. Senators Ratify Niagara Pact

Get Unanimous Vote On 50-Year Treaty, Pearson Pleased

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — (CP)—The U.S. Senate Wednesday unanimously ratified and put into effect a 50-year treaty between Canada and the United States to increase the output of power from the Niagara river and safeguard the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls.

Under the treaty Ontario and New York State will benefit from the additional power.

Senate ratification, which came on a unanimous voice vote, completed the U.S. action on the treaty. Canada already had done so several weeks ago.

The treaty, calls for fixed minimum flow of water at all seasons and for engineering measures to prevent the coastline from breaking away and flattening out the walls, and to distribute the water evenly. All remaining water may be diverted for power purposes and shared equally by the two countries.

Pleased With Action

In Ottawa, L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, said he was "very pleased" with the Senate's action. "It will enable work to proceed which will be of benefit to both countries," he said.

Senator Joseph Ives (Rep. N.Y.) hailed the treaty in a senate speech as "an inspiring example of how two friendly countries can solve their common problems."

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) called it a wise step by both countries that assures protection of the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and opens the way for development of "greatly needed additional water power."

To preserve enough water for scenic purposes the treaty provides that no diversion shall be made for power purposes which will reduce the flow over the falls to less than 100,000 cubic feet a second each day between 8 a.m., and 10 p.m., from April 1 to Sept. 15.

BABY'S CRY
IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. The "pain cry" should have instant attention. For the feverish distress due to gas on stomach or bowels or those common digestive upsets, give Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

Equally effective for constipation, upset stomach, teething troubles and other minor ailments of babies.

Quickly effective. Sweet-tasting — easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff — no dulling effect. Get a package today. Sickness often strikes in the night. 20 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Report Molotov Visits Peiping

TAIPEI, Formosa, Aug. 10 (AP) —A Chinese Nationalist newspaper today reported that Russia's vice-premier, V. M. Molotov, has arrived in Peiping, capital of Communist China.

There was no confirmation.

Chinese Nationalists and others long have contended that Molotov is directing expansion of Communism in the Orient on orders from Prime Minister Joseph Stalin.

Today's story, attributed to arrivals from Hong Kong, said Molotov reached Peiping July 31. The account continued:

Heavy detachments of troops and police guarded his route from the airfield to the former imperial hunting park, now the residence of Red chairman Mao Tze-tung. No one was allowed near the park without special permit.

Despite these precautions, the account said, it soon became common knowledge in Peiping that Molotov was conferring with Mao.

Mao made an extended visit to Moscow seven months ago and came away with treaties bearing on Russian-Chinese agreements for mutual aid and dispositions of their border territories.

Trap Three Robbers Hidden In Farm Barn

STRATFORD, Aug. 10—(CP)—Three men wanted for a $1,300 robbery at a drygoods store in Bonfield, Ont., were arrested Wednesday in a barn at Monkton 20 miles north of here.

The trio, all from North Bay, were jailed here and held for questioning. Police identified them as George Bissonnette, George Letiem and Joseph Lamure. Their arrest followed discovery near Monkton of part of the Bonfield loot.

Police said three men drove into Kenneth Golightly's garage in Monkton late Tuesday night and tried to steal gasoline. Awakened by their noise, Golightly fired several shots from a revolver. The trio abandoned the car and fled.

Industrials Carried Ahead On Exchange

TORONTO, Aug. 10 (CP).—Industrial and base metal stocks were carried strongly ahead today on the Toronto Stock Exchange in continuation of Wednesday's firm advance. Activity increased as the session advanced. Volume for the first three hours was 938,000 shares.

In industrials, utilities papers, steels and refining oils were all bright spots on the board. International Paper, B. C. Forest, Ford A and B and Aluminum showed some of the strongest advances.

In base metals Quemont, East Sullivan, Consolidated Smelters and Noranda all chalked up gains. Others ahead were United Keno Hill and Sherritt Gordon.

Golds worked over to the plus side after a two-day decline. Several senior and junior producers were in heavy demand.

Western oils continued their steady upswing with only a handful showing losses.

Mack's 2 Sons Buy Interest In Athletics

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 (AP) —Connie Mack's two older sons, Roy and Earle, announced today they will buy controlling interest in the Philadelphia Athletics with the financial backing of the Connecticut Life Insurance Company.

Roy and Earle disclosed ten days ago that they hold options on stock owned by their stepbrother, Connie Mack Jr., and the heirs of Benjamin F. and Thomas Shibe, partners with Connie Mack in establishing the club 50 years ago.

Extent of the life insurance firm's participation was not revealed.

Baseball sources here said that they knew of no previous instance in which a life insurance firm invested in a major league baseball franchise.

Connie Mack, Sr., will remain as manager of the A's and as a stockholder. Both Roy and Earle have said they want their father to continue as manager "as long as he wants to."

U.S. Advances

The Pohang-bound Communists hammered down from Yongdok, which they retook Thursday, and drove on four miles to the south.

Most Serious Threat

The main threat to the fighter base came from another Red force rolling toward it from the mountain village of Kigye, eight miles northwest of Pohang. A North Kor[illegible]atrol of 30 men commanded the Yongchan-Pohang supply road with machineguns.

Twenty-nine mile south of Taegu, the main U.S. base on the central front, a battalion of Reds held off U.S. troops on the banks of the Naktong river.

American planes, including 70 B-29s from Japan and Okinawa, plastered the North Koreans. The air force said the B-29s badly crippled northern rail lines with the biggest raid of the war on Wonsan, east coast rail centre north of the 38th parallel.

Battle Aggressively

Eighth army headquarters said United Nations troops battled aggressively on all fronts to expand gains in the south.

The allied gains on the south coast were the greatest of the United Nations offensive which jumped off Wednesday westward from near Masan, south coast port.

Hundreds of North Koreans were forced to retreat toward Chinju base so fast they left quantities of arms and equipment behind.

United States patrols were reported within two miles of Chinju itself.

Associated Press correspondent Tom Lambert reported advanced American units spurted 13 miles to join forces with other U. S. troops 12 miles east of battered Chinju. That closed the steel trap.

The link-up cut off an estimated 100 square miles of rugged land and pocketed remnants of two Red battalions.

Cut In Half

In the fighting for Chinju, the trapped battalions are estimated to have been halved down to 1,000 from their original strength of about 2,000.

American Marines, virtually unopposed plunged southwestward 13 miles to enter Kosong and secure the shores of Chinhae Bay.

Correspondent Lambert reported the spirits of American troops soared.

An American general staff officer said the retreat of North Koreans toward Chinju was something "in the nature of a rout." The main body of U. S. troops was five miles short of Chinju Thursday, just behind the forward patrols.

Fighting Hard

But on the central and northeastern fronts the Communists were fighting hard to hold their river-crossing gains outside of Taegu. Yongdok, east coast port to the north, was recaptured by the Reds.

Before Chinju, the U.S combat teams were tearing into remnants of the crack North Korean 6th division. An estimated 1,200 were killed. Few prisoners were taken.

The North Korean high command seemed determined to make the 6th division stand to the death. The 1st division, which had been supporting it, was reported being diverted to bolster Red forces at the Communist bridgeheads on the banks of the Naktong six miles from Changnyong.

There, 20 miles north of Chinju the Reds beat off an attack by the U.S. 24th division reinforced by elements of the 2nd division.

Vital Line

A mile-long battleline stretched along the riverfront. A break through there would imperil Taegu, the U.S. supply base 29 miles to the northeast.

Tank-led North Koreans Thursday recaptured Yondok on the east coast, 80 miles north of Pusan, the U.S. seaport at the tip of the Korean Peninsula. Guerrillas and turncoats captured the mountain town of Kigye, only nine miles northwest of Pohang, the important U.S. air and sea base 25 miles south Yongdok.

B-29s dumped a record total of 625 tons of bombs on Red targets in North Korea Thursday. An air force spokesman said Red transportation lines were crippled badly. Fighters from carriers and the air force pounded front lines.

U.S. patrols Thursday afternoon reached the Nam River five miles east of Chinju. Another U.S. combat unit joined them 12 miles east of the town.

Light Resistance

Resistance on the road to Chinju was described as light by a spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.

The Americans captured strategic high ground about six miles east of Chinju after a sharp skirmish. A ridge there runs to within two miles of Chinju. The Nam River, where American patrols were working, slips to the city's edge.

U.S. 8th Army headquarters in Korea said the Communists may try to make a stand in high ground west of Chinju. But intelligence reports said the Communists were unable to withdraw to prepared positions because they could not break off the fight.

Associated Press correspondent Don Whitehead at the front reported pockets of Communists, whose guns stalled the American coastal drive until Wednesday, were being destroyed by American reserve units from rear areas.

American Marines on the left flank of the southern drive took the coastal town of Kosong. They met light resistance.

But Marine fliers, who zipped in among the hills, said they destroyed two 50-ton Russian-built tanks. The carrier-based Marine fliers said they flew so low the invaders shot at them with mortars from heights above their speeding planes.

The main Red effort Thursday night was against the reinforced U. S. 24th division at the Naktong river bridgehead near Changnyong.

Throw In Battalion

The Communists threw another battalion into the battle there, bringing their known force on the east bank of the river to a regiment—3,000 men minus those killed in heavy fighting.

American forces captured a dominating height Wednesday and pinched the North Koreans between it and the river. But on Thursday a Red counter-attack drove the Americans off the ridge Associated Press correspondent O. H. P. King reported.

To the north, two elements of the U. S. 1st cavalry division reported they had contained or isolated two small Red bridgeheads on the east side of the Naktong.

The larger of these was at Nosok village, about two miles south of Waegwan. Cavalry guns there hacked at two tanks and a reinforced Red Company that had crossed the river.

Draw In Noose

Cavalrymen threw a noose around the invaders Wednesday night after killing 100 men, a MacArthur spokesman said.

Seven miles farther north at Opyong, 900 enemy dead were counted after the South Korean 1st division Wednesday drove another Red force back across the Naktong. Headquarters said North Koreans turned artillery on their men to make them fight the South Koreans.

MacArthur's spokesman said this type of "persuasion bombardment" has been used before by the Reds in efforts to drive their troops forward.

American officers for days have been watching the unopposed movement on Kigye, outside Pohang port. South Korean units have been sent into this lofty area—some of Korea's roughest country along the eastern coast—to contain what may be a flanking thrust toward Pohang.

Allan B. Clark Secretary Ingersoll YMCA

A. B. (Al) Clark, physical director at the Peterborough YM CA since 1939, has been appointed general secretary of the Ingersoll YMCA, it was announced today. The appointment will be effective September 1.

In 1939 Mr. Clark came to Peterborough as physical director from the Toronto Broadview YMCA, where he served four years as program secretary. Prior to that he was physical director in Windsor, St. John, NB, and Montreal Central YMCA, and assistant physical director at Winnipeg YMCA. Mr. Clark started in YMCA work 34 years ago.

During World War 2, Mr. Clark served as a captain in the Canadian Army for three years and two months overseas.

His work besides the YMCA activities included over the past four years the coaching and managing of th Peterborough Outboard Marines basketball team. Two years ago the team captured the Ontario intermediate championship, but was defeated in the Eastern Canada playdowns. This year the Marines, with Mr. Clark as manager, lost out to the Sault Ste. Marie Algos in the Ontario finals.

U.S. Gov't Acts In Rail Crisis

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP). —An implied threat of a major United States railroad strike in the midst of the Korean war crisis has brought the White House in as mediator on the 40-hour-week demand of conductors and trainmen.

The White House first disclosed Wednesday that it has taken up the case, but without reporting its new urgency.

R. O. Hughes, president of the conductors, and W. P. Kennedy, president of the trainmen, spoke of "reaching a serious crisis" in their 17-month-old dispute, and told the president:

"In the national interest and to avert a potential substantial interruption in essential railroad transportation, we respectfully recommend to you that our government take possession of and operate the railroads of the United States until such time as this dispute is settled in fairness to the rights of our members."

2 Railway

The offer was made personally to the full negotiating committees of the two union groups by Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, on behalf of himself and W. A. Mather, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The 15 international unions and two Canadian unions have authorized a strike Aug. 22 unless their demands are satisfactorily dealt with.

Have No Comment

There was no comment from union officials following the meeting. The parties will meet again at 4 p.m.

Two conciliation boards originally heard the demands of the men, all connected with the nonrunning trades. The international unions asked a wage increase of seven cents an hour and a 40-hour week, instead of the present 48-hour week, with no reduction in take-home pay.

Today's "final offer" excluded hotel and water transport employees.

Classes affected are such as clerks, maintenance men, shop workers, express employees and commercial and railway telegraphers of the companies directly concerned.

Mr. Gordon was blunt and forthright in setting forth the compromise offer. He said:

"The fact that a strike weapon . . . is such a devastating one imposes upon those who propose to use it, a grave and frightening responsibility far greater than any power given to government even during our greatest national emergency.

Warns Boomerang

"Have a care that in winning an apparent victory you do not damage your own organization. If you force this issue to a conclusion through imposing upon the Canadian public the disaster of a strike, then we predict you will live to regret it.

"It may be thought that the risk of a strike will force the settlement of this dispute out of the hands of railway management. On that point we would also urge labor to stop, look and listen. Railway management are best qualified to discuss and adjust working condition and remuneration with their own employees and if we fail to find a procedure whereby we can reach agreement between ourselves as reasonable people then we predict that the less intimate and less informed judgment of others will not in the long run be beneficial. The trade union movement has always been the first to suffer when state control replaced the democratic process.

"The present situation in which a railway strike hangs over the Canadian scene imposes a nerve strain on all concerned at a time when we badly need to devote all our energies and thoughts to the grave threat of war and a national emergency arising out of decisions to be taken in that respect. . ."

Gives Cost Breakdown

Mr. Gordon gave a breakdown of costs if the demands were applied generally to all employees of both companies:-

40-hour week maintaining take-home pay, $80,158 000; 40-hour week plus seven-cents-an-hour increase, $110,736,000; 40-hour-week plus 40-cents-an-hour increase, $123,837,000.

The railways estimated compensating freight increases to meet these, respectively, at 24 per cent, 34 per cent and 38 per cent.

Mr. Gordon said that to the railways a 40-hour week seemed to be the principal remaining point of difference.

He said the railways do not resist the trend to a 40-hour week but as a service industry they cannot "on this particular point lead the parade in advance of the industries they must serve."

Shield Faces

A gaily-painted Shinto temple came into view around a bend in the dusty road. Next moment the little tiled-roof structure was wreathed in pale blue wisps of smoke as a Communist suicide sniper inside opened up with an automatic rifle.

We jumped for the ditch. A corporal a few feet up the road stumbled and fell. Blood oozed from his tunic into the fine yellow dust.

Another corporal next to me went into action with his carbine.

Firing from the temple stopped. We went on again.

At intervals along the road placed as regularly as milestones, there were piles of ammunition boxes bearing Russian markings.

The column moved towards Chinju.

E. Germans Ask Protection Against Planes

BERLIN, Aug. 10—(AP)—The Communist East-German government asked Russia today to protect the Soviet zone from alleged dropping of incendiary bombs by U.S. planes. This raised the possibility of a Soviet attempt to blockade American planes from Berlin — a step which might touch off the east-west powderkeg here.

The Communist government forwarded to Moscow a report by Interior Minister Karl Stenhoff that incendiaries were loosed on east-German farm centres by American aircraft on two occasions last month. (The U.S. Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden has denied American planes were involved.)

The East government's appeal to Moscow for "protection" came on the heels of a hint Wednesday by the Soviet control commission's official newspaper that a Soviet air blockade of Berlin may be in the offing.

Building Up

Taegliche Rundschau published an interview with a Communist worker who demanded that the Soviet Union bar American planes from flying over East Germany to prevent "our entire crop from going up in flames."

The latest accusation followed a charge three months ago by Communist officials that American fliers had dropped colorado beetles on East-German potato fields.

The beetle charges were ridiculed by American authorities. But allied officials view seriously the obvious implications if Moscow undertakes to use today's East German complaint for anything more than propaganda.

U.S. Satisfied With General

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP). —President Truman said today he is satisfied with what Gen. Douglas MacArthur is doing as American and United Nations commander in the Far East.

He also told a press conference that he had not met anybody of the sort described by MacArthur in a statement last night in which MacArthur said appeasers in Washington were criticizing his recent trip to Formosa.

Truman steered clear of comment on MacArthur's trip and the controversy which has grown around it.

Agrarian Reform Biggest Task Of Red Government In China

By WILLIAM PARROTT

HONG KONG —(Reuters)— Millions of acres of land throughout China are being confiscated from big landlords and given to peasants, laborers and others who at present have little or none.

This redistribution, described by Chinese officials as the biggest in history, is being carried out under a new agarian reform law which came into effect June 30.

According to the Communist Peking government, measures taken under the new law will be more lenient towards the rich peasant class than similar steps in the past. The rich peasant class now is to be cultivated rather than liquidated.

In contrast to the Soviet Union, Communist China is apparently deliberately setting out to establish a system of peasant land ownership.

No mention is made in the law of Russian-style collective farms, although a hint that this is a distant, but nevertheless definite, objective has been given by Liu Shao-Hai, vice-chairman of the People's Government.

Take a Long Time

In a statement on the new law, Liu said: "Only when the conditions mature for the wide use of mechanical farming, for the organization of collective farms and for the socialist reform of the rural areas, can the need for a rich peasant economy cease, and this will take some long time to achieve."

As the Chinese Communists see it, they are passing from a phase of feudal land ownership to one of 'the new democracy" or petty capitalism, with socialism, including public or collective ownership of land, as their ultimate goal.

Class Abolished

Liu promised that "landlords in general will only be deprived of their feudal land holdings and abolished as a social class, but they will not be physically eliminated."

He said that the rich peasant economy would not be destroyed because "the existence of a rich peasant economy and its development within certain limits is advantageous to the development of the people's economy in our country."

Its retention is also advantageous politically, he said.

Declaring that "it is far from sufficient for the peasants merely to divide up the landlords' means of production," Liu said: "In order to solve the problem of production, the peasants themselves must work hard and collaborate with each other, while in addition there must be government help."

System Poor

Liu said that the original land system was irrational. Landlords and rich peasants, who constituted less than 10 per cent of the rural population, possessed between 70 and 80 per cent of the land and "brutally exploited the peasant by means of this land."

On the other hand, poor peasants, farm laborers, middle-class peasants and others possessed in all only between 20 and 30 per cent of the land.

"Laboring the whole year round they hardly earn a bare subsistence," he added.

This state of affairs was responsible for China becoming "the object of aggression and oppression and having become poor and backward."

Loss Of Ferries Hits Cobourg

COBOURG, Aug. 10 (ENS) — Local merchants, particularly those who handle merchandise which appeals to tourist trade are finding that, in spite of the fact that there are more tourists here than last year, the income from this type of trade is lower than in 1949. This rather contradictory situation is explained by one simple fact and that is the loss of the car ferries.

There is hardly a store in Cobourg which did not benefit in some way from the visits of thousands of U.S. residents via the car ferries during the summer. When the car ferries went out of service earlier this year, some merchants expressed the view that increased tourist trade from other sources would offset the loss of business obtained through the ferries. However, it is becoming painfully apparent that motor car tourists are not enough to equal the combined trade of other years obtained from motorists plus ferry excursionists.

One merchant who handles a large stock of souvenirs and articles preferred by tourists, told The Examiner yesterday that he had no idea how much he had received from the ferry excursionists until after this trade dropped to nothing with the closing of the ferry service.

COBOURG, Aug. 10 (ENS). — Arnold Winter, RR 5, Cobourg and Douglas Johnston of Grafton were first and second in the tractor driving competition held at Baltimore. Seventeen Northumberland Junior Farmers took turns at wheeling the big outfit around in the competition. The finals will be held on the occasion of the Northumberland and Durham plowing match planned for October 4.

Town To Hear Lectures On Child Psychology

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 10 — (ENS.)—A special course in child psychology, sponsored by the Community Programmes Branch of the Department of Education, will be held in Campbellford from September 11 to 13 inclusive, providing the required number of interested persons, about 20, attend.

Mrs. Frances L. Johnson, M.A., of the staff of the Institute of Child Study, University of Ontario, will be the instructress.

Mrs. J. Cowell, convener of the Home Education branch of the Campbellford Home and School Association is making arrangements.

Board Requests $60,000 Grant For School, Plans Call For Four Rooms

HASTINGS, Aug. 10—(ENS)—The Hastings Public School Board has asked the town council for a new four-room public school which it hopes can be built for about $60,000.

At its meeting, the council listened to the request made by the school board's representative, C. M. Baker, and decided to consider the matter at later meeting.

The town's old school was formerly a two-room building but in 1945 a third room was added to accommodate the swelling number of young students. Now, says the school board, three rooms are not enough and a modern four-room school is needed to educate Hastings school children. The board is considering three or four sites for the new school, but hasn't chosen one yet.

The town council authorized the town clerk to ask the Department of Highways for traffic signs on Highway 45 and that the 30-mile speed signs be moved farther out along the Norwood road to slow traffic coming into Hastings.

On a motion by Councillor W. A. Thomas, seconded by J. Lynch, the council restricted the use of the town's truck to the corporation's business only.

The following accounts were authorized to be paid: Welfare $193.90 of which $55.70 is to be charged to Percy township; R. Kemp, salary, $15.00; R. Kemp, salary, $75.00; Bell Telephone, fire chief $2.50; town hall, $5.25; Peterborough Transport, $2.40; Jenkinson Signs, truck, $5.00; post office, postage, tax bills $5.10; Elliott's (for stationery), 70 cents; G. Marryat, insurance premium on fire truck, $38.08; Elliott assessment sheets, $52.60; T. Buck, labour on town truck $4.75; York Calberry, eight days, $21.00; Wm. Gillespie, bulldozer $56.00; Baker's store, supplies, $4.51; Separate School, half school levy, $550.49; Norwood High School half levy, $545.82; F. Taylor, salary, $100.00; Archie West, $4.80; Sullivan's Garage, town truck, $45.33; Wilfred Chrysler acting constable, $5.00; R. Canada's Military Commitments

In an editorial which appeared on Wednesday, the Toronto Globe and Mail takes The Examiner to task for what it plainly considers our happy-go-lucky attitude toward Canada's military preparations. The Globe has worked itself into the condition of shivers-and-indignation which is its editorial specialty, and cannot bear that another newspaper should refuse to share its fun. And we admit without reservation that some of the things The Globe says on this subject are just and pointed. Canada has spent a billion dollars on defence since 1945, and it certainly looks as though too much of that money had gone to pay chair-warmers at Ottawa. But we do not think it just to suppose that Canada should have a large body of men under arms, ready to go to war in any part of the world at a few days' notice. We shall explain why in a moment.

• • •

Meanwhile we are interested in The Globe's remark that it does not pretend to be learned in military strategy. After this disclaimer it plunges at once into what looks like strategy to us, for it finds fault with Canada's North Star planes, and praises the superiority of the British Vampire jet planes. And here, we think, we come to the root of the matter. The North Stars are an old subject with The Globe; it has attacked these planes many times before. The North Star is one of the many angry bees in The Globe's bonnet. We are content to point out that the U.S. forces in Korea have already found out that jet planes are of a rather limited use in battle, and might be glad to have a few planes which were more versatile, if not so swift.

• • •

To return to Canada's military commitments, we must point out that Canada is irrevocably pledged to act under the North Atlantic Pact of 1949, and to play a particular part under that pact which has not yet been completely defined. Canada is not a country which can send men and equipment all over the world at short notice; we will do our part under the Atlantic Pact, and our record in the wars of this century is guarantee enough that we will do it well. That very powerful nation, the U.S.A., and that other very powerful nation, Great Britain, have the Pacific under their care. When they indicate to us that they need our help there, that help will be forthcoming.

• • •

So far, however, there has been no such call for help. There has been some taunting of Canada in a few inland American papers who do not seem to have a very firm grip on international affairs. There is little agitation in Canada, except from a few Conservative papers, like The Globe and Mail, which let slip no opportunity to abuse the Government and accuse it of incompetence.

• • •

We do not believe that the Government is incompetent or stupidly indifferent to the condition of world affairs. And we suggest that the Government may have plans for the defence of this country, and the aid of countries who ask for it, which it has not confided to our great Toronto contemporary. A billion dollars has been spent on defence since 1945. Undoubtedly some of it has been wasted on Ottawa barnacles. But not the whole sum, or most of it. No government—not even our present Government as it exists in the mind of The Globe—could be so stupid as that.

Fragmentary UN War

The war being waged to drive the North Koreans out of South Korea is termed a U.N. war. The action has been sanctioned by the U.N. Security Council. But all members of U.N. do not approve of it. In fact, if Russia had its way, the tables would be turned. This month Russia is doing its best to withdraw U.N. from Korea.

It is interesting to speculate what would happen if Mr. Yakov Malik's oratory and influence as this month's president of the Security Council were to cause last month's decision to be reversed. Suppose that under his presidency (or if at a later date the majority of the Council were to change opinions drastically) the Security Council were to order support for North Korea. Would U.N.'s commander-in-chief in Asia, General MacArthur, take its orders like a responsible officer, and direct his so-called U.N. forces to fight shoulder to shoulder with the North Koreans? The question is ridiculous. General MacArthur is not primarily a U.N. commander. He takes whatever orders he takes not from U.N. but the U.S.A. Troops under him are sworn to national, not U.N. allegiance.

Suppose that Canada's U.N. brigade is sent to Korea, and that after it arrives, gerrymandering at U.N. councils results in U.N. withdrawing its sanction from the South Korean war. Would the Canadian U.N. brigade return home, after a period of fraternizing with the North Koreans, and leave the Americans to fight on by themselves in a purely American war?

These fanciful propositions do point up the facts that the U.N. war in Korea is only piecemeal U.N., and that there is neither in existence nor in preparation a true U.N. army. Nations send troops in response to the Security Council's request only as a part of national policy, and if U.N.'s policy coincides with theirs. If the Security Council had ordered support for North Korea, Russia would have responded with alacrity, and the United States would now either be playing Russia's role at the Council, or have got out of U.N. altogether.

These theoretical matters are not as whimsical as they may seem. There is a remote chance that Yakov Malik, the Soviet delegate on the Security Council, may be able to align sufficient support for non-intervention in Korea. The Council has five permanent members: China, France, the U.K., the U.S.A. and Russia. Non-permanent members are Cuba, Egypt, Norway, Ecuador, India and Yugoslavia. The majority now is in the Anglo-American camp, particularly since Communist China has not been accepted at U.N. When the next General Assembly elects other non-permanent members to replace Cuba, Egypt and Norway, whose term ends in four months, the texture of the Security Council could be sufficiently changed to alter U.N. policy about Korea. Should the 1951 Security Council reverse its policy five months hence, the U.S.A. would not then be waging a U.N. war. Nor would Canada's U.N. brigade, if it is then committed in Korea.

"Rose Marie" On Skates

It was in 1925, if we are not greatly mistaken, that the musical comedy of Rose Marie was first produced. It was a huge success in New York and London, and for fully five years afterward touring companies took it everywhere that musical comedy was known and appreciated.

Of course it was popular in Canada, for its setting was Canadian, and the scenes in the Rockies, and the final scene in front of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa, touched us in a very special way. We did not recognize the characters as typical Canadians, perhaps. Beautiful French-Canadian girls who rush about saying "You make ze mariage wiz me, no?" were as scarce then as they are today. None of us had ever seen a Canadian Indian as beautiful as the girl who led the Totem Pole dance. Nor, it must be said, had our experience of the Mounties given us any special respect for their powers as singers. But we loved the show.

It is surprising to find that Rose Marie has come out in a new guise, as a skating spectacle. Here is what the London Sunday Times has to say about it:

> Tireless in the pursuit of culture, the Harringay ice arena authorities are now presenting on skates this famous romance about the simple-hearted and (one is bound to assume from the dialogue) simple-minded inhabitants of the West. The speeches are declaimed through microphones with the slow deliberation of one who is trying to explain the quantum theory to a deaf and backward Hottentot.
>
> The skating, however, though sometimes monotonous, as any display of absolutely faultless skill must often be, is frequently superbly swift, graceful, and exact, and, as Rose Marie, Miss Barbara Ann Scott is as delightful to the eye as the squeaks made on her behalf are painful to the ear. The Totem Tom-Tom dance is a thing of darkness and flame, and there is a wonderful Catherine wheel of red-coated police.

Frankly, we are just as pleased that we shall not see Rose Marie in this form, even with a Canadian girl in the title role. And the prospect of other musical comedies on skates chills our blood. Blossom Time, for instance, with poor old Schubert pouring out his song of love on skates—no, no!

Oddly Enough

By PAUL JENNINGS

"MONEY," said Emerson, "is as beautiful in its operations and effects as roses." The more I see of economic writing, the more I am convinced that the financial world is streaked with poetry. One of the poet's gifts is condensation, the ability to pack overtones into a title, or even a headline, and I first noticed this gift in economists when, a long time ago, I read, for an examination, a book called "The Mechanism of Exchange," by John L. Todd.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT was not one of your simplified books, with diagrams containing those little rows of cement statues with bowler hats (or skirts) with only one arm and one leg of the last one showing. It was a proper textbook; and it had these marginal headlines, just like "The Ancient Mariner." "The Issue Department," they said, and "Relieving the Discount Market," and, more rhetorically, "The Hub of the Universe"—this turned out to be the Bank of England.

◇ ◇ ◇

ECONOMIST friends tell me that this book is now out of date. But it served to introduce me to the fascinating study of the headlines of City pages. I have found that these cover the whole range of human emotions, from ecstasy ("Rails Soar") to despair and chaos ("Wall Street Plunges"). The virtue to which they return again and again is the Roman, stoic one of Steadiness, and where they are really at their best is in conveying the Steadiness when it is tinged with a gentle, autumnal melancholy, reminding one of the Stoic holding on to their rewardless virtues in the sad sunset of humanism as the Empire broke up. Recently I have collected three superlative examples in this genre—"Middle Wits Decline," "Quiet Tin Market," and, most poignant of all, "Small Rally Not Held."

◇ ◇ ◇

"MIDDLE Wits Decline" might well be a part of the famous Yeats poem—

> Things fall apart; the centre cannot hold;
> Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world,
> The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
> The ceremony of innocence is drowned;
> Middle wits decline . . .

◇ ◇ ◇

DO you not see these middle wits, asked long ago to the bright dinner-parties of Barons, famous for their moderate, restrained, civilised jests, now sitting in silent senility, like the Senate in empty Rome when the Gauls came? Or perhaps they are sitting, haunted with memories, in the Quiet Tin Market, where dusty sunbeams filter past portraits of mighty, long-forgotten tin merchants stretching right back to Phoenician days; where dusty piles of ingots dwarf the few low-voiced men conducting the puny tin business of today.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUT it is "Small Rally Not Held" that haunts me, City page headlines often do not hesitate to break away from purely financial matters and consider the larger social scene; and here we have an unforgettable picture of a small town, where for weeks they have been planning their rally, largely because there has always been one every year before. But this time, as the organisers walk round the small triangular field behind the gasworks, deciding where the tea marquee shall be, arguing over the expense of hiring the silver band from the larger town eleven miles away, a dreadful inertia begins to take hold of them. Sadly, they know that the world is changing, that a silver band playing "Poet and Peasant" is not sophisticated enough for young people who hear American bands every week at the Kapital Kinema. But the arrangements go forward, although hardly any tickets are sold yet. "They'll all come on the day," the Secretary tells the Rally Committee with forced cheerfulness.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUT when the day comes it is pouring with rain. The bandsmen's bus swishes wetly up the street of little houses towards the rally field. Stewards in dripping mackintoshes with armband direct all the participants into the hall of the Council School (1894 A.D., it says in a stone diamond in the wall) opposite. School children, leaving their sodden banners in the porch, crowd in to be told that the rally is postponed until three o'clock. But after an uncertain morning of cheese sandwiches and weak, unsugared tea, it is raining as hard as ever . . .

◇ ◇ ◇

NO, it is all too terrible. One can only hope that they were consoled by being reported in a national newspaper.

(Special to The Examiner from the London Observer.)

The Coldstreams

(London Daily Mail)

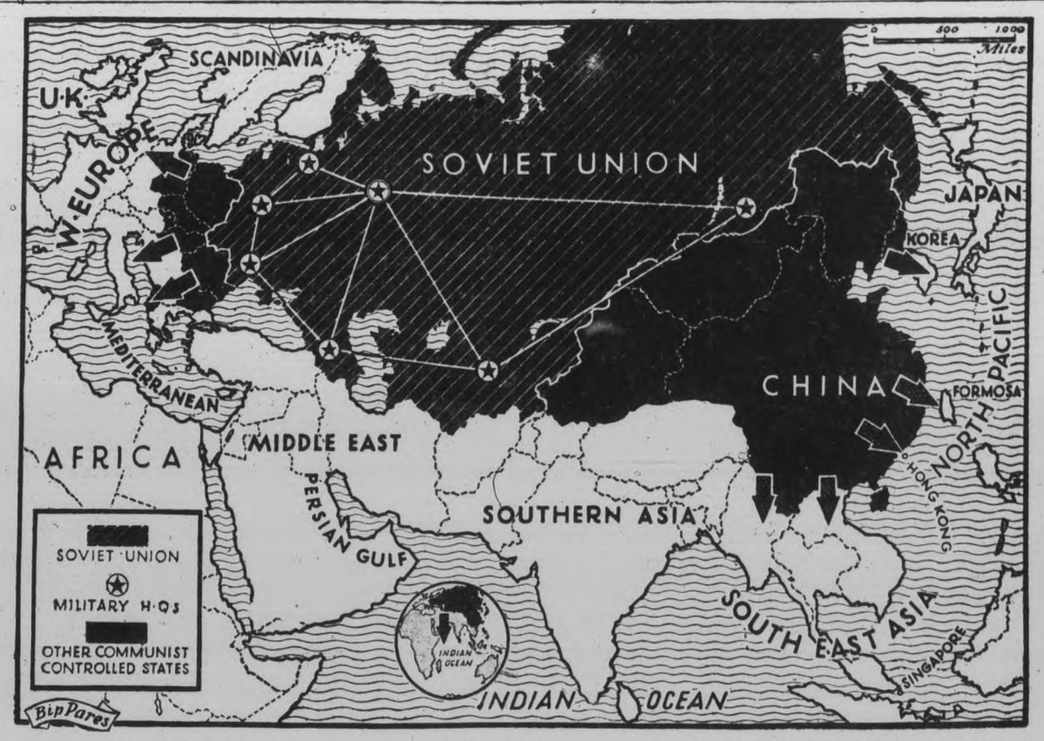
This is a great year for the Coldstream Guards, proud of their double distinction of being the oldest corps by continuous existence and lineal descent of the first regular army, raised and organized by Cromwell under the title of the "new model".

Cromwell had decided to confer a command on an able officer of his staff, Col. George Monk, and the new regiment was formed from two north country units and began service in Scotland and on the border.

Just how much Monk's heart was in land fighting may be gathered, by the way, from the fact that when he was later one of three admirals leading the British fleet against the Dutch, he gave to his ships the rather unorthodox command: "Wheel to the right—charge!"

The name of the Coldstream Guards dates from the time when, stationed at Coldstream, Berwickshire, in the Winter of 1659-60, they marched to London to restore Charles II to the throne.

In 1661 they laid down their arms on Tower Hill in the name of the Commonwealth and immediately took them up in the name of the King. From that moment began their career as personal guards to the new sovereign.



AGGRESSION BY PROXY—Korea is the first case of Russian aggression by proxy—that is, aggression by the Russian-armed and Russian-trained forces of a Russian satellite, which aims at extending Russia's sphere of power, but does not involve Russia legally and diplomatically. Similar actions, indicated in this map by stippled arrows are possible in Europe and Asia. In neither area is there a certainty that the existing local defence of the free nations is adequate to meet even this limited danger. Only on its southern frontier would Russia have to move openly by herself in order to conquer territory by military means. On the other hand, such a move, as the inset globe shows, would bring Russia to the shores of the Indian Ocean and neatly sever connections between East and West. It might become a distinct threat once the resources of the Western Powers were fully engaged in a number of local wars.

"Forever Amber" In Quebec

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

Speaking as a novelist, Madame Germaine Guevremont told a Montreal club the other day that writers in this country can make a living only by catering for the lowest tastes. Canadians, she says, borrow books from friends or the libraries in preference to buying them, though they readily part with a couple of dollars for other kinds of entertainment. Yet Mme. Guevremont notes that in a French edition, Forever Amber has sold 400,000 copies in Canada, mostly in Quebec. Before the worst construction is placed upon this information, however, the factor of price must be considered. A couple of dollars, or seven times this sum, will not go far in a bookstore these days.

As for the popularity of Forever Amber in Quebec, it seems hardly credible that a taste for salacious literature could account for that phenomenon. For in that province moral sensitivity is ostensibly so keen that babies must be decently clothed on the billboards and the wearing of shorts is a punishable offence in the capital city. The only conclusion to be drawn is that the Quebec reading public were taken in by the specious claims of Ambre to be a historical novel. In addition, the French version of the book was doubtless put out in one of those inexpensive, paper-bound editions that Montreal publishers produce in quantity.

Because of a limited market, among other reasons, the cost of books published in Canada tends to be high. But a low-priced reprint of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Sketches issued some time ago was sold out, undoubtedly reaching many new readers. Experience with pocket-size reprints in the United States shows a large demand for books of good quality as well as for the sensational. There seems little doubt that more Canadians would buy more books by Canadian authors if prices could be pared.

Of Unst And Yell

(Ottawa Journal)

There's a tale the British tell of hamlets small, called Unst and Yell. While other Britons understood, full well the joys of Hollywood, poor Unst and Yell lived in the spell of Celtic myth and legends rude.

At Shetlands' tip they have their place, stern outposts of the Scottish race, but came the awesome Northern night with ne'er a cinema's cheering light. Hard was their lot, they cared no jot for peat-fire glow and sun-swept snow when others of the Island home could see Miss Hayworth face to face.

These Northern folk, in poetry bred, made stockings fine and fished the seas but life was incomplete. With poetry dead they turned in pain to strange device called—hear now the clunk of modern phrase—the Highlands and Islands Film Guild.

Now blessed homes of Unst and Yell. Comes William Williamson complete with projector and screen packed in van. Wullie has the pictures and he makes the trip to Unst and Yell twice a month.

Peace on Unst, and progress. Yell, yell no more.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John: who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost. . . . Then laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.

But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the sight of God. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee. . . .

Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me. (Acts 8: 14, 15, 17-22, 24.)

Toronto The Nice

(Fort Erie Times-Review)

Toronto, alias the Good, alias the City of Homes, is also the City of Euphemism. In Toronto they don't have garbage collectors they have "collectors of municipal waste." Those lackadaisical gentlemen who push little mounds of refuse along the curb to some unknown destination aren't street sweepers—not in Toronto anyway. They're "street patrolmen."

The word "garbage" is one of the most descriptive in the English language. It has a harsh, guttural sound. It was coined long ago by people who knew what they were doing. Something so offensive as garbage clearly needed an unpleasant name. So they called it garbage.

But that's not good enough for Toronto. Torontonians are too "nice" to produce garbage. They might, conceivably, be stuck with more potato peelings than they can conveniently make use of themselves, in which case that portion of potato peelings which is surplus to requirements must be classified as municipal waste.

Of course, if anything should happen to drop off the back of a municipal waste collection vehicle, it will be shunted along the curb by a patrolman, using his portable disposal utensil. This consists of a long handle, to which is attached a number of fibres, usually horsehair, embedded in a wooden base. In communities outside Toronto, where vulgarity is rampant, this article is referred to as a broom.

It must be mentioned that the campaign to glamourize the grosser side of Toronto life is largely carried on by the city's Commissioner of streets (who has not yet changed his title to Curator of Thoroughfares). Some Torontonians, it is reported, still lapse occasionally into a certain coarseness of idiom. But at least it may be assumed that the word "garbage" is fast disappearing from the better-class drawing-rooms.

Stone Gateway To Cemetery Is Dedicated

Many people assembled on Sunday afternoon at Fife's cemetery on the 4th concession of Otonabee township to take part in the service of dedicating the stone gateway which was recently erected. The cost of the stone pillars which show the craftsmanship of Mr. John Dinsdale, and that of the iron fence amounting to several hundreds of dollars has been defrayed by public subscriptions by friends and families who have used this cemetery for over one hundred years. The first burials were made in 1845.

Inset in a pillar is a granite plaque—the gift of Mr. J. Pirie—bearing this inscription, "To the glory of God and in grateful memory of the pioneers of this district. An honest man's the noblest work of God."

The proceedings were under the guidance of Mr. Harold Weir, chairman of the trustees of the cemetery, with Rev. Harrington, pastor of Keene United Church circuit, pronouncing the beautiful words of the Dedication.

A splendid address by Mr. Albert Nelson, inspector of schools in Perth Co., and a descendant of the first settlers in Otonabee, was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. In his inimitable manner he recounted trials of pioneer life and related incidents with a touch of humor which seemed to bring those early times very close to his audience.

The music was in charge of Mr. Whiteman of Napanee. The service included the decorating of graves.

The grounds under the capable direction of Mr. James Fife, made a pleasing picture and formed a suitable setting for the dedication.

Boost Defence Outlay

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 10—(AP)—Denmark's parliament voted Wednesday night to boost the country's defence outlay by 350,000,000 kroner (about $55,000,000). The new parliament which will be elected Sept. 5 will decide where it will get the money.

U.K. Crops Good

LONDON, Aug. 10—(Reuters)—Britain's grain crops are expected to be above average this summer, a ministry of agriculture report said today. Wheat and oats are reported to be good generally, despite considerable storm damage in some areas. Barley is generally satisfactory and rye is standing well.

Seventy UN Bombers Pound Railway Centre

TOKYO, Aug. 10. — (AP). — Seventy B-29 bombers from Japan and Okinawa bases pounded North Korea's rail and oil centre of Wonson today with the war's most powerful air strike.

Waves of B-29's bombed visually in their mass raids on the Wonsan railroad centre and switching yard, railroad repair shops and the big Chosen (Korean) oil refinery.

The most spectacular damage was at Chosen. A tail gunner on the last B-29 in the scond wave that hit Wonsan said the smoke column "pushed up ever above our altitude which was more than 15,000 feet."

He could see the column of black smoke when his plane was more than 100 miles from the target.

The third wave had trouble locating their aiming points because of the greasy black pall of smoke over the target.

Three Targets

More than 400 tons of bombs were dropped on three separate Wonsan targets and more than 200 tons were unleashed against other strategic targets in the Communist transportation network north of Parallel 38.

Early reports on the record total of 625 tons point to "extensive damage done to the Communist war potential," the Far East air forces command announced.

The B-29's returned to the refinery target because previous strikes had failed to knock it out.

The previous high B-29 bomb drop on North Korean targets was 500 tons in one day.

Allied bombers and fighters today hit a wide range of military objectives including rail yards, bridges and communications.

American strikes also were made in support of ground action along the 140-mile fighting front.

Royal Australian Air Force planes flew infantry support missions centred in the fight along the Naktong River.

Many Attend Funeral Of Mrs. R. Heffernan

The funeral of the late Mrs. Richard Heffernan took place Wednesday morning at St. Paul's Church, Norwood.

Mrs. Heffernan was born in Otonabee 72 years ago, the daughter of the late Ann Fitzgerald and William Garvey.

She was educated at Separate School No. 5 on Number 7 highway. She lived all her life in the community.

She is survived by her husband, three sons and five daughters: Alfonse, Richard and Bernard all of Norwood; Mrs. Cecil Lynch (Mona) of Hastings; Mrs. Stanley Condon (Aileen) of Douro; Mrs. Jack Delaney (Rita) of Norwood; Mrs. Ralph Hamilton (Josephine) of Havelock; Miss Ann Heffernan, R.N., of Peterborough and two sisters Mrs. Michael Heffernan of Norwood and Mrs. Mary Cavanaugh of Otonabee.

Rev. J. J. Garvey of Hastings, cousin of the deceased, celebrated mass and Rev. C. J. Carroll of Norwood and Rev. Leo. Leahy of Peterborough were in the sanctuary.

Pallbearers were four sons-in-law and two grandsons, Ralph Hamilton, Jack Delaney, Stanley Condon, Cecil Lynch, Harry Lynch, and Raymond Lynch.

Friends and relatives from Toronto, Hastings, Peterborough, Campbellford and Havelock attended. Burial was in St. Paul's cemetery.

Cut Paper Size

PARIS, Aug. 10.—(Reuters).—French newspapers, which now have eight pages, will be reduced to six on alternate weeks from next Monday to the end of the month, the ministry of information announced today. Unless the newsprint supply position improved considerably, the reduction will be continued until Sept. 15.

Amateur Radiomen Prove Usefulness In Emergency

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG —(CP)— Opportunities for amateur radio operators to demonstrate their usefulness in national emergencies do not occur often, but when they do the hams go all out.

The Manitoba flood disaster last spring is a prime example of what the hams can do.

In greater Winnipeg alone, amateur radio operators handled more than 4,000 messages during the peak, two-week period of the flood. These were mainly inquiries about relatives and friends in the flood areas.

"We weren't trying to take business away from the telegraph companies," said Peter Watt, president of the Winnipeg amateur radio club. "We just stepped in to take up the overflow."

Two key stations handled the bulk of the job, with other hams voluntarily assisting in keeping them in operation on a 24-hour basis. This went on almost continuously for two weeks.

Gas Generators

In anticipation of a power failure, a number of operators acquired gasoline generators at their own expense. These would have enabled them to carry on when other means of communication were cut off.

The amateurs had no difficulty in answering queries from points as far off as Great Britain and the Southern United States.

Ham facilities were used also to raise money for the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund.

A conversation between Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg and the Mayor of Nanaimo, BC, which took place between stations VE4SR, operated by Stewart Talbot of Winnipeg, and station VE7XV, operated by Jim Reid of Nanaimo, was recorded and later broadcast.

It resulted in raising $10,000 for the fund. Similar arrangements were later made with other cities.

London Roses Toronto Winners

LONDON — (CP) —It cost Norman Rogers £4 ($12.40) and 14 gallons of gas to send flowers to Canada, but it was worth it.

Rogers, 75, was informed that his airborne roses won two firsts and a third at a Toronto flower show.

He paid £4 to send the 18 blooms by air, plus the gas to get them to the airport. He also had to complete four invoices and two certificates to keep the Bank of England happy.

"They also wanted a certificate of health—for the roses, not for me—but it would have taken too long. Anyway, they were apparently pretty healthy specimens."

Bermuda Cricketers Take Ten Wickets In An Hour

Some of the finest cricket played on Peterborough soil brought an overwhelming victory Wednesday for the Bermuda Touring Cricket Team which scored 234 runs and declared after six wickets. The Peterborough Whitaker team, playing host to the team which is touring Ontario and eastern states, was out for 55 runs, batting for only one hour.

The Peterborough team fielded first and it was not until well into the afternoon, when W. Simmonds, a Bermuda left handed batsman had scored a century, that Peterborough went in to bat. Seconds after the last Peterborough wicket fell the rain, which had been threatening spasmodically throughout the day, came down in a deluge.

Both teams were suffering handicaps Bermuda playing without its captain, Alma Hunt, who pulled a leg muscle while playing the day before in Ottawa, and Peterborough Whitaker was without A. Pope, who was engaged in inter-provincial matches, and B. Roberts.

The picture looked bright for Peterborough when the first two Bermuda wickets fell within some 15 minutes of commencement but after that S. Smith and W. Simmonds put on 97 runs before Smith was bowled by Peterborough Whitaker's captain, Frank Booth.

Simmonds received valuable help from C. Symonds who scored 32 and S. Bean, 19, and when the visitors declared at 234, W. Simmonds was not out.

Booth did an excellent job for the home team, taking three wickets for 85 runs. But the Bermuda batting was of top calibre and there were only three maiden overs during the entire innings.

Bermuda also had some brilliant fast bowlers which T. Scott of the Peterborough team handled well getting 23 runs before being run out. L. Simmonds of the Bermuda team took six wickets for only 19 runs.

Bermuda

Batting: L. Simmonds 0, W. Edwards 1, W. Smith 57, W. Simmonds 100 not C. Tazo 4, C. Simmonds 32, S. Bean 19, L. Wade 2 not out, extras 19; total 234 for six wickets.

C. Wade, J. Richardson and W. Burgess did not bat.

Fall of wickets: 1 for 1, 2 for 13, 3 for 110, 4 for 114, 5 for 160, 6 for 220.

Bowling: F. Booth 3 wickets for 85 runs, E. Cotton 1 for 37, F. Dyer 1 for 60, A. Rollwagon 1 for 20, W. Wright 0 for 20, T. Scott 0 for 1.

Peterborough-Whitakers

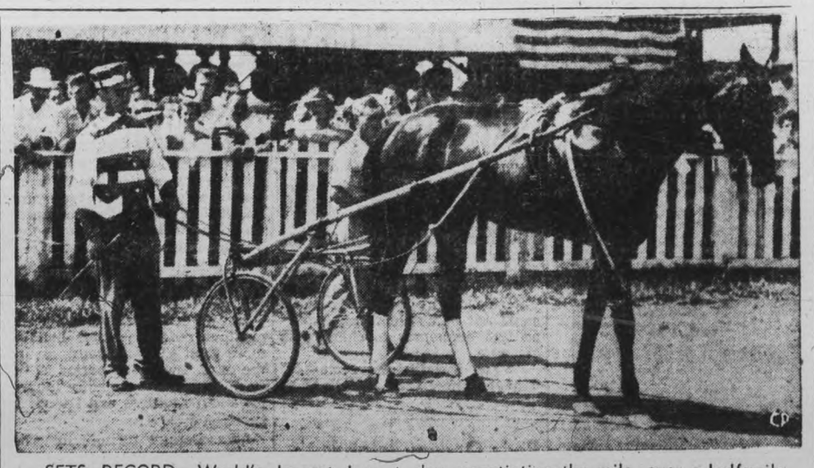
Batting: W. G. Wright 6, E. Cotton 5, F. Booth 4, T. Scott 23, R. Rollwagon 9, R. Titshall 0, W. Rashleigh 0, S. Jennings 0 not out, H. Dibben 2, J. Wild 0, F. Dyer 0, extras 6; total 55.

Fall of wickets: 1 for 5, 2 for 15, 3 for 21, 4 for 44, 5 for 52, 6 for 52, 7 for 53, 8 for 55, 9 for 55, 10 for 55.

Bowling: W. Burgess 0 for 5, L. Wade 2 for 15, L. Simmonds 6 for 19, W. Edwards 1 for 16.

Mrs. Sidney Jennings was the Peterborough-Whitakers scorer.

The Bermuda team left early today for Oakville, where their next game is being played. The Peterborough-Whitakers team will play St. Edmunds at Port Hope on Saturday.



SETS RECORD—World's largest harness horse money winner with a total of $212,379, Proximity (1:59 2/5) broke the Stratford track record for trotters on Monday, negotiating the mile, over a half-mile track, in 2:06 4/5. Owned by J. Verhurst and Son of Victor, NY, the horse was driven by Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., top North American driver last year.

Dr. Stanton Race Favorite

TORONTO, Aug. 10 — (CP) — A field of eight great Canadian and American horses go after Canada's richest harness racing prize tomorrow — the $15,000 Canadian Cup—feature of the 42-day meet at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway.

The entry list closed yesterday with three top U.S. horses and five of Canada's finest in the running.

A crowd of about 10,000—which would be the largest ever to watch harness racing in Canada—is expected to be on hand when the first of two dashes goes at 3.45 p.m. EDT. The initial dash is one mile and the second, set for 5.20 p.m., is 1 1-16.

The winner, should two horses alternate for the first and second dashes, will be decided on the fastest mile.

Dr. Stanton Favorite

Installed as sentimental favorite for the Canadian Cup—a gold mug valued at about $2,500—is Dr. Stanton the darling of Canadian harness racing fans. Owned by Linley Fraser, of Forest, Ont., Dr. Stanton has won more than $100,000 in purses and has a record of 2.00 for the mile.

He's listed at 7-to-5 and will be crowded in the odds column by a lineup of impressive stars.

Starting as an entry, for instance will be Royal Man and Gene Abbe, both owned by Eddie Cobb, of Washington Court House, Ohio, and shipped to Toronto by the celebrated racer specially for this race. Royal Man has been wowing them at Detroit's Wolverine raceway, and Gene Abbe in from New York, has a record of 2.00 3-5 and $20,000 in victories last year, including free-for-alls at Roosevelt and Lexington.

Lusty Song Wins Hambletonian In Exciting Race

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP). —Del Miller, a "veteran youth" of the Grand Circuit, found the $75,209 Hambletonian Stakes on his plate, so he just gobbled it up.

The 37-year-old driver who hails from Meadow Lands, Pa., whipped Lusty Song home to win the silver anniversary Hambletonian Wednesday in two straight heats. The horse is owned by E. J. (Gene) Hayes of Du Quoin, Ill.

Miller got 10 per cent of Lusty Song's $40,537 Hambletonian booty.

Lusty Song, a son of Volomite-Scotch Song, had been beaten twice this year on the half mile tracks by Star's Pride.

So the crowd of 16,942 established Star's Pride and his stablemate, Florican, the 7-5 favorite in the opening mile heat of the Hambletonian.

Second Choice

Lusty Song was second choice at 8 to 5.

In the first heat Lusty Song came home 1½ lengths in front of Star's Pride. Lord Steward was third in the field of 13 starters.

He took the second heat by a scant neck ahead of Star's Pride. Florican was third in the final heat.

Both heats were clipped off in a snappy 2:02.

"I never thought I had the second heat won. I thought it was a dead heat," Miller said. He knew he had the initial dash won midway down the stretch.

"Lusty Song went a perfect race in both heats."

Hayes purchased Lusty Song as a yearling for $7,600 from the Walnut Hall Farm, near Lexington, Ky.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The "no bowling tonight" sign was hung on the notice board Wednesday evening. That heavy shower around six o'clock was responsible.

Our bowlers who were playing in tournaments at Brighton, Lindsay and Cannington, but we have no details. Probably they were rained out.

Any of our bowlers who would like to take in the annual trip to Toronto on Saturday, Aug. 19 are asked to see R. Hendry or G. Soulby this week.

Tomorrow night the weekly tournament is for men's rinks, 7.30 o'clock.

The ladies have an open trebles tournament coming up on Friday, Aug. 18.

Don't be surprised, that within a day or two we may announce the entry list for the Black Memorial Trophy tournament is closed.

Tonight schedule games as usual.

Congratulations are due Harold Freeman and William Jeffries. Playing at Kingston yesterday in the second stage of the Ontario provincial championship games they won all three games and the right to play in the final stage to be held in Ottawa on Saturday, Aug. 26.

Hurley Leads

J. H. Hurley of Windsor's Essex Golf Club led scorers in the first day of the London Hunt Club's senior golf tournament on Wednesday. He put together rounds of 37 for a low gross of 74. The first round saw 84 golfers tee off. The final 18 holes will be played today. In third spot tied with Dr. George Laing of Essex is J. V. Stark of Kitchener Westmount, with a 79. A. R. Wilson of Montreal was second with 76.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Brampton Excelsiors, sitting pretty in second place in the OLA senior "A" standing, play the third-place Petes at 8.45 tomorrow eve in Miller Bowl. This will be a dandy as each team holds a decision over the other in hard-fought frays so far this semester. Also, Archie Browning of Brampton will be after Arn Dugan, who holds top spot at present among senior "A" snipers, recently displacing Archie. They have other B. C. stars aboard, too, and play a rugged game. Sid Wright, Cornwall ace defenceman, has joined the Creighton crew, and that Friday fixture should see a hot battle all the way before a big crowd.

* * * * * *

Red Creighton is going to coach the juvenile lacrosse all-star squad which goes into provincial play shortly. Dootch Vitarelli handles the midget playdown crew, and Barney Dundas the bantam bunch. Lou Vitarelli's junior Petes—who aren't drilling till 10 a.m. Aug. 13—finished fifth and will meet the seventh-place club in group playoffs soon. That's junior "B," but some of the local lads might catch the all-star eastern junior club which will go west later in Canadian playoffs. PMLA titles will be settled tonight with bantam, midget and juvenile jousts, starting at six in Miller Bowl.

* * * * * *

Orfuns Getting Ready

Coach Harv Bamforth is calling a skull drill for all prospective senior "B" gridders at seven p.m. Monday in the Ex. Team is taking the name of Orfuns—same as the senior "A" club here just before the war—and will import half a dozen Hamilton and Beach aces to really bolster. Drills nightly next week after the original get-together Monday down south. Glad to hear Frank Fitzgerald is staying with the squad this season, and it should be a potent one in a stiff grouping with Orillia, Oshawa and Cobourg Ghosts. With the Big Four practically pro, and the ORFU senior "A" semi-pro, this senior "B" group setup shapes up as just about the amateur senior "A" calibre of a few years back.

* * * * * *

George Panter of the OHA refuses to believe that senior "A" hockey in Ontario is on the rocks, with only a couple of clubs willing to go ahead. High costs, plus taxes, are ruining that bracket. George says another year may see London and Peterborough stepping up to senior "A" to fill some gaps. Sounds interesting, but don't bet the family chinaware on a local entry. First of all, we'd need the Memorial Centre for senior "A"—and that, in another year, is a laugh. Also, the Petes and ex-Legionnaires would have to amalgamate and bolster plenty, and we can't see that, either. But it doesn't hurt to dream.

* * * * * *

Those Fitba' Fellows

The second-place Hamilton soccer team of the south-western Ontario circuit—which also embraces London, Guelph, Brantford and Fergus—plays the local UEW squad an exhibition at three of the clock Saturday aft in King Edward Park. They'll arrive by noon for the game. UE are playing in the eastern loop. Under the centennial sports program, soccer officials here are requested to arrange a floodlight game at Riverside Park on Thursday evening, Aug. 24, two weeks from tonight. No defnite decision has been made yet as to the participating teams in the contest.

* * * * * *

With no lights available so far at Riverside, the Petes play a senior ball game at 2.30 Saturday afternoon in Oshawa. They also expect to play the Merchants of that city a "home" game the same evening in Bowmanville, though this may not be arranged finally. Meanwhile, the men o' Murphy are having a well-earned rest for a few days and getting re-acquainted with their families. Manager Peg Hurst of Oshawa is tendering his resignation after this week-end, due to the pressure of business. Maybe the import problem and threat of USA draft on same is adding its pressure, too. Bill Harper, classy left fielder of the Merchants, is out for the rest of the season with a broken ankle, suffered in a Congress game.

Say Barrie Flyers Looking For New Home Ice

BARRIE, Aug. 10 (CP).—Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" series may have a new home base this season.

Coach Hap Emms, displeased over a proposed contract with the Barrie Arena Commission, is reported looking for another town that will sponsor Flyers. He has moved the club's equipment from the Barrie arena and was last reported sounding out Collingwood on sponsoring a Junior "A" team.

Club officials say the trouble lies in the commission's demands for rental of the arena on a percentage basis. In other years the club has paid rent at a flat rate. Last year the commission enlarged the arena from 1,400 seats to 4,000 at Emms' request.

Robinson Has No Trouble Keeping Title

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 10 (AP).—Jake Lamotta is the next target for Sugar Ray Robinson, now that his fifth welter title defence is safely out of the way. But it won't be easy to arrange.

Robinson never was safer than in the Roosevelt Stadium ring Wednesday night against cycling Charlie Fusari. The only time he risked his crown was on the scales at noon.

The lean Harlem slasher had to go back three times before he made 147 pounds after steam baths and rubdowns. From here in he wants to mingle with the middleweights.

A 160-pound championship bout with Lamotta will be discussed today at the Madison Square Garden offices of the International Boxing Club in New York.

George Gainford, Robinson's manager, says he will give the IBC exclusive rights to three Robinson title fights and three fights a year after that if he gets the Lamotta match. There is one gimmick—Robinson wants 20 per cent.

Offer Differs

The IBC has offered 15 per cent—and no higher. Lamotta would receive 45 per cent.

What will happen? Chances are Robinson will have to go back to risking his Pennsylvania world middleweight title at Scranton, Pa Aug. 23 against Jose Basora and over-the-weight welter bouts.

Maybe Sugar Ray will even fight as a welter again. But it's against his own inclinations.

"I wasn't exactly tired," said Robinson in his Roosevelt Stadium dressing room after the fight, "but I was kind of weak. If I ever get up to 155 again, it would take a big figure with a lot of naughts behind it to tempt me to reduce to 147 again."

Robinson and Gainford have one ace up their sleeve. That is the National Boxing Association order to Jake to defend against Robinson this fall or lose his crown.

Unless Robinson accepts 15 per cent, the IBC probably will match Lamotta with Laurent Dauthuille of France for a Detroit title fight Sept. 13 or Sept. 20.

There was little action in Robinson's latest outing because Fusari ran for most of the 15 rounds.

You had to bend over backwards to give the Irvington, N. J. blond a single round. Referee Paul Cavalier gave him one and called one even. The AP card scored it 14 for Sugar Ray and one even.

The bout drew a surprisingly large crowd of more than 25,000. Actual receipts probably will top $150,000.

Tigers Edge Petes

Kinlin Tigers edged the peewees Petes lacrosse 11-10 yesterday, having a 3-1 margin in the first to spell the main difference. Coombs, Hunt and Ferguson scored for them then, the latter with Mountney and Davis having assists. Ketcheson got one for Tigers from Jay. The latter got three in the second, Jay helping on one. For Petes, Ferguson scored two and aided on another as Hawthorne got another. Coombs having an assist. In the third, Ketcheson had a pair and Anthony one for Tigers, Jay helping twice, as Ferguson hit the mark with Davis' pass. The last period saw Ketcheson count a pair for Tigers, McCarthy and Jay getting one each the latter also having an assist. For Petes Coombs got two and Davis one, with an assist going to Hawthorne. Teams:

Tigers—G. Heffernan, Jay, Ketcheson, Barrie, McCarthy G. DeNoble R. Anthony.

Petes—F. Heffernan, Walker, Mountney, O'Neill, Davis, Ferguson, Hunt, Hawthorne, Kent.

Shrimps Victorious

Shrimps defeated Hurricanes 8-1 in a tadpole lacrosse tilt yesterday, Todd getting the lone losers' marker in the third from DeNoble. Reid and Walling scored in the first, and each added one along with McCarthy's goal from Reid in the second heat. The third saw Wilkinson, Reid and McCarthy hit the twine, Walling assisting on one goal. Teams:

Shrimps — Parry, Wilkinson Reid, Walling, McCarthy, Hemphill, Cochrane.

Hurricanes—Patterson Parks, G. Heffernan, Davis, Collins, Todd, W. Anthony Heard, B. DeNoble, P. DeNoble.

Referees, T. Davis and L. Ferguson.

Grid Squad Takes Name Of Peterborough Orfuns

The executive of the local ORFU senior "B" football club has decided the team will bear the name of Peterborough Orfuns in competition this autumn with Orillia, Oshawa and Cobourg. The name of Panthers has been discarded in favor of the banner worn by the senior "A" squad here in 1938 and 1939 when the club was grouped with Sarnia Imperials, Balmy Beaches and Montreal Nats.

In '39, Harvard Bamforth was coach of Peterborough, succeeding Bill Irwin, and he had a promising pack coming along when the war broke up the team. Such later senior stars served under him as Les Ascott, Leo Deadey, Don Crowe, Mike Loucks, Pup Curtin, Jerry Creighton, Mick Magee and others. Coach Bamforth returns to handle the 1950 senior "B" Orfuns and is expected to again demonstrate his real ability as a grid pilot. He skippered numerous championship senior PCVS teams in provincial play during the 30's when he was on the Collegiate staff. Mr. Bamforth was a star player himself earlier.

Some Imports

Opposing Coach Bamforth's Orfuns this fall will be Bill McGill's Orillia Bombers, playing coach Bob Cooper's smart Galloping Ghosts of Cobourg, and Bob Cosgrove's strong Oshawa Red Raiders, with an Argo connection. Peterborough will obtain five or six senior players from Hamilton and Balmy Beaches, and are assured that Frank Fitzgerald, star inside who went with the Wild Cats last year, will remain here this season.

A meeting of players and prospects will be held at seven next Monday night in the Exhibition Grounds when a skull drill will be held by Coach Bamforth. Nightly drills will be the order then with all positions open at present. Orfuns have a schedule and a half to assure them of five home games —apart from any exhibitions — opening with Oshawa here Sept. 15. Top team in this group goes into ORFU senior "B" playdowns against one of the other three provincial groups, one at Toronto-Dundas, one of Oakville-Niagara Falls area, and one in Western Ontario. All home games for the Orfuns — who will have a boosters' club to start them off on the right financial footing — will be Wednesday or Friday nights under lights in the Exhibition Grounds.

Marmora Race Track Widened, Levelled

MARMORA, Aug 10—(ENS)—Most of the work on the race track at Marmora Community Centre has been completed with pleasing results. The track has been widened a good deal and levelled. It promises to be one of the best on any rural fair grounds in Central Ontario.

For the fall fair on September 8, a special effort is being made to secure good horses.

Cobourg Bows 7-4 To Bowmanville Team

BOWMANVILLE, Aug. 10. —A potential no-hitter went up in smoke here Tuesday night when Tom Hogan of Cobourg slashed a single in the sixth inning, the first given up by Bowmanville's Gord Sterrock.

The hit mattered little in the final tabulation as Bowmanville went on to win the Lakeshore Intermediate "A" baseball game, 7-4, before 300 fans.

Led by Jack Cooper, who belted a two-run homer, the Legionnaires drove Sterrock to cover in the sixth with a four-run rally. Max Yourth led the winners with a three-run homer in the fourth inning, and a single. Bob Williams smashed a two-run single in the first inning for Bowmanville.

Doby Goes On Hitting Spree Indians Split Twin Bill

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

American League pitchers are feeling the after-effects of Larry Doby's near-tragic skulling July 24.

Since Brooklyn's Joe Hatten knocked Doby unconscious with a pitch to the head in an exhibition game at Ebbets Field, no pitcher has been safe from his bludgeoning bat.

In 11 games since the accident the Cleveland Negro outfielder has pounded out nine home runs, driven in 20 runs and batted .462. Doby's home-run output matched his entire output for his first 86 games.

He tried his utmost to give the Indians a sweep of their doubleheader with St. Louis Wednesday night. He slammed two home runs and three doubles to drive in five runs. But the best the tribe could do was to split the two games.

Cleveland won the opener 4-3 with Doby's two homers accounting for all the runs. He belted three doubles, drove in a run and scored twice in the second game but the Indians lost 10-8.

The split caused the third place Indians to lose ½ game to the pace-setting Detroit Tigers and runner-up Yankees.

Down White Sox

The Tigers downed Chicago White Sox 5-3 to maintain their three-game advantage over the Yankees who shaded Boston Red Sox 2-1. Detroit leads the Indians by 3½ and the fourth-place Red Sox by seven.

Philadelphia Phillies continued their dominance in the National League, defeating Brooklyn Dodgers for the second straight day 5-4. The victory protected their five-game bulge over Boston Braves who nipped New York Giants 3-2.

The St. Louis Cardinals-Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati-Chicago Cubs games were postponed by rain.

In the only other American League game, Philadelphia Athletics nosed out Washington's Senators 7-6.

Vic Raschi, veteran Yankee right-hander, pitched perfect ball for 6 2-3 innings in posting his 14th victory. An infield single by Billy Goodman with two out in the seventh ended his dream of joining four others who have pitched perfect games since the turn of the century.

Ruins Shutout

An eighth-inning homer by Al Zarilla ruined Raschi's shutout bid, too. Dom DiMaggio got Boston's other hit a ninth-inning single.

Vic Wertz's 24th home run with one on in the eighth was the decisive blow in Detroit's victory over Chicago. Fred Hutchinson went all the way for his 13th triumph.

The Phils broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth when Brooklyn's Erv Palica walked Willie Jones, Gran Hamner followed with a double and Mike Goliat scored Jones with a fly to deep left.

Russ Meyer was the winner but he needed help from Jim Konstanty in the eighth. The ace fireman, making his 50th relief appearance, set back the Brooks in the final two innings.

Veteran Bob Chipman ended the Giants' eight-game winning streak with a four-hitter.

New Bill Will Aid More Wildlife In U.S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (AP—Wildlife authorities welcome the final enactment of the Dingell Bill today as the best new in years for American fishing enthusiasts. The Bill, jointly sponsored by Representative John Dingell (Dem.-Mich.) and Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem.-Colo.), earmarks revenue from the Federal 10 per cent tax on sale of sports fishing tackle. Such revenue, estimated at from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 a year, will go back to the States to help them restore and expand game fish resources. President Truman signed the Bill into law Wednesday.

Discovers Home Skin Remedy

This clean stainless antiseptic known all over Canada as Moone's Emerald Oil, is such a fine healing agent that Eczema, Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, Itching Toes and Feet, and other inflammatory skin eruptions are often relieved in a few days.

Moone's Emerald Oil is pleasant to use and it is so antiseptic and penetrating that many old stubborn cases of long standing have yielded to its influence.

Moone's Emerald Oil is sold by any Tamblyn Drug Stor and druggists everywhere to help rid you of stubborn pimples and unsightly skin troubles—satisfaction or money back.

Orioles Beat Red Wings 4-3 In 10 Innings

By The Associated Press

Tom Poholsky, 20-year-old star pitcher with Rochester Red Wings, may be a terror to most International League teams but he's a beloved "cousin" to Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles beat Poholsky for the third time in as many attempts Wednesday night 4-3 in 10 innings. The victory cut the pace-setting Wings' lead over the second-place Orioles to four games.

Poholsky was seeking his 16th victory. Russ Bauers, control specialist, picked up his eighth victory for the Orioles.

Edge Cubs

The third-place Montreal Royals moved to within 4½ games of the Wings with a 4-3 triumph over Springfield Cubs.

Jersey City Giants took both ends of a doubleheader from Buffalo Bisons, 3-2 and 8-5. Rookie Norm Fox, with help from Red Hardy and George Heller, received credit for the first-game triumph.

Jersey City scored five runs in the eighth inning to pull the nightcap out of the fire. Stan Jok started the fireworks with his 12th homer. Nap Reyes and Mele also homered for the Giants.

Syracuse Chiefs thumped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Bud Byerly who hung up his 13th victory.

Cream Of Golfers Tee Off At Sudbury

SUDBURY, Aug. 10 (CP). — The cream of Ontario's amateur golfers tee off Friday in the third annual Idlewyld Club invitation tournament.

Heading the entries are Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ontario amateur titlist, and Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, 1949 champion. Also entered are Kitchener's Tony Matlock, Bill and Dave Morland of North Bay, and Bobby Fair and Jim Boeckh of Toronto.

Johnny Pcupore, Manse Robinson, Jim Dewey, Art and Ron Silver, Roy Herne, Gordon Browning, and Art Riley head a strong delegation from the nickel belt.

They will play 18 holes medal play Friday, with the top 16 squaring off Saturday in the match play championship flight. Five over flights of 16 will compete for other prizes, with semi-finals and finals in all flights scheduled Sunday.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Batting: Bob Elliott, Braves — doubled twice and accounted for all of Boston's runs as they defeated the New York Giants, 3-2.

Pitching: Vic Raschi, Yankees—defeated the Boston Red Sox, 2-1, on three hits after retiring first 20 batters to face him.

Air Force Band To Play At CNE

TORONTO, Aug. 10. — Fresh from the most successful tour of Europe taken by any United States organization, the United States Air Force Band will play every afternoon and evening in the Canadian National Exhibition bandshell, August 25 to September 9. Conducted by Lt.-Col. George S. Howard, the band has completed a tour of six European countries during which it played to more than 200,000 people.

On July 20, the band was called to Buckingham Palace for the royal garden party. Earlier, the band played in Edinburgh before an enormous crowd in Princess Gate gardens. They played in Dublin to the president of Ireland, His Excellency Sean T. O'Kelly.

In Wiesbaden, Germany, 20,000 turned out to give the band its greatest ovation. In Berlin, it rained on the evening they were scheduled to play in an outdoor auditorium. Instead, they moved inside and played before 8,000 people with more outside the doors. During intermission, a rain-drenched man approached Lt.-Col. Howard enquiring why the band was not playing outside as scheduled. He then showed the leader there were 15,000 in the outdoor auditorium. When Lt.-Col. Howard saw this, he took the band out to the rainswept stage and played a two-hour program during which not one member of the drenched audience left.

Buffalo Hunting Big Business In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP) — Buffalo hunting, a long dead livelihood on the American plains, is still big business in Australia.

Eric Clissold, who retired from the job a few months ago because his wife thought it too dangerous, says he used to earn nearly $14,000 a year shooting buffalo on the Marrakai plains, in the northern territory.

He and another hunter used to shoot from 3,000 to 4,000 buffalo a year, at from £4 to £5 a hide.

Before the war, Clissold was a farmer who had never shot anything larger than a rabbit. Then in 1939, he teamed up with another hunter and found he was a born rifle shot.

"You use a cut-down .303 and trained horses," he said. "You ride in behind the herd and shoot the bulls near the end of the spine, paralyzing them.

"When the run is finished, you go back and kill the sitting bulls.

"If you miss the first time and just wound the bull, he'll turn on you, and that isn't too pleasant."

In 1949, the 35-year-old hunter came to Sydney for a holiday and met the present Mrs. Clissold.

Now he is a retired buffalo hunter.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

It may seem early—or late—for hockey talk, but Detroit Red Wings don't think so.

The Stanley Cup champions announce that they'll play an abbreviated schedule of 10 exhibition games as a tune-up for the National Hockey League season.

They'll play only four games—all against Indianapolis—during a 2½ week stay at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. The dates: Sept. 13, 17, 20 and 24.

The Wings also meet Indianapolis in Windsor Sept. 28 and in Chatham Oct. 6.

Reason for the shortened exhibition season: the club figures more drill and fewer games will get the team into shape early.

The Ontario Racing Commission announced in Hamilton Wednesday that it has lifted the suspension of racehorse-owner John Stuart. He was suspended at Fort Erie race track last week after an altercation with a steward. Stuart has apologized.

He has also announced his retirement from racing and plans to sell his horses at Hamilton race track Friday. The Stuart stable was highest money winner in Ontario last year.

The Hamilton-Edmonton feud over football players Earl Valiquette and Jack Stewart has been partially solved. Valiquette said in Hamilton Wednesday night he's heading for Edmonton to line up with the Eskimos. Stewart is apparently sticking with the Tiger-Cats, however, despite a Canadian Rugby Union ruling that both players were Edmonton property.

Tommy Alison, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, says he is retiring from football after this season. But before he goes he wants to get one thing changed. He said in Toronto that he'd like to see a more uniform lineup of football players when the National Anthem is played before each game.

The veteran Cliff (Chappy) Chapman of Toronto stole the show at Thorncliffe Raceway on Wednesday when he became the first driver to pilot three winners in one day during the meet. He had Laurel Spencer, Miss May Richards and Glendale Ace. Keith Waples of Midland scored a double victory with J. L. Van owned by his father and Victory Hy owned by Stanley Blewett of Indian River.

Australia and Sweden have each named two-man teams for their Davis Cup matches at the Westchester Country Club this weekend. Frank Sedgman and John Bromwich will represent Australia against Lennart Bergelin and Torstern Johansson. Selections were made Wednesday at Rye, N. Y.

The Michigan Boxing Commission slapped a two-year suspension and $1,000 fine on fight manager Jack Laken Wednesday in Detroit. Laken barged into the ring after a Tuesday night fight, seized the microphone and shouted to the crowd that his man, Sammy Angott, had been "robbed" in an earlier contest.

John A. Quinlan, 54, a pitcher for Detroit Tigers during the second decade of the century, died in Buffalo, N. Y., Tuesday night. Quinlan managed a team in London, Ont., for several years.

Alberta took its first win and Ontario its first loss yesterday in the third day's play for the Dominion cricket championship at Winnipeg.

Scores were: B. C. 148 Ontario 47; Alberta 124 for eight wickets, Manitoba 122, all out. At the halfway point in the week-long tourney Ontario and B. C. are setting the pace with two wins and one loss each. Alberta and Manitoba have one-and-two records.

Radio Australia Seeks Expansion After Slash

By BRUCE HAMILTON

MELBOURNE, — (Reuters) — The future of radio Australia the powerful "voice of the Pacific," whose listening public extends from Bangkok to Britain, from the sun-drenched Atolls of Capricorn to the icy Tundras of finland, is under review.

With Arthur Augustus Calwell as information minister, radio Australia grew from the "tin whistle of the Pacific"—a two-kilowatt station to a great broadcasting machine, churning out news, information and music over a group of transmitters which rank among the most powerful in the world.

On the election of the Menzies government in 1939 the department of information was an early casualty.

The decision was that exlenditure on "information" should be slashed by half, that the department as such should be abolished and that radio Australia should be operated by Australia's internal broadcasting system, the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

Now, people here are beginning to wonder whether Australia can afford the economize on her overseas broadcasts at a time when misunderstandings and ignorance can cause so much trouble in the world.

Intelligence Worried

Already, there have been reports that Australian military intelligence is perturbed by Soviet broadcasts to western Germany on a frequency lately abandoned by Australia.

According to estimates by its staff, radio Australia, until its services were pruned recently, was listened to by more than 2,000,000 people throughout the world each day.

Six Languages

When operating fully, radio Australia's transmissions occupied 23 programs hours and included 17 news bulletins each day. The broadcasts were made in six languages — English, French (to Indo-China, French Oceania and France), Dutch and Malay (to Indonesia), German (to central Europe), and Siamese.

Australia's lilting melody, "Waltzing Matilda," played on a music box for five minutes before transmission, acts as a tuning signal for people throughout the world. This is followed by the ear-splitting laugh of Jacko, the Kookaburra or laughing jackass, and then the chimes of the Melbourne post office clock.

Jacko's laugh has been responsible for many laughs among the radio Australia staff. One Mexican thought it was the "shriek of the kangaroo" while a listener in Ohio described it as a "horrible raucous sound such as a rooster having its head chopped off."

In New Jersey, residents complained that a neighbor was violating a local by-law prohibiting chickens in the district by harboring a rooster given to "raucous early morning noises." Police investigations revealed that the man was a Jacko "fan."

From Finland came a letter from a man who told how, during a walking trip, he had called in at a lumber camp near the Soviet border the radio was tuned into the camp's favorite program — radio Australia. Reception was clear and strong.

Just A Rumor

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 10 — (Reuters). — Sean MacBride, Irish Republican Minister for Foreign Relations, tonight described as "a canard" a report that the Republic of Ireland and the United States have agreed on the use of Irish bases by the United States and Britain. "There is no foundation whatever for this story, which has been going round for some time," he told Reuters.

U.S. Cigarettes Change German Tobacco Taste

ANKARA— (Reuters). — American soldiers in Germany who offer packets of American cigarettes to their fraulein friends have started a change in popular smoking tastes in Germany which could spell ruin for the 100,000 Turkish peasants who grow tobacco.

It could also seriously alter the whole balance of Turkish foreign trade, since tobacco has recently accounted for 30 to 50 per cent of the country's total exports.

The Turkish Foreign Minister, Fuat Koprulu, stated recently: "The emergence of America as our rival for the German tobacco market is a serious blow to this country, for American tobacco prices are comparatively very low. We risk losing the whole of the German market for tobacco."

Faced with this situation, Turkey has been looking anxiously for new tobacco markets. The commercial services of the Turkish Embassy in London have prepared a report on the prospects of increasing sales in Britain.

British Market

The report pointed in the first place to Britain's need to save dollars. If British smokers could be persuaded to change from the "Virginia blend" they have preferred for so long, the United Kingdom would save dollars.

The report added that Britain could gain an even stronger position as an exporter in the Turkish market than that shown by recent trade figures. At present she holds third place to Germany's second and United States first.

The Embassy report proposed a number of ways Turkey could capture the British smoker's fancy.

One step was to ensure that only cigarettes containing pure Turkish leaf should be sold in Britain as "'Turkish cigarettes." Many cigarettes which now bear this description are in fact of blends with a greater or lesser mixture of other leaf and, it is stated here would often be more accurately described as "Egyptian blends." Pure Turkish leaf has a flavor quite different from these so-caled "'Turkish blends." Incidentally, exporters claim that the pure Turkish cigarette leaves practically no trace on the fingers."

Planning Roads To Improve African Defence

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — Leading African countries are planning to girdle the continent with a series of strategic roads and rail routes. Their object is to "hitch" Africa in defence and economy to the Western world.

The United States is backing the scheme. Other countries participating are the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Portugal, South Africa and Southern Rhodesia.

Some projects listed for early study include:

Linking up the Atlantic and Indian Oceans by developing new road, rail and river routes, and improving existing communications;

Connecting Central and East African railroad systems by building a line from Northern Rhodesia, through the great African lakes district, around Kilimanjaro Mountain to Kenya and Uganda;

A Second Route

Developing a second north-south land route from Tripoli to the Cape through the Libyan province of the Fezzan.

The whole program is being dovetailed to fit into the pattern of African defence, designed by Western military planners, which divides the continent roughly into four zones. These are North Africa, from Casablanca to Cairo, West Africa, from Dakar to Brazzaville, East Africa, from Khartoum to Nairobi, and Central and South Africa.

First steps in the scheme will be taken at a conference of the African Governments to be held here in October.

"Fancy Pants" Bait Yields Good Catch

MARMORA, Aug. 10—(ENS) —Frank Labin of Warsaw, N.Y., has been enjoying the fishing at Crowe Lake so much that he has made four visits this season. He has been having great success with a fishing lure of his own invention nicknamed "fancy pants."

On Wednesday night Mr. Labin and his guide, Bill Revoy, got their legal catch of bass, the largest being 4½ pounds, within half an hour.

Tried out last year in Canadian waters, "fancy pants" proved a failure, although tests in Florida with it proved successful. So Mr. Labin altered its make-up and this year he says the results are such that it will capture two fish for every one taken by the next best in his possession. As yet he has not tried it for maskinonge, but is about to do so. Bass, pickerel and pike are lured by it and he is anxious to see how the larger fish react to it.

Mr. Labin first came to this district 20 years ago, when he chose Belmont lake and Gull lake for his expeditions. About 12 years ago he landed a 700-pound shark in Whale Harbor, Florida. Although he makes his home with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Mussert at Warsaw, N.Y., he returns occasionally to his native Florida. At Gordon Rock Harbor on the Keys, Florida, he landed a 40 pound wahoo in June which, up to the fifteenth of that month, was the record for the season.

Many Bermuda People Want To Join Canada

HALIFAX, Aug. 10 (CP) — Many "important persons in Bermuda think union with Canada would be a great thing," a former member of Bermuda's legislature said here Wednesday night.

William S. Purvis, Nova Scotia-born president of a Bermuda importing firm and for 10 years a member of the Bermuda assembly, arrived in Halifax on a business and pleasure trip.

"One of the strongest movers for confederation with Canada is Sir Richard Spurling, managing director of the Bermuda Electric Company, who has held almost every post in the government," said Mr. Purvis in an interview.

Vienna Airfield Plan Obstructed By Russian Veto

VIENNA — (CP). — Vienna, astride one of the cross-roads of Europe, wants to develop an international airport, badly needed to cope with increasing passenger traffic.

The need is shown by the fact that despite great obstacles more than 50,000 passengers have used commercial air-lines to and from the Austrian capital since the end of the war.

But Soviet obstructionist tactics have thus far interfered with development of any such plan. The Allied Council has again had to refuse Vienna's request, because the Soviet representatives steadfastly refuse to agree to the development of the airport at Deutsch-Wagram, now in Soviet hands.

A committee of Austrian experts last year inspected all airfields and selected that at Deutsch-Wagram as most suited for development as a future airport for Vienna. It has the longest concrete runway in Austria, and its geographical position would allow of full expansion and unlimited technical development.

Russian Restrictions

The Allied Council have agreed to the Austrians setting up a civil aviation bureau, but the Russians refuse to sanction any practical steps towards the beginning of a civil air service. Development through utilizing the services of foreign air-lines has been handicapped as the Russians insist on maintaining a whole series of restrictions.

Any aircraft not belonging to an occupying country wishing to fly over Austrian territory must have previous authority from the commander-in-chief of the zone to which this territory belongs.

For example: A Belgian airliner wishing to land at the nearby Schewchat air-field must have the permission of the Americans and the Russians to fly over their zones, and that of the British to land at the British-controlled field.

All efforts by the British, Americans and French to allow the Austrians themselves to give the necessary clearances have been steadfastly opposed by the Soviet element.

Most of the air-lines coming to Vienna use the Schewchat field. This field has natural limitations which would prevent it ever becoming a first-class airport for Vienna. But eight lines, including Italian, Dutch, and Belgian lines, are at present using it.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10 (CP). — Gustave Krebs, 40, Wednesday night touched a broken wire to see if it was safe for children to play near. He became the third electrocution victim since Sunday's storm.

Converted Paddle-Boat Making Water Power Jet Tests

DUMBARTON, Scotland, Aug. 10 — (AP).—A converted paddle boat driven by four screaming airplane engines made the world's test Wednesday of pure jet propulsion on the water.

The vessel was the 62-year-old Clyde River veteran Lucy Ashton, owned formerly by the North British Railway, and plying between Greenock, Helensburgh, and Craigendoran.

Fitted out with four Rolls-Royce Derwent V engines similar to those used by jet fighters, she moved up and down the Clyde at a good, but undisclosed, clip.

The jet engines are mounted in a bank on the deck amidships. Each delivers a thrust of 3,500 pounds.

Purpose of the test, by the British Shipbuilding Research Association, is to work out figures on the hull resistance of jet-powered vessels. The Lucy Ashton was refitted for the task by a Clyde shipyard whose chairman, Sir Maurice Denny, forecast "valuable, perhaps classic, results."

The Lucy Ashton will make further runs today and Friday.

Pool Swim Show Plans Proceed For September 2

Plans are being made for a swimming show that will take place at the Lions Community Pool on September 2. This show will be one of the events in the Sportsman's Week that will be held as a part of Peterborough's Centennial Celebration.

One of the events of the show will be a demonstration of the procedure followed in the swimming classes that have been held at the pool during the summer. Those taking part will be children who at the beginning of the summer were non-swimmers, but have now been taught to swim.

Instructor Bill Leck hopes to arrange to have the Canadian diving champion at the show to give a demonstration. The diving champion will be contacted after the Canadian Swimming Championship Meet which takes place in Montreal next week.

Another event in the show will be an old-timers race when well-known local swimmers Al Marshall, Stan McBride and Bill Lech will race against John Boorman, Jim Heffernan and Don Wood.

The Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club will also be featured in this show.

Liquor Sales Lag In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG — (CP) — South Africans are making drastic cuts in their liquor consumption in an effort to balance their budgets. The effect of this economy has caused a slump in liquor sales which is giving concern to hoteliers. Bottle stores have also experienced a big drop in sales.

Some hoteliers have reported a 25 to 35 per cent falling-off in bar sales compared with last year. Trade in hotel lounges, which was booming two years ago and encouraged hoteliers to spend lavishly on interior decoration, is practically at a standstill.

One hotelier said: "I have never known the bar trade to be so bad."

Waiters in smart city hotels said that on some days they did not serve a single customer in a four-hour spell of duty.

The position in a number of Johannesburg hotels is so bad that the proprietors are serving behind the bar counters and establishments which have had six or eight barmen for years have cut down staff.

To Visit Norway In Search Of Son

LONDON, — (Reuters) — Two London women, mother and daughter, plan to motor into northern Norway far beyond the Arctic Circle in search of their son and brother who disappeared in 1943 during a British midget submarine attack on the German battleship Tirpitz.

Lieutenant H. Henty-Creer piloted one of the three little vessels which penetrated the barrier nets in Kaa Fjord, lair of the German warship seven years ago. He was reported missing from the operation.

His 26-year-old sister Deirdre and his mother will drive north, taking turns at the wheel of their car, to find people who might have news of the daring Britons, who might know if one of them survived, and what might have happened to him.

Mrs. Henty-Creer has never given up hope because her son said "I will come home again."

Deirdre is a well-known London artist and has exhibited paintings at the Royal Academy.

The Henty-Creer family motto is, "while I breathe I hope; while I hope I breathe."

Mark Jubilee Of Credit Unions

LEVIS, Que. —(CP)— A dime deposited in Levis in 1900 in the first "caisse populaire"—the name by which credit unions are known in Quebec—has snowballed into more than $225,000,000 deposited in 1,100 units in the province in half a century.

These figures do not take into account the deposits in 1,600 other credit unions, operating similarly in North America and stemming from the original Levis caisse populaire founded by Alphonse Desjardins, a government clerk.

The caisses populaires will celebrate their golden jubilee here Aug. 24-27 with the theme "saving and credit." It is expected that more than 8,000 delegates will attend the meeting — the international conference of caisses populaires Desjardins and credit unions.

A feature of the convention will be the inauguration of the Desjardins building here, erected as a memorial to the founder.

Canny Sheep Dogs Help Harvest Aussie Wool Crop

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — Australia's 300,000 hard-working sheep dogs are rounding up the biggest wool harvest in history this year.

The husky, tan-colored dogs, two-thirds the size of a collie, are given much of the credit for helping to earn the record £775,000,000. Sheep men say there would be no big pastoral industry in Australia without their dogs.

Good country for Australia's [illegible] sheep runs one sheep to the acre—poor country one sheep to 10 or 15 acres. Traditional shepherding methods won't work in those conditions.

Sheep men here rely on their dogs to herd sheep and the dogs they use are a breed developed to meet the hot dry temperature and the rough country the sheep run in.

Amazing Performance

Four or five of them can manage a mob of 3,000 or 4,000 sheep, muster them into a drafting yard, round them up into a mob when they are scattered over a 10,000-acre paddock or keep them on the move along a stock route 200 feet wide.

They work to the directions of a drover who gives his orders from horse-back by whistle and hand-signals but rarely by word of mouth.

The dogs rarely bark, they never bite, and a good dog will never frighten sheep into moving so fast that they lose condition.

Sheep men say that four or five good dogs can do in a day with sheep what five men would do badly—in a week.

Cost Money

They cost money. The pups of a well known worker will bring up to £25 ($62). Fully trained dogs are less in demand because each dog will work his best with one man only. Even so, dogs change hands for £50, sometimes £75, and bitches will sell for £100 or more for breeding purposes.

They need little training. A pup is set to work with older dogs when he is three or four months old.

The pup must learn the conventional signals but for the most part his instincts tell him what to do and the older dogs teach him the refinements.

He learns that a hiss from the drover means he must start a long casting run to muster scattered sheep into a mob; that a long whistle means he must sit down and wait for instructions; that a raised right hand means cast to the left, and raised left hand cast to the right.

No Petting

Sheepdogs are never petted or handled by their masters except when they have been working over rough country. Then the sheepman inspects his dog's paws carefully each night. The theory is that affection or petting destroys their ability to work.

But a tired dog is called into the drover and kept in the shade of the horse to rest for an hour or two or put into the buggy or waggonette which drovers often use when they are travelling sheep along stock routes.

The origin of the Australian sheep dog is obscure but the most accepted theory is that he was developed from two border collies imported here in the 1860's.

Give Judgment In Police Case By September 5

MONTREAL, Aug. 9. (CP) — The four-week conspiracy trial of three Quebec provincial policemen came to an end late Wednesday and Chief Judge Edouard Archambault said he hoped to render judgment by Sept. 5. The policemen are charged with conspiring to commit bank holdups.

On trial were Lieut. Marcel Patenaude, former head of the crack holdup squad; his assistant, Sgt. Gaston Archambault, and former detective Paul Hervieux.

The end of the trial came quickly. Defense lawyer Lucien Grendon finished his argument Wednesday following a day and a half summing up. The Crown was expected to take about the same time, but Crown Prosecutor Dollard Dansereau closed his case after a summation of 1½ hours.

Chief Judge Archambault said there were many legal angles to study and much testimony to be read before he could reach a verdict.

The accused, free on bail, showed no emotion at the trial's end, and left the courtroom quietly.

The Crown's star witness, Charles Emile Poliquin, self-confessed bank robber, himself faces a charge of perjury arising from his testimony at the trial.

Poliquin claimed he held up a bank at St. Hugues, Que., to pay off the accused so that he would be left free on another bank holdup charge. Poliquin said the accused helped him plan the St. Hugues robbery.

MAP CONTINENT'S SECURITY—Spurred by the conflict in Korea, these four top Canadian and United States industrial defence planners met in Ottawa this week to create a blueprint for total mobilization of the economic might of the two countries. British Burglar Carries Copies of Law To Work

LONDON, Aug. 9. (Reuters) — The modern British burglar carries an act of parliament in his pocket with his jimmy and skeleton keys.

The bulky book of legalistic sections and sub-sections—the Criminal Justice Act—is the cracksman's bible, says Sir Harold Scott, London's police commissioner. It tells him without any room for doubt, just what will happen to him if he is caught.

The act—passed by parliament in 1948—has created stiffer penalties as well as corrective training and preventive detention for habitual wrongdoers.

"There is no doubt that its implications have been fully appreciated by the criminal community," Scott said in his annual report for 1949 published Wednesday.

"When habitual criminals are found on arrest to be in possession of an act of parliament it is a safe assumption that their study of the new criminal law is dictated by something more than an academic interest," the commissioner said.

Not Remunerative

"Indeed it is reported that in some cases housebreakers have disposed of the tools of their trade and have decided that the possibility of a long period of detention raises the risks of their calling beyond the point where it is remunerative.'

Experienced detectives believe the Criminal Justice Act was the cause of a sharp reduction in the number of indictable offences in the London area from 15 in every 1,000 of the population in 1948 to 12 in 1,000 in 1949.

Scott said the most dangerous age for juvenile delinquents was 15. More than 450 of about that age were arrested during the year for petty thefts, 225 for store and warehouse breaking, and nearly 150 for stealing bicycles.

There was also an increase in the arrest of children between 9 and 10—those born during the war. Nearly 700 aged 10 and 479 aged 9 were caught.

Only five of 38 murders committed during 1949 were solved There was less burglary. More police dogs are to be used to track down criminals.

Hope Harriman Can Clear Formosa Mix-up

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug 10 (AP) —Diplomatic authorities expressed hope today that international confusion over United States policy toward Formosa had been cleared up as a result of W. Averell Harriman's rush trip to Tokyo.

The matter is considered important because it involves American relations with Britain, India and other countries which recognize Communist China Also involved is the prestige of the U.S. among the independence-minded people of Asia generally

Harriman, President Truman's foreign affairs co-ordinator, returned Wednesday after discussing Formosa and other Far Eastern political issues with Gen. Douglas MacArthur He told a press conference there was "no sign of any change whatsoever" in American policy toward the island stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists.

MacArthur and Chiang issued statements about the prospects for ultimate victory in the Far East. Both said also they had agreed on basic plans for the defence of Formosa against any attempt at conquest by the Chinese Communists.

Some Speculation

The tone of the statements caused some speculation that American policy was moving beyond the determination to defend Formosa against the Communists and into a new stage of close collaboration with Chiang in the Far East.

The enthusiasm of Chiang's statement particularly raised apprehension in the state department that MacArthur might have implied American political support for him—something which present U.S. policy as laid down by Truman evidently does not call for.

A major purpose o Harriman's trip, it was understood, was to talk with MacArthur about what had occurred and to reaffirm to him the strict limits which Truman desires to maintain on American policy where Chiang is concerned. In general, this policy is aimed at preventing the Chinese Communists from taking Formosa by conquest and at isolating the long-term Chinese conflict from the Korean war.

Military Matters

Harriman said the Chiang-MacArthur talks dealt entirely with military matters and that American policy toward Formosa stands exactly where Truman put it in his first statement on the Korean crisis June 27—that is it remains a purely defensive policy.

In a statement issued at his Tokyo headquarters, MacArthur said today the talks with Chiang were "limited entirely to military matters" and "had no connection with political affairs."

Juvenile Shoprooms

FORT FRANCES — (CP) — Fort Frances Kiwanis will operate shoprooms to keep potential juvenile delinquents occupied one or two nights a week. Club worker William Hodgins said the plan will aim "not only at those children who come to the attention of the police, but at all youngsters who have idle time on their hands."

Black Spots In Fish Not Harmful

Anglers have queried District Forester A. B. Wheatley about the seriousness of yellow grubs and black spots which appear in the flesh or on the skin of bass, perch, pickerel and other fish.

Mr. Wheatley explained that both these grubs are parasitic larval forms of one of the flukes or flatworms. Anglers consider the so-infected fish to be "wormy." The yellow grub appears as a yellowish swelling or cyst under the skin and the black grub causes black spots on the skin, in some cases on the skin.

These yellow and black grubs have a complicated life histories, he said, as a fish, a water bird and certain species of snail are necessary as hosts for certain stages of the life cycle. The grubs are harmless and do little damage to the fish unless a young fish is heavily infested.

Mr. Wheatley added that no methods of control are known at the present time and anglers are advised to make the best of the situation, just as the fish have always done.

Eildon Dam Promises Australia Better Land

By GRAEME BROOKS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 10 —(Reuters)— A lengthening shadow of solid rock, earth and concrete is expected to bring promise of abundant power and prolific soil to a huge area of the state of Victoria.

It will be the outline of the 13,000,000-ton Eildon dam — largest single project of Australia's far-reaching irrigation and water power plans—which, after years of blueprinting, is nearing the construction stage.

A beginning on the five-year task of building the £10,000,000 dam is expected in the autumn.

The Eildon dam is part of a master plan entailing a total expenditure of £20,000,000 in the next 10 years. Experts believe that in that period it will double the state's production from irrigated areas.

Plans Dovetail

The plan dovetails with an even more far-reaching plan extending from the 1,600-mile Murray River along the Victoria-New South Wales border and calculated to benefit both states.

The Murray with its Victorian tributaries, the Darling (1,760 miles) and the Murrumbidgee (1,050 miles), now services 1,250,000 acres.

Capacity of the completed Eildon dam, 60 miles northeast of Melbourne, will be nearly 130,680,000,000 cubic feet. Under the billions of gallons of the pent-up Goulburn River will lie thousands of acres of rich, dairying land, the site of once-prosperous farming communities and part of the town of Bonnie Doon.

Production from irrigated lands in Australia is now more than 10 times greater than from "dry farming" on the same area.

Survey Party To Chart Lake

CHURCHILL, Man — (CP)— A Canadian hydrographic survey party has passed through Churchill en route to chart Baker Lake 350 miles north of this Hudson Bay port.

The lake, 50 miles long and 15 wide, drains through Chesterfield inlet into the northern part of Hudson Bay and is subject to tides at its eastern end.

Ships entering the lake must go in on the tide to avoid strong currents.

The party, headed by A. L. Mack of Ottawa, travelled by air. Last year, when the project was begun, the survey group went in by ship.

During the short ice-free season the eight-man party will put in long hours. Already the period of Artic day-light is tapering off, but it still is light 20 hours out of 24.

Besides Mr. Mack, members of the party are D. J. Murphy, Ottawa; M. Saito and H. Fursiya of Winnipeg; C. Hannsford of Midland, Ont., and John Nelson. Dick Woodcock and Lewis Murray of Churchill.

Suspended Sentence

CORNWALL Aug. 10—(CP)—Edmond Lalonde, 19, Wednesday was given one year suspended sentence on a perjury charge. He was also ordered to observe a 10 p.m. curfew until Feb. 1. Lalonde was found guilty of giving false testimony during his trial for consuming liquor while a minor.

Beats Record

MANCHESTER, England (CP). —Herbert Parkes has chalked up a tricycle record by riding from Land's End to John O'Groat's, a distance of 869 miles, in three days, 38 minutes. He lowered the previous record by eight hours and 48 minutes.

It Was The Cat

CAPETOWN (CP). — A Wellington motorist was worried about a squeak his car had developed. Several surveys of the situation didn't help. When it started squeaking with the ignition off, he investigated and found a cat had chosen the trunk for the spot to have kittens.

Air Cadet's First

LONDON (CP).—A British air cadet recently won the distinction of being the first boy to fly over the North Pole. Flight Sergeant Arthur Cox, 17, was among the crew of a British plane testing system of grid navigation for Arctic flying.

RECORD PRODUCTION

Alberta's oil production reached an all time high in July, 1950. Total yield was 81,327 barrels of oil and natural gasoline a day.

GOES TO UN—A. Raymond Crepault, 28-year-old Montrealer, who has been named an adviser to Canada's permanent delegation to the United Nations.. He is a graduate in law of McGill University and a member of the Bar of the Province of Quebec.

Movie Column

Shelly Winters Says Hollywood "Ivory Tower"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10 (AP)— "Hey, how about doing a full column on my summer theatre tour?"

That's Shelly Winters for you. She doesn't want an item or a few paragraphs. A full column, she says.

Shelly has just returned from eight weeks of touring through the east in "Born Yesterday." She came back with a deflated view of Hollywood.

"This is an ivory tower, this is nothing," she said with a sweep of the arm that took in Hollywood. "This town doesn't know what's happening on the outside. That's where the real people are."

But, she added, switching into high gear: "Movies are still the major source of entertainment for the American people."

Better Than Ever?

Do the people think that movies are better than ever, as the ads claim?

"I don't go for that slogan," she replied. "That implies that movies used to stink".

The bubbly blonde said people were surprised to find her normal. "They said I wasn't a bit like my studio build-up," she remarked. "One fellow asked me 'why are they using Maria Montez's old publicity on you?"

Shelly said she was really a tourist on the jaunt. She wore an $8.75 sun dress, saw all the scenic attractions, rode in day coaches and talked to the natives.

Capsule Review

"Pretty Baby" is one of the better light comedies of the season. The plot line sounds just like one of those things— a young girl who is believed going to have a baby but doesn't. Still the story is played with such good humor that it is a delight. Hit of the show is Betsy Drake, one of the most intriguing new personalities in recent years. Dennis Morgan, Zachary Scott and Edmund Gwenn support.

Interesting Zoo Annoys Neighbors

PETERSFIELD, Hampshire, England — (CP) — Frederick Kimber can't understand how two lions, 30 monkeys and a leopard can annoy the neighbors.

Kimber has been keeping wild animals in his country garden for 40 years and has just had his first complaint.

Mrs. Alice Crane wrote authorities that Kimber's menagerie "makes such a noise, sometimes it sounds like a thousand dogs fighting."

Other neighbors said they found the animals "interesting." Authorities ruled there were no grounds for complaint.

P.S.—NO AUTHORIZED PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE WILL BE PAID FOR.

TORONTO, August 2, 1950.

FINISHING TOUCHES — The new floral clock, located beside the Queenston power plant on the Niagara River now is in operation. The timepiece, believed to be the largest of its kind in the world, bears the wording Ontario Hydro instead of the usual numerals on the face. Modelled after the famed floral timepiece in Princes' Gardens, Edinburgh, Scotland, it is not fully completed but the large number of tourists visiting it have led to the postponement of further work until fall. A large bell tower will be built at the top of the clock to chime the hours.

Ghost Driver Solves Parking Problems

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP) — There's a ghost driver in Sydney who makes a handsome living driving traffic police crazy.

His strange busines came about when the parking problem here became so acute that the authorities decided no one may leave a car parked for more than 30 minutes in any one position.

To keep the streets clear, special parking police patrol the city scribbling time in chalk on car has been parked for more than the legal half-hour.

Enter the ghost. He is a little man (no one knows his name) who speaks half-a-dozen European languages. Business men pay him $1.55 a week each to drive their cars around the city so that no car ever exceeds the permitted half-hour in any given spot.

The parking police don't like it but it is legal and there is nothing they can do about it.

British Press Gives New Brigade Play

LONDON, Aug. 10 (Reuters)—The British press Wednesday gave prominent play to announcement of the formation of a special Canadian army force for Korea but there was little editorial comment.

First to comment was London's Liberal evening newspaper, The Star, which praised Canada's "realism" in forming the force.

"This is the kind of thinking and action now required," the paper said. "All members of the United Nations should make similar preparations for immediate action against aggression. . .

"Such forces standing by for hard-hitting action anywhere in the world would give the U.N. the compelling police authority it must have."

Stock Market Is Not A Lottery, Just Requires Good Judgment

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Current large dividend payments by International Paper Company and General Motors draw attention to a few things about the stock market—which sometimes are not understood by people at large.

There is still an inclination to regard the market as a mysterious dark place into which you plunge your hand and perhaps bring out a fortune, and perhaps get it cut off.

Well, there is a bit of that element, but the market's principle function isn't mysterious.

Take International Paper and General Motors.

Nobody, of course, knew exactly what these companies were going to do. But any one could have kept track of their financial statements, their earnings, got a good idea of their standing and judged that they would do something. A lot of people did that.

Nothing Mysterious

In essence, there has been nothing mysterious about the fact that International Paper and General Motors are prosperous companies. That applies to many other soundly-managed companies, and the person who wants to reap a reward might well look around.

Perhaps you haven't time. There is no real substitute to your taking a reasonable amount of time and thought; but whether or not you have time, it is a good thing to consult an investment dealer whom you can trust, whose business it is to watch all those things.

Don't think, however, that he is going to deliver you a fortune just like that. If he knew that much he would be such a millionaire that he probably wouldn't bother with you, but he can bring you an intelligent view to bear on your investiment wishes or problems.

Play It Safe

If you want to play it safe, he can tell you how to play it relatively safe. If you want to take a little more of a chance in the hope of bigger returns, he can advise you on that. Probably he will advise a balanced program: a good degree of safety and a limited amount of speculation. It will depend on your circumstances.

Another point not always understood is this: the value of a stock is in relation to the dividends it is paying or is likely to pay. If, as was so much the case in the late '20s, you see a stock selling beyond a price justified by its dividends or it prospective dividends, then stay away from it.

The lottery element of the market arises from the something-for-nothing impulse. Someone tells you such and such a hole-in-the-ground has discovered virtually pure gold. You didn't know anything about the property, you don't even ask, you just rush out and shove your money in—you have the easy-money urge.

Sure To Lose

Perhaps you may get as much fun out of losing your money that way as any other—but, thousands to one, you will surely lose it.

Many restrictions have been put around market operations to protect people from suffering from their own gullibility, and to keep it what it essentially is, a real trading place like a store, where you can buy and sell, and where, if you use good judgment, you may make a reasonable profit or even a glamorous one.

Chokes on Bread

TIMMINS, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Two-year-old Ann Napier of nearby Schumacher died Wednesday after choking on a piece of bread. The child died 15 minutes after being taken to hospital.

250,000 More Men To Fight Than In '39

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 (CP). — Canada, now recruiting an armed brigade for use by United Nations has 250,000 more men of fighting age than she had at the outbreak of the Second World War, it was disclosed today.

The Bureau of Statistics said it estimated there were 1,655,900 men in the 20-to-34-year-old group at June 1, compared with 1,399,200 in 1939. The 20-to-44-year-old age group was estimated at 2,527,100, compared with 2,123,700 in 1939; an increase of 438,700.

Governments Partners Boost Conservation

SHETLAND, Ont., Aug. 10 (CP) —A three-level government partnership to implement "the most advanced plan of conservation America has ever seen" is in the offing Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario said here Wednesday night.

"I am satisfied we are about to enter into partnership of federal, provincial and municipal governments," the premier told the 46th annual Shetland picnic.

Premier Frost said the province has been working with the municipalities and the federal government on conservation plans since a special conservation committee of the Ontario House reported on the state of the province's resources.

"We will make our rivers sources of pleasure and prosperity instead of ditches," he said.

Wants Conscription

KAMLOOPS, BC, Aug. 10 (CP). —Davie Fulton, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Kamloops, said Wednesday he is opposed to the voluntary method of enlisting troops for Korea. He advocated compulsory military training service as "the only fair way" of recruiting a special Canadian Brigade.

Sees Enough Water

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 10 — (CP). — Nicholas Castellanos, elected Mayor of Havana, Cuba, on a promise to solve that city's severe water shortage, saw all he wanted of water Wednesday. The Mayor and his family visited the Niagara Falls area.

Work For Nothing

SARNIA, Aug. 10 — (CP). — Farmer Orville Mathews of Camlachie worked hard Wednesday threshing grain. He had just finished work for the day when fire broke out in a barn, destroying 1,000 bushels of grain and causing $2,500 damage.

Assistant Attache

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 — (CP).—Major William J. Strachan, 37, of Ottawa, well-known Canadian Army marksman and Bisley shot, has been appointed assistant Canadian military attache to Sweden and Finland, Army Headquarters announced Wednesday.

Cheer "Exiles"

CAERPHILLY, Wales, Aug. 10 (Reuters) — More than 10,000 Welshmen at the Welsh National Eisteddfod (music, poetry and drama festival) here Wednesday stood and cheered 300 "exiles" returned from all parts of the world for the occasion. Some came from Canada.

50 Men Ask About Service Korea Brigade

Approximately 50 men have made inquiries about enlistment in the Korean Brigade at the Armouries since Tuesday morning according to Staff Sergeant G. A. Dunn. Monday night, Prime Minister St. Laurent made the announcement that the army would add a second brigade to the airborne brigade which will carry out Canada's obligations to the United Nations and that enlistment would start on Tuesday morning.

About three quarters of the men inquiring about enlistment were veterans. No official notice has been received about enlisting men for this brigade at the Armouries As a result all men wishing to enlist were sent to Chorley Park recruiting depot, Toronto, or to Kingston.

A mobile recruiting unit will be visiting this district sometime in the next two weeks.

The objective for this Korean Brigade is 5,000 men. Engagement will be for 18 months or longer if required. To enlist, men must be physically fit, mentally alert and between the ages of 19 and 35 and 19 and 45 for tradesmen. Men can be either single or married. Veterans will get the preference.

Street Crashes Injure Three

Three people were injured in two city accidents shortly after 5 p.m. Wednesday. One, four-year-old Judith Hayes, 190½ Brock St., suffered bruises and shock.

Others injured were James Lavallee, 216 McDonnel St., and Harold Webb, 128 Hilliard St. Lavallee is suffering severe shock, possible fracture of a toe, and abrasions on the left elbow and ankle.

The little girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes, was hurt when she ran across Brock St. near her home into the path of a west-bound auto driven by Milton Beatty, 460 Stewart St.

Beatty braked his car, but could not stop in time. He took the girl to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Lavallee was injured in a rush-hour accident east of the intersection of McDonnel and Aylmer streets. He stepped from the south curb of McDonnel St. into the path of Webb's east-bound motorcycle.

Webb swerved to the right, but Lavallee stepped back and Webb hit him. The impact threw Webb over the handlebars and Lavallee was knocked to the pavement

Both men were taken by ambulances to new Civic Hospital.

Flower Show Offers Medals

Entries for the flower show at the Peterborough Exhibition remain open until Monday, Aug. 21 at 10 p.m. Prize lists may be obtained at the office of F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, W. C. Wilks (2-4393) or C. H Bacon (9021).

"Our building has been thoroughly renovated by the order of the directors," Mr. Wilks reports, "and will be more presentable than usual."

"We are awarding three silver medals to be distinctively known as the Peterborough Centennial Medals. It will be a century before they could be offered again Thursday, Aug. 24 is marked as Flower Day. We plan to give a collection of house plants for a draw for women."

"Women visiting the show will receive blank cards to be inscribed with their names and addresses. Mayor Swanston is being asked to make the draw. He has also been invited to present the Centennial Medals at the close of the show."

"To stimulate interest of children we are awarding $25 for the best essay on "My Visit to the Flower Show." This actually replaces the junior show. Essays must not be more than 125 words and is open to the primary schools of the city and district."

"We are also planning memorials to Dr. J. A. Madill and Tom Brown, former presidents of the Horticultural Society and Exhibition, respectively."

Polio Symptoms

COBOURG, Aug. 10.—(ENS)—Billie Warren, age 11, of Cobourg was taken to Sick Children's Hospital this week with polio symptoms. However no paralysis developed and he will return in a few days.

In view of the fact that he had recently got over measles it was thought that the symptoms might have been a result of complications from the measles and the counties health unit accordingly have refrained from announcing it as a definite case of polio. The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren of Cobourg.

BERMUDA CRICKETER W. SIMMONDS, LEFT, scored a century at Nicholls Oval on Wednesday before his touring team declared with a score of 234 runs for six wickets. Peterborough-Whitaker team was all out for 55 runs after an all-day match which ended seconds before the heavy rain storm. Wellington Smith RIGHT is another of the Bermuda team's brilliant batsmen and at the wicket behind him, Peterborough-Whitaker's E. Titshall had cupped his hands ready for the ball which Smith sent to the boundary. Below, Mayor M. J. Swanston is seen bowling the first ball down the pitch before the game started.

Cricketers Cement Ties Of Friendship At Dinner

The Bermuda cricketers who played Peterborough-Whitakers at Nicholls Oval on Wednesday, continued their tour today with one regret. They wanted to spend longer in the Kawarthas to enjoy more of Peterborough's hospitality and see more of the lakes.

When the two teams left the field at 5 p.m. they were the best of friends in spite of the beating the Peterborough team took. At the banquet which followed at Peterborough Golf and Country Club the players cemented their friendship.

There was a warm spirit of comradeship as the men from Bermuda broke out in a spontaneous burst of song, singing calypsos to the delight of their hosts and joining in great enthusiasm as the Canadian party sang old time songs.

The banquet was made possible by the generosity of Gordon Monkman, general manager of G. Whitaker and Co., and president of the Peterborough Whitaker Club, and also by the city of Peterborough. It gave the Peterborough people an opportunity to become better acquainted with Bermuda and as Sheldon Darrell, manager of Bermuda team said, it won the visitors as lasting ambassadors of Canada and particularly of the Peterborough district.

In supporting the cricket tour the Bermuda Board of Trade hoped to publicise Bermuda in Canada, Mr. Darrell said during his vote of thanks. What actually had happened was that his team would return to Bermuda to tell the people back home about the beautiful country and friendliness of the people here.

Mayor Max Swanston and Mr Monkman expressed the sentiments of the Peterborough hosts when they told the Bermuda visistors that they had greatly enjoyed the comradeship which had resulted from the match. Only controversy which arose during the entire day was whether Bermuda would pay a return visit in order to continue the personal friendship between the two teams or whether Peterborough Whitakers would visit Bermuda.

Chocolate Bars Up To 7 Cents

Woe betide all citizens of Peterborough who have a sweet tooth. Word was received this morning from a leading chocolate manufacturer by all confectionery wholesalers in the city that chocolate bars will cost seven cents instead of five cents.

This two cent increase in price went into effect today in one company's bars. It is expected that the remaining chocolate manufacturers will follow suit.

The reason given for this price increase was the rise of material costs.

Only A Licensed Accountant Can Make Your Income Tax Returns Out For You

Income tax returns, financial statements for banks and other types of financial statements may be prepared by licensed public accountants according to a new Accountancy Act which became effective August 1.

This will not prevent a man from preparing his own income tax form, but will prevent anyone from preparing another man's tax form if he is not a licensed accountant. Businesses and business men almost invariably have accountants prepare their tax returns, but do not always hire a licensed accountant.

Financial statements prepared for presentation to banks by firms or individuals seeking loans must also be prepared by licensed accountants.

This Act will have the effect of cutting into work done by many lawyers who prepare income tax returns and statements of adjustments for their clients which apportion costs when property changes hands.

The only exception to the act are financial statements of municipalities. There are about 15 licensed accountants in Peterborough.

Tickets Issued To 588 Drivers

An elder of the city crossed Hunter St. against the lights today, and remarked at the other side: "I guess I'm another lawbreaker".

That comment may have some loose revelance to the increase in the number of parking tickets through the last three years as shown in the monthly reports of City Clerk Outram.

The number of parking tickets (penalty $1) issued in July was 588 as compared with 136 in that month last year and 191 in July 1948.

Comment by Mr. Outram today was: "I think the police have become more active in enforcing the bylaw; and necessarily the increase in traffic has required a closer supervision and check by Chief Thompson."

In June the number of tickets was 572 as against 410 in June last year and 162 in June 1948.

Parking meter receipts for July were $15,354.44; for July last year $15,087.54; and $14,246.46 in July 1948.

Total collection by the meters since they were set up May 12, 1947 was $86,111.76 at the end of July.

June license fees reported by Mr. Outram totalled $6,825.86 and in July $5,827.61. Police court cases were 369 in June and 171 in July.

Seeks Renewal of License For Potato Chips Truck

Gordon Farquharson appealed to the council Tuesday night to renew the license of Dick Ouimet to operate his potato chips truck which has been serving the public for the last four years at down town corners and elsewhere in the city.

"Oshawa permits four of them, and you also see them in nearly all the towns of eastern Ontario," Mr. Farquharson said. "Mr. Ouimet is deeply concerned about the delay of more than a month since the renewal of his license has been held up. He is a married man, a veteran of the last war, and he has been active in community affairs. He had much to do with the establishing of the Civic Arena. He has been careful to abide by the bylaws relating to his business, and there have been no complaints from the Police Commission and Chief Constable Thompson."

Mayor Swanston replied that this matter was before the finance committee, and that the council had asked for reports from Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, Sanitary Inspector MacPherson and Chief Thompson.

Mr. Ouimet remained through the session of the council, and toward adjournment Ald. P. J. Anglesey asked Mayor Swanston whether Mr. Ouimet could be informed "about how he stands".

Mayor Swanston said the last of the three reports was not received until Friday, and the finance committee did not have a chance to go into them.

Should Be No Delay

"I don't think there should be any unnecessary delay," said Ald. A. B. Burrows. "There should not be any suspicions of discrimination against this man. I know that he was five years in the service, and I recommended to the council that he be given consideration for his business when he applied. Reports have been favorable regarding the way he carries on his business."

"You can't get reports over night," said Mayor Swanston. This is a matter that has been under advisement for over a year."

Mayor Swanston recalled that the council did not renew the license of the street peanut vendor last year.

"It was felt that we did not want any more business operating in the streets," His Worship said. "Mr. Ouimet is a good citizen and I don't think the council would discriminate against him. In one of the reports I know that the location of the truck at Simcoe and George Streets has been advised against."

"I agree as to the location," said Ald. Burrows, "but it seems to me that there is some other reason than the business Mr. Ouimet is running. This was brought up a month ago, and he still hasn't his license."

Ald. Burrows said he did not vote for withholding the license.

"If he is still operating, I don't see any reason for a rush," said Ald. J. A. Gillespie. "It will be dealt with in the regular way by the finance committee."

"Meanwhile he is under a strain because he does not know whether he is going to be allowed to continue to operate," Ald. Burrows replied.

"If we told Mr. Ouimet we did not want business in the street, the council would not push him out without giving him plenty of time," Mayor Swanston said. "As to any question about Mr. Ouimet personally, I have heard nothing detrimental. This is not a personal matter."

"It seems to me an unnecessary delay," Ald. Burrows remarked.

Ald. Braund: "This is midsummer, and we haven't had our regular meetings."

Addresses Council

Mr. Ouimet requested that he be permitted to speak to the council, and Mayor Swanston assented.

"When I got the license to operate four years ago," he said, "both Mayor Ovens and Chief Thompson picked that place and said I could go there. I was speaking to Chief Thompson three weeks ago, and he told me he was in favor of me carrying on. Dr. Kelly, the MOH, said it was OK. Mr. Fitzgerald of Zeller's Ltd. said it helped his business and the manager of Kresges said he was for me."

Mr. Ouimet said some of the aldermen were among his customers, and if necessary he could get a big petition supporting renewal of his license.

Mayor Swanston said the council would be interested in the three reports as they were received.

That ended the discussion where it began, with the Ouimet request to be dealt with by the finance committee of which Ald. Hugh Waddell is chairman.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

THE FIRE BILL

June fire loss was $1,767.14 and July $13,000 as reported to the council by Chief George Smith. There were 35 alarms in June and 24 in July.

11-POUND LAKE TROUT

Roy J. Grumbine, of Cincinnati, Ohio, hooked an 11-pound lake trout, the largest reported here this year, while trolling in Farquhar Lake near Wilberforce in Haliburton county with a Lucky Strike small wobler. Mr. Grumbine has been spending his summers at Chemong Lake for the past 19 years. He reports good luck fishing for lake trout in lakes north of here.

SPECIAL MEETING

Mayor Swanston has called a special meeting of the council for Aug. 14 at 4 p.m. to open tenders for sewer construction. Practice of the board of works department under the pressure of demand for sewers on new streets in the last two years has been to have the work done by contract, partly because the city lacks the heavy equipment required for that volume of work.

REMANDED AGAIN

Roger J. MacNaughton, 33, of Young's Point, charged with drunk driving and taking a truck without the owner's consent, was further remanded today to Aug. 17 on bail of $200. MacNaughton was arrested Tuesday night east of Nassau after a collie dog owned by Miss Helen Brown, R.R. 9, Peterborough, trailed him into a swamp on the Brown farm.

CAR DAMAGED

Slight damage was done to a car driven by Robert Gamble, 414 Water St., when the tailgate of a passing truck swung loose, hitting the left front of Gamble's car. The truck, driven by Everett Brisbin, RR 1, Cobourg, was travelling west on Clonsilla Ave. and passed Gamble's car as the tailgate came loose. Gamble was also driving west.

Youth Drowned In Attempt To Swim Across Otonabee; Searchers Fail To Find Body

Ronald Calberry, 13, drowned in an attempt to swim 75 yards across the Otonabee River south of Crawford's Grove park Wednesday afternoon. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Calberry 678 Hawley St., the boy went with two friends to give his two dogs a swim. Repeated attempts by Constables Louis Rodreque and John Conlin of the city police force to dive down to find the boy where he was last seen proved fruitless.

They were soon joined by Constable William A. Scott and Firemen E. J. Astles, Henry Nokes and Adelard Vienette.

After about an hour and a half of diving, the policemen gave up and a little later the fire department's night shift came on and took over the search.

The firemen continued scouring the area until after 10 p.m. without success. Provincial police joined in and at one time there were seven boats searching the river.

When the day shift came on duty at 8 a.m. today, the hunt was resumed.

Three boys had waded and jumped from stone to stone to reach an island a short distance from the west bank of the river. When they got on the island Ronald and one of the other boys, Bernard Bertrand, 630 Little St., decided to swim across the river to the east bank. They didn't have their bathing suits, but they stripped off their clothes in the seclusion of the deserted part of the river.

Ten-year-old Larry Heard, 629 Hawley St., couldn't swim and stayed behind. Bernard was a good swimmer, but Ronald had learned only last spring. When the two boys got some distance out, Ronald decided he would not be able to make it against the strong current and turned around to go back.

He swam some distance back and when little more than 30 feet from the island in the deepest part of the river began to go under.

Bernard was beside him and tried to help the struggling boy. He grabbed his arms and tried to pull Ronald against the current.

"But he kept dragging me under," said Bernard.

Bernard struggled to release himself and keep afloat, broke free, and "Ronald sank."

Gave Alarm

Bernard swam back to the island and the two ran some 300 yards along the river's wooded bank to the home of Mrs. Roy Hughes in Crawford's Grove Park. She phoned city police and within three minutes Constable Rodreque arrived. He stripped his outer clothing and dived into the river. He swam down to the island and began to dive to the stony bottom 10 to 15 feet down

But the water was muddy and he could see very little underwater. He was soon joined by Constable Conlin. Together with the firemen who arrived a few minutes later, they dove and dragged the area for the boy's body without success.

In the meantime Constable William A. Scott went to the CGE where the boy's father works as a welder to tell him of the tragedy.

They waited until a doctor arrived to tell Mrs. Calberry. A short time after five p.m. rain lashed down hampering the policemen and firemen in their grim search.

Mr. Calberry arrived at the scene and waited in an Examiner car peering out through the fogged-up windows for some sign that the search was over.

Several times he broke down and wept quietly to himself, his son's bundle of clothes beside him. On the island Ronald's two dogs stayed tied up and would allow no one to come near them.

After a time the policeman returned to the bank and the firemen rowed in to wait for replacements. All of them knew hope for the boy had finished long ago.

Mr. Calberry returned to his home and there, while some of his children watched him with wide questioning eyes, he put on rubber boots, an old raincoat and hat and returned to the river.

He arrived back just as the firemen were getting into their boat and he climbed in with them to take up the search.

Ronald was one of six Calberry children. Jack the eldest is 18. The others are Jean, 16, Shirley, 12, Leta, 10, and Garry 7.

"Ronald would have been 14 in December," Mr. Calberry said.

RONALD CALBERRY, 13, drowned Wednesday afternoon while trying to swim across the Otonabee River south of Crawford's Grove Park below the city limits. A friend, Bernard Bertrand, 14, swimming with him tried to help Ronald back to shore but was nearly pulled under himself.

Five Days In Jail Broke Into Laundry

Two Peterborough men were today sentenced to five days in jail by Magistrate R. B Baxter when they pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Fanning's Laundry. Nothing was taken from the laundry.

They are Richard Bettley, 26, and Raymond Lee, 22, both of 229 King St. A spring knife and a toy revolver were found on Lee when the two were arrested by constable William Scott.

Passing sentence, Magistrate Baxter said: "The time to stop such foolishness is now. I'll sentence you both to five days in jail. If that doesn't stop you, it isn't my fault."

Both men said they didn't know why they broke into the laundry.

Toronto Holding Old Jobs For Volunteers

TORONTO Aug 10 (CP) — Any Toronto civic employee who joins Canada's new army brigade for United Nations service will have his job and seniority waiting for him when he gets back, Mayor Hiram McCallum said Wednesday night.

Earlier, board of control decided civic employees who enlist would be guaranteed re-employment if they could show the army needed them. A few hours later, Mayor McCallum issued a statement which he said clarified the board's stand.

He said the city administration was disturbed by the need for civil defence in the Toronto area.

"In the case of an emergency our police force, our firefighters and men experienced in sewage disposal and water supply and in health protection, would be our first line of defence.

"These men may be more needed here than abroad, and it was for this reason that the board decided to review each individual application on the basis of discussing these points with the applicant."

The mayor had told the board that the government's request for 5,000 men is not general mobilization. The city would adhere to any regulations approved by the federal government, however.

UP FROM "DOWN UNDER"—Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, centre, is shown on his arrival in Ottawa for a three-day official visit to the Canadian capital. On hand to meet him were Francis M. Forde left, Australian High Commissioner to Canada, and Trade Minister Howe.

WMS Visits Cottage For August Meeting

FAIRMOUNT, Aug. 10 (ENS). —The August meeting of the WMS was held at Mrs. F. McIndoo's cottage. Mrs. Fred McIndoo opened the meeting.

The Mission Band took charge of the program with Dorothy Hooton presiding and a poem was read by Dorothy Hooton. The scripture was read by Dorothy Hall. Betty McIndoo and Dorothy Hooton sang a duet. Readings on Korea were given by Catherine Earle and Jean Hanbidge. Ann Wildman read a poem.

Ban Literature

FORT WILLIAM, Aug. 10—(CP)—City council Wednesday refused permission to the Northwestern Ontario Peace Council to distribute literature outlining the Stockholm appeal for peace. The peace council wanted to dump thousands of leaflets over the city and the exhibition grounds during exhibition week. "Everyone knows where that petition came from," commented Ald. Frank Williams.

Ex-Reeve Dies

CORNWALL, Aug. 10—(CP)—Nathan Copeland, former councillor, deputy reeve and reeve of Cornwall township, died in hospital Wednesday. He was 78. He was well known as a cattle and sheep judge at fall fairs and was township assessor and tax collector after his retirement from the township council.

Send Rock Display

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(CP)—A seven-ton section of the Rock of Gibraltar, gift of the British Government to the Prudential Insrance Company, arrived here Wednesday. It will be shipped to Toronto and displayed at the Canadian National Exhibition and later will be made a permanent display at the company's Toronto office.

Student Padres To Practise Burying Dead

CAMP BORDEN, Aug. 10 (CP) Student padres will practise burying the dead next week amid the din of a mock battle at Meaford.

Eleven divinity students seeking admission to the Royal Canadian Army Chaplain Corps, will bury dummies representing combat dead. They are to follow strict war procedure intended to ensure identification, notification of kin, collection and dispatch of kit and later removal of the body from the battlefield to a military cemetery.

In addition, plans for the mock battle call for the young men with the purple pips of the chaplain corps to work with doctors in removing the "wounded" and, for the first time to conduct battlefield funerals.

The Protestant cadet chaplains are J. B. Underhill, 23, Aurora; W. B. Mundy, 21, Richmond Hill; R. H. Love, 25 Stratford; L. R. Gesner, 22, Wolfville, N.S.; Ernest Phipps, 25 Saskatoon; C. E. McCara, 21, Scotsburn, N.S.; and D. D. Davidson, 28 Brockville.

The Roman Catholics: Fernard Cliche, 25 and R. C. Shmard, 24, both of Quebec City; and Martin Marier 23, and Pierre Leduc, 23, both of Montreal.

Grain Production Up

OTTAWA, Aug. 19 — (CP).—Ontario grain production is improved and above-average yields are anticipated, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday in its telegraphic review of crop conditions across Canada. Flue-cured tobacco was described as about normal and the sugar beet crop as "very promising." Crop conditions on the Prairies and in other parts of the country were also heartening.

Approve Transfer

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 10 —(AP)—The Belgian Chamber of Deputies Wednesday night approved the transfer of King Leopold's constitutional powers to his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin. The count was 165 in favor of the transfer, 27 against and seven abstentions.

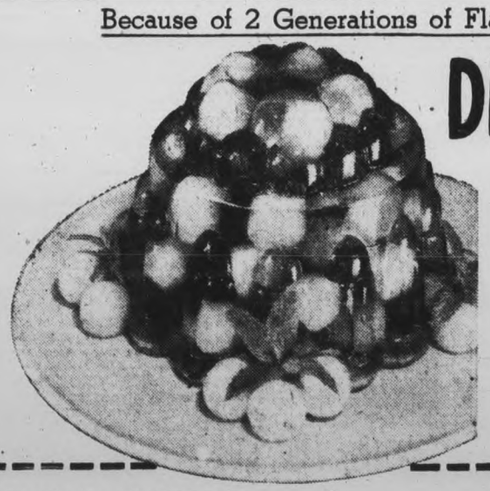
Because of 2 Generations of Flavor Experience—



DELICIOUSLY FRESH TASTING

Colorful, crystal-clear and tempting, Jell-O desserts have such wonderfully fresh, fruity flavor you'll rate them tops for even your most important guest occasion. Yet Jell-O is so easy to fix . . . so very economical . . . that you can enjoy its marvelous "locked-in" flavor any day in the year.

"JELL-O" has been a household word for 2 generations. When you buy Jell-O Jelly Powders you enjoy the advantages of over 50 years' experience in making better jelly desserts. Seven glorious flavors. Get several packages tomorrow.

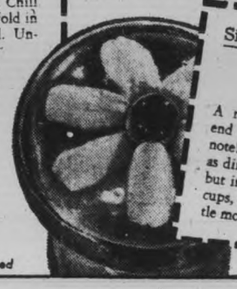
A Product of General Foods

Try This Beautiful JELL-O Dessert

Pear and Cherry Mould

1 package Cherry Jell-O
2 cups hot water (or water and syrup from fruit)
1 cup drained canned pitted red cherries
1 cup balls of canned pear, or fresh cantaloupe in season

Dissolve Jell-O in hot liquid. Chill until slightly thickened, then fold in fruits. Chill in fancy mould. Unmould and garnish with pear or cantaloupe, which has been cut in balls with a ball cutter. Makes 6 to 8 servings.



Simple—But So Effective

Lime Gaiety

A really thrifty way to end a meal on a high note! Prepare Lime Jell-O as directed on package — but increase water to 2¼ cups, to make it set a little more softly than usual. Chill in dessert glasses. At serving time, centre each dessert with a maraschino cherry and surround the cherry with marshmallows cut into eighths.

Must Aid Backward Countries To Beat Red Philosophy-Martin

CHICAGO, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Health Minister Martin said today that to put to shame the barren philosophy of Communism Canada and the United States must assist the backward countries of the world.

He made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery on "Canada Day" at the first United States International Trade Fair.

Representing Trade Minister Howe at the fair, Mr. Martin said that throughout the world are vast masses of people hungry for the foods which Canada and the U.S. could produce and in need of other products the two countries could supply.

"There are nations eager to learn our farming and industrial techniques" he said.

"The urgent problem of the world today is to telescope the years, the decades, the centuries even that some nations are lagging behind us. We must do this in common humanity. But we must realize also that in coming to the aid of backward countries and in leading their peoples to a better level of life we are not only helping our neighbor, we are helping ourselves . . .

Must Be Practical

"To put to shame the barren philosophy of Communism that promises so much that it cannot perform, we must bring to the assistance of people who need it the 'know-how' that has brought men and women in our two countries, and in countries like ours to the highest level of living that mankind has ever known."

The endless resourcefulness of modern competitive enterprise, the tremendous productivity of free men in the atmosphere of freedom, could be brought to the attention of peoples now tempted by Communist propaganda or intimidated by Communist force . . .

Equal U.S. Assistance

"You might be interested in knowing," he said, "that in Canada through outright gifts, relief assistance and loans totalling more than $6,500,000,000 since 1940, we have matched United States contributions during the same period in equal—if not even greater—proportion to our resources by financial assistance similarly designed to help friendly nations recover from their catastrophic wartime losses."

Other assistance was being provided by United States and Canada through United Nations.

"World depressions cannot be quarantined. Our policy is not to fence in our good fortune. We want other nations not to envy us but to emulate us. We want them to become better customers for our goods and we want, in our turn to buy more of theirs."

Scientists Start Five-Year TB Experiment

CARDIFF, Wales, Aug. 10 (CP) —Scientists start a five-year experiment in September to determine whether a mining community can be insulated against two of its greatest dangers—tuberculosis and pneumoconiosis.

A mass radiography unit will take X-rays of 30,000 persons in the little Rhondda area. All school children will be examined and undergo simple skin tests to see whether they have been infected with the tuberculosis germ, which usually spreads through coughing.

Pneumoconiosis is a lung disease caused by inhalation of dust.

The pioneer scheme is under auspices of Britain's Medical Research Council, which says it won't know for five years whether the plan is making headway.

Medical scientists want to know whether mass radiography will help prevent the spread of tuberculosis in a particular area, and if so whether pneumoconiosis will cease to be a serious disabling disease.

"This is the first attempt in medical history,' said Prof. R. G. H. Heaf, a member of the local advisory board, "to see whether scientists, with the help of a community, can rid a mining population of its greatest threat to better health."

Lake Of Woods Tough Patrol For Mounties During Summer

KENORA — (CP) — The vacationer's idea of Lake of the Woods in northwestern Ontario is a vast, island-dotted abode of some of Canada's largest and fightingest game fish.

But to two busy RCMP officers at Kenora, the lake is just another tough beat.

On the lake and along its shores federal statues of every description are open to violation. That accounts for the presence of the MP-905, a smartly-kept 30-foot R.C.M.P. patrol boat, and her two-man crew.

Their job is to patrol more than 1,500 square miles of bush-bordered water, broken up by thousands of weirdly-shaped islands, scarred by rock reefs, prone to sudden squalls and high waves.

Perennial Playground

Shared with Minnesota, Lake of the Woods is a perennial playground for thousands of United States and Canadian tourists who move back and forth across the boundry in planes and boats.

With them into Canada come the complexities of travel permits, monetary exchange and customs regulations, all of interest to the Federal Government.

From the Rainy River at the United States end to Kenora at the lake's north end, the two R.C.M.P. officers patrol their watery beat. Manned by a specially-trained, boat-wise seaman-constable, the MP-90 also carries the Kenora detachment's corporal.

Week-Long Cruises

The MP-90 is fitted with two bunks, a small galley, a washroom and adequate water and gasoline tanks. She is equipped for off-shore duty for a period of weeks.

The crew visits numerous camps during the tourists season. In lodges and fishing camps near the border, tourists who fail to report at Canadian entry ports are occasionally apprehended.

With lake waters abnormally high this year, the policemen watch for speeding boats close inshore. Waves from fast-moving craft cause considerable property damage in high-water areas.

Floating Islands

Oddest of all MP-90's duties this summer, her skipper says, is the removal of floating islands from navigable sections of the lake. The islands are huge lumps of floating muskeg, cast adrift from remote banks MP-90 tows them to shore.

Smuggling and the more serious breaches of federal law are more commonly encountered in the lake's southern extremities, the corporal said.

MP-90's yearly job is finished when the last visitor departs and thin sheets of ice start spreading over the lake. Hauled out of water for the winter, the boat is prepared for the following spring.

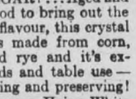
Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS
A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

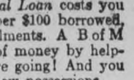
MONTREAL, Aug. 10th—I feel so much better when my eyes feel rested. That's why I make a point of always having a bottle of MURINE handy — one at home and one in my purse, wherever I go. Just 2 drops of Murine refresh tired eyes instantly! Even when your eyes don't actually "complain" of tiredness, you'll find that Murine makes them feel so much better! Using Murine regularly brings welcome relief to eyes that work hard for you morning, noon and night. You see, Murine contains 7 ingredients that blend perfectly with the natural fluids of the eye. It cleanses and soothes delicate eye tissues in a jiffy!

Something Good For Baby To Chew On!...that's what tasty, nutritious McCORMICK'S SUNWHEAT BISCUITS are! Yes, these biscuits that all the family like — are specially "right" for baby! As you know, Vitamin D is essential in the prevention of rickets, poor bone structure and retarded tooth development...and the Vitamin D content of SunWheat Biscuits has been increased by direct irradiation with ultra-violet rays! Each SunWheat Biscuit contains 50 International Units of Vitamin D — also calcium, phosphorus and other valuable food elements. And SunWheat Biscuits have the ideal crisp hardness to exercise baby's teeth and gums, yet they soften readily and are easily digested.



August Means Opportunities for you in shopping! It will pay you to read the ads extra well this month. And don't let immediate shortage of funds keep you from taking advantage of any really useful bargain . . . for instance, in furnishings! Talk your plans over with your husband . . . and see your BANK OF MONTREAL manager together. A B of M Personal Loan costs you only 27 cents a month in interest per $100 borrowed, if you repay in 12 monthly instalments. A B of M Personal Loan can save you a lot of money by helping you to get bargains while they're going! And you have the added pleasure of enjoying at once your new possessions.

It May Not Be Good Manners —but it shows real enthusiasm when baby bangs his spoon for "CREAM OF WHEAT"! Yes, babies love tempting 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat"! It's so good — and so good for them! Brimming with many kinds of valuable nourishment babies need to help maintain normal growth and health. For it provides Iron to maintain good red blood — and Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. Cooks to baby-ready digestibility in just five minutes of boiling! So give it to baby often — and for your FREE COPY of the helpful, delightfully illustrated booklet—"Commonsense Feeding Habits for Your Baby" — simply write to me, Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q.



What A Grand Feeling to have your pickling turn out to be completely successful! Think of the pleasure it will give you to have your family and friends exclaim, "These are perfect pickles!" Well, you can be sure of success with HEINZ WHITE VINEGAR!...Aged and mellowed in wood to bring out the full aroma and flavour, this crystal clear vinegar is made from corn, barley, salt and rye and it's excellent for salads and table use — as well as pickling and preserving! So stock up now on Heinz White Vinegar...and for real help in pickling, write to me — Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. — for your FREE COPY of "Pickling Success" — a 16-page booklet of marvelous recipes!

Even In The Warmest Weather, furniture needs to be dusted—cooking needs to be done. So here's a tip for wonderful refreshment in the midst of housecleaning . . . a cup of hot Blue Ribbon Tea or a glass of ice-cold Blue Ribbon Tea! BLUE RIBBON TEA is always delicious — served piping hot or icy-cold. And no wonder — for it's a "perfectionist" blend from some of the finest India and Ceylon teas. So give your spirits a lift . . . you'll get that lift from delicious Blue Ribbon Tea. Make iced tea like this: Allow two heaping teaspoons of tea or two bags to each person. Infuse in teapot as for hot tea — that is, warm teapot, pour bubbling, boiling water over tea and let steep for a full five minutes. Place cracked ice in glass. Pour on hot tea, adding sugar to taste. Serve with lemon.

You Can't Keep Food Under Glass...to protect it from flies during summer months! But here's one simple, inexpensive precaution you can take to protect your family from the countless germs spread by these filthy pests. Spray FLY-TOX regularly throughout the house! Yes, new, improved Fly-Tox is the deadliest fly-killer of 'em all. In fact, Fly-Tox kills in a matter of seconds . . . yet is harmless to humans . . . has a pleasant fragrance . . . and won't stain clothing! Ask for Fly-Tox by name and you'll agree with me that here, at last, is the finest of all insecticides!

"Gesundheit!" won't help those hay fever or "summer cold" sneezes! But I know something that will...ANOHIST! You see, Anohist combats the histamine that many doctors believe is released in your body by an allergic reaction. That's because Anohist is an antihistamine formula. And now you can enjoy this prompt, effective relief at a cost of only about 3c a tablet! Just think! ...relief from the miseries of hay fever and colds — for just a few pennies! So don't be a "sniffles" sufferer! — ask for Anohist at your drugstore today! Remember: all antihistamines are not alike. They vary greatly in performance. Anohist is the antihistamine formula recommended for family use because of its success in actual clinical tests.

Whew! It IS Warm, isn't it? But I know something that will make you feel at least ten degrees cooler! When you keep your skin fresh and sparkling with regular WOODBURY COLD CREAM cleansing — you'll feel cooler because you'll look cooler! So take a cool shower — put on your crispest, coolest dress and give your complexion a "Woodbury Beauty Treat"! Woodbury Cold Cream penetrates deeper into pore openings to loosen every last bit of grime and make-up. That's because it contains that magical new ingredient — PENATEN. Penaten has amazing penetrating power—it works quickly, thoroughly, yet gently to make your skin petal-fresh, exquisitely clean! So take my tip and make a beauty habit of Woodbury Cold Cream!...19c, 37c, 65c and 95c.

"Golly Mom, I'm So Hot!" Poor little tyke, barely awake . . . so listless, until — and here's the trick! Set a big bowl of refreshing Quaker Sparkies on the breakfast table and watch them disappear! Yes, I've tried it! QUAKER PUFFED WHEAT SPARKIES and QUAKER PUFFED RICE SPARKIES are both favourites in our house! The fluffy, crisp, different flavours of these treats spark appetites on a Summer morning. Because Quaker Sparkies are light and easily digested they help provide that nourishment needed to start an active day. And, mothers, save the box tops from Quaker Puffed Wheat and Quaker Puffed Rice Sparkies. Get a set of Tudor Plate for less than half price. Full particulars on the package.

Here's A Wonderful Silverware Offer you won't want to miss! You can have a set of 6 teaspoons or a 24-piece set of famous Wallace Brothers Silver Plate in the beautiful "Laurentian" pattern — for half price and less! All pieces except knives are silver-plated on finest quality nickel silver with an extra deposit of silver at the point of greatest wear. Knives have stainless, mirror-finish blades and silver-plated handles. Get in the happy habit of using delicious, nutritious LIBBY'S EVAPORATED MILK in your cooking — for here's what you can have by saving your Libby's labels — 6 teaspoons ($2 open stock value) for just $1 and 6 Libby's Evaporated Milk labels — OR — a 24-Piece Set of 6 teaspoons, 6 dessert spoons, 6 forks, 6 knives ($15 open stock value) for only $6 and 24 Libby's Evaporated Milk labels. (Labels from both large and small tins are acceptable for both offers.) Send your labels and money order to me — Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. — for your silverware!

Top Off A Midsummer Meal with feather-light cup cakes frosted and decorated as colourfully as a summer garden. And to be sure of baking success, make them with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR. That's the flour that's sifted again and again 'til it's 27 times as fine as ordinary flour!...Feathery Cup Cakes...

2 1/4 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 1/4 tspns. Calumet Baking Powder
1/4 tspn. salt
1/2 cup shortening (part butter preferred)
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten light
3/4 cup milk
1 tspn. vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, sift three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually; cream until light. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time; beat smooth after each addition. Add vanilla (or instead, cream 1 1/2 tspns. grated orange rind with shortening). Turn into greased muffin pans, or paper cups set in muffin pans; fill 2/3 full. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Frost and decorate. Makes 30 two cakes.

STORM AFTERMATH — Not a shelter from the wind for telephone line workers, but the roof of an apartment house deposited here by a wind of near-cyclone force which swept Winnipeg Monday. The wind accompanied by heavy rain caused considerable damage to the Manitoba capital still recovering from the disastrous Red River floods of May.

Heated Dispute Over New School

AGINCOURT, Aug. 10 (CP)—A heated controversy over school toilets almost resulted in the resignation of Agincourt's school trustees Wednesday night.

During discussions with ratepayers of a $32,000 addition to a school in this town 10 miles west of Toronto, the trustees resigned, were reappointed, and threatened to resign again.

The dispute arose over inclusion of modern flushing toilets in the school plans. Some ratepayers held they were an unnecessary expense despite a report condemning present toilets.

The three trustees, Jack Winch, Vincent Vaughan and Neal Coleman, immediately resigned. The meeting refused to accept their resignations and instructed them to proceed with the plans.

Mr. Vaughan told the ratepayers if there were any further dispute the board would resign again.

Girls Want To Go To Korea Throng Recruiting Centres

OTTAWA, Aug. 10 (CP).—Even the girls want to go to Korea.

Several former members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps showed up Wednesday among the men who crowded into army recruiting centres across Canada for the Korean brigade. Some nurses volunteered their services.

And the first woman officer in the now-defunct CWAC said in an interview that she wouldn't mind joining again if she were needed.

"For my part and I believe most former servicewomen would feel the same — we would go back if needed or required," said Lt.-Col. Joan Kennedy of Ottawa and Victoria.

Col. Kennedy, who joined the corps in 1941 and stayed with it until it was disbanded in 1946, is president of the national organization of "several thousand" CWAC veterans formed here two years ago to keep the corps spirit alive.

Meanwhile, officials at Defense Headquarters said no consideration is being given at the moment to reorganization of Canada's women's services which during the war drew some 48,000 women into the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, the RCAF (WD) and the CWAC.

That doesn't mean women are taboo in the services. The RCAF boasts 55 nursing sisters, one physiotherapist and six messing officers. The navy has 42 nursing sisters and 10 female technicians. Woman-power in the army totals six dietitians, five physiotherapists, two occupational therapists and 93 nursing sisters.

Should nurses be required for the Korean brigade, Defense Headquarters said, they will be picked from nurses already in the army.

No nurses will be recruited despite the fact that several hopefuly appeared at the Halifax recruiting centre.

Seven Injured In Truck Crash

WINDSOR, Aug. 10 (CP) — Seven persons were injured, at least one of them seriously, in a collision between a truck and an auto nine miles southeast of Windsor Wednesday night. Five persons are in hospital here and two others were released after treatment.

Hospital attendants said the most seriously injured is Patrick Harrington, 79, who lives on a farm at McGregor near the scene of the crash.

Also in hospital are Harvey Harrington, 34, his two children, Wayne, five, and Charlene, eight, and his niece, Mary Lynn Soper, five, of Sarnia. His wife, Mrs. Erma Harrington, 29, and Robert H. McKenzie, 43, of Windsor, were released after treatment.

All suffered cuts and shock in the collision. Police said both vehicles were wrecked.

Fleet Street Mints Verb After Tilt With Strachey

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Aug. 10 —(CP)— Fleet Street has just minted a verb which should bring a smile to the lips of war secretary John Strachey.

With typical impishness, the world's most famous newspaper street now sends its reporters off to political meetings with the gloomy chant: "I hope you won't be stracheyed."

"Stracheyed" refers to the row which resulted in the House of Commons and elsewhere over whether or not Strachey has used the term "plot" in a reference to the Schuman plan.

Strachey claimed that he applied the term to Conservative tactics in the House of Commons rather than to the plan itself. He said he had departed from the original outline of his speech, as supplied to news agencies, to make this point clear.

Didn't Hear Right

Reporters who checked the speech as delivered, argued that Strachey made no such deviation, apart from one or two passages which bore no relation to the controversy.

Strachey said he wasn't blaming the press, but they just couldn't have heard him right.

That ended the discussion—except for Fleet Street's footnote. Now, newspaper circles say, political writers quaver in fear of being "stracheyed."

The Newspaper World, a trade publication, gives this definition of the verb:

"To Strachey—to accuse a newspaper reporter of omitting an essential qualifying statement in any report of a political speech, but not to blame the press for it."

Newspapermen Ask Conciliator Named

MONTREAL, Aug. 10—(CP)—The Montreal Newspapermen's Syndicate, Inc. (CCC) has asked the Provincial Labor Relations Commission to appoint a conciliator in its dispute with Le Canada, French-language Montreal morning daily.

In a letter signed by president Pierre Paul LaFortune, the syndicate said Tuesday that a collective agreement was agreed on by the newspaper and syndicate July 25 but that the newspaper's board of directors refused to sign the agreement.

The syndicate received certification Jan. 19, 1949, to represent editorial workers of Le Canada in seeking a collective agreement.

Expects Election

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 10 (CP).—Campbell Calder, Liberal MPP for London, said Wednesday he expects a provincial general election next spring. The present government, under Premier Leslie Frost, could remain in power until the spring of 1952.

Clerk Nabs Escapee

TORONTO, Aug. 10 — (CP).—A keen-eyed store clerk in suburban New Toronto Wednesday helped police track down an escapee from Galt Training School for Boys. The clerk caught two 12-year-old boys shoplifting. One of the boys, identified by police as an escapee from Galt, also admitted entering a home and stealing milk and break tickets.

Chicken and Fruit Salad Tangy Midnight Supper

For an easy-to-serve late supper you want something that can be prepared well in advance. Here is a good idea taken from 250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds, the Examiner's fourth release in the series of twenty-four Culinary Arts Institute Cookbooks. This salad pops right out of the refrigerator to the buffet table. Heated rolls, a previously prepared relish dish, and coffee are all the accompaniment needed—with no trouble to the hostess.

Chicken and Fruit Salad

1 orange, 15 large grapes,
15 salted almonds, 1 banana,
1 apple diced,
3 cups diced cooked white meat of chicken,
1 cup mayonnaise.

Remove seeds and membrane from orange segments and cut into halves. Cut grapes into halves removing seeds. Split almonds, slice banana, mix all ingredients lightly but thoroughly. Chill and serve on lettuce for eight.

There are any number of other tasty chicken salad suggestions in this priceless book as well as an endless variety of other ways of preparing fowl. The numerous illustrations alone will inspire you to try novel recipes. To secure your copy present one coupon from the Examiner and 25 cents to the Examiner office, your carrier or Braund's Home Food Markets.

Of Interest to Women

U.K. "Fatties" Getting Fashion Break

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP) — British shops are now stocking wider ranges of smart clothes for stouter women.

Up-to-date dresses in every style and fabric now are available in 40 to 60-inch hip-sizes.

Larger quantities are made in low-and middle-price ranges and although supply is still less than demand, stout women now can be sure of smarter clothes.

The days are gone when Britain's ample figures could find only styles in dark colors and subdued designs. Designers are proving, to themselves and the conservative British "fatties," that dresses styled to suit the design of the fabric, can flatter the largest of figures.

The loudest of horizontal patterns and stripes are used in such a way that they emphasize straight lines and slim the swing of a flared skirt.

Right Fullness

In rayon, cotton and silk, horizontal designs are used in button-through styles with belted waist, revers neck and short sleeves. The straight skirts have just the right amount of fullness, and the uninterrupted lines of the pattern emphasize the clean-cut figure-line. Made for 42 to 46-inch hips, it costs £7 15s. ($24.02).

A floral-printed rayon with cross-over neckline, short sleeves and cummberbund waist has unpressed pleats from shoulder to hem in front and from the waist at back.

Designers are also proving that the larger figure can wear all-round pleated skirts and still have a slimming outline. The correct effect lies in the choice of pleats, which must either stop at the hip-line or be stitched down.

Silk dresses cost as little as £2 10s. Woollen models start at £3 19s 6d. Irish linens, seersuckers and cottons range from £5.

Couple Wed Both Over 70

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa— (CP)— A "whirlwind" romance of two months culminated here recently in the marriage of 79-year-old Willem Hendrik Stoltz and Mrs. Susanna Jacoba le Roux, 73.

Both have been married before and they have a total of 17 children.

They were married in the dining-room of Mr. Stoltz's house here by a minister of the Dutch Reformer Church. Present at the ceremony were four of Mr. Stoltz's sons and their children, and one of Mrs. Roux's children.

For their honeymoon, the couple visited Utenhage and Humansdorp.

The couple met for the first time in December, when Mrs. le Roux visited one of her daughter's, who happened to be married to Mr. Stoltz's brother-in-law.

Two months ago Mr. Stoltz proposed.

Said Mrs. le Roux: "I thought it was a joke at first—until I saw he really meant it."

Sullivan-Sanders Wedding

The marriage took place at St. Peter's Cathedral on Monday of Pearl Crowe Sanders, youngest daughter of Mrs. Crowe Sanders and the late Mr. John Crowe to Mr. Michael Dennis Sullivan eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sullivan, all of Peterborough. The Rev. R. J. Garvey performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her eldest brother, Mr. Ernest Crowe, the bride was attired in a street-length dress of light blue Chantilly lace over corded faille in matching shade. Her hat of the same lace was in cap style, trimmed with blue velvet flowers and she wore short mittens of white lace. A ring of pink Briarcliffe roses was her bouquet.

Matron of honor Mrs. Anthony Basciano wore dusty rose crepe made with a round neckline, cap sleeves and gathered skirt with effective tucks which were repeated on the brim of her matching bonnet-style hat, finished with a cluster of white velvet flowers. She wore white lace mittens and she carried a ring bouquet of white gladioli.

Mr. Anthony Basciano was groomsman and ushers were Laverne Perritt, nephew of the bride, and Romeo Sullivan, brother of the groom.

During signing of the register Mrs. Marian Aman, organist, played "On this day" and Ave Maria."

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a dress of powder blue crepe with wine accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses and the groom's mother was in navy sheer with navy accessories and wore pink Sweetheart roses.

About 50 guests attended a reception after the ceremony and later were entertained with music at the groom's home where a buffet lunch was served.

When leaving for Pleasant Point Inn, Sturgeon Lake, where the couple are honeymooning, the bride was wearing a navy shantung dress with white hat and accessories and a white gabardine shortie coat with corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will live in Peterborough.

ceremony before an altar banked with baskets of gladioli, phlox and hydrangea.

Prior to Mr. Dyson's recent acceptance of the United Church charge in Warsaw, the bride and her parents lived at Demorestville near Picton.

Given in marriage by her father she wore a cream gabardine tailored suit with navy accessories and a matching crownless hat. Her corsage was of pink roses. Miss Arlie King of Picton, bridesmaid, wore a grey tailored suit, matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. Edward Boldt of Kitchener was his brother's groomsman.

Mrs. A. H. Barron of Minden played traditional wedding music.

A reception was held in the parsonage, the bride's mother receiving in a navy silk dress with contrasting collar and cuffs, grey hat with navy trim and a corsage of yellow roses. Ladies of the parish who assisted in serving the guests were Mrs. H. Digweed, Mrs. C. Payne, Mrs. J. Nelson, Mrs. E. Selkirk and Mrs. R. Payne.

For travelling to Ottawa the bride donned a navy and white dress, navy accessories and a cream gabardine shortie coat. Mr. and Mrs. Boldt will live in Shilo, Manitoba.

Newlyweds Take Wedding Trip To Baie Verte, NB

In Christ Church at Bailieboro on Saturday afternoon, Ruth Marjory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Elgar, became the bride of Mr. Donald George Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Redvers Allen of Baie Verte, N. B.

The Rev. A. Chote performed the ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, pink phlox and hydrangea. Music was played by Mrs. W. Lunney and Mrs. M. Cluse was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a gown and cathedral train of white slipper satin and her veil, caught to a coronet of pearls, fell to floor length. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white gladioli petals.

Bridesmaid Miss Margaret Elson of Peterborough was frocked in green taffeta and wore a matching off-the-face hat. Little Shirley Elgar, niece of the bride, as flower girl, was dressed in light mauve organdy. Both carried bouquets of yellow roses and white gladioli.

Mr. Allister Allen was the groomsman and ushers were John Elgar and Robert Wells.

The bride's mother received her guests in the church basement, wearing a dress of grey silk poplin with black picture hat and a corsage of red roses.

Afterward the couple left by train for Montreal and flew from Dorval Airport to Baie Verte. For travelling the bride wore a cinnamon brown suit with brown and white accessories.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Allen will live in Toronto.

Order Teacher Spare Rod; Spoil Children

LONDON—(CP)—Teachers in Middlesex county schools have been given a new code of regulations governing the disciplining of unruly pupils in their classrooms. In effect, they have been told to go easy on the rod, even at the risk of spoiling the child.

The code, adopted by the County Education Committee, recommends that corporal punishment should be used only if it appears that other disciplinary measures are inappropriate. It should never be severe. Due regard, it says, should be given to the emotional and psychological effects of the punishment on the individual child.

Any form of correction likely to affect adversely the mental or physical development of a student, is banned under the new regulations. Slapping of children's ears, or rapping them over the head or knuckles, will not be permitted.

Boys Have Choice

If corporal punishment is deemed necessary the code requires the teacher to administer it in private and then only with a cane. Girls are to be spared save in exceptional circumstances and in their case caning may be inflicted on the hands only. The boys have a choice—they can take it on the seat of the pants.

Head teachers will be required to keep a Punishment Book. This will record the names, ages and offences of the children, along with the signature of the cane-wielder.

Landscape Has No Appeal For NZ Tourists

ROTORUA, N. Z., — (CP) — Canadian don't have to go to New Zealand to see mountains and lakes, so the New Zealand tourist bureau should find something else to sell.

That was the advice of E.G Guy, Managing-Director of the Rotorua Post on his return from the Imperial Press Conference in Canada.

"After travelling extensively in Canada and America, I am satisfied that it is fatuous for us to try to attract United States and Canadian tourists by advertising our mountains, lakes and rivers," he said.

"Canada, which entertains millions of United States visitors every year, has hundreds of miles of mountains literally thousands of lakes and some of the finest rivers in the world.

"In Vancouver, with mountains ringing the city, a window display ostensibly designed to attraction tourists to New Zealand, consisted of South Island mountain scenes. There were no pictures of thermal activity, Maori life, or of hunting and fishing scenes that would be of interest to North America. I am convinced that if we are to persevere in building up our tourist trade, we should confine our mountain and river advertising and appeal to Australia.

"In North America we should concentrate on emphasizing that our summer is their winter and in this matter we could cooperate to advantage with Fiji. A quest of the sun has great appeal to North Americans."

Mrs. J. Whittington Hostess To WMS Group

CENTREVILLE, Aug. 10 (ENS) Centreville Presbyterian Church WMS met for the August meeting at the home of Mrs. James Whittington, Bailieboro.

The president, Mrs. R. Brackenridge, was in charge and Mrs. Lee Cann read the scripture. The Study Book was given by Mrs. D. Rutherford, telling of the work of the Presbyterian Church in Korea.

A committee was formed for the fall thankoffering service and arrangements were made for the next meeting to be held at the Sunday school hall, when the children of the Mission Band will be in charge of the program. Mrs. Whittington and her committee served a lunch.

Dinner Jackets In Powder Blue Latest for Men

MONTREAL — (CP) — A few years ago, a man wouldn't be found dead wearing a powder-blue dinner jacket, or a maroon or scarlet one. But times change, and so do men's fashions.

When the white, shawl-collar, double-breasted summer formal jacket made its first appearance some years ago, people scoffed. But the idea caught on.

Today, according to Emile Regal, chairman of the Board of the Montreal Clothing Designers' Club, the powder-blue jacket with tropical-cloth trousers in navy blue and a navy tie is not only acceptable, but has become popular.

The maroon, or wine, jacket with navy trousers and a maroon bow, as well as the navy blue jacket and grey flannel trousers, are adding color to summer functions. Comfort is added by the lightweight tropical cloths.

Although the male trend to color appears to be a comparatively new and bold departure from the traditional, black, Regal says that, like most fashions, this one is a throwback to a century-old fashions when men wore scarlet and blue tailcoats with gold trim and matching toppers.

He doesn't think we'll get back to that, but he does see a general swing toward colorful garb.

Vivid Colors For Booths In Ontario, Que.

TORONTO, (CP) — Telephone booths are blossoming in new and gayer colors in Ontario and Quebec.

Time was when the telephone caller away from home had to seek a drug or cigar store. Now, at many locations, he finds his telephone in an outdoor booth.

The first of these booths were installed in wartime housing developments, where it was impossible to provide telephones for all who wanted them. By the war's end they were so popular that it was decided to put them to wider use, and today there are nearly 3,000 in Ontario and Quebec.

Much of the popularity of outdoor booths rests on the fact that they are available 24 hours a day. They are also easier to find. In many cases, merely moving a booth from inside to outside has doubled its use.

Various color schemes have been tried recently, and booths in gray, and Chinese red, blue, bright red and yellow have appeared.

Increased Popularity

At the entrance to the Windsor-Detroit tunnel, for instance, booths were painted bright red, causing a noticeable increase in their popularity. In the Canadian National Railways station at London, Ont., there are two similar rows of booths, one painted in the grey-Chinese red combination. The gaily-painted row proved much more popular than its plainer competitor.

Outdoor booths have appeared in public parks, amusement parks, fair grounds, at dock-sides, along highways, in parking lots and in front of stores, restaurants and stations.

In Toronto, there now are approximately 600 booths, one-quarter of which are painted in other than standard colors. Booths on the properties of an oil company and a grocery chain store have been specially painted to blend with the decor of the service stations and stores where they are located.

Boldt-Dyson

Warsaw United Church was setting for the wedding on Monday of Joan Esme, daughter of the Rev. George Dyson and Mrs. Dyson of Warsaw United Church parsonage, to Mr. Theodore Boldt, son of the Rev. and Mrs. B. B. Boldt of Winkler, Manitoba. The Rev. F. R. Harbeck performed the

Britain Determined to Lead In Television Selling Race

By ARTHUR W. WHITE

LONDON,— (AP)-- Britain is out to lead the world in television.

Confident spokesmen for the British TV industry claim that whatever the United States can do Britain can do better. Britain proved that in TV before the war, they assert.

Britains two-fold aim: to give its 50,000,000 people the best TV service anywhere and in so doing grab lucrative international markets for British TV equipment.

This country is telling other nations planning TV services:

"Look at our model system — our excellent programs, reception and cheap sets. Buy from us.

Britain's is growing by leaps and bounds France is the only other nation with a public daily TV service, although several have experimental ones.

Already Selling

British firms already have sold equipment to the United States and Canada, and orders are pending from Italy, Sweden, Belgium and Holland Continental experts are frequent visitors to United Kingdom factories and studios.

British manufacturers and the British Broadcasting Corporation —which in 1936 beat the United States by three years with the worlds first public daily TV service—are racing to make up war-lost time. British TV folded from 1939-46. The United States first public TV service was begun by RCA-NBC in April, 1939, and her first sponsored programs started in 1941, but were curtailed during the war.

A spokesman for the radio industry council, representing 90 per cent of TV manufacturers, said: "Britisr television is the best in the world and we want everybody to know it. We're after those export markets."

No Commercials

The big difference between the United States and Britain is that Britain allows no commercials on radio or TV, relying on revenue from licenses which every set owner must buy.

So, far, movie houses haven't complained TV is cutting into their audiences, but movies spokesman, with an eye on America, say resignedly it's bound to happen. Unlike the United States, few bars have television. Most Britons still prefer a game of darts with their beer.

Britain is giving top priority to building transmitting stations and studios and expects to lick both shortages before 1952.

In the next two years the BBC plans to blanket practically the entire British Isles with TV. It covers more than a third now.

Britain's first transmitter, in London, was used before the war. The second—35,000 watts, claimed to be the most powerful in the world— was inaugurated last December near Birmingham in the industrial Midlands. It was the first of four projected stations to go up in the Midlands, northern England, Scotland and Wales. Five lower - powered "gap" filler stations for other densely populated areas — one near Belfast in northern Ireland —will complete the network.

Gems Smuggled Into States Undermine Trade

JOHANNESBURG, — (CP) — Millions of dollars worth of South African diamonds are being smuggled into America every year.

But Dave Marais chairman of the South African Master Diamond Cutters' Association, says overseas police now are preparing to smash the rings and round up their members.

Diamond dealers had to keep a register of all their rough diamonds and the registers had to disclose how the diamonds were disposed of.

The result was, he said, that very little smuggling was done from South Africa, but smuggling from England and the continent to America badly effected trade.

Smuggled In Europe

Polished or cut diamonds were exported to the continent in great quantities to genuine diamond dealers, but large parcels later found their way to the smuggling combines.

"These diamonds are then smuggled from the continent to England, or from England to the continent, before being sent to America through the hundred and one unlawful ways that have been devised by the combines

"Diamonds exported to America legally have a 10 per cent import duty imposed on them The smugglers avoid this duty and are thus able to sell at lower than the normal prices, with the result that they are undermining the industry."

"It is estimated that about 90 per cent of the diamonds exported from South Africa eventually find their way to America through legal and illegal channels. Agents of the combines are caught from time to time, but most of the diamonds are never recovered.

Grills Family 24th Reunion

The Grills family held its 24th annual reunion last week, Searles Park, Oak Lake. Dinner was served on the waters edge to 75 people.

Garnet Grills, as president, gave an address of welcome and one minute silence was held in memory of those who had died during the past year.

Winners of contests were as follows:

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Girls Who Resists Advances Usually Wins Respect

DEAR MISS DIX: Do married men grow tired of their wives and wish to seek companionship with young girls? Or do married men wish to find out just what kind of girl a girl is when they ask her to go out with them? I have had married men ask me for dates. When I refused, they would say, "That's all right. I have a lot of respect for you." If I would consent to go out with a married man, what would he think? When a married man says to a girl: "Darling, you are so sweet, I love you," does he mean it? Has he ceased to love his wife? This matter of married men and girls has got me worried. I am afraid they do not think I am the right kind of a girl or they would not ask me to go out with them.

MILDRED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While there are, thank God, some men in the world who treat girls as they would like some other man to treat their daughters and sisters, the average man has no such scruples and he tries out every girl he meets to see just how far she will let him go. If he finds out that she has high principles and a sense of honor, he respects her, and, unless he is an utter villain he lets her alone and turns his attentions to some lady of easy morals. You need not fear that a man will ever think less of you resisting temptation. He will put you on a pedestal.

No Sign He's Tired of Wife

Because a married man wants to take a girl out and go on a spree with her is no indication whatever that he is unhappily married, or is tired of his wife, or has fallen in love with the girl.

He gets a kick out of jumping the bars and grazing in fresher and greener pastures for a while. He likes the novelty of having a pretty girl sitting across the table from him at a restaurant, or riding beside him in an automobile, a girl who is gay and light-hearted and who will talk about something else besides the price of butcher's meat and the baby's tooth and Johnny having to have a new coat as his wife would. And it makes him feel devilish and wicked instead of middle-aged and fat to be doing something that has a spice of danger in it.

The married man's technique, when starting an affair with a girl, is always to appeal to her sympathy. He is always unhappily married. His wife doesn't understand him. He married too young and only now, when he has met this particular young woman, has he found out what love really is. And so on and so forth. But how little he means what he says is proved by the fact that he makes no motion to separate himself from the wife of whom he alleges he is weary. His wife is the woman he really loves and respects and his little flirtation is just a passing diversion.

No married man bodes a girl any good, as the old melodramas used to say, when he asks her out and begins to make love to her, and she gains his respect and saves herself a lot of grief when she says "no."

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Our class in high school want your opinion on the subject of whether girls have as much right to ask for dates as boys.

THE CLASS

ANSWER: Of course they have the right, but you will find out as you grow older that we women have a lot of rights that we cannot collect. In other words, that there are many things which it is perfectly proper for us to do, but which it is not expedient for us to do.

Especially is this true in our relationship with the masculine sex. Theoretically, we have equal rights with men, but practically, they have a thousand rights in which we do not share, and among these is the privilege of making all the advances in courtship and marriage.

Women are wiser in love than men are. It makes more difference to them about getting the husbands they want than it does to men about getting wives they want. And there would be many more happy marriages than there are if women had the right to pick out their husbands instead of just having to take what is offered.

I believe this idiotic custom of giving women only the veto power in marriage is all wrong and should be broken down, and I am sure no better way could be found than for young girls to snap their fingers in Mrs Grundy's face and commence dating the boys. So go to it with my blessing.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband is always having an affair with some woman and then thinks I should be tickled pink when he comes back to me. Because of our son I always take him back and go on with a smile. But how I hate him! This has gone on for fifteen years. Our boy will know some time. Am I wrong in postponing the blow? Always I pretend to be supremely happy, but every day the lump in my throat gets larger. I am still young. What a life to live! What a future to face!

BLUE

ANSWER: I do not think that any woman is bound to endure an unfaithful husband, if you have any way of supporting your son until he gets through school and can make his own living, you have a perfect right to quit whenever you see fit.

But if you have no way of making a living and no money and if you cannot give your boy the advantage of a start in life that his father could, why not gird up your courage for a still further sacrifice, as you have sacrificed so much already, and endure your unhappy lot until he can shift for himself? But in the end you must be your own judge of what is the right thing to do. Nobody else can settle that question for you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DOROTHY DIX cannot answer personal mail. She takes up the problem of whether a man is duty-bound to go through with a marriage after he has fallen out of love in leaflet D-1, "Broken Engagements." To obtain a copy, send 5 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Dix, c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 98, Times Square Station, New York 18 N. Y.

FIRE DAMAGE

Nearly 300,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber is burned yearly in Canadian forest fires—equal to about half the annual consumption of Canada's pulp and paper industry.

MAGNETIC STORMS

Magnetic storms are generally ascribed to the passage of the earth through vast streams of ions or electrified particles that have been expelled from the sun's surface during a solar explosion.

SMARTLY SUITED—At left, "wedge-cut" suit of grey flannel with boxy jacket worn buttoned or open. Eton collar and two high breast pockets. Centre, tan shantung-type material has most original line with jutting hip flaps being cut in one with bodice and lined with cream shantung, collar rolls to "V" shape and folds above bustline give softened effect. Right, a button-on-blouse of brown silk matched to jacket lining of striped gabardine suit while trim, slim skirt and slashed cuffs complete picture.

Sister Emma Wields Plane

WINNIPEG —(CP)— Sawdust speckled the black gown of Sister Emma St. Gabriel of the Sisters of the Cross.

A sharp planing tool in her grasp, Sister Emma was busy fashioning a coffee table in the workshop of Manitoba teachers' summer school.

Sister Emma, one of 35 students in the school's woodworking section, teaches that subject to junior high school students at Willow Bunch, Sask. This year she is brushing up by attending summer school.

The woodworking section was one of many activities at this year's summer school. In another room, Miss Ruth Crowe of Aberdeen, Man., who teaches mathematics all winter, was giving instruction in weaving technique to 18 beginners.

Another group of 46 teachers collaborated on a series of murals, one depicting the journey of the Selkirk settlers from Portage la Prairie to York Factory.

What's Right?

Your husband receives a personal letter you are sure he would not mind your opening and reading.

WRONG: Go ahead and read the letter telling him later that you knew he wouldn't mind.

RIGHT: Follow the courteous rule of never opening mail addressed to another person.

Try Rennet Dessert Magic
to make them ask for more!

It's easy to make milk into rennet desserts with "Junket" Brand Rennet Powder (six flavors, already sweetened) or "Junket" Rennet Tablets (not sweetened or flavored . . . add sugar and flavor to taste). Rennet desserts are even easier to digest than milk itself, thanks to the rennet enzyme. Try these "Nest Egg" Rennet Desserts tonight.

"Nest Egg" Rennet Desserts
2 cups milk (not canned)
1 package "Junket" Rennet Powder, chocolate flavor
½ cup shredded coconut (moist)
Jelly eggs
Set out 4 or 5 individual dessert glasses. Make rennet desserts according to directions on package—takes only a couple of minutes. Then chill. Just before serving, make a "nest" of shredded coconut in the center of each dessert and fill with colored jelly eggs.

"Noah's Ark" Flies 93 People To Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 10. — (AP). — A Pan-American World Airways Stratocruiser arrived here today with 93 persons aboard, believed to be the largest number ever carried across the ocean on a regular flight.

"Looks like Noah's Ark," said one bystander when the 84 passengers and the crew of nine disembarked. All passengers were U.S. army personnel or their dependents, coming to Germany for routine assignment.

The load included 44 children 11 years of age or younger, including nine infants.

20,000 Chinese Reds Said In Indo-China

TAIPEI, Formosa, Aug. 10. — (AP).—Pro-Nationalist press reports said today 20,000 Chinese Communist troops have slipped into Indo-China to join forces of Moscow - trained Ho Chi-Minh against the French-sponsored Viet Nam government.

The unconfirmed Chinese reports said the Reds were shifted in small groups by junk at night from Chinese-Hainan Island, into nearby Indo-China.

Peterborough Bowlers Win

KINGSTON, Aug. 10—(CP)—A Peterborough team of Harold Freeman and William Jeffries Wednesday defeated Kingston pair to win the senior doubles championship in the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association playdowns for districts 12-16.

Thirty-two bowlers from 14 Ontario clubs took part. Winners in senior doubles, rinks, senior singles and junior doubles go to Ottawa for the all-Ontario playoffs Aug. 26.

Winning rink was skipped by W. C. Livingstone, Cannington, with players G. W. Pilgram, F. B. Sproule and N. McPhadden. They defeated the runner-up club from Ottawa by a score of plus 14 against plus 5. Members of the Ottawa rink were F. H. Brown, L. Gleason, G. C. Stevens and J. N. Askwith, skip.

A. Atkinson of Ottawa Central, won the singles championship, beating out C. H. Peacock of Oshawa.

Junior doubles were won by Norm Roberts nad John Neilson, skip, Highland Park, Ottawa. They edged R. Moon and J. E. A. Hatch, Madoc, 25 to 20 in the only junior doubles played.

Have Canada Day At Chicago Fair

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(CP). — Today was Canada day at Chicago's first International Trade Fair, honoring the country with which the United States has the largest international trade.

It brought here a delegation of Canadian Government officials and business men, headed by Health Minister Paul Martin.

"I am confident this fair will prove a real stimulus to exchange of commodities within the world family of nations," Martin said.

Bearing out his words, Ambassador Vlado Popovich of Yugoslavia said his country has taken $200,000 in orders for metals, chemicals, tobacco, handicrafts and liquor at the fair.

Popovich predicted that the impetus given sales will push this year's total to $25,000,000, compared to $14,000,000 worth of goods sold in the U.S. in 1949.

Forty-seven countries are represented at the two-week exposition which opened Monday.

Given Second Remand On Murder Charge

SUDBURY, Aug. 10—(CP) — Mrs. Ellen McKay, 51, was granted a second remand of one week on a charge of murder laid in connection with the rifle-slaying of her husband last Thursday. He was shot to death while sleeping in a bedroom of his tourist lodge at Bass Creek, near Little Current.

Held in custody in Sudbury district jail, Mrs. McKay is reported suffering from a nervous condition.

Some 30 guests were staying at the Lodge at the time of the shooting.

PLANKS BROKEN

Planks in the bridge across the river at Nassau broke recently, and are being repaired. Provincial Corporal Lloyd McClure said the breaks had left some nasty holes in the bridge, but that watchmen have been warning cars of the danger while the repairs go on.

10 Bylaws Passed By City Council

Ten bylaws passed by the council Tuesday were chiefly formal sanction before or after the fact. One introduced by Ald. H. Dodds authorized execution of the contract with Curran and Briggs for the building of the Park St. drain and small bridge on Caddy St.

Another closes a section of Dennis St. for a house site, and incidentally "stopping up" small boys' short cut to Confederation School. Another authorizes the laying of sewers on Wolsley Fairbairn and Wallington Streets. Still another incorporates the license of the Dominion Department of Transport for the laying of the pipe lines across the river at Burnham's Point, work that was done a year ago.

Another bylaw, effective in 1952, requires gasoline tanks to be placed under ground. Amendments to the hawkers and pedlars license, control of tourist camps and and trailer camps were other bylaw subjects. Another was specific provision for three weeks holidays for civic employees who have been with the city for not less than 15 years. It was already in practical effect.

Librarian Attends Film Summer School

William Graff, librarian at the Public Library and Ron Ward, district representative of the National Film Board, are in Kingston attending the Film and Community leadership course at the Queen's University summer school. The course is sponsored by the Ontario Association of Film Councils and the community programs branch of the Department of Education in co-operation with the university and the Film Board.

Both will attend the classes which will run until August 13 and Mr. Graff will lecture on Methods of Financing a Film Council.

Authorize Tenders For W. Ontario Dam

KITCHENER, Aug. 10—(CP) —The Grand River Conservation Commission Thursday authorized the executive committee to call tenders for the $200,000 Luther Marsh dam.

Construction will be under way by fall, Chairman William Phillip of Galt, told the commissioners.

The dam will impound 10,000 acre feet and cover an area of 4,500 acres.

Grants of 37½ per cent of the costs each have been authorized by the Federal and Provincial governments.

H. C. Acres and Co. Niagara Falls, Ont., are the engineers in charge. They are the firm that designed and supervised construction of the $2,000,000 Grand Valley dam near Fergus.

Team Bolts, Driver Thrown From Load

HASTINGS, Aug. 10—(ENS)—Thrown from a load of grain when his horse bolted after their neck yoke broke, E. R. Wnarer, R.R. 3, Hastings received a badly gashed leg Wednesday and was taken to Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

Mr. Warner was drawing grain on his farm when the accident occurred and the wagon of grain overturned.

Call Bishop Enemy

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 10 —(AP). — Bishop Joszeph Peteri of Vac was called an "enemy of peace" Wednesday night by Education Minister Joszeph Darvas. He charged in a statement the bishop had prevented priests from taking part in a recent meeting intended to smooth differences between the government and the Catholic Church.

Requiem Mass Said For Mrs. M. Heffernan

The funeral service for Mrs. Mary Heffernan, who died Aug. 3 was held Saturday from the Duffus Funeral Home to Immaculate Conception Church, where requiem mass was said at 9 a.m. by the Rev. James Greenan.

The pallbearers were Thomas Heffernan, James Heffernan, J. J. Heffernan, Clare McGillen, Stanley O'Neil and Henry Bourrie.

The graveside prayers in St. Peter's Cemetery were said by the Rev. Leo Leahy.

Stabbing Case Postponed Again

SUDBURY, Aug. 10— (CP)— Facing a charge of stabbing and inflicting severe wounds on an 18-year-old youth, George O'Connor, 36, of Romford, was granted his second remand in court today. He will also answer to a charge of trespassing on railway property.

Two other youths involved in the same fracas, Clarence Cote, 17, of the Parry Sound Indian Reserve and Donald Fisher, 18, of North Bay, were remanded on charges of breaking, entering and theft.

Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe postponed the trials until the stab victim, Roland Compay of Kitchener, is released from hospital here. Charges of breaking, entering, theft and trespassing are to be laid against the youth.

Compay suffered severe knife wounds in the abdomen after falling from a moving freight train at the Canadian Pacific Railway yards Aug. 3 as a result of a fight with O'Connor.

Police said the fracas occurred when O'Connor spotted the trio leaving his farm home with a large bundle of his clothing. After calling police, O'Connor followed the youths who jumped on a freight heading into Sudbury.

EYE TOPICS

TOOL-MAKERS OF OLD

In all probability the first advance in human progress was the making of an axe. As every woodsman knows, an axe or hatchet is indispensable for comfortable living in the forests. In remote times the inventor of this highly useful instrument must have been hailed as a genius. From specimens that have been discovered in Europe, it is known that the head of the first axe was laboriously chipped out of stone and then notched so it could be attached to a wooden handle.

The next step was the making of arrow heads, then came tools for making pottery, and finally some unkown genius invented the ploughshare. These early advances were the foundations of human progress. Greatest advances could not come, however, till man had perfected aids to the eye as well as aids to the hand.

Thousands of years later man first learned how to make lenses. With such lenses he could devise microscopes, telescopes, and eyeglasses. These are "tools" no less than axes or arrow heads. Such aids to better vision have been, in fact, of utmost important in the development of all modern science.

To keep in step with progress we all need the best vision of which our eyes are capable. The human eye is a marvelous instrument, but, being human, is rarely perfect. Yet whatever the defect, it can nearly always be corrected.

Published in the interests of your vision by A. Ward Smith, Optometrist, 341 George St., Peterborough (Over Selkirk's) Telephone 9397.

Funeral Services Held For Maurice J. Tobin

The funeral service for Maurice James Tobin, formerly of Peterborough, who died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Harvey township was held Wednesday from Duffus Funeral Home to St. Peter's Cathedral. Requiem mass was said at 9 a.m. by the Rev. Raymond Garvey.

Mr. Tobin was born in Douro, son of the late Thomas Tobin and Jane Ryan. He was employed for 21 years with the Cooney Cartage Co. and later employed for six years with the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Co. He was a veteran of the First World War. He enlisted in the 21st battalion on July 15, 1915 and spent three years overseas. Mr. Tobin was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

He leaves his wife, the former Elizabeth Diagnault, one daughter Mrs. Andrew Wilson (Dorothy), of Harvey township; two sons, Leo of Peterborough and Leonard of Toronto; one sister, Mrs. Mary Kendry of Peterborough and two brothers, William and Leo, both of Peterborough.

The pallbearers were Arthur Bennett, Michael Kouri, Arthur Peeling, E. J. O'Donoghue, James Keeley and Patrick Burke.

Graveside prayers were said at St. Peter's Cemetery by the Rev. G. Weiss.

Mrs. Harold Legrow

The funeral service for Mrs. Harold Legrow, who died Aug. 3, was held Monday from her residence 175 Lock St., to Sacred Heart Church, where requiem mass was said at 9 a.m. by the Rev. F. M. Grant.

Present in the sanctuary was the Rev. C. Maloney. Graveside prayers were said at St. Peter's cemetery by Rev. Father Grant, assisted by Rev. Father Maloney.

The pallbearers were George Hunter, Henry McIsaac, James Conlin, W. J. Grady, Ed Shaughnessy and Carl Shaughnessy.

Three Remanded On Assault Counts

Three men jointly charged with assault on William Coros, of the Churchill cafe were today further remanded in custody to August 17 by Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

They are Gordon Dunlop, 23, of Ida, Ross Chadwick, 22, of Toronto and Stanley Finn, 24, 407 Dobbin Ave. Also arrested was a juvenile, who gave his age at the time as 16, but later admitted he was not yet 16.

Mr. Coros was hit on the head by a catsup bottle said thrown by one of the four. About $500 damage was done to the restaurant during the disturbance early in the morning of August 8.

A fifth man escaped and is being sought.

Six Men, One Woman Face Liquor Charges

Six men and a woman faced liquor charges before Magistrate R. B. Baxter today. Charges against two of them were dismissed.

Floyd McCullough, London, Ont. was fined $10 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to being drunk. William Clinton, Lakefield, was fined $75 and $2.50 or one month when convicted of his second offence as a drunk.

David Forbes, 158 Charlotte St., was fined $50 and $2.50 costs for his second offence which took place in his home. Magistrate W. R. Philp declared Forbes' rooms a public place in June.

Amy Edwards, Lakefield, pleaded guilty to consuming liquor while on the interdicted list and was fined $50 and $2.50.

James Conway, 301 Townsend St., was convicted of illegal possession of liquor and fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Leo Walsh, 347 Rogers St. and Russell Bowers, 159 Aylmer St., had charges of illegally consuming liquor dismissed for lack of evidence.

Commentator's Wit Saves Record Show

LONDON — (CP) — Quick wits saved embarrassment when a blown fuse interrupted a BBC recorded program.

All six record turntables ground to a halt with a weird deflated sound.

Commentator Wynford Vaughan-Thomas, whose recorded voice had been describing a day in Naples, commented ad-lib: "See how hot it was in Naples? Even the discs began to run down."

An engineer raced from the control room to repair the damage. Another engineer played the next two discs by "stirring" them with his finger.

Winnipeg Goldeyes Claimed World's Finest Panfish

By JACK SCOTT

WINNIPEG, Man. — One of life's most rewarding experiences is to sit before a table in the hushed and slightly solemn atmosphere of the dining room of Winnipeg's Royal Alexandra Hotel and make a pig of yourself with Winnipeg Goldeye.

The hotel itself doesn't compare with other, more modern railway hostels in Canada (for one thing it is so close to the transcontinental tracks that a sleepless guest once phoned the desk and asked what time his room reached Regina), but the dining-room is my favorite of all, being frankly old-fashioned and perfectly suited to a reverential consumption of Amphiodon Alosoides.

Amphiodon Alosoides, or Winnipeg Goldeye, is the world's finest eatin' smoked panfish, a statement one may make boldly, and one made frequently by distinguished visitors to Winnipeg, including H. V. Kaltenborn, a bold-statement maker from away back.

Along with every other correspondent who converged on Winnipeg to cover the big flood this spring I indulged in a Goldeye orgy, and determined that if I ever came back I'd find something of the background of this splendid fish.

Of course the Royal Alex has no monopoly on the delicacy. Indeed, Albert Zanzig, the retired maitre d'hotel of the Fort Garry Hotel (who insisted on serving them with the heads on and moaned at the necessity of offering tnem without a suitable white wine) is generally credited with being the No. 1 Goldeye salesman.

The fish are also on sale over the counter in these parts at 70 cents the pound or three for about a dollar and are just as delicious cooked on a Coleman stove as anywhere else. On this my research is not to be questioned.

With the Chef

I introduced my gang to Goldeye last night at the Royal Alex, successfully passing on my passion for that delicate flavor and firm, blushing flesh, and then retire to the kitchen to bow and scrape before the chef, who accepted my plaudits with becoming modesty.

The hotel's chef is one Horace Swain, who has been doing excellent things with Goldeye since 1922. He is a precise, smooth-skinned man who looks, except for the great white cap, like Hollywood's idea of The Famous Surgeon, and is anxious not to be quoted too directly on controversial points.

M. Swain favors a Goldeye of about 10 ounces and 12 inches in length and usually gives the fish about eight minutes in a steam chest, serving with a strip of grilled bacon and maitre d'hotel butter in which ice cold chicken broth, lemon juice, and parsley are subtly blended.

There are, however, a great many other ways of serving the fish ,including grilling, in which the Goldeye is slightly toasted, or, again, poached (recommended for Coleman stoves).

M. Swain — oh, excellent fellow!—also has a superb recipe for Goldeye a la Creble with a Spanish sauce and Goldeye Paupiette, in which the fish is gently baked in paper.

He occasionally has calls from gourmets for a Marinate of Goldeye in which the Goldeye is filleted and placed tenderly in a bed of lettuce leaf with red and green peppers, celery, sliced tomatoes, and French dressing — "SHARP French dressing," M. Swain adds.

The chef, himself, occasionally finds a Goldeye or two left over from the day and sits down in his office, bows thrice to the east, and despatches same without trimmings. Indeed, he and I split one right from the ice chest in this manner, and it was—how you say?—superb.

Part of the joy of Goldeye is doing your own filleting since a knife takes away the sunset-colored outer skin as if by magic and the tender meat then may be partel delicately from the skeleton in an operation so clean that one marvels that a fish so toothsome should be so obliging architecturally.

Via Alberta

Fifty-odd years ago when Goldeye were as common as frankfurters the fish was not considered anything special and nobody dreamed that some day they would be a $4.50 delicacy on the Stork Club menu.

Traditionally, the Goldeye is from Lake Winnipeg (fishermen drop their nets through the ice from portable heated shacks, I'm told), but in recent ytars the Goldeye have been running thin in Manitoba and most of the supply nof comes from Lac Claire near Athabaska Lake in Northern Alberta. Some even come here from Minesota.

The "processing," as they call it, is a Winnipeg specialty and apparently as secret as the formula for Coca-Cola. Goldeye is a silver-colored sort of bass, but when it is smoked over smoldering scrub oak bush and tinted, it takts on the bronze-gold color and its flavor.

Chef Swain cannot remember when he was last asked for fresh Goldeye, which he describes as "soft and unattractive." I have been invited to see how this processing is done, but I think I'll skip it. Does the steak-lover visit the abbatoir?

In the course of a normal day M. Swain may serve three or four dozen Goldeye, but sometimes for banquets, he will have three to four hundred. M. Swain likes those days. There are always a few left over for M. Swain.

Oh, yes. Winnipeg Goldeye is a fine game fish when taken on a light tackle and responds to either a wet or dry fly. But it is a lot simpler just to sit in the Royal Alex dining-room and give your order, softly and thoughtfully, to a waiter.

Summer School For Preachers

LONDON, Ont. — (CP)—Summer schools in religion are flourishing at the University of Western Ontario here and at the University of Toronto.

An innovation of the United Church of Canada three years ago, the schools are of different types. One is a course of instruction for lay preachers, the other a refresher course for established ministers.

The refresher course is being held here at the University of Western Ontario under the direction of Professor S. F. Maine. It is interdenominational, and ministers from Anglican, Baptist and Evangelical churches, as well as the United Church, are enrolled.

At Toronto's Emmanuel College, the Rev. Elias Andrews of Halifax is in charge of the school for lay preachers.

Children Tougher South Of Thames

LONDON—(CP)—Children are tougher south of the Thames river.

A survey by London county council shows that youngsters in southwest London have better physique and can fight off ailments more easily than those in the northeast.

The British Medical Journal, commenting on the survey, says that northeastern areas were less affected by wartime bombing.

Nazi Interpreter Writing Memoirs

LONDON — (CP) — Dr. Paul Schmidt, Hitler's interpreter from 1923 to 1945, is in London correcting proofs of his memoirs.

His book is to be published this fall in North America, France and Britain.

Schmidt told a reporter who interviewed him in a London hotel that he regarded Hitler as an amateur with considerable gifts—"the trouble was he thought he knew everything."

The reporter, John Hope, of the Evening Standard, noted that Dr. Schmidt had talked differently about Hitler in an interview with Capt. Antoine Masson, of the Fusiliers Mont Royal a Canadian captured at Dieppe.

Capt. Masson, who later escaped, quoted Dr. Schmidt as calling Hitler a "genius . . . a man who is introducing a new purpose in life for everyone."

Asked about the discrepancy Dr. Schmidt told Hope his references to Hitler were just designed to make Capt. Masson talk.

Freakish Chicken Crows, Lays Eggs

PENTICTON, B.C. — (CP) — Penticton has something new in freaks, a crowing hen.

The owner, Fred Bassett, discovered his New Hampshire's dual talent—he or she can lay eggs too—about two months ago.

"It" starts crowing reveille like any good rooster in the wee hours.

Mr. Bassett says the one-year-old fowl is the first egg laying and crowing bird he's come across with in 20 years experience with chickens.

RAIL UNIONS PREPARE STRIKE DETAILS

Churchill Urges Joint Army

Warns Europe Use Breathing Space For Unified Defence

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 11 — (AP) — Winston Churchill urged today immediate creation of a unified European Army to defend the west against Russia. He said the west still has a breathing space of about two years which could be used to prevent a Third World War.

Britain's wartime Prime Minister introduced a formal motion to the European Consultative Assembly—lower house of the unofficial parliament for a united western Europe—asking for such an army "subject to proper Democratic control."

He said the most effective deterrent to war is United States superiority in atomic weapons plus Russia's success in building an empire without committing herself to war.

Churchill slapped down arguments that rearming West Germany might incite the Soviets to a preventive war by saying such action would in no way change the "long calculated designs" of Russia.

Have Breathing Space

Referring to the breathing space he said the West still has, Churchill said:

"If we use this (time) wisely and well and do not waste it as we have already wasted so much, we may still greatly increase the deterrents against a major Russian Communist aggression."

He said that only by building up a "trustworthy system of defence" would the West have a chance of "final settlement by negotiations with the Soviet on the basis of strength and not of our weakness."

Churchill did not spell out exactly how the proposed European army would be organized, but presumably he wants member governments to merge their national armies. This would go far beyond what is now contemplated under the North Atlantic Pact.

Prince Baudouin Becomes Belgium's Ruler

BRUSSELS, Aug. 11 — (AP) — Crown Prince Baudouin today became ruler of all the Belgians in the place of his father, King Leopold III.

He took the oath as Prince Royal in parliament, where several hours earlier the Senate and Chamber of Deputies in joint session had given final approval to the bill transferring Leopold's royal powers to his 19-year-old son. The final vote was 349 in favor with eight abstentions.

This was the final act in a royal drama that began with Leopold's banishment in 1945 for his action in surrendering to the invading German armies in the second world war.

On Brink Of War

His supporters, the Social Christians, wages a five-year struggle and brought him back last month. The anti-Leopold Socialists unleashed a series of strikes and demonstrations which brought Belgium to the brink of civil war.

An uneasy calm was restored Aug. 1 when Leopold agreed to a slow-motion abdication under terms of which Baudouin would take over the actual powers today and become king in name also on his 21st birthday, Sept. 7, 1951.

A Belgian army major smoke-bombed parliament today as a joint session of parliament voted finally to make King Leopold III a monarch in name only. No one was hurt but the Senate hall was filled with grey smoke. The officer was arrested immediately.

To Visit Japan

VANCOUVER, Aug. 11 (CP)—Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, who has made a flying visit to world centres, was bound for Japan today after a one-day visit here. He flew to Seattle in an RCAF plane, which Thursday brought him from Ottawa, and then transferred to a commercial plane for the flight to Tokyo.

East Germans Kill Story On Air Reprisal Request

By THOMAS A. REEDY

BERLIN, Aug. 11—(AP)—East Germany's Communist rulers bit into what looked to be a juicy propaganda apple Thursday and found it sour. The government announced about noon that it had asked the Russians for protection from the U.S. Air Force. It charged that U.S. planes recently dropped two fire bombs on Soviet-zone territory and that the zone's air sovereignty has been violated 22 times since May.

Observers speculated that the reaction sought from Russia might be closing of the West's air corridors into Berlin and the imposition of a new blockade on the four-power city.

But three hours and 45 minutes later the official Soviet-zone news agency ADN, killed the story on instructions from the office of Gerhart Eisler, information chief for the East German Government who had released the announcement. No explanation was given.

Knuckles Rapped

Western circles surmissed, however, that the Russians had rapped somebody's knuckles for going too far—this time at least.

For the Russians have never attempted to close the air corridors to Berlin. Even during their 1948-49 iand blockade of the city they never seriously challenged the allied airlift which kept West Berliners alive.

Eisler put out the story as a formal decision of the cabinet headed by Chancellor Otto Grotewohl, a former Socialist. Grotewohl has been leading a hate-the-West campaign.

In the withdrawal, ADN asked its subscribers, which include western newspapers here, to consider that the original announcement had never been carried.

U.S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy put the fire bomb charge in the same category as "the Hitlerian technique of the big lie."

Here for an allied high commission meeting, McCloy said: "If any incendiary bombs were actually found in the Soviet zone, the Communists must have put them there."

War Of Words Opened By UN

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug. 11 (AP) — Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb was scheduled to pick up the oratorical ball today in western attempts to counter the Russian-imposed stalemate on security council consideration of the Korean question.

With the West unable to persuade Russian president Jakob A. Malik in both private and public meetings Thursday to lift his blockade, the council went into the second meeting (at 3 p.m. EDT) of a campaign to out-talk Malik.

The word war was opened Thursday by United States delegate Warren Austin with a 3,000-word, gloves-off attack. It called the Russian-backed North Korean government a "zombie government" and blamed the Soviet Union for the North Korean's attack on the U.N.-sponsored South Korean regime.

Austin charged the North Koreans were using Russian-made tanks and guns. Malik, replying briefly, acknowledged the Soviet Union had furnished supplies to the North Koreans but claimed these were sold to them before Russian occupation troops withdrew from Korea in 1948.

20 Tons Of Concrete Collapse On Worker

TORONTO, Aug. 11 — (CP).—Philip McCarthy, 23, of Red Cove, Bay DeVerde, Nfld., was killed Thursday when a floor collapsed and buried him under 20 tons of concrete.

McCarthy and a companion, Thomas Beon, 23, of Toronto, were dismantling a steel-reinforced concrete vault when a section of flooring forming the top af the vault buckled.

McCarthy's right arm was amputated and he suffered internal injuries in the accident. He died in hospital a short time later. His companion is in serious condition in hospital suffering from head and internal injuries.

Traffic In Windsor Examined By Experts

WINDSOR, Aug. 11—(CP)—Windsor's traffic problems will be examined by a team of experts from Evanston, Ill. sometime this year.

The city's request for a traffic survey has been accepted by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, it was announced yesterday by Police Chief Claude Renaud of Windsor.

The association, with a wide reputation for solving traffic problems, works in co-operation with Northwestern University at Evanston.

Rail Heads Appeal To Unionists

Trains Will Halt At 6 O'clock Morning of August 22

MONTREAL, Aug. 11—(CP)—The presidents of Canada's major railroads today directed a personal appeal to top union leaders to call off their strike action.

The appeal was made in a joint telegram to Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee for 15 international unions, with a copy to A. R. Mosher, committee chairman for two Canadian unions also affected by the strike call for Aug. 22.

The telegram said that in view of the emergency of the impending strike—which would affect 124,000 workers in the non-running trades—"we take this means of replying to your letter of Aug. 10."

In his letter, made public today, Mr. Hall in rejecting the "final offer" of the presidents, said "we can find no acceptable contribution to a solution" to the situation.

100 Per Cent Effective

Meanwhile, the unions began organizational work for the strike and made public directives to members and officials to make the strike 100 per cent effective.

Meetings were scheduled between the two union groups and company representatives, but these were aimed only at an understanding on protection of property and maintenance of essential services.

No immediate federal government moves in the railway labor dispute appeared in prospect today as the carriers and their unions prepared for an Aug. 22 general strike.

Hands Off Policy

A hands-off policy for the present at least was in evidence, with the government hoping that Thursday's breakdown of negotiations would be followed by a resumption of negotiations before the walkout deadline.

Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee for 15 international unions, told newspapermen that the strike will "black out completely" railroad service throughout the country except for trains carrying medical supplies or other supplies deemed vital by the strike committee.

The rejecion of the railways' final offer was made known late Thursday in a brief joint statements by the presidents of the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In brief the companies offered a 44-hour week, against the present 48, without loss of take-home pay, or an alternative plan for a wage increase of 8½ cents an hour with a continuing 48-hour week.

Left Questions Open

The railways left open the question of a 40-hour week, demanded by the unions, admitting a "moral obligation" to implement the 40-hour week "at the appropriate time."

Say 400 Acres Tobacco Ruined

AYLMER, Aug. 11 — (CP) — About 400 acres of flue-cured tobacco was wiped out and from 100 to 150 acres damaged up to 40 per cent Thursday night by a hailstorm on the south outskirts of this town 10 miles from St. Thomas.

The Imperial Leaf Tobacco Company said today amount of the damage had not been estimated.

General crops and fruit orchards also suffered damage.

About six large tobacco crops were completely ruined in the matter of minutes.

Joseph Fath's two flue-cured farms were hard hit. Charles Ghomas was another heavy loser.

The storm extended west to the Orwell area but missed the Jaffa area entirely. Jaffa district farmers reported a good rain, with some thunder and lightning.

Mercury At 30

WHITE RIVER, Aug. 11—(CP) — The temperature last night fell to 30 degrees above zero in this village 160 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. Weather office officials, however, said there was nothing unusual about the drop. It is a rare month when frost is not recorded at White River.

Garbage Stays Uncollected, In City Strike

HAMILTON, Aug. 11 (CP) — Only one garbage-laden truck crossed picket lines today as a wages-hours strike by civic employees went into its second day.

Garbage collecting is one of the city services hit by the walkout of 1,000 members of the Hamilton Civic Employees' Union (CCL) who seek a 40-hour work week, instead of 44 hours, and a pay increase to $1.10 an hour from $1.

Trucks owned and operated by the city usually collect garbage once a week in residential sections, but independent truckers haul daily from the business area. William Patterson said Mayor Lloyd Jackson advertised yesterday for 40 trucks and 80 men to report today at the city incinerator at 7 a.m. but only two trucks showed up.

Grave-Diggers Out

Grave-diggers also are on strike. But the union is considering having its members dig graves free during the strike, with the saving in funeral costs being passed on to the bereaved families.

"It's a painful business that we can't allow the usual burying services," said Oliver Hodges, union publicity director. "But the dead are dead and the living are being hurt. These men (civic grave diggers) are taking home less than $40 a week and less than what a Toronto survey showed was necessary to support a family."

The two city-operated cemeteries have enough mausoleum space to store the number of dead expected during the next two weeks.

Watch Mains

Union officials said waterworks men would be sent back to work to fix any broken mains. City officials promised that vital city services would be carried on.

Other trade unionists in Hamilton immediately offered to support the strikers.

Jack Dowling, CCF member of the Legislature for Hamilton East and an organizer for the United Steel Workers (CIO-CCL) said any violence resulting from the use of "strike breakers" would bring 10,000 steel workers to assist the strikers.

Textile workers and the Hamilton Labor Council (CCL) also pledged support.

Mr. Dawling also told the meeting that the Steel Workers would not permit private contractors to collect their garbage.

Red Soldiers Have Taken Important Port Of Pohang From U.S. Toops

UN Planes Driven Off Airfield, As Enemy Less Than Two Miles Away, Only One Enemy Bridgehead Left At Naktong

TOKYO, Aug. 12—(Saturday)—(AP)—Red troops last night seized the important port of Pohang on the east coast and fought virtually to the edge of the U.S. airbase to the southeast. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters meanwhile announced that all Communist bridgeheads but one across the Naktong river on the western front had been erased by American units.

But this one is important. It is a big one in the Changyong area, 29 miles southwest of the front-line supply base of Taegu.

The Eighth Army, announcing the fall of Pohang, said the city was in flames as Americans withdrew after a savage night battle. Pohang is 65 air miles north of the main U.S. supply port of Pusan.

Smal US forces battled in the early morning darkness to save the air field, which is on a split about six miles south-east of Pohang.

US tanks and more infantry were rushing up to the rescue of the airfield.

Surprise Attack

Pohang, second only to Pusan itself as a supply port, fell to a surprise Red drive through undefended mountains while the Americans were rolling back the enemy on the extreme southern end of the Korean front.

About 6,000 of the enemy, with artillery fire support from across the river, are trying to break out eastward at the Changnyong area bridgehead. If they make it they will cut off Taegu from Pusan, 55 miles to the south-west. The headquarters summary said heavy fighting was continuing in this area.

The Naktong bridgeheads wiped out apparently were those on the US 1st Cavalry Division front about 12 miles north-west of Taegu.

On the southern front, approximately 1,000 enemy troops battled in a desperate attempt to break out of a trap in the coastal hills south-west of Chinju and about 45 miles or so west of Pusan.

London Excited Over Second Royal Birth

LONDON, Aug. 11—(CP)—Excited Londoners jammed the streets around Clarence House today, waiting for the birth of a second child to Princess Elizabeth. Extra police were on duty to handle the crowds.

A spokesman for the royal family said Thursday "we shall not have long to wait," but Princess Elizabeth's physician, Sir William Gilliatt, left the princess at midnight and did not return during the night.

Sir William, who has a reputation for close and accurate predictions, was reported to have said earlier this week that Prince Charles' sister or brother—who will be third in line for the throne—might be born Thursday.

Nurse Helen Rowe, who was present when Prince Charles was born at Buckingham palace Nov. 14, 1948, has moved into Clarence House.

Visit Daughter

King George and Queen Elizabeth — just like any about-to-be grandparents — visited their daughter Thursday night. They stayed about 45 minutes and were cheered on arrival and departure. Earlier the Princess had taken a stroll in the garden on her 18th-century town house.

Princess Margaret was not in the city. She left for Scotland Thursday to visit friends.

Calls Cabinet Meeting

LONDON, Aug. 11—(Reuters)—Prime Minister Attlee today called a Cabinet meeting at short notice — two weeks earlier than he planned to discuss pay increases for the armed forces. Attlee, it was understood, called the meeting after reading a private report by Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell, who has said that service pay must be increased to attract more recruits.

Police Recover Stolen Papers

FOLKESTONE, England, Aug. 11 (Reuters).—Secret papers on atomic research, stolen from a train Wednesday, have been recovered here. A man was detained.

Scotland Yard detectives and American intelligence officers cooperated in a 48-hour country-wide hunt for the papers lost by Frank Greenlees, a supply ministry official, on his way to a research establishment in the north of England.

He left the papers in a case in his railroad compartment while he walked along the corridor of the train. When he returned three minutes later the papers were gone.

Police said espionage was not suspected.

Makes Ferry Crossing Youth 16 Disappears

OWEN SOUND, Aug. 11 (CP) —Police said today that Peter Fenton, 16, of Owen Sound, disappeared July 31 after crossing by car-ferry from the Bruce peninsula to South Bay mouth on Manitoulin Island.

The boy had taken a job as a helper on a truck carrying blueberries between the island and Toronto. He had planned to return home Aug. 4.

The owner of the truck, Allan Turner, of Toronto, told police he fell asleep during the ferry crossing on the youth's first trip to Manitoulin and did not awaken until the ferry was on its return trip. The youth took the truck ashore, where it was later found abandoned.

CN Man Drowns In Lindsay River

LINDSAY, Aug. 11 (CP)—Vincent McCabe, 28, of Lindsay, a Canadian National Railways brakeman, was drowned in the Scugog river Thursday night while fishing with a companion in a motorboat.

Joseph Roberge, also of Lindsay said the two were trolling when he heard a splash. "At first I thought that Vincent had landed a fish but when I turned around he was missing."

Roberge turned off the engine and was able to bring McCabe's body to the surface by pulling in his trolling line which entangled his body.

An inquest will be held

Man, Woman Shot In Michigan Ambush

REED CITY, Mich., Aug 11 (AP)—A man and a woman were shot and killed from ambush here Thursday night and their elderly assailant is near death from a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head.

Slain were Mrs. Donna Poling and Ray Nehmer, both 33.

Shortly afterward 65-year-old William Dempke, a neighbor, was found critically wounded in a nearby field. His 20-gauge shotgun lay beside him. Four shells had been fired.

Police said they were mystified as to the cause of the shootings.

Two other persons, including Mrs. Poling's son, Donald, 15, and her husband, Roy, 45, were injured. A second woman escaped harm.

Mrs. Poling and Nehmer were shot shortly before midnight as they left a taxicab with Poling and Nehmer's divorced wife, Daisy, at the Nehmer residence in town.

4,400 Have Volunteered For New Fighting Brigade

OTTAWA, Aug. 11 — (CP) — More than 4,400 men have volunteerd for Canada's new fighting brigade and 1,324 of them so far have been accepted or are going through documentation, army headquarters announced today.

The army said 4,400 had volunteered across the country up to Thursday night for the special fighting brigade to be trained for action in Korea or elsewhere under the United Nations banner.

Many of the accepted applicants have been given a few days to complete personal affairs before "signing on the dotted line" and being dispatched to training centres.

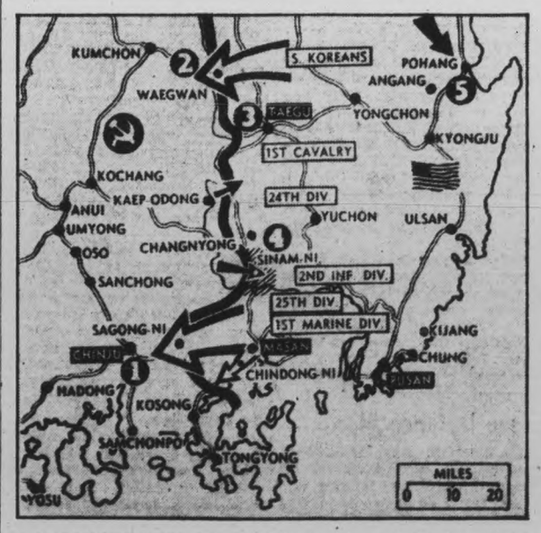
But many already were on their way to the camps where they will train with units of Canada's regular active army and already "a sizeable number is in uniform".

Defence Minister Claxton, who said recruiting would be continued "until we have enough replacements for at least a year," saw 90 recruits off to Camp Shilo, Man., and Petawawa, Ont., Thursday night from Toronto. He said he was impressed with their youth and physical fitness.

Acceptances at various recruiting stations, with Kingston yet to report, in the two days since the drive began Wednesday, were reported as follows by army headquarters:

St. John's, Nwld., 29; Halifax, 83; Fredericton, N.B., 27; Quebec, 26; Montreal, 112; Toronto, 444; Ottawa, 311; London, Ont., 45; Winnipeg, 45; Regina, 72; Calgary, 113; and Vancouver 10.

The percentage of second world war veterans—the men the army particularly wants because they will not require so much training—is running slightly more than 55 per cent, the army said.



A DRIVING U.S. OFFENSIVE has been halted as North Korean troops make a fast comeback. Red invaders drove into Pohang (small Top arrow) and began battle for important American airfield nearby. Reports indicate the enemy is digging in on ridge before Chinju (large arrow) as the G.I. advance is slowed and a serious enemy threat has developed at Waegwan, (large arrow), gateway to Taegu.

Nazi Plants Left Alone After Oct. 1

Allies Plan To End Dismantling Of German Industry

FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 11—(AP)—Western Allied authorities said today that the dismantling of German industry will be completed by Oct. 1 except for one plant—the former Hermann Goering steel works at Watenstedt-Salzgitter in the British zone.

This coincided with authoritative reports that the United States, Britain and France are considering the industrial rearmament of the Germans to bulwark the western defence system.

Allied officials said the dismantling program is so nearly completed that a stoppage now would have no effect on West Germany's industrial potential.

Only 44,000 tons of equipment remain to be dismantled in the British zone—home of the Ruhr. In the French zone, dismantling has ended. Only 1,200 tons remain to be yanked out in the American zone, the officials said.

British officials gave this summary of the present state of dismantling:

British zone—411 of 477 plants dismantled. This represents 1,254,000 tons of a scheduled 1,298,000 tons. Of the plants still being dismantled, 32 are small. The remaining 34 are 95 per cent dismantled.

French Zone

French zone—103 of 115 plants delivered as reparations to other countries. The remaining 12 plants are dismantled but delivery has not been completed.

American zone—183 of 184 plants delivered. The one remaining plant is 60 per cent dismantled.

It is in steel, the sinew of war, that allied dismantling has been most sharply felt by the Germans.

Allied officials said that about 6,000,000 tons of steel capacity has been lost to the Germans through dismantling. A capacity of about 14,500,000 tons has been allowed to remain, but production is limited to 11,000,000 tons a year.

The Goering plant, built solely as a war project, could produce 700,000 tons of steel a year, allied officials say. The allies decided not to remove the plant from the dismantling list because it was designed exclusively to build up German war potential. It was a plant in which steel was manufactured and converted into war weapons.

Allied officials said 181,000 tons of a scheduled 212,000 tons have been ripped out at the Goering plant.

GODERICH, Aug. 11 — (CP) — Loftus E. Dancey, K.C., thought to be the oldest practising lawyer in Canada, died suddenly at his home here Thursday in his 91st year. A week ago he suffered a broken hip, and was making good recovery at his home when stricken by pneumonia.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

OPEN JOINTS NOW CLOSED UP TIGHT

Most people know the costly nuisance of root-clogged sewer pipes. Waste matter backs up, drains may overflow, and sometimes the whole sewer must be dug up and replaced.

To protect your home from this risk, Johns-Manville developed Transite House Connection Pipe. Made of asbestos and cement, it is highly resistant to corrosion or rot. Shiny-smooth inside, J-M Transite House Connection Pipe affords full-capacity flow. Each joint is made with a "Taper-Tite" coupling which resists root growth.

J-M Transite House Connection Pipe is easy to install. For complete details, write Canadian Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your nearest J-M dealer.

Prices Ease Slightly On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Aug. 11 — (CP) — Prices eased slightly in some key stocks in mid-day trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Mild selling appeared in Base Meals but Industrials held firm. Volume for the first three hours was 995,000 shares, about 57,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Industrials were mixed in dealings but gains still outnumbered losses. Aluminum gained $2 at $79 and Dominion Bridge gained ⅞ at 45⅛. Key stocks like Ford A, which reached a new high for the year yesterday, CPR and Brazilian, dipped fractionally.

Major issues in Base Metals dipped and the index of representative stocks showed a decline after reaching a 13-year high in the two previous sessions. Consolidated Smelters dropped ¼ at 111. Noranda and Hudson Bay also slipped.

Golds gained in a handful of issues but the overall picture was one of fractional losses. Some Seniors were ahead fractions, Kerr-Addison adding ⅛ at 16.

Western Oils were somewhat lower. Supertest Common and Preferred were the exceptions.

Rail Heads

The flat rejection of the offer appeared to leave little or no hope for a compromise between the disputants.

President A. R. Mosher of the Canadian Congress of Labor, which has two Canadian brotherhoods involved in the dispute, said his unions would be willing to compromise on "certain features" but felt further compromise efforts would be of no practical value because the railways said yesterday's offer was "final."

In his letter delivered late Thursday to a meeting which he did not attend, Mr. Hall denied that the unions were not bargaining in good faith and charged the railways with "an interminable delaying action."

Still Not Solved

He said the unions' demands were submitted 14 months ago and the issue is still not solved. Further, he said the railways' conception of the impact of cost on the economy of the country was "greatly exaggerated."

He said if there is any question of lack of public opinion behind the unions, "it is simply because the public is ill-informed and accepts propaganda for facts and irresponsible and biased newspaper editorials as gospel truth."

"The 44-hour work week offered by the railways, with the suggestion that there might be a 40-hour week at some nebulous time in the future, will not satisfy the employees. The alternative of an 8½-cent-per-hour increase is even more objectionable.

"It not only is conditional upon scuttling the shorter work week but falls far short of meeting the rise in the cost of living since early in 1948 when wages were last increased.

Never Had Strike

The unions reiterate the hope that a strike can be avoided. As we have pointed out to the railway presidents, there has never been anything in the nature of a national strike on Canadian railways, indeed no stoppage of work of any importance for a great number of years.

"This well illustrates the responsible character of the employees and their reluctance to adopt extreme measures. Their traditional conservatism has, I fear, been mistaken for complacency, and advantage taken of it.'

Mr. Hall also expressed dissatisfaction over selection of judges as chairmen of conciliation boards.

"We have not found that the background, training and experience in the judicial field of some of the gentlemen who sit as chairmen of conciliation boards qualifies them to deal adequately with, and decide fairly, labor disputes involving sociological and economic factors."

Reach Terminal Point

In his strike directive to the unions, Mr. Hall said trains en route at 6 a.m. local time, Aug. 22, would be permitted to reach the first terminal or divisional point.

To carry this out, train dispatchers, telegraphers and tower men would remain on duty not later than 10 a.m. local time.

The running trades are not involved in the strike call but the railways, in previous statements, have left no doubt but what the threatened strike would tie up operations.

Involved are two Canadian unions—the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL) and the Brotherhood of Express Employees (CCL) embracing more than 30,000 workers—and 15 international unions embracing such workers as telegraphers, shopmen, maintenance men and clerks.

Object To Statement

The union's letter to the railways said it found "objectionable" the railways' statement that they questioned that union representatives were bargaining in good faith.

It said: "The railways' conception of bargaining is an interminable process calculated to preserve the status quo to the last possible moment and deprive the employees of the improvements sought in working conditions and wages over a long period, during which workers in other industries have secured them."

In its strike call the unions ordered telegraph operators, tower men and others responsible for operations of signals to leave them at the indication specified under rules and train orders in effect when the strike action is taken.

Appropriate steps should be taken to "provide for safekeeping of railway property."

All employees on strike were ordered to keep away from company property "except such as are designated certain duties to be performed in futherance of the strike by authority of he organizaions."

No Trespassing

Employees occupying railway dwellings must not trespass on other railway premises, the unions cautioned, and added: "Employees occupying dwellings which are part of the station building shall lock the connecting door or dors and not enter the office or business part of the building.

"Acts of violence of any nature will not be tolerated by the organization...

"No member or non-member will return to work unless instructed to work pending further negotiations or the strike is officially declared off by representatives of our respective organizations, when all will return to work at the same time without prejudice and with all former rights".

Initial announcement of the union rejection of what was termed the railways' final compromise offer came in a statement authorized by the railway presidents following a later-afternoon meeting Thursday.

The statement said:

"We have been informed by leaders of the two union groups involved in the current labor dispute that the final proposal of the railways put before them ... are unacceptable to the negotiating committees.

"The union representatives gave no indication that they were prepared to recede in any degree from the full demands of a 40-hour week and an additional wage increase of seven and 10 cents per hour.

No Alternative

"In these circumstances the railways have no alternative but to prepare for strike action by the employees and appropriate announcements and arrangements will be made at once."

On the other hand, union leaders had little to say. Frank Hall, representing 15 international brotherhoods involved in the dispute, had only a terse "no comment" to offer. An earlier statement by A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor and representative of the two Canadian unions, indicated the carriers' offer was not acceptable.

The railways take-it-or-leave-it offer was made at a morning meeting and Donald Gordon, Canadian National Railways president, said the compromise proposal was not intended as a bargaining point.

Plans Vision Despite Bishop

NECADAH, Wis., Aug. 11 (AP) —Mrs. Anna Van Hoof intends to proceed with her anticipated vision of the Virgin Mary next Tuesday even though her Roman Catholic bishop is skeptical.

"I must go ahead with it or our Blessed Mother will punish me," 40-year-old farmwife said yesterday.

"If she (the church) doesn't recognize it, then it will have to bear my cross all the harder".

Bishop John Treacy of the La Crosse diocese has forbidden special religious services in this small village on the day when Mrs. Van Hoff says the Virgin will appear for the seventh time since last November.

He has termed her claims of apparitions as being 'of extremely questionable nature".

A railroad cancelled its planned special trains from Chicago and Milwaukee after the bishop's statement Wednesday.

Before that, indications were that as many as 100,000 persons planned to be present at the farm home.

Churchill

Churchill ridiculed the five-country Brussels treaty as completely ineffective.

"Committees have been set up which have been talking ever since," he said. "Conferences have been held with high officials and statesmen. A pretentious facade has been displayed by the governments responsible for our safety."

"But in actual fact," he said. "apart from the establishment of an American bomber base in Britain, nothing has been done to protect our people."

Churchill complained that his warnings to the West in the past had fallen on unheeding ears, or were used to sustain the false accusation by the East of warmongering.

"Now, however, suddenly the lightning flash in Korea and the spreading conflagration which has followed it has roused the whole free world to keen and vehement realization of its dangers; and many measures are now proposed which, if they had been taken two years ago, would at least have yielded some fruit."

Churchill warned against depending too much on the West's combined superiority in steel and other materials.

"Most of this might be the prize of the aggressor, if we were struck down."

City Of London Gets $13,000,000 Industry

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 11 (CP). —This city and Canada got a new $13,000,000 industry today.

It is General Motors Diesel, Ltd., which will make locomotives for Canadian railways, and the figure $13,000,000 gives only a faint idea of it.

For very shortly it will be producing one Diesel unit every two days, worth from $100,000 to $200,000 each, and later on it aims at one every day. That adds up to probably a minimum of $20,000,000 each year.

The materials needed are not all available in London, and so the industry offers a chance to any Canadian manufacturer or community to get in its bids on orders; with western Ontario towns and cities in a favored spot.

Marines Take Kosong

Marines completed the capture of Kosong, south coast port of 50,000 population 20 miles southeast of Chinju.

The situation was grave on the eastern part of the front in the Pohang area. A spokesman at the Eighth Army headquarters in Korea announced the fall of Pohang. He said that by 10 p.m. on Friday (8 a.m. EDT) there were no friendly troops inside the city.

The US air strip to the southeast was fighting for its life. The Communists brought up artillery within range. Fighter planes blasted the attacking enemy with rockets and machine-gun fire. The fighters left the air field for safety elsewhere through the night.

Red guerrillas were only 1½ miles from the field.

The Reds held a ridge only 3½ miles from the runway when the Mustangs had to give up the battle because of darkness. The planes went to other airfields in Korea for the night.
